The program will consist of the following grades and teams:

Grades 2-9, Boys' four divisions; Grades 2-9, Girls' three divisions.

Please make an effort to register during these hours as the program may have to be limited.

PATS' PEAK SKI TRIP

The Recreation Department, through the Mass. Ski Club, will offer a day ski trip to Pats' Peak, in southern New Hampshire, Saturday, Dec. 10. The cost for the trip, which includes round trip transportation, all day lift ticket and ski lesson, is $20.50 per person.

Chaperones will be provided by the Recreation Department and the Mass. Ski Club.

Equipment rentals will be offered at a discount rate of $5 for the day, payable at Pats' Peak.

To register call the Recreation office at 383-6791. Space is limited and registrations and payment of $20.50 must be made by November 19.

ADULT VOLLEYBALL LEAGUE

Residents 18 years-old and older who are interested in joining an area adult volleyball league, may call the Recreation office to leave their names. The Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate, and Norwell Recreation Departments will organize a four town volleyball league for men and women. The games will probably be held in Hingham because of gym space. If interested, please call the Recreation office at 383-6791.

INSTRUCTORS

The Recreation Department is accepting applications for various instructor positions including game coordinator for Grades K-3 and various speciality instructors. Please call the Recreation office at 383-6791 for applications.

Ambulance Study Board presses on

By Cindi Bondi and Bill Hayward

A private ambulance service in Cohasset, instead of the current fire department's ambulance service, would bring many changes.

Ambulance study committee member Arne Gjestby said, "Right now we are learning about how the system that we have works. We are calculating the cost of our present service. Later, we will compare the possibilities of another service."

Committeeman Roy Fitzsimmons said tallying the first aid calls, hospital calls and other information from the ambulance fire log was time-consuming and would have to be divided among committee members.

Firefighter William Protulis volunteered to gather information from the log book.

The committee will determine the number of ambulance calls required to transport of the patient and how many mutual aid calls come in.

Hull estimated 900 medical calls last year. Scituate had approximately 1,000, of which 500 were transport calls.

The committee discussed the possibility of replacing the entire 1976 Ford ambulance, or just the cab portion of the truck.

Committee members Pamela Johansen asked, "A class one ambulance needs to be equipped with two-way radios that can reach the hospital. Does Cohasset have this system?"

Protulis said, "We have the radios but the frequency will have to be changed to be able to always reach the hospital."

Committee member captain Mark Trask asked, "Will the labor cost be a flat rate or will it depend on the number of firefighters and emergency medical technicians needed? Also, how many men would an ambulance service provide?"

Gjesteby said, "It will be tricky to decide who will get overtime on the ambulance."

Trask said, "All firefighters are trained as EMTs. It is a requirement of the job to be certified. Any man coming in to serve as an EMT is guaranteed at least two hours of overtime."

Trask is checking with the insurance service office to find out if private ambulance service, and less men on the firefighter staff would affect the firefighter's insurance rate.

Fitzsimmons will keep in touch with State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray to see if legislative laws regarding private ambulance services change.

He said, "There are no federal funds available so the town would be footing the bill."

The committee must also review the state regulations for private and public ambulance services.

If the town of Cohasset chooses to replace or supplement the existing Fire Department Ambulance Service with a private service it is possible, but not definite, some firefighters could be laid off.

Capt. Trask will also contact the Insurance Service Organization (ISO), which rates communities, A, B, C or D, based upon their firefighting capabilities, to find out if their rating for Cohasset would change if the number of men on the Fire Department were decreased. Cohasset currently holds a B rating.

Pamela MacLean Johansen will contact the Office of Emergency Medical Services (OEMS). The OEMS is a state agency responsible for the inspection of all ambulance services in Massachusetts.

The committee has set up a tentative meeting schedule for Tuesday evenings at 8:15 p.m. at the Town Hall. Next week the meeting is Wednesday at 8:15 at the Town Hall.

Dr. Mark Friedman attended Tuesday's meeting. He applied to selectmen for a committee position.

The committee has sent out requests for quotes on costs to South Shore Ambulance Services for the first year of ambulance service.

School meeting surprise

The School Committee meeting Monday night was interupted by two trick-or-treaters dressed as clowns. But these costumed "kids" did it backwards. They gave bite-sized candy bars to the committee, superintendent and asst. superintendent.

Teachers Association President Christine Collins and Parent School Organization President Sue McNamara livened up the meeting Halloween night when they appeared at the window of the meeting room.

They stayed for the meeting.

Resignation rejected

The resignation of Oliver Woodruff from the Personnel Committee could not be accepted by selectmen because Woodruff was appointed by the advisory board, the town moderator and the selectman chairman.

Salt Winds development reapplies to ZBA

The Salt Winds case, in accordance with Superior Court Justice William O'Neill's ruling, was reintroduced before the Cohasset Board of Appeals Tuesday.

The case was first introduced in 1981. The board at that time denied Salt Winds a variance to build a residential dwelling in a potential flood area. The property is located on Jerusalem Road near Strait's Pond.

David Bowering of The Salt Winds Development Corporation applied to the the ZBA to build a single family dwelling at 695 Jerusalem Rd.

The Salt Winds Development Corporation appealed that decision to the Superior Court and Justice William O'Neil referred the case back to the Zoning Board, asking them to review changes made in the proposed construction plan.

The original plan called for over 400 cubic yards of fill to elevate the dwelling above the flood plain. The revised plan calls for 60 cubic yards of fill, with the dwelling elevated on concrete pilings. In addition, a concrete retaining wall will be constructed.

Many citizens spoke out against the proposal. Most of them said the proposed building lot is prone to flooding. Several residents of the area commented on the heavy run off which flows down Howe Rd. during wet weather. It is possible the proposed retaining wall could divert this run off, causing adjacent properties to flood.

Other residents said the structure would ruin the view.

A major concern of the appeals board is to properly interpret the town's Zoning bylaws. The bylaws discouraged any development in flood prone areas.

Tuesday, William A. Mather, Bowering's attorney, presented engineering plans that would allow the dwelling to be safe from flooding.

The house would be constructed on 16 foot concrete pillars that would elevate the structure six feet above the flood line. The front of the house would rest on a concrete wall which would prevent drainage flooding neighboring properties and the water system would be placed at the front of the house to prevent the possibility of pollution, Mather said.

Fill would be used around the front of the house so that "it will look like any other house on Jerusalem Road," Bowering said.

He added that a brown fence would cover the sides and part of the back to hide the contrete pillars.

John Rouseau, appeals board member said, "You realize the position you are putting us in? Someone could erect concrete pillars eight feet out in the ocean and make them high enough so that the structure would never be flooded."

A letter from the drainage committee said, "The area is a known problem area and sewage could seep onto other properties and cause a health hazard."

Several residents of Jerusalem Road opposed the structure. The residents were concerned about possible drainage and a blockage of view.

Diane Sullivan, Jerusalem Road said, "People who move to Choasset have the right to be protected against buying a home that could possibly be flooded."

The board took the case under advisement.

Other Cases

In other cases, Robert Coletti, Arrow Run Road asked the board to grant a variance allowing his recently built garage to remain 6.5 feet from the side property line. The garage was built there because of a mistake made by Coletti's surveyor.

Target Industries applied after the fact for permission to pave a railroad right of way adjacent to their parking facilities.

Roger Porter, a representative of Target Industries told the board that the company had received a letter from the selectmen granting them permission to pave the access road, which was described as an "eyesore" by Porter.

LWV to study local town departments

This year the Cohasset League of Women Voters is studying local town government, in particular, the ways the town departments are currently working together and with similar departments in our region and state.

By interviewing most department heads, the local study committee has been able to compare how the various town departments purchase, maintain and deploy their equipment and supplies, how they utilize personnel, and how cooperation among departments is fostered.

Several meetings have been scheduled over the next few months to present background information and discuss ways in which efficiencies, economies, consolidations, and/or regionalizations of various services might be considered for Cohasset.

The first such meetings will be held Tuesday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Community Center, 3 North Main St., and repeated Thursday, Nov. 10 at 9:30 a.m. at Trueblood Hall in the Parish House of First Parish Church, 23 North Main St..

Although these meetings are particularly for League members, anyone is welcome to attend.

Please call ahead to either 383-6433 or 383-0173 (evenings only) for those planning to attend the Nov. 8 evening meetings, as evening meetings are held only when five or more persons attend.

These meetings should be of particular interest to newer residents of the town who would like to learn more about how Cohasset town government functions. Comments from long time residents would also be welcome.

Fire Dept. grievances

Selectmen granted the grievance for the exchange of time and denied the grievance for the work hours of new EMTs. Both were filed against Chief Martin Dooley by firefighters.

The first grievance said that Chief Dooley unreasonably denied firefighter Lenny Davis an exchange of time so he could attend the special town meeting.

Selectmen denied the grievance that the two new EMT's Peter Trask and and Robert Protulis worked a 40 hour work week. The union claimed both men were working less than a full-time firefighters's 42-hour work week.

Peer Counselling a success . . .

graders. Then, we put two peer counselors into our position for about four weeks. This was basically for an orientation, and for helping them in getting to know the students.

"Another way we began them was with tutoring. Through that, the counselor could get to know the student at a slower pace.

"Basically, the first half of the year was the heavy training, although the training does go on all year."

After Christmas, the peer counselors were comfortable in their positions and began to dig into the job of advising the seventh graders.

"After Christmas, one of the students mentioned how appalled they were at the talk of drinking in the seventh grade, and the other students agreed. So they decided to put on a program for the seventh graders."

That program, Babaian added, was the hightlight of the year.

The peer councelors put on a skit for the seventh grade, acting out the typical seventh grade party. There was the obnoxious drunk, the peer pressure, all the people you see at a party, Babaian said.

"That skit generated tons of conversation and questions. And they were all peer pressure questions."

From there, Babaian said, the peer counselors began to notice that the skills they were learning were very good tools for life.

"The main thing we are teaching is how to listen, how to respond effectively, and how to effectively work with a person to help them solve their own problems.

"Through all this, the students find themsleves helping out friends. They learn that the purpose isn't to give advice, but to help a person solve their own problems."

Antoher important thing the peer counselors learn, Babaian said, can be summed up in one word, "confidenciallity. That's of the utmost importance."

This year, peer counseling was listed in the student course listing as a class (although it isn't worth as many credits as a regular class.) 65 students igned up for the course, but again, only 15 were chosen.

"But his year, we decided that the peer counselors should have a say in who was to be chosen. So we developed a guide, had the peer counselors interview the students, then compared our interviews to theirs. The balance of the ratings is what we made our choice from."

Now in their second year, peer counseling has the advantage of having second year counselors as well as new counselors. And things are going very well, Babaian said.

"If a seventh or eighth grader is having trouble at home, or in adjusting to school, or socially, or if a parent calls or a teacher notices, we talk to the child and explain our program. Then we ask him if he wants to get involved. We find that a peer couselor tutor is a good way to get into being a big brother or sister too.

"Sometimes it's much easier to talk to someone around your age then an adult. That's part of the success."

Nicky White, a senior in his first year as a peer counselor, said he believes another reason for the success of the program is that the students love it.

"I'm getting to know people that I never knew before. I've become very close to the other students involved. And I've learned a lot about basic counseling. It definately carrys over to everyday life, too."

Babaian said that although Cohasset is one of the few South Shore towns with a program right now, it is becoming more popular by the day.

There is currently a program in Hanover, and at Notre Dame. Duxbury and Marshfield have expressed interest as well. "It's catching on around the South Shore. There is interest."

In Cohasset, things have settled down a bit. But Babaian, Porter, and the peer couselors won't settle for just plain great.

They hope to start a help group for students dealing wiht divorce soon. Nothing is set yet, but with the energy and genuine care these people have, it shouldn't be long until the program is running smooth.

Selectmen consider Bates Building use

A new Town Hall space committee is needed to decide if the Building Inspector should move to the Bates Building.

Planning Board members want the inspector to move there to assist the board with records and recommendations.

Planning board member Robert Sturdy gave selectmen reasons for putting a planning board office in the Bates Building where the health and sewer departments are currently located.

Sturdy said, "We have calendar periods as short as 14 days where we have to act. We need to have access to our records at all times." He added, "Site related activities would be concentrated if we moved into the Bates Building."

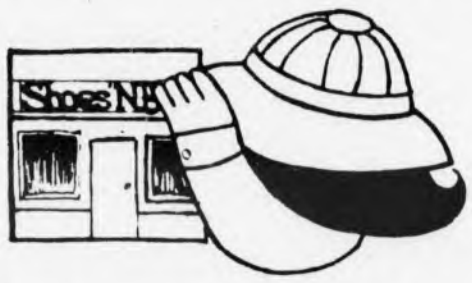
Selectman Rocco Laugelle said, "We should bring the planning board into the town hall, not take it farther away."

Building inspector Robert Dennis said the two departments work closely together and should be located in the same place.

Selectman Frank England said, "There is a lot of merit in Bob's suggestion. The two functions should be working closely together. There is no better time than now to start thinking of this."

Sturdy said, "The problem at the town hall is meeting space."

Selectman suggested the boards should meet in the rooms downstairs but planners said they need a room with storage space for records. "Records should be accessible during a meeting," said Planning Board Chairman, John O'Toole.



Sturdy also suggested the need for a secretary. The health board and the sewer dept. share one half time and one full time secretary at the Bates building.

Selectman Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said, "Everyone is screaming for a secretary and it is justified."

Planner Dan Cotton said, "We need someone to keep the store during town office hours. One of the planning board members goes to get the mail but there is no regular system as to who collects it or when."

Selectman John DeBassio said, "The whole thing leads up to the town hall study committee."

Jill Ryan of Cohasset was one of 45 enthusiastic high school cheerleaders who participated as models in the first annual Young Amercan Fashion Show at Lord & Taylor, South Shore Plaza.

☐Have you noticed the reconditioned Jog Trail at the Joseph Osgood School? Highway Superintendent Harold Litchfield and the Clerk of Works Tony Sestito received the Official 1983 Snapper Sneaker Pin Award for "their trail expertise and their caring for our Cohasset children." It was Tony's idea to use the sidewalk snowplow to skim off the weeds, a job that usually takes many hours. Also receiving this year's award pins were the 11 Osgood volunteers who participated in the Shape-Up Day to clean the track. They are: co-chairmen Herb and Karen Crehan; parents like Lisa Cogill, David Leahy, Peter Collins and Merlyn Corcoran; Osgood pupils Herbie Crehan, Ed Marks, Mikamarie Laugelle, Peter Collins, and Kenny. Giving an extra hand were Alison Crehan, Jessica MacDonald, Karen Marks and Philip Pratt, who are neighborhood members that frequently use the track.

☐Krissie Ralff, a freshman at Colby College, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ralff of Lantern Lane, made the Fall Tennis Varsity squad and was recognized for her skill in the Parents Association News of Colby: "Freshman Erin Borgeson (Edina, Maine) and her partner Krissie Ralff have had an impressive season. Coach Laura Carson expects that they will continue their winning ways throughout their college careers." Krissie was undefeated for the first half of this season.

☐Oct. 16 was a super-special day for William and Rebecca (Bates) McArthur, for it was the day that their son William Henry was born, weighing in at 9 pounds 10 ounces! Paternal grandparents, Earl and Ida McArthur of Holly Hill, Florida, (formerly of Cohasset), were unable to be here for the big event, but you can bet that maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Bates, was there with bells on!

☐I am happy to report that Helen Jason, of 60 Elm Street, is recuperating at home after a brief hospitalization.

☐Cohasset has a new shop in the downtown area. Located next door to South Shore National Bank, it is the Cohasset Clayhouse, owned by Rosemary Fitzpatrick. Included in the shop are greenwares, supplies and finished gifts. There are also classes held and many are filled already! Those left are Monday and Tuesday evening and Tuesday morning. It would be a nifty idea to take the course then give the results as a nice Christmas present! Call Rosemary Fitzpatrick for more details.

☐Have had lots of Marathon News reported to me this past week. Cohasset should be proud of all of its runners! Running in last weekend's Boston Fest were Dave Caffrey, Bill and Erin O'Brien and John Morgan. (John carried the U.S. Marine Corps flag during the whole race in memory of the Marines that were killed recently—a special feat indeed). Nov. 6 is the date for a couple of different marathons. Donald DeMichele will be an entrant in the Marine Corps Marathon; and Roger Craft and David Bishop will run in the Newport Ocean State Marathon. (David Bishop recently ran in the New York Marathon.) Around Thanksgiving David Terry plans to run in the Foxboro Marathon...that's a real Cohasset representation.

☐Saw a real unique fashion show last weekend, the best seen for October...all of the Halloween Trick or Treaters marching was the cutest sight. The costumes were great. Hats off to moms who got the kids all decked out for the occasion!

Larry Ash

☐Local 4-H member, Larry Ash, recently returned home from Richmond, Virginia, where he won the Bicycle Skill Riding Event. He represented the State of Massachusetts in this competition, held at the State Fair of Virginia. Larry entered a local competition in August at the 4-H Headquarters in Ashland, Mass., during the summer. This competition was open to any youth, 14 to 19 years-old, from Mass. The trip to Virginia was the prize for the winner of the local contest. The Bicycle Skill Riding Event was added to the State Fair's competition for the first time this year.

Larry is 15 years-old and has participated in 4-H activities for the past seven years. He is a Junior Leader of the "Udder and Bucket" Dairy Goat Club, which currently meets in Norwell.

☐When last reported about, Ruth Pratt and Ruth Goodwin were carrying bunches of spring flowers on their daily walk...they are still walking every day, but they now sport their heavy, warm winter clothing.

Ghosts? Spirits? Who left those messages?

By Melanie Mars

When the wind starts whipping around the corners of the house making eerie, slightly haunting melodies as it sifts through the cracks and crevices and the home starts settling itself in for the winter, one's thoughts begin to wander.

Was that a floorboard settling in? Did I hear a door creak? Didn't I just turn off that light? Now when did I put that book on the table?

The things that did not seem to bother us when the sun was high in the sky begin to seem more important as the nights get longer. And we wonder, just for a moment, is it us or could it be that we have an unseen visitor?

Ghosts? Nonsense, you say? Monday night I had the opportunity to visit a home in Hingham that is haunted. Since my visit coincided with the holiay of Halloween or All Souls' Eve, I was anticipating my visit more than a little.

The woman who lives in the house had felt the presence of a visitor on many occasions. It has manifested itself by rocking a chair for 20 minutes. Sorry, no drafts in the room were to be found. Items hung on the walls swayed precariously from their perches for an hour after being carefully hung. Incense lit and being carried to another room began to swirl and ashes flew as if someone were standing there blowing on it. Again, no drafts were located.

One of the rooms upstairs emits an icy cold draft, not from a window improperly sealed (they are covered with plastic) but from the carpeted floor above a comfortably warm room below. Flashes of light have been seen in rooms when no one was in them.

The home itself is over 65 years old. It was an inheritance for the family who travelled across the country to settle in it. Very little is known about the history of the home, but the family (who shall remain nameless here) found many photo albums and books when they moved in.

As we entered, my anticipation grew. I went with a group of people who are attempting to expand the powers of their minds. They are delving into psychic phenomena. Some were ardent believers, other skeptics, while some were flat-out non-believers.

We entered each room of the house before we sat in the front room and used a Ouija board to attempt to contact the spirits who dwell there. The hostess had used the board before, with some success.

Switching partners, using a third to call out the letters as they were chosen and a fourth to write down messages, if there were to be any, we began.

Rapidly the Ouija began around the board, several times falling off. We began to receive a series of messages from someone calling herself May. She told us she liked it there with the children but sometimes she was lonely. She said there were other spirits but would not or could not tell us who they were. One even gave us a message: "I don't want help."

May seemed strangely attracted to one of the women in the group and kept asking for her by name. She even told her to keep up her work with people.

The nonbelievers were not exactly convinced that ghosts do exist, as we did not see any of the phenomena that had been described to us. But it does make one wonder a little. The next time something goes bump in the night without a ready explanation...

Capt. Gurry needed

The Ambulance Study Committee has started investigating the need and the expense of a private ambulance service. From reading the reports it is obvious the study will be complete and in-depth.

The committee is missing one voting member and selectmen soon will make a decision. Apparently the position will be filled by a medical expert.

Capt. Mark Trask, fire prevention officer, is on the committee and that's fine. Chief Martin Dooley is an ex-officio member and that also makes sense.

But we feel another firefighter should be made an ex-officio member and that's Capt. James Lee Gurry, EMTIC. That is he is the Emergency Medical Technician Instruction Coordinator.

He is in charge of all EMT equipment and personnel and his recommendations should be listened to. He is the expert in the field.

The committee is off to a good start and anyone interested should attend the committee's meetings at 8:15 Tuesday night at the fire station.

Kakistocracy

The issue of legislative reform has been blowing in the winds of Massachusetts for more than 10 years. Now, with the deadline for the citizens' initiative petition on legislative reform drawing near, the time is here to open the doors of the state legislature and let the fresh air in.

The citizens' petition to reform the legislature, particularly the leadership, recently received an unintentional boost from House Speaker Thomas McGee who last week fired his capable majority leader, George Keverian.

What we have in Mr. McGee is a third rate pol who gives the word "hack" a bad name. His elevation to the House leadership several years ago is an unfortunate, but correct, example of the kakistocracy — rule by the worst — that runs the legislature. His tenure at the helm is reason enough to call for legislative reform.

The winds of change are gaining strength among voters of Massachusetts and legislators who fail to heed the warnings may face a hurricane of voter indignation. What the Boston Globe called "McGeeism" is becoming an issue here, giving fodder to the call for reform.

As House Speaker, Mr. McGee exercises, however badly, an iron grip on our state representatives. Both he and his iron grip deserve the trash heap at once and those fellow hacks who are a part of his team deserve it as well.

Observations

With the interest cost of over $29,000 and the legal costs of the Cox Estate variance, will a special town meeting be called before April?

Seven a.m. public meetings which are posted are as about as popular as waking up at 5 a.m. last Sunday, the day the public is supposed to turn the clocks back.

Ironing out some bad habits

By Claire McDonough

"I ironed a sweater this morning," Fauna told us.

Flora gaped. "You ironed a sweater? I don't believe it."

Fauna grew defensive. "I couldn't help it. I was late for work, and it was colder out than I thought it would be, and the only sweater I could find was wrinkled."

"That's no excuse," I told her. "We've almost managed to bring up a whole generation that doesn't know about ironing. You'll ruin things for all of us."

Flora nodded. "My son found my iron once. He asked me what it was and I told him it was a doorstop."

"I told my daughter it was for straightening hair," I added. "Really, Fauna, we have to stick together on this one. Don't you remember the hours we used to spend at the ironing board? When I was first married I even ironed sheets and towels. And my mother thought I was terrible because I didn't iron underwear."

"You didn't?" Fauna asked. "My mother used to tell me you could judge a housewife by how well she ironed underwear. She used to say that some day my husband might be run over by a truck, and how would I feel if they took him to a hospital and the doctor saw that his underwear was wrinkled?"

"I'd blame it on the truck," I told her. "And anyway, I'd probably feel bad enough that he'd been run over that it wouldn't make much difference."

Fern, Flora's newly married daughter, spoke up shyly.

"I remember when Mom used to starch."

We all moaned. "That was the worst," Fauna said. "Remember how the starch used to stick to the iron? And we had to use steel wool to clean it off, and the iron would be all scratchy?"

Flora nodded. "My grandmother told me to wrap a piece of beeswax in cheesecloth. She said if I rubbed it over the hot iron, it would keep it from sticking to starched clothes."

"Did it work?" I asked her.

"No. It just made you feel you were doing something about the problem. And the wax smelled awful, and it got all over the ironing board cover. But it didn't matter. I found my own way to finish with the ironing."

"How?" we asked eagerly.

"If you leave it in the basket long enough," she confided, "it rots, and you can throw it away."

Fern sighed. "I really am so grateful to you older women," she said.

"If you hadn't taken the first giant steps away from the drudgery of ironing, people my age would probably stll be chained to an ironing board."

"That's right," I said sternly. "Don't you understand, Fauna? It isn't just a matter of your sweater. If our husbands and kids find out about ironing, it's back to pre-wash and wear slavery."

"I'm sorry," Fauna said. "I didn't stop to think. I vow before you all, I'll never, never iron again."

We smiled and embraced her.

"You owe it," Fern said, "to generations of women yet unborn."

Corkery still concerned about private ambulance

(The following letter was published in the Marshfield Mariner but its contents are applicable to the Cohasset study. Ed.)

Letters

To the Editor:

First of all, I would like to correct a typographical error in my letter to the editor in last week's issue of the Mariner. In the section where I mentioned the private ambulance service contract with the Town of Plymouth at $100,000 per year for five years just for the service to the town, I also mentioned that anyone having to use the ambulance would be charged a base rate of $110 (NOT $10) plus $5 per mile. I hope this matter is now clarified because a base rate of $110 per $5 per mile adds up to a very expensive bill which many people cannot afford.

I also mentioned that our Board of Selectmen and Town Administrator have made a very wise decision by bringing a private ambulance service into Marshfield on a "one year trial basis" at no cost to the town, only to those who have to use the service. Nevertheless, those bills are certainly going to be a lot more than the present charge of $80 plus $14 for oxygen, but no mileage charge. I indicated by the two examples that I mentioned when I had to use a private ambulance twice in the past nine months. One bill was $478 and the other one was $220. I do not consider those bills inexpensive by any means, but I had to call for a private ambulance.

When the time comes that the town has to contract with a private firm, I am already afraid to think about what the cost to the town will be. I can easily predict a contract of $110,000 to $150,000 per year, plus a heavy charge to those who have to use the service. I am still seeking response from the residents of Marshfield about the financial proposal I have in mind that will offset this exorbitant cost. I hope this letter and these figures will prompt a great deal of interest and response.

Local groups join drive to reform legislature leadership

By Cindi Bondi

Local groups are collecting signatures for proposed legislative rules reform, but some area State Representatives have different views of a citizens initiative petition now being pushed by a coalition of several groups.

Sixty thousand signatures, of 61,508 required to validate the initiative petition for legislative rules reform, have been reported to the Coalition for Legislative Reform.

Coalition coordinator Bernice Jones said, "We have the most signatures from Middlesex County because they are the most populous. Norfolk County registers approximately 9,000 signatures. Plymouth County has been slower in reporting signatures."

She added, "Our goal is to get 100,000 signatures because not all of the signatures returned from various town clerks will be certified."

The Coalition for Legislative Reform coordinates eight groups: Common Cause, The Republican State Committee, Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX), Cape Cod Citizens for Legislative Reform, The Democratic Rules Reform Committee, The Worcester County Citizen's for Rules Reform, The Arlington Citizen's for Rules Reform and The Citizens for Limited Taxation Committee.

Common Cause has been supporting legislators who have proposed rule changes since 1979. Common Cause joined the coalition and primarily supports the citizens initiative petition.

Common Cause representative Elizabeth Fay said her group has been working on legislative reform for ten years.

Last week House Speaker Thomas McGee announced his decision to remove Majority Leader George Keverian and Taxation Committee Chairman Charles Flaherty from their leadership posts. Keverian became part of a rules reform coalition which he was previously against.

Recently a small group of legislators constructed a rules reform package of six amendments. Fay said, "The legislators' reform is not competing with the citizens initiative petition. Their reform is a step in the right direction. Keverian has learned that all-powerful leadership is a two edged sword."

She added, "However we are working for the initiative petition. We will continue to gather signatures to get the initiative petition reform package on the ballot in January, 1984."

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset does not think that the legislators reform group is as strong as the initiative petition.

She supports the intiative petition. Murray said, "If the leadership had reformed the rules than there would be no need for legislative reform. Some reforms are long overdue." She added, "For four years I have tried to file a bill for roll call votes. People should know how I am voting. That is my own bill so I certainly support it."

Murray said, "I agree with everything on the initiative petition except the rule to elect committee chairmen in caucus." Murray thinks that chairmen would end up going through the motions of campaigning to become chairman.

The legislators reform is scheduled to be debated in Senate Nov. 7. If a vote is taken the Senators' reform could be adopted.

CLT member Phyllis McCollough of Hanover said, "The legislators want reform but they are not going to cut their salaries like the intiative petition will. Reform couldn't have come at a better time than right after McGee dismissed Kaverian."

Signatures of the initiative petition must be certified by town clerks and turned in by Nov. 23. The legislators then vote on the initiative package reform without any changes to the reform.

CLT representative Chip Faulkner said, "We expect the intiative reform to be voted down. Only a minority of legislators are for this reform." He added, "If it is voted down we will need another 10,000 signatures within four or five weeks to get the reform bill on the ballot in November."

The initiative petition could be set back if the Supreme Court rules that it is unconstitutional for anyone outside of legislature to put bills on the ballot. The Supreme Court is scheduled to discuss this on Nov. 9 but an immediate ruling is not expected.

Faulkner said, "We are confident that citizens action for the intiative petition will be ruled constitutional. With dissidence in legislature I don't hold much hope for what they are doing in legislature for reform. It we did than we would not have to petition."

State Rep. William Flynn said, "The time is right to look at the whole rules of the house. I have an open mind. I am a member of the rules committee and I think we should take a detailed look at the rules of the house."

He added, "I have not seen the citizens proposal (the initiative reform), but we are working on legislative reform."

In reference to McGee dismissing Keverian and Flaherty, Flynn said, "It will be hard to operate the house for the next 14 months while the leader and the right hand man are at differences." He added, "Speaker McGee had a great reluctance to do what he had to but in order for the house to function, there werent' many options."

Another major concern of mine is the quality of service we will be receiving from a private ambulance firm. Shore Ambulance Service of Brockton is the firm that will be taking over on November 1. I have had to use their services twice in the past nine months and I have no complaints about them. However, both of these runs were non-emergency trips. There are some excellent private firms in the ambulance business, but there are also many very poor and unethical firms as well. But as I mentioned before, fortunately for the best interest of our town, the Board of Selectmen and Town Administrator have decided to bring this firm in on a trial basis. I assume that means that if the firm does not perform to our satisfaction, then they will be asked to leave town and another private service will be given a trial. However, I have some serious reservations about any private firm providing this expensive and valuable service "at no cost to the town." But time will tell. November 1 is less than a week away, so we shall see.

Legislative power structure

NOW

1. Power in the hands of two men, the Senate President and the House Speaker — who were elected by only 1 percent of state's voters. Legislators answer to leadership.

2. Legislative salaries highest in nation — up to 117 percent more than rank and file legislators. Senate President and House Speaker get $65,000/yr. Average Senate President and House Speakers salary in other 10 largest states is $31,887/yr.

3. Committee Chairmen chosen by House Speaker and Senate President, received $7,500 more than rank and file legislators. Chairmen who oppose leadership risk losing position and extra pay.

4. Committee members chosen by House Speaker and Senate President.

5. Support personnel, office space and supplies handed out by Senate President and House Speaker, often as rewards for loyalty.

6. Bills often buried in committee and killed by leadership before debate.

7. Laws often passed in the midst of chaos —late night sessions at end of year with no printed calendar or informed debate.

8. Legislative pay raises passed quickly, often late at night with no roll call vote, and just after re-election.

9. Initiative petitions for constitutional amendments signed by 62,000 voters often ignored or "amended" by constitutional convention. Action often delayed until last hours of session.

10. Massachusetts legislature is nation's third most expensive yet no auditing allowed — $34 million spent with no accountability.

11. Oligarchy: government of the leadership, for the leadership.

WHAT THIS PETITION WILL DO

1. Power and responsibility distributed among all legislators. Legislators answer to their constituents.

2. Leadership salaries reflect shared power and responsibility. Senate President and House Speaker cut by $20,000 each.

3. Committee chairmen chosen by majority party caucus*, receive only $1,000 more than rank and file (cut $6,500). U.S. Congress and most other states do not give extra pay to committee chairmen. Chairmen may be removed only by party caucus.

4. Committee members chosen by party caucus.

5. Support personnel, office space and supplies distributed fairly by Legislative Committee. This committee elected by party caucus and responsible to all legislators.

6. Bills can be brought to floor for debate by petition of only 25 percent of legislators in appropriate chamber.

7. Open and orderly process required on all legislation. Public hearings required on all bills. Printed calendar required before floor debate.

8. Legislative pay raises must be acted on prior to candidate filing deadline and with roll call vote. Thus legislators are on record and opposition may challenge them at the polls.

9. Initiative petitions for constitutional amendments signed by 62,000 voters must be acted on by June 10th in constitutional convention, and final action taken on original before any legislative substitute is discussed.

10. Legislative accounts subject to audit and examination by Inspector General.

11. Representative democracy: government of, by and for the people through their elected representatives.

* Meeting of legislators by party and branch.

A town comparison

To the Editor:

I believe Mr. Hayward's article, "Board Reviews Ambulance Service," Oct. 27, 1983, comparing the Town of Cohasset to the Town of Marshfield "which is closer in size," is very misleading.

The 1983 census reveals the Town of Cohasset has a population of 7,617 in an area of 10 square miles. The same census shows the Town of Marshifeld with a population of 21,783 and an area of 28 square miles.

It can be seen that the Town of Cohasset is one third the size of Marshfield in both respects.

I believe that this is a more accurate statement.

William T. Litchfield
71 South Main Street

(Ed. Note: Bill Hayward also reported, "Weymouth, Braintree, Plymouth and Quincy have adopted private ambulances but these towns are all larger than Cohasset which make comparisons with Cohasset difficult.")

Public safety renovations

Selectmen are studying the costs of renovating and improving the fire and police buildings.

A bond issue may be brought to town meeting.

Some of the problems are loose bricks, a leaky roof, worn flooring and outdated electrical equipment.

A battered rear door needs immediate attention and may be repaired soon. Selectmen will ask architects to inspect the building and come up with cost estimates.

Firefighter Randy Rosano suggested that a ventilation system should be installed to clear out fire truck diesel fumes.

Selectman John DeBassio said the Police Dept. needs remodelling, better lighting, a more modern breath analyzer, remodelling of the lobby especially if civilian dispatchers are hired and an acceses from the police to the fire station side of the building.

First Parish

By the Rev. Edward Atkinson

Recognition of the Judeo Christian heritage as our heritage has long been an issue within our Unitarian Universalist movement, and the issue has surfaced again as we consider proposals for a new statement of purposes and principles for our Unitarian Universalist Association.

The issue is often wrongly stated it seems to me. Much of the debate centers around the extent to which our members currently embrace or reject Judeo Christian beliefs. Many consider these beliefs to be hopelessly narrow and too corrupted by language and symbols drawn from a patriarchal culture. When we speak of a heritage, however, the question is not whether we believe in it or not, but rather is it our heritage, is it where we in fact came from? On that question for Unitarian Universatlists there can be little doubt. It is a matter of historical record that we emerged from the left wing of the Protestant Reformation. A heritage is a heritage whether you agree with it or not just as your parents are your parents whether you agree with them or not.

What we do with our heritage is, of course, another question entirely. We can and should discard ideas that are outworn or destructive. Our heritage can inform us as much what not to do as it guides us in what we should do. It is right that we discard the narrow dogmatism and male chauvinism of our Judeo Christian heritage. But let us not forget that also within that heritage are powerful stories of human dignity, humankind created in God's image, freedom, the Exodus, and the very process of questioning beliefs and being open to new truths itself, the Hebrew proscription against idolatry.

Pairpoint cup plate

The Women's Fellowship of the United Church of Christ in Norwell is very proud to have commissioned a cup plate, pressed by the Pairpoint Glass Works of Sagamore, Mass. The Women's Fellowship is one of the many outreach groups of the church, stressing education, spirituality, mission, community service, and sociability. Proceeds from sale of this plate will enable the Fellowship to continue its ongoing service to the church and the community.

The design of this unique cup plate was created by Elaine Wentworth, well-known South Shore artist and a member of the church. The center design shows the cross surmounted by the crown, and all of it atop the orb, signifying the lordship of the Risen Christ over all the world. The orb, representing the world, is divided into three parts to signify the command of our Lord to his disciples: "You shall be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." The figures, moving in unity and joy, represent the people of God in worship and in service. The triangle in the background shows the Trinity of God the Creator, Son and Spirit. The border is decorated with Christian symbols.

This lovely collectible is available by calling one of the following people: Nancy Woodworth, 878-4323; Jean Snow, 659-2598; Jan Hureau, 659-4643; or Duane Haskell at the church office, 659-2887. The price per plate is $7 and is currently available in clear and medium green. Amethyst and Blue Emerald will be available at a later date.

GREEN GROWS THE MEADOWS

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon – any day between 9 and 5 – and see the landscaping... the flower-strewn meadows... and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance on the left. Spike Wadsworth gets ready for change

By Milly Potter

"I suppose," says Spike Wadsworth reflectively, "I should tell you I was a model in the community . . . but we raised hell."

He was reminiscing one day recently about his youth in Norwell, where he's spent all but four of his 62 years. There ensued a torrent of enough memories, events, paths taken, career followed and interests pursued to fill the lives of three men, let alone one.

Loring L. "Spike" Wadsworth is approaching another crossroads in his life, with the sale of his business, the Sparrell Funeral Homes, and a projected move to a new home overlooking the North River in Marshfield.

But, he hastens to add, he won't be leaving for quite some time. The sale itself, to the McNamara brothers of Brighton, will take place over a four-year period. The brothers, John and Robert, who know the South Shore from summers spent in Scituate, already own the Sparrell Funeral Home in Cohasset and a quarter of the business. Over the next three years the McNamaras will purchase the rest of the business and real estate, with Spike and son Joey (Joseph L. Wadsworth II,) 28, participating in the transition.

Seated at his desk in his Central Street office, across the street from his house with its dazzling display of annuals out front, the stocky, gray-haired Wadsworth pulls out items one by one from a pile of printed material and pictures, records of an eventful life.

The first is a card that Sparrell recently had printed up, reproducing the firm's first record back in 1820. It's a bill from James N. Sparrell to a Nathanial Clapp, in the amount of $6 for a coffin and plate.

The business passed to James' son, Charles W. Sparrell, then to Ernest H. Sparrell, then in 1928 to Spike's father, J. Lyman Wadsworth. His father began working there as a stableboy in 1908.

And has Spike always been in the business, too? Well, no.

Born, he gestures, "at the top of the hill there," he attended Norwell schools, but dropped out of high school.

What then? Well, he worked at May Elm Farm, helped with a milk route, worked with Road Surveyor Perry Osborn (who gave him the nickname "Spike" for reasons that are unclear,) and did various other odd jobs.

His youthful recreations included digging for coins and bottles and owning a string of Model A's in which he made excursions to the mid-west, following the big bands of those years.

The coin collecting began when he learned that small leather factories in town (and there were many such: harness makers, shoe makers, trunk makers) had used copper to cut on. And copper coins were cheaper than sheets of copper. So he and friends would dig through brooks near the remains of these old works, and he amassed a collection that he kept and worked on until his eyes began to trouble him.

They'd also dig through old dumps for bottles; he used to belong to a bottle club, and still has a fine collection.

Working at jobs, he'd accumulate enough money for a spree, hop into a car with an older friend, to follow the Big Band sound.

His father sold his last Model A for him—"the best you could buy"—when Spike went into the service.

Another life-long interest began on Feb. 3, 1938, when he joined Fire Co. 1 in Norwell Center as a call fireman. ("You could join at 16 if you had a letter from your parents," he says.) He rose through the ranks and is now the Deputy Call Chief. "I'll be through next Feb.

You've built equity in your home...

The equity in your home (the difference between the amount you owe on your first mortgage and what your home is really worth) is an asset often overlooked.

You worked for your home...now let your home work for you. Our loan officers will be pleased to talk with you about taking advantage of this ideal money source.

A loan on this equity can pay the tuition for your children's education, buy or build a recreational home, allow you to take advantage of investment opportunities, and even help you assume an existing mortgage on a new home. We can assist with any worthwhile financial need.

You have built equity in your home — why not use it???

Spike Wadsworth . . .

3, I hope," he grins.

He saw a lot of work with the Fire Department in the fall of '38, in the aftermath of the September hurricane. "We cleared roads for weeks. Nothing moved but the fire department and the road surveyor."

As befits a youth growing up in a riverside town close to the sea, he also had a boat. "I had one way back, from '38 to '42, with another fellow," he recalls. They used to put ether in the fuel tank, to make it run better. One day his friend put ether into the tank which Spike had earlier doctored, "and blew it right out of the water."

Came the war, and Wadsworth joined in 1942, a step that was to earn him a place in history, and mention of his name in Cornelius Ryan's book, "The Longest Day." He became a Ranger, training with the British for one year, and "in mother ships way out to sea" to preserve the secrecy of the project. They were the forces that were to climb Pointe du Hoc at the far end of Omaha Beach and spike the German guns atop it, at the start of the Normandy invasion.

Out of the pile comes a 1979 clipping that tells of his plan to return to France for the 35th anniversary of D-Day; post cards of Pointe du Hoc as it looks today, with its stone monolith atop the German bunker bearing a dedication to the "heroic Ranger commandos who attacked and took possession;" and snapshots of two of his daughters at those anniversary ceremonies.

And another treasure is displayed, a little packet of photos whose white cover is stamped with the Norwell Town Seal. "This is what the selectmen sent to the Norwell boys overseas," he said. The snapshots include pictures of the town hall, Sargent's at Assinippi, the old Norwell Post Office with a bike outside, and Norwell Fire Department Co. 1.

Returning to Norwell in 1946, Wadsworth married the former Norma Joseph and went into partnership with Matthias Benner in a general contracting business. Wadsworth and Benner did a little bit of everything, hauling rubbish, garbage, lumber, and moving buildings. A lot of these were small, but some were houses, two now on Forest Street.

In 1950 came a change in the laws governing licensing of undertakers, requiring formal training, and Spike's father told him if he ever wanted to go into the family business, he should start then.

So in 1951 he sold his contracting business, studied and got his high school equivalency, and enrolled in the New England Institute of Anatomy.

In the '50's, along with working at Sparrell and on the call fire department, Wadsworth began serving on town boards. He filled a vacancy on the zoning board, and when a vacancy opened on the board of health in 1957, he ran for that. He ran successfully for a second term, then was appointed health agent in 1965, a position he held until December 31, 1981. "That's the world's worst job," he laughs. "Perc tests, premie babies, all that."

"But, he adds, "It was a lot of fun. I learned a lot."

Now he's looking forward to working fewer hours, one of the reasons he wanted to sell. Although his son Joseph is licensed, and the only one of the eight Wadsworth children interested in the business, he didn't want to run it, he explained.

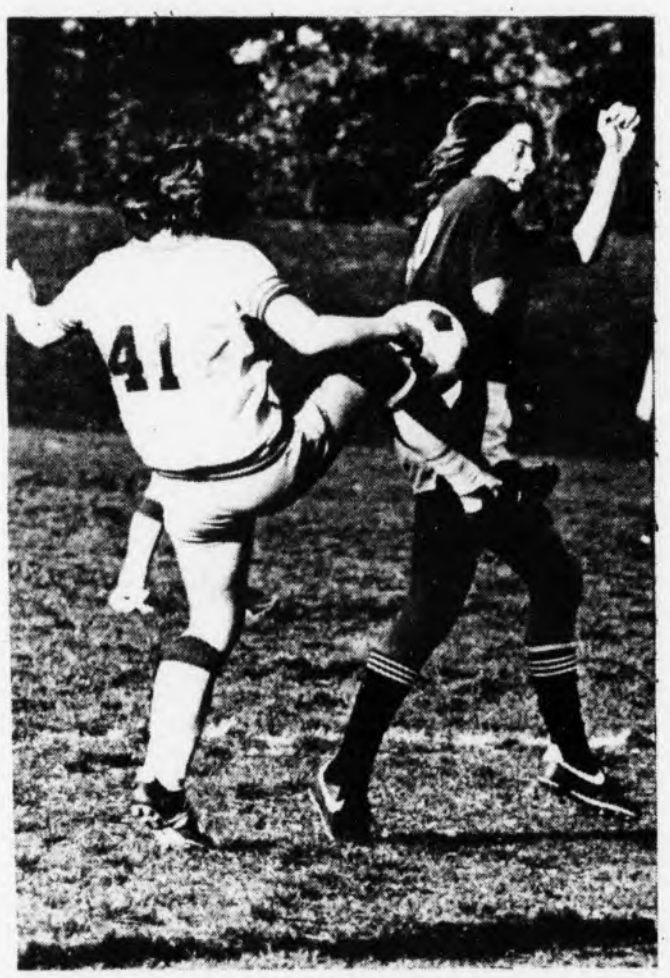
Also ahead lies the construction of a new house on the 12 acres he's purchased off Hunter Drive in Marshfield just over the Union Street Bridge, bordered by conservation land and a state tree farm.

Gee, we didn't know there were still sizeable lots to be had like that on the river.

"You want a lot? I'll sell you a lot," says the many-faceted Spike Wadsworth. "I've got my real estate license here, along with my membership in the Ranger Association, the Eagles, the American Legion. I'll sell you a lot."

New medical requirement

The South Shore League is requiring all member schools including Cohasset to have a certified Emergency Medical Technician attend all home boys and girls soccer games.



The Fire Dept. has provided EMT's to the Cohasset home games.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said the School Dept. will pay the Fire Dept. when the EMT's duties fall beyond the regular day (overtime).

This is a new rule this year and teams not adhering to the requirement will forfeit the game.

For other contact sports, a doctor or EMT must attend the home game and in hockey, the rink must provide for medical attention.

Crowell said in some towns, athletic fields are in close proximity to the Fire Depts. while in others the new rule is creating problems for towns to obtain the services of a certified EMT.

Cohasset player got a boot out of this Norwell soccer move.

By the Rev. Richard Muir

Thank goodness for WGBH-TV! I got home last night in time to watch the last part of this week's segment of "Vietnam." I could hardly stand to watch it. It brought back all of the feelings of shock, pain and disgust that some of us felt while the war was going on. I woke up in the dark early this morning seeing the faces of the frightened women and children as they recounted acts of brutality and murder committed by our troops as they tried to cope with the madness of guerrilla warfare. My wife asked me why I watch it since it upsets me so. That's why. We can't let ourselves forget.

El Salvador, Nicaragua, Lebanon — and now tiny Grenada! What is it that impels us to be the world's policeman? (Some would use the word "bully.") Our logic seems to be that our "national interest" is threatened whenever there is the slightest indication that there might be the slimmest chance that a communist form of government might be possible in our hemisphere — or anywhere we would like to do business. We label one side "a brutal group of thugs" and go rushing in with our white hats on to save the people from themselves. Later on we find that the natives don't see us that way.

Could it be that we project our own evil on to the communists, or anyone we think might be Marxists? Then we set out to punish them for those evil qualities that are so much easier for us to see in them than in

SEEK, a sympathetic hotline for teens

By Corinne A. Kutish

Are you a teenager with a problem at home or school, or maybe with drugs or alcohol?

Now there's a hotline you can call, 826-3861, any night 7 p.m. to 12 midnight, and speak to a sympathetic volunteer who won't judge you. He or she will just listen, and help you to resolve your problem or refer you to a professional agency that can help.

Or, are you a parent, who sees the need to help young people handle today's problems, but doesn't know what to do.

Now you can join SEEK ("Serve Each and Every Kid"), a non-profit organization, which staffs the hotline.

Volunteers are currently being trained to join the present 70 hotline volunteers. The group meets every Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Parish Center on Rte. 139 in Hanover.

According to SEEK executive director Frances Falvey, the hotline training program, which started Sept. 13, lasts 10 weeks, and is open to the public free of charge.

SEEK draws its volunteers from 13 South Shore communities, including Hanover, Norwell, Pembroke, Hingham, Marshfield and Scituate. It was established last November on the South Shore to serve teenagers and young adults who are experiencing problems stemming from living in a complex society.

Rev. Joseph McDermott of St. Timothy's Parish in Norwood is the president of SEEK and Norwood's hotline, "Pulse."

Although the topics being taught at SEEK's 10-week program are geared towards training hotline volunteers, no one is under obligation to become a volunteer. In fact, many of the topics would be of interest to any parent wishing to communicate with and guide a teenager, said Falvey.

Last month, SEEK hosted the Samaritans of Boston to speak about suicide, and a certified social worker spoke about depression. Last week, Priscilla Quirk of the Pathways to Health Resource Center in Lakeville spoke to the group.

During her one hour talk, Quirk said that there were as many different reasons why kids drink as there are kids — reasons such as peer pressure, insecurity, rebellion, escape and addiction.

She said that a study done by the National Institute of alcoholism showed that 33 percent of all teenagers are problem drinkers or alcoholics. Quirk defined a teenage problem drinker as a youngster who is drunk more than six times in a year and has problems two times or more at school, at home or with the law, as a result of alcohol.

"Drinking and driving is particularly a problem with teenagers because they are more susceptible to the effects of alcohol," said Quirk, who then named off such effects as slower reflexes, impaired vision, and the tendency to take more risks. "Teenagers are more susceptible to accidents because they have a lower tolerance to alcohol and are less experienced with driving."

Quirk defined the three stages of alcoholism, ranging from the early stage when "the alcoholic's drinking pattern is imcompatible with what is expected by other members of society" to the late stage when "the alcoholic has lost control of his life, and suffers from physical deterioration, deterioration of his beliefs and priorities, as well as depression and hopelessness."

Andy Hancock, a SEEK volunteer who completed the program's first training course last spring, said that some nights the volunteers receive no calls. Other nights they may get 10 or 12 calls.

"I think it's worthwhile for any parent to attend these sessions," continued Hancock, who has eight children. "The 20 hours of training is invaluable."

Hancock said that as a hotline volunteer, his task was "to be there; listen, not condemn; be supportive, and refer for further help.

"Sometimes all a kid needs is for someone to listen," he added. "Listening is healing.

"Sometimes it's hard not to be judgmental, although it's also a lot easier to help when it's someone else's child."

Joan Crowley and Marge Manning of Kane Drive in Scituate were attending the SEEK 10-week program for their second time.

"We didn't have the courage to become volunters right away," explained Crowley. "I'd like to give it a try, but first I want to feel competent to answer whatever comes up on the phone."

"The speakers are really dynamic," commented Manning about the program.

Another attendee, Jan Burke of Adams Avenue in Pembroke, said she also hoped to be on the hotline after the program concluded.

"I'm very much in favor of helping kids," she said, explaining her motivation for joining SEEK.

Ruth Balch of Meadowbrook Road in Hanover began attending the program quite by accident the first evening, but liked what she heard and decided to keep coming back.

"The speakers are very informative," said Balch, who is in the process of obtaining a degree in counseling from Massasoit Community College. "I don't know if I'll have the time to become a volunteer, but even if I don't the skills you learn here are worthwhile."

At the S. S. Art Center

"Paint Bermuda" with artist Virginia Avery combines a chance to rest and relax in the Bermuda sun with the opportunity to improve on a skill.

Sponsored by the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Rd., the trip is planned for Jan. 17 through Jan. 23 and the price is $574 for a triple and $625 for a double. Registration along with a deposit is due in to the Cohasset Travel Service by Nov. 12.

The group will stay at Bermuda's beach resort, the Reefs. Mornings will be spent with painting instruction and demonstrations and afternoons spent painting at preselected sites. One day will be left for selecting a site to capture on canvas.

Open to all level artists and non-artists, the trip will allow participants to improve their artistic skills while enjoying the beauty of the island. Following a day of painting, participants will come together for afternoon tea and critiques of their work.

Avery is an award-winning watercolorist who received her BS in art education from Boston University and who has taught for nine years in public and private schools. She is represented in both private and corporate collections. She is a well-known instructor around the South Shore Art Center.

The cost of the Bermuda trip includes round trip airfare from Boston, ground transportation to the Reefs, breakfast and dinner daily, bag lunches, a rum swizzle party, a tax-deductible donation to the South Shore Art Center and other incidental charges.

For further inforamtion call the Cohasset Travel Service or the Center, 383-9548.

Historical Society's annual meeting & dinner

Thursday, Nov. 12 is the date for the Cohasset Historical Society's Annual Meeting with a gourmet chicken dinner and special guest speaker.

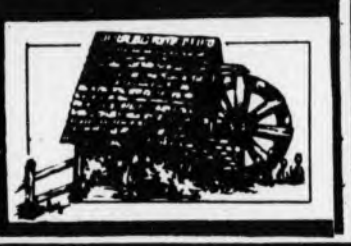
The Unitarian Parish House hall will be the place and 6:30 p.m. will be the time of the dinner.

Caterer is Strawberry Parfait of Cohasset. Following dinner there will be a short business meeting.

Henry Dormitzer of Cohasset, marine historian well known for his long association with "Operation Sail," the visits of the Tall Ships to Boston, will be the featured guest speaker.

Dormitzer also is the Chief Executive of the New England Historic Seaport, a historical museum organization located at the former Charlestown Navy Yard. He also is active in the building of the sailing vessel "Spirit of Massachusetts," an accurate replica of a 19th century New England fishing schooner.

Dormitzer is closely associated with several other maritime organizations in the Boston area. His talk will be illustrated with slides.



Reservations for the Historical Society's dinner meeting are $7 per person. For telephone reservations call 383-0773 or 383-6930. Deadline for reservations is Monday, Nov. 14 and seating is limited.

Church News . . .

ourselves. The effect of that dynamic is that we end up being controlled by our evil — our dark side — or in biblical terms, by the forces of Satan within each of us. In spite of what might be good intentions we are doing the devil's work — aiding and abetting violence, brutality, suffering and the rule of force.

"Peace is the church's business." That's a statement adopted by the Episcopal Church's last General Convention. I hope it's not just a slogan but a heartfelt commitment for each of us. If it is, we cannot be cowed by the name-calling and recriminations we will hear when we stand up and oppose our nation's apparent dedication to the dictum that might is right and that we are free (obligated?) to exercise that right on anyone, anytime, anywhere.

Jesus' words, "He who lives by the sword dies by the sword," seems relevant. Could it be that we are reaping a harvest sown by our idolatry of power?

I'm not sure what a Christian's response to all this is, but I am sure that there ought to be some voice in the wilderness calling for justice and peace. Maybe someday we'll discover what we ought to be doing. Meantime watch "Vietnam" and remember and pray.

SERVICES AND LESSONS

Sunday, Nov. 6, the 24th Sunday after Pentecost: 8 a.m., Holy Eucharist; 10 a.m., Holy Eucharist and Sermon; Lessons: Job 19:23-27a; II Thessalonians 2:13-3:5; Luke 20:27-38; Host Family: Bill and Jean Broe.

NEWS OF OUR SEMINARIAN

We've received word that Andrew Hamersley has been accepted as a Candidate for Holy Orders as of September of this year. It is hard to imagine but this is Andrew's senior year at Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge. Word is that he is doing very well academically and is busy this year in the role as a counselor for new students. Rozie is still liking her job at Rosie's Place and is starting rehearsals for a new play. They send their love.

VILLAGE FAIR

Workshops. We now have four workshops where volunteers will be most welcome. They are:

Children's Table — Corinne Leung, Chairman, Wednesday mornings, 9:15 — Dennis Desmond Conference Room, St. Anthony's Church.

Kitchen Crafts: Marcia Silvia, Chairman (now decorating with grapevines and pine cones), Wednesday evenings, 7:30 and Thursday mornings, 9:15, Bates Hall, Second Congregational Church.

Wreaths: Jean Manganaro, Chairman, (bows and decorations). Nov. 2, 4, 15, 22 — Marie Kelly, 211 Fairoaks Lane. For our wreaths we need donations of pine cones, acorns, and other nuts, pods, rose hips, etc. Please deliver to Jean Manganaro's barn, 67 No. Main St.

Miscellaneous Donations are needed: red and green napkins, leftover Halloween candy, plants and items for the Children's Table. Please make sure items for Bargain Bazaar are in good condition. We have only one month before the Fair. Thank you all.

NEED FOR BOOKS

We welcome books you no longer want that are in good condition. Unfortunately we cannot use "National Geographics," out-of-date textbooks, or "Condensed Readers' Digest" books. There is no market for these. Please leave your books in boxes at St. Anthony's Rectory, back door, next to garage. The door will be open during the day.

COMPANION DIOCESES OF ZIMBABWE

As noted in the October issue of "The Episcopal Times," the inauguration of our companion relationship with the three Dioceses of Zimbabwe will be celebrated at St. Paul's Cathedral on Friday, Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m., which is the evening before our Diocesan Convention.

Black cats, tiny snowmen and woven calico wreaths are some of the novel gift items being fashioned for sale at Cohasset's Village Fair, Dec. 3, by Boutique committee workers l. to r., Marilyn Fessler, Barbara Maynard and Carol Sandblom.

The Rt. Rev. Jonathan Siyachitema, Bishop of the Lundi, and his wife have arrived in Boston to participate in this covenant service as representatives of all three Zimbabwean Dioceses, and to spend two months visiting parishes and other church-related groups. Bishop Jonathan, a warm, dynamic person and moving speaker, will be the preacher at this service to which all members of the Diocese are cordially invited.

An afternoon meeting has been scheduled by the ECW Board for parishioners to meet with Mrs. Rose Siyachitema, Thursday, Nov. 17, at 1:30 p.m. at Trinity Church in Bridgewater.

Mrs. Siyachitema is president of the Mothers' Union in the Lundi and particularly concerned with family life in Zimbabwe.

Anyone interested in attending the covenant service or the afternoon meetings, contact John or Sue Mullett, 383-6306.

HELP NEEDED

The American Cancer Society's South Shore Unit is seeking new members for its Road to Recovery Program. This is a group of volunteers who drive cancer patients in the towns of Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth to and from medical facilities for treatments. The schedules are flexible and mileage compensation is available.

If you have a car and can spare as little as one morning or afternoon a month to help somebody along the road to recovery, call the local Cancer Society office at 583-8515.

Planning Bd. asked to redraft zoning bylaws

Selectmem told the planning board to redraft and rewrite the zoning by-laws after open discussion with planning board members, building inspector Robert Dennis and town counsel Richard Henderson.

Henderson said at a recent selectmens meeting, "It is strictly the planning boards responsibility to redraft the by-laws."

The planning board's responsibilities include: submitting the by-laws, holding a public hearing and sending them before a town meeting.

Dennis said, "The by-laws were adopted in 1955 and only amendments have been added since then. The articles should state when the by-laws are adopted. The by-laws need to be stated more clearly."

Approximately 40 by-laws should be reviewed.

Planner Dan Cotton said, "Last year the zoning by-laws were republished and there was no substantial change."

Selectman Frank England said, "The zoning by-laws are very complicated because they must be fair to the town and the developer."

Planner Robert Sturdy said "Variances should only be granted for a basic public purpose. They are not a matter of right."

There appears to be many different conceptions of what the zoning by-laws are or should be.

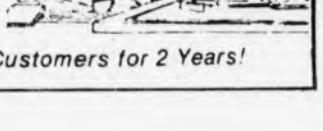
"It sounds like the zoning by-laws are a messy affair. I deal with approximately 40 of them," said Cotton.

England said, "The planning board should revise the by-laws piecemeal with the advice of town counsel."

He added, "If we are going to do anything we should think about budgeting now."

The zoning by-laws would have to be ready Feb. 2 in time for the spring special town meeting.

Drainage problem



A drainage committee report says a ditch which runs under the Cohasset Motors building could cause a drainage problem in the adjacent lot.

Water could flood from the building into the town water supply at Lily Pond.

The drainage committee requested an engineers report. They were refered to town counsel to see if a zoning by-law or regulation could address the question.

Carrying on despite all the bad news

By Lois Martin

"If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you..."

Boy, old Rudyard was on to more than he realized when he jotted that poem.

This last week most of us have believed we've lost our minds. We are intimidated not only by rapid fire world events but by our weakness in geography.

Nicaragua's ticked. Grenada, (where the devil is Grenada?) has been invaded...by us, no less. Beirut is a household word that sounds a lot like Vietnam. Dominica, which seems to be about as large as Assinippi, has a woman Prime Minister who was raised to celebrity status within 24 hours. Jean Kirkpatrick was left alone in the United Nations to say our invasion was self protective, not self-serving.

PATCHES

And here we are in the wake of tidal waves of world news, trying to understand, to align ourselves with our country and wondering if we'll ever just hear local news again.

To find raw courage look in the mirror. Anyone of us who carries on in the nuclear age must develop an attitude that is new in psychoanalysts' notebooks.

We have to have a laissez faire about cataclysmic acts. Mention them, indulge the news commentators with a little of your time when they have those goose-pimpling special reports. But then get on with it. Put out the garbage. Make that trip to the registry. Call someone who's had the flu to see how he's doing.

Do not under any circumstances dwell on reality. A sane appraisal, an apprised understanding of plummeting international events will be your undoing.

Do you realize that it's been a week since we've had an update on Boston murders? Usually each morning at 6 you get the stabbing rundown, the latest arson update.

All words last week gave way to Beirut, Grenada. And we were not ready. Do not chide yourself for that. We are never going to be ready for events in our lifetime. There was no preparation for this life. Each of us is now alert. We simply have to learn when to react and when instead to act. That knowledge will set the tone for the quality of our lives.

We have become accustomed to hearing of bloody coups, unrest, terrorists, overthrows, retaliations of a military or economic nature.

A few of us are still trying to understand what happened in the Falkland Islands. The rest of us have readily forgotten those islands. And we can't help but wish we could have a weekly list of our enemies. Sometimes it's confusing. When "I Love Lucy" was big, we thought the Cubans were entertaining, colorful, cute.

Then we did the Bay of Pigs and in an echo of sorts 21 years later, we do Grenada. This happens within two months of a leader's going home to the Phillipines to be mowed down as he gets off the airplane. We saw news clips of his interview as he was about to step on the turf of his homeland. Then we heard gunshots. Besides Manilla's doing poorly. But then we were distracted by the massive peace marches in Bonne because we want to put missiles there.

Better to get the sheets out on the line. Stop worrying about whether Vietnam is one word or two. Never mind whether it's San or El Salvadore.

I've found myself worrying about men in uniforms pushing planes and ships around on war plan tables with a long stick while other men in expensive suits watch and say "Mmmmmm."

Worry instead about why the car sounds funny when you back up. There you have power. There you can ultimately gain understanding when it won't back up at all.

In the midst of the fall after the Russians shot down a family-loaded jet, Henry Jackson got home from China to die unexpectedly.

But then Jessica Savitch died when the compound was being bombed in Beirut. The bad news of a competent woman's death spread like an annoying rash over an already diseased world's body.

Somewhere along the line we named a special day to honor Martin Luther King, Jr., his family always adds the "Jr." part. And that has both piqued and appeased the populace.

One of my greatest fears is that my understanding, my grasp on the ominous events is not too far behind that of people who make decisions that dramatically affect our lives.

Who the devil was the suicide Beirut bomber? Who was the person who personally shot down the Korean jet? How many more of them are there? Are they the leaders or the doers, or can you tell them apart? George Bush was in Lebanon last week assuring 'friends' we'll stick by. Which ones are our friends?

Never mind. Back to the fantasy of living, keeping our heads. I'm going to dust off my oven and fill it with marvelous-smelling products the like of which Khadafy has never known. I don't even have a mental picture of him and I don't want to bother my little head any more about why Yasir Arafat always looks like he needs a shave, but never gets a real beard.

I once saw a cartoon of a man sitting in front of a TV and at the same time the "Special Report" signal came on a little jug of whiskey swung out from below the TV.

Understandable, that need for fortification for news. So I'm swearing off intelligent awareness. I'll just get ready for Thanksgiving. That may be tough this year but it is still necessary, like being up on the news.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

New England cooking has been celebrated as some of the best on earth with its johnny cakes and maple syrup, clam chowder, baked beans, codfish cakes and a hundred other succulent dishes such as this one I discovered in the new cookbook I have called "A Taste of Scituate." Helen Mantineo was one of the parishioners of St. Frances Xavier Cabrini Church who submitted this recipe and only in New England would you probably have

WACKY CAKE

3 c. flour
2 c. sugar
1/3 c. cocoa
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking soda
3/4 c. oil
2 T cider vinegar
2 c. water
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix all ingredients together. Place in a greased 2x9x12 pan and bake at 350 for 45-50 min.

Italian cooking in one form or another is a big favorite, for who can refuse pizza, pasta or meatballs? It came as a surprise to me to learn that that all—American favorite, ice cream, was introduced in Europe by the Italians and first advertised on this side of the Atlantic in 1800 in Philadelphia. An Italian confectioner named Bosio announced the opening of an ice cream parlor offering "all kinds of refreshments, as ice cream, syrups, French cordials, cakes, clarets, jellies, etc." And who can walk into an Italian deli without buying everything in sight, such as the ingredients for Maryellen McDermott's

ITALIAN MEAT ROLL

1 loaf frozen bread dough
1/4 lb. mortadella
1/4 lb. salami
1/4 lb. Swiss cheese
1 can sliced mushrooms
1 sliced green pepper
1 egg yolk

Thaw dough and let rise. Then roll it into a rectangle on oiled surface. Layer cheese over dough, then mortadella, then salami. Spread mushrooms and peppers over top. Roll in from both sides and push together in middle. Place seam side down on ungreased cookie sheet. Brush the top with egg yolk and sprinkle with pepper. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-45 min. Let cool 15 min. before slicing thin to serve.

Obituaries

Charlotte Frost

Charlotte (White) Frost, 78, of Cohasset, a retired interior decorator, died Oct. 24 at Scituate Ocean Manor Nursing Home.

Born in Washington, D.C., she had lived in Boston before moving to Cohasset 15 years ago.

She was a graduate of the May School, now known as the Brimmer & May School, Chestnut Hill.

She operated the Charlotte Frost Interiors of Cohasset and Kingston prior to her retirement.

Wife of the late Robert W. Frost, she leaves a daughter, Charlotte F. Pfaffman of Cohasset; two sisters, Helen Eckel of Weston and Elizabeth Warren of Cohasset; three grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Private memorial services and burial will be held at a later date.

Nancy Sladen

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday at the First Parish Unitarian Church for Nancy Elizabeth (Tower) Sladen, 45, treasurer of the Cohasset Recreation Committee.

She died Friday at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth after a long illness.

Burial will be private.

Born and educated in Cohasset, she attended Westbrook Junior College, Maine.

She was a member of the Cohaset Booster's Club and the First Parish Unitarian Church.

She leaves her husband, Sheldon Frederic Sladen; two daughters, Shelanne S. Durkin of Cohasset and Sandra L. Sladen of Scituate; her parents, Edward Everett and Doris (Glines) Tower of Cohasset; a sister, Elinor Tower Campbell of Westboro; and her mother-in-law, Elsie Eddy (Higgins) Sladen of Cohasset. She was also the daughter-in-law of the late John E. Sladen.

Donations may be made to the Standish Humane Society, Box 268, Green Harbor, 02041, or the American Cancer Society, 47 West Elm St., Brockton, 02401.

Mabel G. Thurber

Mabel Gertrude Thurber, 69, of South Thomaston, Maine, a retired Navy nurse and former nurse at South Shore Hospital, died Oct. 24 in a Cohasset nursing home after a long illness.

Born in Quincy, she had been a resident of Maine since 1975, moving there from Cohasset.

She was a graduate of Cohasset schools, the William Training School for Nursing and the Baylor Hospital School of Nursing in Dallas.

She retired as a Navy lieutenant commander and later was a nurse at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth and at Brockton Hospital.

She was a member of the Navy's Retired Officers Association, the American Association of Nurses and the New England Nurse Anesthetist s Association.

She leaves a cousin, Lois C. Lewis of Hingham.

Private graveside services will be conducted at a later date at Beechwood Cemetery, Cohasset.

Gertrude A. Duffy

Gertrude Anna (Becherer) Duffy, 83, formerly of West Roxbury, died Oct. 30 at the Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home after a long illness.

Born in Dedham, she had lived for many years in West Roxbury before moving to Cohasset five years ago.

Wife of the late Hugh Francis Duffy, she leaves a brother, Edward C. Becherer of Hingham; two sisters, Mary E. Hanlon of Framingham and Rita E. O'Leary of Norwood; and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass was held Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery, Boston.

Ten CHS students nominated for excellence

Cohasset Jr.-Sr. High School has been notified 10 of its students have been designated Commended Students in the 1984 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Richard T. Streeter, principal, said Norman Beddows, Peter Daggett, Kurt Hochkeppel, Carolyn Koopman, Richard McCarthy, John O'Connell, Stephen Perry, Jacqueline Plante, Jennifer Ralff and Nancy Walls placed in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 29th annual Merit Program.

Although commended students will not receive further consideration for Merit Scholarships, each has demonstrated unusual academic promise and will be honored with a Letter of Commendation.

All participants in the current Merit Scholarship competition entered by taking the PSAT-NMSQT in the fall of 1982. Although the scores of the 35,000 Commended Students designated throughout the 50 states were very high, they were slightly below the level required for Semi-finalist standing.

Only the 15,000 Semi-finalists who were announced by NMSC Sept. 14 will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 5,300 Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring.

Diane Mullen was named as a semi-finalist.

Ambulance member resigns

A resignation from Stephen Golden of the Ambulance Study Committee was accepted by selectmen at a recent meeting.

A scheduled interview with Hilja Bilodeau for a position on the Ambulance Study Committee was cancelled. Bilodeau is no longer interested in serving as a member.

METCO DINNER

Cohasset METCO Host Families are planning a dinner for Sunday, Nov. 13 from 4 to 6 p.m. at the high school cafeteria. METCO families, friends and students are cordially invited. One need not be connected to the METCO Host Family program to attend.

H.S. Vocal Director Bryan Marks will present selected songs from the all-school musical "Godspell," which opens later in December.

The main course will be catered; salads will be contributed by Boston families; the rest provided by Cohasset Host Families.

For more information or reservations, call Judy Bronstein, 383-0908.

DEER HILL SPELLING BEE

By Neely Hemassi and Lauren Isle

The sixth grade spelling bee was held Oct. 21. It was very interesting because there was a tie between Mr. Shultz's class and Mr. Deakin's class. The person who won the spelling bee was Allison Kornet.

"Before every spelling bee I skim through the words to refresh my memory. I also tell myself not to worry about it. I enjoy being in spelling bees, but I get a little nervous because it is very challenging."

It was down to two people, Kerri Anglin and Allison Kornet. Barricade was the winning word, but Allison says, "I only knew it because it was one of my reading vocabulary words this week, otherwise I would have missed the word." Allison knew that Kerri was a good competitor and a good speller. "We were pretty much equal in ability," Allison said.

SPECIAL NEEDS INSERVICE

Oct. 20 was a release day for Cohasset schools. At the high school, the program was a Special Needs Inservice, an informational series of workshops in the areas of speech and language deficits, therapeutic physical education, referral and testing, resource room programs, and curriculum modifications.

After an introduction by Stephen Hart, Assistant to the Superintendent/Financial Manager, the faculty chose four workshops to attend. Denise Yess, Speech Therapist, explained the language deficits seen in secondary school students, how they may be recognized, and how they interfere with the child's learning. Nancy Keeley, physical education teacher, and Mary Benbow, Occupational Therapist, demonstrated the therapeutic physical education program offered at the high school for students who need support in coordina-

Referral and testing procedures were explained by Gale Civale and Toni Jillson, diagnosticians and resource room teachers. The topic of Resource Room programs were discussed by Civale and Jillson, as well as Edwin Leach and Florence Ely, also resource room teachers. Leach and Ely also presented a curriculum modifications workshop, reaffirming the ways content area teachers may modify their courses depending on the students' learning style and needs.

Within the workshops, important questions and concerns were raised which will be addressed by the staff within the next few weeks. Comments by the classroom teachers indicated that they felt the workshops were valuable and informative in helping them better understand the learner with special needs.

COHASSET BOOSTERS NEWS

The Cohasset Boosters, Inc., wish to thank all those who made the sale of sweaters and polo shirts a success at the recent CHS and Deer Hill School parents' nights.

For those who missed out or who may be thinking ahead for holiday gifts, the white or navy polos and navy Cohasset v-neck sweaters are available by calling Robin Suhrbier at 383-0349.

The next Boosters meeting will be held on Monday, Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m., at the home of Isabelle Salvador, 30 Bayberry Lane.

The main topic for discussion will be the Fall Sports Awards Night, which will be held Tuesday, Nov. 15, in the CHS cafeteria.

Dessert and coffee will be served promptly at 7 p.m. followed by the presentation of awards. All parents of participating athletes in Grades 7 to 12 are invited and encouraged to attend.

Those who choose to join in the refreshments will be asked for a $2 donation to assist in defraying expenses. Athletes, coaches and head table participants are guests of the Boosters.

EARLY RELEASE DAY

Thursday, Nov. 10, will be an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon Kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

Students in the Junior-Senior High School will depart at 12:30 p.m.; Deer Hill School, 12:40 p.m. and Joseph Osgood School, 1 p.m.

Lunch will be served in all of the schools.

This early release day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee in order to allow the faculty members of the Junior/Senior High School, Deer Hill School, and the Joseph Osgood School to take part in a Health Education Workshop.

Women's Republican Club to open Christmas Boutique

The Women's Republican Club of Norwell and South Shore will open its annual Christmas Boutique at the next meeting, Monday, Nov. 14. The club meets at the First Parish Church Hall, off Route 123, Norwell Center, at 1 p.m., preceded by a social hour at 12:15 p.m.

Mrs. Elsie Akscyn of Brockton, Boutique chairman, asks members to contribute handcrafts, baked goods, homemade candy, white elephant items in good condition or other suitable articles. The Boutique which is the club's major fundraising event will also be open at the Dec. 12 meeting.

'Tales of Terror' haunt Deer Hill School

By Theresa Sullivan

In the midst of skeletons, jack-o-lanterns and goblins, fourth graders at Deer Hill Elementary School were recently told "Tales of Terror" by a witch.

Marjorie Murphy, the school's librarian, has dressed in a black cape and black hat for the past three Halloweens to read ghost stories to the children.

"They love story telling," Murphy said. "We try to encourage them to read more."

After two years of story telling at Halloween, Murphy considered stopping because she thought the children would be tired of it.

But this year, a few weeks before Halloween, "The kids came in and asked, 'Mrs. Murphy, are you going to dress up like a witch this year?' "

Prior to story telling last week, five sixth graders put on a skit for the fourth grade audience.

Jason Cameron dressed and played the part of a pumpkin. Jimmy Reidy played a scarecrow and Karin Story played a witch.

Karen Atkinson played the role of a boy and Neeloufar Hemassi played a girl.

The actors memorized their lines after school in a short time, Murphy said. The eyes of most of the audience concentrated on the dark stage of the library as the actors performed.

Following the skit, Murphy prepared the children for the ghost story she was about to read. "I don't know if there's anyone who's weak of heart. I have some tales I'm going to share with you.

"If you feel you're going to faint, or get a little nervous, maybe I should have you go back to your classroom," she said.

"Noooo," the children said in unison.

"Is this going to be worse than Poltergeist?" said one boy.

With an appropriate creepy tone, Murphy said, "These stories are called 'Tales of Terror.' "

After teaching about Salem, specifically about its witches, she told the children about Elvira Flinders, one of Salem's witches. The story "The Shadow" related to Elvira Flinders.

As she read, most of the children were quiet. A few whispered. Two girls became so involved in the story, they sat crouched together, holding hands.

When the story was over, the children had a few minutes to check out library books. A few boys took turns wearing the witch's hat.

One boy asked Murphy if he could check out the book she had just read.

Rehearsing for the play, "The Three Terrors" are Jim Reidy (Scarecrow), Karen Atkinson, Jason Cameron (Pumpkin Head), Neely Hemassi and Karin Story (a Witch).

CHS sports report for the week . . .

Boys soccer

The boys soccer team lost two games to Duxbury 4-0, and Scituate 2-1 but they defeated Hanover 2-0.

David MacDonald scored both goals, with assists by Kevin Leary and Bob Schultz, against Hanover.

Cohasset was robbed in the Scituate game as they held a 1-0 lead until five minutes remained. With five minutes to go Scituate tied 1-1.

Scituate broke the tie and won with one minute left in the game.

Coach John Anderson said, "If we beat Scituate we would have knocked then out of third place. They are fighting for a tournament position so they became very inspired at the end of the game."

The soccer team has only two games left against Whitman Hanson and East Bridgewater.

Girls soccer

The girls soccer team shot up to 7-5-2 after two clean wins against Whitman Hanson 4-1 and Norwell 4-0.

Four games ago Cohasset was 2-5-2. Now, if they win two games they will move into third place in the South Shore League.

Front line players Sara Seave, Janet DiGirolamo and Jill Nedro scored against Whitman Hanson.

Carla Lucas is back from an injury that cost her most of the season. Now she acts as a 12th player by taking positions at stopper, center forward and center half back.

Coach Kennan Startzell said, "Abington is our big game. If we beat them than we will be in very good shape."

Football

The winds of the ocean view Hull football field did not work to Cohasset's advantage as Hull blew them away 28-8.

Coach John Leone said, "They won the toss, chose to have the wind at their back and it worked for them."

He added, "We gave them three quick touch downs and matched them for the next three quarters. But, we never came back."

Cohasset player sophomore Floyd Hartwick had a 55 yard run when he scored.

Hartwick was one of the younger players that Cohasset has had to depend on because of their many injuries.

Cohasset has three games left. They play East Bridgewater, Sunday. East Bridgewater has only lost one game this season.

Youth basketball clinic Nov. 8-9

Telephone registrations will be accepted for a Boys and Girls Basketball Clinic which will be held at Deer Hill School gym Tuesdays for boys and Wednesdays for girls, beginning Nov. 8 and Nov. 9. The program will meet from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m., for both groups.

The fee will be $5 for the five week program, taught by Tom Higgins. This program is designed to teach and reenforce basketball skills, and will serve as an ideal supplement for those wishing to play in the upcoming basketball league.

To register, please call the Recreation Dept. Office, at 383-6791, as soon as possible. Classes will be limited in size.

Participants may not stay after school until program begins. Rather, youths must be brought back to Deer Hill at 4:15 and picked up at 5:30 p.m.

Student government elections Nov. 8

State Sen. Allan McKinnon announces that elections are to be held at Cohasset High School Nov. 8 to select that school's delegate to the 37th annual Student Government Day Program.

The program was established in 1947 by the Massachusetts General Court so school students would be able to learn about state government.

This idea has developed into a six-month program which explores all aspects of our state governmental system and includes a one day "take over" of the state administration by the students.

Any secondary school in Massachusetts is eligible to send one student representative to this program. The student must be 16 years old on or before May 31, 1984.

The student must be elected by his/her high school in a democratically held election. The student must be dedicated to receiving full benefits offered by the program in understanding state government.

After the election in each school, the name of the delegates are placed in a "Glass Bowl." Names of the student counterparts will be drawn by the governor, other constitutional officers, and supreme court justices.

Three series of workshops will be held for the purpose of educating and informing teachers and student delegates about the legislative process and state government.

The first series will be held in the regional education centers. The second and third workshop series will be held at the State House.

The governor will participate in these workshops along with the constitutional officers, legislators, judicial officials, members of interest and lobbying groups. The workshops will also provide an opportunity for students to observe the legislature in session.

Student Government Day occurs on the first Friday in April. On this day, students will participate in all aspects of the administration of state government in the place where it happens, the State House.

This allows students who have been educated in state government the opportunity to exercise their newly obtained abilities in the atmosphere that actual governmental officials perform.

The Student Government Day Program has been successful in many ways during its long history. Along with the responsibility of educating a concerned population of the citizens and future voters of Massachusetts, it has been estimated that one-third of the elected state governmental officials currently serving in Massachusetts have participated in the program.

Cub Scout News . . .

By Linda Farrag and Jane Long

CUB SCOUT PACK #38

Fifth grade boys may still register for Webelos.

If you never were a Cub Scout or if you quit, you can still be a Webelo Scout. Learn new skills while having fun with other ten-year-old boys. Earn badges and prove yourself. Call Sally Avery at 383-6043.

#38 CALENDAR

Pack meetings are usually the last Wednesday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Deer Hill School.

Dec. 14, Christmas Party; Feb., to be announced, Blue & Gold Dinner; March 28, Pinewood Derby and April 25, Olympics.

Committee meeting are usually the Sunday prior to the pack meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the First Parish Hall. These will be held Sept. 25, Nov. 13, Dec. 11, wrapping of Christmas gifts for boys, February, to be announced and May, to be announced.

Badges and newsletter information of den activities must be submitted by Wednesday prior to the pack meeting.

Drop off this information to Pat Curtin at Petersen Insurance agency in the Village.

Badges or newsletter information must be received on time as someone has to go to Canton to purchase the badges and the newsletter must be typed and copied.

Dens 1, 2 and 3 and Webelos have had their first meeting.

For Den 1, Pat Baird and Tish Jordan are the leaders. Meetings are held Tuesdays at Pat's house.

For Den 2, Sally Avery and Ann Vanderweil are the leaders and meetings will be held at Sally's house.

For Den 3, Marie Buckley meets with the group Tuesdays at the Community Center.

For Webelos, Dick Avery, Bill Baird, Larry Mitchell and Mark Batts will meet with their group Monday nights at the Parish Hall.

Dens 4 and 5 will meet soon.

The November Ice Skating group is being planned by Kathryn Picton and Jan Pyle.

Any past or present scout who no longer needs any part of their uniform (scarf, shirt, slide, etc.) please consider donating it to Pack No. 38. Call Jane Long at 383-1281.

The Boy Scouts of America Bowl-A-Rama fundraiser begins Nov. 4 to Nov. 13 at the Cohasset Community Center. The Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts participating will be asking sponsors for their support.

The sponsors will be asked to pledge one to five cents times the toal of three strings bowled or they can make a donation.

The proceeds will be divided as follows: 50 percent to the Old Colony Council, 25 percent to Cohasset's Pack No. 38 (or Troop No. 28) and 25 percent for the cost of prizes for the participants.

For any further information call chairman Linda Farrag, 383-9519.

The Halloween Party, held Oct. 26, was organized by Nancy Kinchler, Hilga Bilodeau and Lisa Littlehale.

Garden Club announces Christmas house tour

Mrs. Philip Shockman, president of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset, recently announced the club's bi-annual Christmas House Tour, "Christmas in Cohasset."

The tour will be held Thursday, Dec. 15 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Tickets are $9 each and will be sold only in advance.

Tickets may be purchased by writing Mrs. Paul Wessling, 5 Merrill St., Hingham or by calling 749-2598, or Mrs. Brewster Davis, 41 Fearing Rd., Hingham, 749-4720.

The tour will be chaired by Mrs. David Replogle.

The Perfumer's Collection

The old adage "Imitation is the highest form of flattery" is best applied to perfumes.

The Perfumer's Collection is our compliment to some very famous fragrances.

Perfumes have been treasured for centuries. Kings and queens have been held hostage for a ransom of a few ounces of these mysterious scents.

Our perfumers have blended hundreds of the same exotic oil, spices, florals, gums and resins into their interpretation of these elegant perfumes. The creations in the Perfumer's Collection are so faithful that the most sophisticated customer cannot find a difference. The significant difference is in your cost.

Let us prove it - order your favorites at once.

Cox Estate variance ends with parking lot lease

By Mike Berger

The legal battle concerning the use of the former Cox Estate is over.

The last legal documents were submitted to court Tuesday. Essentially, the result of the dispute for the town is the opportunity to lease land for a parking lot.

In addition the issue again resumes back to the appeals board where it began. If the town, by virtue of the selectmen, is interested in building and maintaining a parking lot, the application must be submitted to the appeals board.

Under the terms of the agreement, Yankee Oil and Gas, the new owners, will lease to selectmen for $1 annually for the duration of the 25-year variance a lot, 215 feet in length, in the southwest boundary of the estate.

The lot will be limited to parking by employees of Yankee Oil, parking for town docks, piers, floats, ramps or stairs. This parking will be by individual permit only.

The use of the lot for parking will be approved by the appeals board and any other government agencies. Selectmen will be making the application if they are interested.

Here are the terms of the lot: The lease will terminate after the owner of the premises (Yankee Oil and Gas) ceases to use it for commercial purposes.

The town will maintain existing stone walk trees and shrubs on or within the boundaries. The town is not obligated to restore the stone wall should it be damaged by casualty or natural causes.

Thge town will indemnify Yankee Oil for all claims made in connection with the ownership of the lot and will pay and maintain the same amount of liability insurance coverage as it maintains on other parking lots within Cohasset.

The town will provide security for the lot and be

Chief Dooley supports firefighter's termination

Fire Chief Martin Dooley is calling for the termination of Firefighter John Boswell III for abuse of injury leave.

A hearing was scheduled for Wednesday night with selectmen.

Selectmen could either dismiss the charge, support a five-day suspension or agree with Dooley for Boswell's termination.

The move to terminate Boswell who was caught by Dooley working part-time for a private firm while on authorized leave, does not sit well with firefighters.

Several firefighters acknowledged the punishment of termination is too severe for a firefighter who they say has a fine work record and also helped to remodel the chief's office. They are also upset the chief had a man drive to Hull to deliver the notice of suspension to Boswell rather than the chief doing it himself.

In a related development concerning department morale, selectmen are calling for a proposal for a four-to-six week study of the town's Fire Dept. by an outside consulting firm.

Dooley said if and when Boswell comes back to work he will be suspended five days without pay for abuse of injury leave.

Dooley is not arguing that Boswell suffered a work-related injury. But he said Boswell's doctors told him to

NBC ready to film health classroom

(At presstime the filming of the Osgood School Classroom was postponed to some time next week. The filming was scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 9. Ed. Note.)

NBC-TV cameras visited Joseph Osgood Elementary School Wednesday, Nov. 9 to film a second-grade class of about 20 youths viewing a film on the sexual abuse of children.

Michael Gill, Health Education Coordinator for the School Dept. said the film produced by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children is a "very positive approach to a very uncomfortable subject."

Titled "Some Secrets Should Be Told," the 10-minute film featured two hand puppets discussing the sexual abuse of a friend and what that friend should do about it.

The answer: find a trusted adult (parent, teacher, scout leader, family friend) and tell them about it.

A recent appearance on NBC's Today Show by MSPCC representatives Susan Linn and Dr. Eli Newberger stimulated interest in the film, its subject matter, and its role in the Cohasset schools' health curriculum program.

Linn, a puppet therapist with Boston Children's Hospital, uses hand puppets to carry on a dialogue with each other and with her on their friend's plight.

Newberger, a pediatrician and specialist in the treatment and prevention of child abuse, is director of the Family Development Study and chief of the Family

Pollution impact to Lily Pond considered

Town officials are studying a financial and environmental plan to determine if a private landfill is sending waste towards Lily Pond, the town's main water supply center.

In a related matter, town counsel is negotiating with Cohasset Heights LTD, landfill owners, to drop a health board lawsuit if Cohasset Heights will pay for the environmental report and adhere to all health board regulations.

Included in a set of regulations passed by the health board was a requirement that Cohasset Heights install a truck scale and make accurate daily reports of how much was going into the landfill.

Cohasset Heights recently offered the town free use of dumping at the landfill if the health board agreed to drop the lawsuit and approve other conditions.

These conditions were: to approve expansion of the landfill by another 30 acres, no longer collect a 50-cent fee for every ton of trash brought to the private landfill by commercial haulers and a waiver of the scale requirement.

Town Counsel Jack Slater, representing the town and the health board refused the offer but the health board and Slater came up with another counter offer.

The town would drop the lawsuit and consider another form of measurement of materials if Cohasset Heights agreed to pay for the environmental report and adhered to all health board regulations.

Slater said the health board is concerned about what and how much is being dumped at the landfill. The Water Commission is worried about a potential and serious water pollution problem.

Is ground and surface water leachate headed towards the direction of Lily Pond?

The commission, Selectmen Mary Jane McArthur and Rocco Laugelle and Advisory Board members Jackie Dormitzer and Galt Grant listened to two engineering firms explain their proposals Monday night.

Slater said the town rejected the free dumping in part because of the thousands of dollars already spent to upgrade the public Cedar Street landfill.

He estimated $270,000 was already spent to keep the landfill going for another ten years. The landfill material budget was overun by $10,000 and this year's budget is also expected to be overrun.

Referring to the Cohasset Heights offer, Slater said, "It was not completely free of charge. The town would have to spend substantial sums just to close the town dump. You just don't close the front gate and walk away."

Under the proposal the Cedar Street landfill would become a transfer station. Refuse deposited there would be sent to the Cohasset Heights landfill.

In a related development Barry Brothers Inc. sold the rights to its trash pickup routes to Browning-Ferrish Industries, a major Houston-based trash hauling firm. BFI trucks will still be carrying general refuse to the landfill but commissioners are concerned if that refuse also includes industrial waste.

The town's latest counter offer is still being considered by Cohasset Heights. There has been no formal acceptance or rejection, Slater said. Meanwhile a Superior Court trial date to hear the health board's complaints against the firm will be heard in January. Legal work on this lawsuit has amounted to more than

Surplus cheese & butter

Surplus cheese and butter provided by the federal government will be distributed to low income and elderly residents Thursday, Nov. 17 at two locations.

Between 11 a.m. and noon distribution will be made at the Unitarian Parish House. Between 2 and 4:30 p.m. distribution will be at the Cohasset Town Hall.

For further information on eligibility or delivery, call the Cohasset Social Service League at 383-0771 or 383-0821.

New realtor open house

Hunneman and Company Realtors is holding an Open House in honor of their new office at 17 South Main St., Cohasset on Thursday, Nov. 17 between 4 and 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Hunneman has been serving the South Shore for over 20 years through its Hingham office. The new Cohasset office will expand its service.

Liz Murdy, currently manager of the Hingham office, will be in charge of the South Shore operation assisted by Barbara Froio in the Cohasset office and Eileen Richards in the Hingham office.

Hunneman was founded in 1929 by Carleton Hunneman. The one-man office, then on Beacon Hill, has become a company with more than 200 brokers. Hunneman's headquarters in Boston's financial district and 18 area offices in Eastern Massachusetts facilitates an inter-office referral system making available to customers properties in 50 other communities.

Fuel applicants update

Alfred Odermatt recently told selectmen 13 people volunteered to assist fuel applicants at Town Hall on Fridays from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle was concerned that applicants may be reluctant to apply at a public place like Town Hall.

Odermatt said, "People who do not want to come to the town hall can go to Scituate or Hull. Ten thousand applications are made for fuel assistance in this community."

A representative from the South Shore Community Action Council will assist fuel applicants.

Fuel applicants must have documentation of income for the previous 90 days, social security verification and a listing of primary source of heat bills after Oct. 1.

Friedman appointed

Dr. Mark Friedman was appointed to serve on the Ambulance Study Committee. Dr. Friedman will be filling a vacancy left on the committee when Dr. Steven Golden resigned.

Robert Dennis was reappointed as building inspector through June 1. Mr. Ennis and Executive Secretary Mark Lanza, drew up a list of goals and objectives.

Selectmen deny grievance

Selectmen denied last week a police patrolmen's union grievance alleging Chief Joseph Kealey failed to post a court prosecutor's position.

The reasons were procedural: the union waited too long to file the complaint and failed to follow proper procedure by not bringing the grievance before the police chief.

Selectmen disagreed with the union's stance that the post was a true vacancy on a shift.

Getting ready to open up the Cohasset branch of Hunneman and Company was Liz Murdy, Eileen Richard, Barbara Froio and Saul Cohen, Hunneman president.

School board endorses association goals

The School Committee recently endorsed recommendations of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees.

The articles are: to evaluate all tenured teachers and to consider whether they may retain their tenured status, and to support legislation which allows grants given to the School Dept. and money earned through fundraisers to go directly into the school budget.

Under the Tenure Law, all tenured teachers would be evaluated every five years. School committees would have the power to revoke tenure and put the teacher in the same category as non-tenured teachers for up to three years, according to the resolution.

Currently, many towns are required to channel funds raised through admission proceeds from athletic events and grants into the town's general fund. If this proposal is approved, schools would be allowed to retain money boards receive in the form of gifts, fees or fundraisers.

The committee agreed with MASC's recommendation to retain the 180-day rule.

The committee voted against a recommendation that a Joint Labor Relations Committee be established to resolve impasse between the committee and the teachers' union. The joint labor relations committees would consist of an equal number from the school board and the union.

The board aproved the MASC's recommendation to permit a school committee to enter into employment contracts with its administrators and supervisors on the same basis as statute currently allows with superintendents.

Also endorsed by the board was the MASC's recommendation that the Teacher's Retiremenet board be required to justify the removal or discharge of an employee.

The board agreed with a recommendation to require the membership of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association be limited to a minimum of five school committee members and a maximum of 20 members.

Those recommendations passed by the MASC will be submitted to the State House as legislative proposals.

Dept. head revaluations

During a Saturday morning meeting, selectmen decided Executive Secretary Mark Lanza will develop a performance-evaluation system for department heads.

Selectmen also decided some department heads, such as the harbormaster and wire superintendent will file periodic progress reports in writing to Lanza.

Firefighters injured

Two firefighters were injured fighting a two-alarm fire in a Beechwood Street home Saturday night.

Injured were Fire Capt. James Lee Gury for smoke inhalation and firefighter Randy Rosano who suffered a twisted knee. Both were released from South Shore Hospital. Gurry was back to work Sunday night but Rosano is still out on injury leave.

The fire started from a lighted cigarette hitting the carpet on the first floor playroom at the home of Helen Madge, 43 Beechwood St.

Nearby was a dirtbike. Peter Madge and a friend escaped unharmed.

Flames could be seen in the one-car garage and heavy black smoke pourted out of the first-floor windows. The Scituate Fire Dept. assisted and fire companies from Hingham and Hull covered Cohasset during the blaze. Firefighters were at the scene for 2½ hours.

Fire Chief Martin Dooley said there was an excellent turnout from the callforce and added the training from the Mass. Fire Academy is "starting to show."

Firefighter Lenny Davis assisted the Madge family in cleaning up the home.

Dana Ainslie was aboard the USS Guadalcanal

The USS Guadalcanal recently visited Boston to give the public a chance to see a modern amphibious assault ship.

Among the crew was Dana M. Ainslie of Cohasset, who graduated from Cohasset High in 1975 and is son of Sherwood and Cora Ainslie of Cohasset.

Aviation Boatswain's Mate (Handling) Third Clas (ABH3) Ainslie reported aboard Guadalcanal in June, 1979. As an ABH, Petty Officer Ainslie is an important part of the amphibious assault ship's Navy/Marine Corps team. Working on the flight deck as a Landing Signalman Enlisted (LSE), Petty Officer Ainslie is a member of the team that launches and lands helicopters on Guadalcanal.

Petty Officer Ainslie's job includes giving pilots the correct hand signals to guide them into their final landings on deck as well as those necessary to ensure a safe launch.

He also directs the "Blue Shirts" or chock and chain men when to secure the aircraft to the deck and when to remove the chains for launch.

Ainslie also directs movement of aircraft to and from their launch positions.

Guadalcanal's mission is to transport and land Marines by helicopter behind enemy lines. ABH3 Ainslie and the other ABH's of Guadalcanal ensure that launches and landings of the helos are safe and on time.

From January to June of 1983, Guadalcanal served as part of the multi-national peacekeeping force off the coast of Beirut, Lebanon. For 132 consecutive days at sea, ABH3 Ainslie and his fellow ABH's directed the helicopters on and off deck to other ships and shore.

Aviation Boatswain's Mate Third Class Dana M. Ainslie of Cohasset, stands on the flight deck of USS Guadalcanal. Petty Officer Ainslie is assigned to V-1 Division of the Air Department as a landing signalman. Part of his duties include guiding helicopter pilots for their final landings.

responsible for regulating noise, litter, vandalism and snow plowing and will maintain the premises in a clean, neat and attractive condition.

When the lease terminates, the town will remove whatever surface area it has constructed and will restore one inch of top soil and grass seed.

Essentially the same terms of the appeals board variance remains intact. Use of the Cox Estate excludes stores, salesrooms, showrooms, restaurants, consumer service and retail, wholesale establishments and the practice of medicine, dentistry, law, accounting or other occupations dealing with the public.

"There shall be no commerical or residential use of any land or structure-facilities at the premises except the main house. The boathouse may be used for indoor parking.

"All other structures, facilties including pool, barbecue, greenhouses, pool house and garage may be used only for their ordinary intended uses and for no other purposes without further approval of the town boards having jurisdiction over such matters."

The number of Yankee Oil employees is limited to 50 people. Parking is limited to 29 outdoor spaces and six indoor parking spaces.

Comments from town officials negotiating the pact will be published next week.

Chief Dooley supports firefighter's termination ...

stop work in all areas and he ignored medical advice.

For a work-related injury, the town pays 100 percent salary, all doctor bills and prescriptions.

Dooley said if Boswell hurt himself on the printing job and was disabled permanently, the town would have paid for full retirement benefits.

Dooley said he gave Boswell two weeks to get a doctor's note allowing him to work at another job but no note was delivered to Dooley.

The decision to terminate Boswell, said Dooley, is a personnel policy with other Fire Depts. in the state, especially Boston.

Outside consultant

Selectman John DeBassio, asked by the board to investigate internal disputes between the chief and the firefighters reported to the board in open session last week.

He said selectmen were prompted to initiate the study as a result of the discord between Dooley and the firefighters.

DeBassio reported he was unsuccessful in his attempts to bring Dooley and firefighters together for negotiation of their disputes.

Selectmen outlined the proposal as following: "A basic objective of the study is to determine if the level of fire suppression, fire prevention and ambulance service being offered is adequate; if the services are being provided in the most efficient and effective use of personnel, equipment physical facilities, time and other resources and if personnel management and supervision is effective."

The study will focus heavily on "the overall organization" management of the Fire Dept; appraisal of staffing patterns, management levels and span of control, investigation of communication and dispatch services and an assessment of the department's mutual aid relationships with other towns.

There was some disagreement among selectmen as to if the use of equipment and physical facilities should be considered in the study.

Selectman Frank England said these aspects of department are studied periodically and free by the Insurance Service Organization and it would be redundant and wasteful to include them in the study.

The consulting firm chosen to perform the study will be required to identify problem areas in the Fire Dept and to recommend measures necessary to solve the problems.

Selectmen do not know how much the study will cost. A preliminary talk will be held with consulting firms in early December and selectmen will choose a firm by Feb. 1.

Since there is not budget money available to fund the study, a special town meeting may be called in January.

Reaction among the firefighters was varied. One firefighter said the study would work if it was conducted totally impartially.

Another firefighter said when selectmen voted to take the Fire Chief's position out of Civil Service it was done so selectmen could have more control of the department. "And now this is going to an outside firm," he said.

Firefighter Union President William Protulis declined comment until a future date.

Dooley said it is the selectmen's perogative and his department is open to everyone at anytime.

"I will try to be as cooperative as I can but I don't know what selectmen are looking for. I just read about it in the newspaper."

Antiques Appraisal Day is Nov. 12

By David Wadsworth
Historical Society Curator

Mark the calendar for the Cohasset Historical Society's Antiques Appraisal Day, Saturday, Nov.12 at the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Expert appraisers from the renowned Robert W. Skinner Inc. of Boston and Bolton, Mass. will attend to make confidential verbal appraisals of antiques, objects of art and "collectibles."

The cost of verbal appraisals is $5 per item or three items for $10. The entire amount charged will be donated by the Skinner firm to the Cohasset Historical Society.

Accepted for appraisal will be a wide range of items including antique furniture, silver and other metals, jewelry, paintings, prints, bronzes, porcelain and pottery, rugs, folk art, textiles, Oriental objects, toys and dolls, antique glass and bottles, books, as well as other antiques and objects of art. Exceptions are stamps and coins.

Attending from the Robert W. Skinner Inc. firm will be three expert appraisers: Stephen L. Fletcher, now an auctioneer and vice-president at Skinner; Robert E. Cleaves, also an auctioneer and vice-president at Skinner and Kathryn Corbin, Skinner's painting specialist.

Fletcher's area of special expertise includes American furniture and the Arts and Crafts movement. He regularly conducts appraisal forums and antique talks for civic and historical groups.

Cleaves' area of expertise covers a broad range of categories in antiques and fine art, such as jewelry, 18th century European furniture, porcelain and paintings. He frequently lectures on antiques and collections.

Corbin has been vice-president and head of the painting department of a New York auction house. She has organized an exhibit of American art at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations and regularly serves as lecturer and consultant on fine arts investment.

In addition to antiques and objects of art, more recent "collectables" may be brought to the Lothrop House Appraisal Day for scrutiny by the Appraisers.

Written appraisals can be arranged at a somewhat higher fee. For further information please call the Cohasset Historical Society at 383-0773 or 383-6930.

Car Connections matches used cars with buyers

Ever hear of a company which has combined one of the most talked about new products, the computer, with the age old proglem of buying or selling a used car.

Car Connections, Inc. of 45 Atlantic Ave., Cohasset has a new service for area car buyers and sellers. Company officials have written a description of the service.

Computer Dating for Used Cars

Buying a used car is like meeting the right person. You know what you like, you just do not know where to look. And selling a used car on the open market exposes you to all sorts of aggravation.

That little ad you placed suddenly becomes a Pandoras Box of anytime phone calls, endless inquiries, no-show meetings, and the feeling that you have talked with everyone but the one person most likely to buy your used car.

There is a computer service that matches people with cars. It is called Car Connections, Inc. and it began right here in New England. They took the hassle out of selling a used car by simply making it easier to buy one. Here is how it works. Someone selling a car gives Car Connections all the information about their car. The computer matches it up with all potential buyers and continues to do so until the car is sold.

People looking to buy a car simply call Car Connections with details about the kind of car that they want. At this point Car Connections refers the buyer to persons with such a car for sale. The final transaction is between buyer and seller.

How has it worked so far? It is how one customer found a late model Honda automatic that would accommodate his bad knee and inability to use a clutch. It is how another customer sold a 1929 Whippet to a man in Philadelphia, who had been looking for over a year. In addition, a third person sold her Jeep in two days, having received a potential buyer list from Car Connections.

A lot of students find a service like Car Connections helpful, because many of them are from out-of-state. Most do not know the area, most do not own a car, and find it difficult to run around in pursuit of a good deal.

People selling used cars like the fact that they are talking with a potential buyer already familiar with their car, and is already interested.

Car Connections computer networking service is another example of how the computer age is compressing and exchanging information at such a rapid rate, it defies time and space. Car Connections is at work seven days a week at 383-9484.

Who knows, perhaps during this computer age we will witness man meets woman, meets job, meets car, etc., etc. It is entirely possible.

Here is an example of letters sent to buyers and sellers.

Dear Buyer,

Here is the listing of cars that you requested!

These are people who have vehicles currently listed with Car Connections. We will also refer additional sellers to you as they become available.

We will keep your request current for three weeks. You can continue our service free of charge by contacting us at that time.

Should you have a car for sale, please contact us first to discover the advantages that we offer.

Thank you for your interest in Car Connections.

Booster's fall sports award night

The Cohasset Boosters Inc. will sponsor the 1983 Fall Sports Awards Night Tuesday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. in the CHS cafeteria. Dessert and coffee or punch will be served promptly at 7 p.m. immediately followed by the presentation of awards.

All parents of participating athletes in Grades 7-12 are invited and encouraged to attend. Because of limited seating, other family members cannot be accommodated. Those who want refreshments will be asked for a $2 donation to assist in expenses. As in the past, participating athletes, coaches, and head table members are guests of the Cohasset Boosters.

With an estimated 60,000 to 300,000 children victims of sexual abuse each year, NBC felt it appropriate to give the sexual abuse problem national exposure.

NBC chose the Cohasset elementary school because the school system has included both "Secrets" and another MSPCC film, "Sometimes It's OK to Tattle," on physical abuse in its health-education curriculum for the last two years.

Based on his experience with this educational program and the cooperation of Cohasset's school committee, teachers, and parents, Gill said, "the kids received the film with no difficulty. The film gives the children information so that if anything ever happened the kids would know whom to speak to in and oustide the school system."

Gill planned to keep the NBC film crew's appearance in the classroom as low key as possible to ensure that filmers will achieve as natural a situation as possible. Parents were notified NBC was to be in the school Nov. 9 and several parents were asked to talk to Nancy Fernandez, NBC reporter.

Gill said many children were intrigued by NBC's presence but that classroom activities proceeded normally. Gill will review footage filmed before it is aired on network TV.

The following was the letter sent home to classroom parents by Gill explaining the filming.

"On Wednesday, November 9, 1983, your child will be participating in a program designed to educate children about child sexual abuse prevention. Production of the program materials was sponsored by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and was designed specifically for elementary school children.

"The audio-visual part of the program consists of a story by puppets, and it emphasizes the availability of community resources to help children and their families. No violence is depicted. Clear distinction is made between normal, health affection and sexual abuse.

"Over the past three and a half years, teachers and administrators have been trained in these areas and are confident in dealing with any associated situation. In addition, parents have had ample opportunity during the past few years to preview the audio-visual material that the children will be viewing. It should be stated that a great many Cohasset parents have previewed the materials and the response has been not only overwhelming—but unanimously positive.

"Thus, these programs aimed at educating children about physical and sexual abuse prevention are now a regular part of the health education curriculum in the Cohasset schools, and students will be participating in these programs annually throughout elementary and junior high school.

"The reason I am sending a notice to you at this time is to inform you that on November 9, 1983—from 1:30 p.m. to 2:00 p.m.—Nancy Fernandez from N.B.C. NIGHTLY NEWS will be sitting in on Mrs. Free's health class with a photographer. N.B.C. is doing a Spotlight on school programs dealing with physical and sexual abuse prevention.

Cohasset is one of three Massachusetts' schools dealing with these subjects at the elementary school level. The camera crew will be filming in a very low-key manner trying to capture the class in its natural situation.

"I just wanted you to be aware of this program, and if you have any questions, please feel free to call me (383-6107)—or Principal Jack Creamer (383-6117.)"

Officials consider pollution impact . . .

Regarding the environmental report, Pratt said the commission has the authority to investigate potential pollution on private property if it endangers a public water supply. He added the commission feels the study should be paid for by Cohasset Heights.

No prices were submitted but the commission may send the cost of the study to Town Meeting for approval or ask the Advisory Board for an initial transfer approval of $15,000 to $20,000 to begin the study.

Pratt said the study should begin in the winter to place monitoring wells. A study, he said, should be held during several wet and dry seasons. "We may be talking about a long range financial commitment here," Pratt said.

Pratt criticized the Cohasset Heights offer to the town for dropping the suit in exchange for the public landfill space because of the potential environmental impact to Lily Pond and the town's water supply.

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping... the flower-strewn meadows... and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000

Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street one mile to our entrance on the left. Call (617) 740-1500.

☐Sunday, Oct. 30, famous marathon runner Bill O'Brien of Pond Street finished the Bostonfest Marathon. His time was four hours and nine minutes, taking more than 50 minutes off of his last marathon time.

His daughter, Erin, a senior at Springfield College, also completed the marathon in three hours, 57 minutes. Congratulations to both runners.

☐Susan Douglas of Cohasset, a freshman at Colby College (Waterville, Maine) performed in the fantasy-play "The Insect Comedy," presented Oct. 27, 28 and 29 in the college's Strider Theater. She played the part of Mrs. Cricket and an ant.

Written by Karel Capek, "The Insect Comedy" parodied human behavior in the guise of insects: butterflies straight out of Harlequin romances; the trivial greed of dung-beetles and crickets; and the nightmarish totalitarianism of ants, contrasted with the mysticism of moths.

A graduate of Cohasset High School, she is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Douglas of Stevens Lane.

☐Brenda Kehoe was home a few weeks ago to get her term paper done. Brenda said, "It's just too noisy to work in the dorm." She brought her roommate from Exeter, New Hampshire, with her and she loved Cohasset. Brenda has just been selected to model in the student fashion show for Johnson and Wales College. This is right up Brenda's alley as she loves clothes and fashion.

☐Meanwhile, up at St. Anslem's, Rich Evans made the hockey team, something that didn't suprise many! What did surprise him was the fact that he is bald. His mom and dad didn't recognize him, though his dad was sure he was just copying him!

☐Saw a real unique Halloween costume last week. A youngster came to the door as a mailbox complete with a shute for the trick or treats! It was a father and child combination which produced this masterpiece; would love to know who it is so a picture may be taken for all to see an oustanding job.

☐Brendan Mulcahy is certainly a celebrity! Last week his picture appeared on the front page of The Patriot Ledger, the next night he appeared on the Channel 7 news . . . Brendan's teacher, Kathy Hughes, made "Teacher of the Year," and he was filmed with her.

☐Jim and Brenda Litchfield will certainly remember Sept. 30, the date they became great-grandparents! Their great-grandson's name is James Neil Innis. Now when you see them walking two feet off the ground, you'll know why.

☐Had a note from Larry Fone recently. He feels it is the time of year to let everyone in on the secret to keep Shetland Sweaters looking great, a solution given to him by Jane White from "IN Stiches." The Scandanavian way is to soak the Shetland in lukewarm water to which you add one-half cup household ammonia and one tablespoon salad oil. Soak. Squeeze. Rinse. "Works just great." Larry reports all is wonderful with his new job, but "sure misses seeing all of his friends and neighbors in the Village daily."

☐Bob Walls must get M.C. of the year, as was proven at last week's Gridiron Dance. His sense of humor and timing is a real talent. The "voice of the Skippers" does it again!

☐Nick Mills, a Cohasset resident, is a celebrity twice, first for being a newscaster on WEEI radio, and second for his work on a book to be published on Vietnam. He found 60 combat photographers (Nick was a combat photographer in Vietnam himself) and he screened 25,000 photos. These pictures will be part of Time-Life's 15 volume Vietnam series.

☐Sunday, Nov. 6, marked a new opening in Cohasset, Coastal Country Properties, Ltd. Eileen Corbett, Carole Dean, Margery Dougherty, Julie Guild and Dianne Taylor have gotten together to open their own real estate firm. All five gals have been in the business for years, and felt it was time to strike out on their own. Here's wishing these five hard-working ladies all the best! Their office is located at 69 Ripley Road.

☐We should be proud of our 10 CHS students nominated for excellence in the 1984 National Merit Scholarship Program. The 10 students are: Norman Beddows, Peter Daggett, Kurt Hochkeppel, Carolyn Koopman, Richard McCarthy, John O'Connell, Stephen Perry, Jacqueline Plante, Jennifer Ralff and Nancy Walls. They will receive letters of commendation from the program, as well as lots of praise from us!

☐Remember to keep those calls and letters coming to let us in on your news.

MEDI MART DRUGSTORES...ONE OF THE STOP & SHOP COMPANIES

Editorial

The Chemical People

Last week the word around many of the South Shore Communities was "The Chemical People," a film on alcohol and drug abuse aired on Channel 2.

There were discussions following involving many school and town officials, youths and parents in Hanover, Norwell and Hingham.

Cohasset and Scituate did not participate.

At first glance it might seem that Cohasset officials did not care or did not have the time. However, Cohasset has set the tone for many communities to adopt a Health Advisory Committee, a drug and alcohol policy and a public awareness program.

Health Education Coordinator Mike Gill reported last spring the School Dept. sponsored a program on teens and alcohol and another program is scheduled for Dec. 1. He felt there was not enought time scheduled to arrange an adequate Chemical People discussion.

Gill has been the forerunner of bringing these important issues to the public. He's at it again as the issue of child sexual abuse prevention was the subject of a national television film.

We also call attention to an upcoming Child Development panel which will combine the talents and expertise of many town officials.

As far as caring,Cohasset has shown it has, it does and it will care about these important issues.

An outside study

Finally the DeBassio report concerning the Fire Dept. was publicly discussed but no revelations were brought forth.

Essentially the former police chief said he could not bring the firefighters and Chief Dooley together.

And we wonder if an outside consultant will either. If Selectman DeBassio failed after many months of study, how can an outside study tell selectmen what they probably know already.

If there are questions concerning equipment, procedures, personnel, couldn't the Ambulance Study Committee find the answers?

Rather than spending money for this study we feel the talents and expertise of the five-member board and Ambulance Study Committee could issue the report.

The problems between Fire Chief Martin Dooley and his men concern these serious matters: respect, competency and personality.

In Scituate a similiar problem existed two years ago and residents there voted to spend money for an outside consultant between the police chief and his men. The problems are still there though;although the outside consultant's report worked for a while.

But that report called for a buffer between the chief and the men, a Patrol Commander promoted to Lieutenant.

The Cohasset Fire Dept. has four captains and all four signed a "No Confidence" declaration of Chief Dooley.

What will an outside consultant tell you that Selectman DeBassio hasn't already told selectmen?

Shambles and some fond memories

By Claire McDonough

"What hurricane has passed through our house?" the Dragon roared.

"Nothing is where it belongs, I can't find my flashlight, and every pot and pan we own is in the middle of the living room floor."

"Hurricane Jacob," I told him. "Mark and Eileen and Jacob are here for the weekend. You know you're always glad to see them."

"To see them, yes. But kindly explain why the place is in shambles? And what is that child doing with my flashlight?"

I sighed. "I traded with him for a pair of Breida's earrings he had in his mouth. I was afraid he'd swallow them."

The Dragon started to speak, so I went on hurriedly. "You seem to forget he's two and a half years old now. Don't you remember the 'Terrible Twos' when our kids were little?"

He gestured helplessly at a box of Cheerios that had been emptied on the livingroom couch, an ashtray that had been overturned on the rug, and a cat that was clinging in abject terror halfway up a drapery. "I don't remember this."

"That's because five minutes before you were due home I'd promise the kids cookies, extra TV and a trip to Disneyland if they'd clean up the mess before you opened the door."

The Dragon looked impressed. "They cleaned up that fast?"

"No, but they shoved everything under the couch or behind the chairs."

He thought a minute. "But we never took them to Disneyland."

I shrugged. "So I lied. And anyway, as you so cleverly pointed out, there wasn't time to put everything away. Life is a series of compromises."

The Dragon looked pensive. "You know, I do remember Maureen spilling M&M candies in my chair. She used to bring her blanket and climb up in my lap and fall asleep.

He smiled reminiscently. "With Jay it was electronic components. He left them all over the house, but we had some good times working on projects together. It's hard to believe he's married and has a seven-year-old."

His smile deepened. "And remember how crazy Kevin was about cars? He had those little match box ones, and I used to step on them with my bare feet when I got up at night. I haven't seen Kevin in a couple of weeks."

"Remember when Eileen was two?" I reminded him. "She used to love to push a chair over to the sink and pretend she was washing dishes. Boy what a mess."

"Yes," he agreed. "But she looked awfully cute splashing around with those plastic dishes we gave her. Now she teaches in Connecticut, and in her spare time she sells plastic dishes."

"Does it bother you," I asked, "that now Breida leaves her electronic components around and Skip's sports equipment is everywhere?"

He smiled. "It did until a few minutes ago."

"Hey, Jacob! Want to climb up in grandpa's lap? Bring your blanket, and I'll see if I can find some M&Ms."

Chief Dooley commends Officer Abbadessa

(The following is a letter sent to the Police Chief by Fire Chief Martin Dooley. Ed.)

Dear Chief Kealy:

It's been awhile since the date of the tragic Nardo fire, but the professionalism shown by Patrolman Abbadessa at the scene of the fire is still very vivid in my mind.

On my arrival of the fire on August 19, 1983, at approximately 11:30 p.m., having already had the information from one of my EMT's that there were people trapped in the building, I proceeded to the front door and there I personally observed Officer Abbadessa on the ladder attempting to get in what turned out to be the front bedroom window.

Not being able to make entry there, the Officer went in the front door with me without the aid of any firefighting turnout gear, but in regular Police Department Uniform, consisting of a short sleeve shirt and soft cap.

Officer Abbadessa crawled with me up the stairs to the main floor landing, attempted to crawl with me down the hallway in the direction of the bedrooms. (Personal Note: the conditions were extreme heat due to burning overhead fire at the ceiling level and a smoke condition down to the floor level.) Officer Abbadessa notified me that he was unable to continue and we both retreated to the front door where I picked up a 1½" line and proceeded back up the stairs in an attempt to put out the fire that was blocking our way, to search the bedrooms.

Officer Abbadessa assisted me in the handling of that line and without his assistance, we would not have made the progress that was made in holding the fire from gaining access to the rest of the house. Officer Abbadessa's actions did not go unnoticed and therefore should not go unrewarded. It is my recommendation that Officer Abbadessa through the Police Department, should be awarded an accommodation for his heroic actions in assisting the Cohasset Fire Department for his actions as stated above.

Respectfully submitted
Martin W. Dooley

Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

If anything positive came out of last week's fight for control of the Democratic Leadership in the House, it is the apparent willingness of more and more House Democrats to seriously consider reforming the rules of the House.

In recent years, rules reform has been advocated by the Republican members joined by only a handful of so-called "dissident Democrats."

Then, earlier this year, a coalition of such diverse organizations as Common Cause, Citizens for Limited Taxation, CPPAX and the Republican State Committee was formed and has drafted rules reform referenda. Representatives of these organizations are now collecting the 65,000 signatures needed to place the question on the 1984 ballot. (The query on the constitutionality of the petition is expected to be decided by the Supreme Judicial Court next month.)

The coalition developed because of the unwillingness of the Democratic Leadership to address itself to any serious reforms which would, by their nature, curb the incredible power of the Speaker and the Senate President. By proposing rules reform through the initiative process, the coalition takes the matter out of the legislators' hands.

But now, even foes of significant reform are beginning to feel the pressures of public enthusiasm for the reform petition and are embracing the idea. This week the House Committee on Rules, composed of the Leadership of both parties, has scheduled a meeting because of a legislatively adopted order sponsored by the House Republican Leader, William G. Robinson. Their mandate is to consider rules reform, including, but not limited to, the proposals contained in the coalition's initiative petition.

The significant thing to watch over these coming months is how seriously reform issues are addressed within the legislative system. We know that the public agrees that rules reform is essential. Let's see who, on Beacon Hill, is listening.

GETTING RID OF THE SMOKE-FILLED ROOM...

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Division of Preventive Medicine and the American Lung Association have published the "Non-Smoker's Guide to Massachusetts." The guide lists restaurants that have non-smoking areas, health care facilities with policies related to smoking, and insurance companies that offer discounts to non-smokers.

ENERGY WEEK

The state recently celebrated "Massachusetts Energy Week."

"The purpose was to increase the public awareness of the need for energy conservation in the Commonwealth."

It also was to stress the fact that energy conservation and the development of indigenous energy sources remain critical to the revitalization of the state's economy.

Grants were awarded during energy week giving seven $10,000 Elderly Advocacy Program Grants to organizations across the state to do outreach to the elderly.

Upon request, my office will gladly send to you two brochures that contain valuable information for fuel conservation. They are: Tips for Saving Energy and Cold Relief — Fuel Assistance Program.

Write or call me at Room 134, State House, Boston, MA 02133, 722-2400.

Comment on Rev. Muir's article

To the Editor:

I feel that I must comment on the article by Dr. Muir that appeared under the "Church News" in your 3 November issue. As a veteran of the Vietnam conflict, I can not agree with the philosophy of Dr. Muir in his stating that "we project our own evil on to the communists" and "we end up being controlled by our evil—".

I too have watched the Channel 2 presentation on Vietnam and am aghast at the senseless killing on both sides of the conflict.

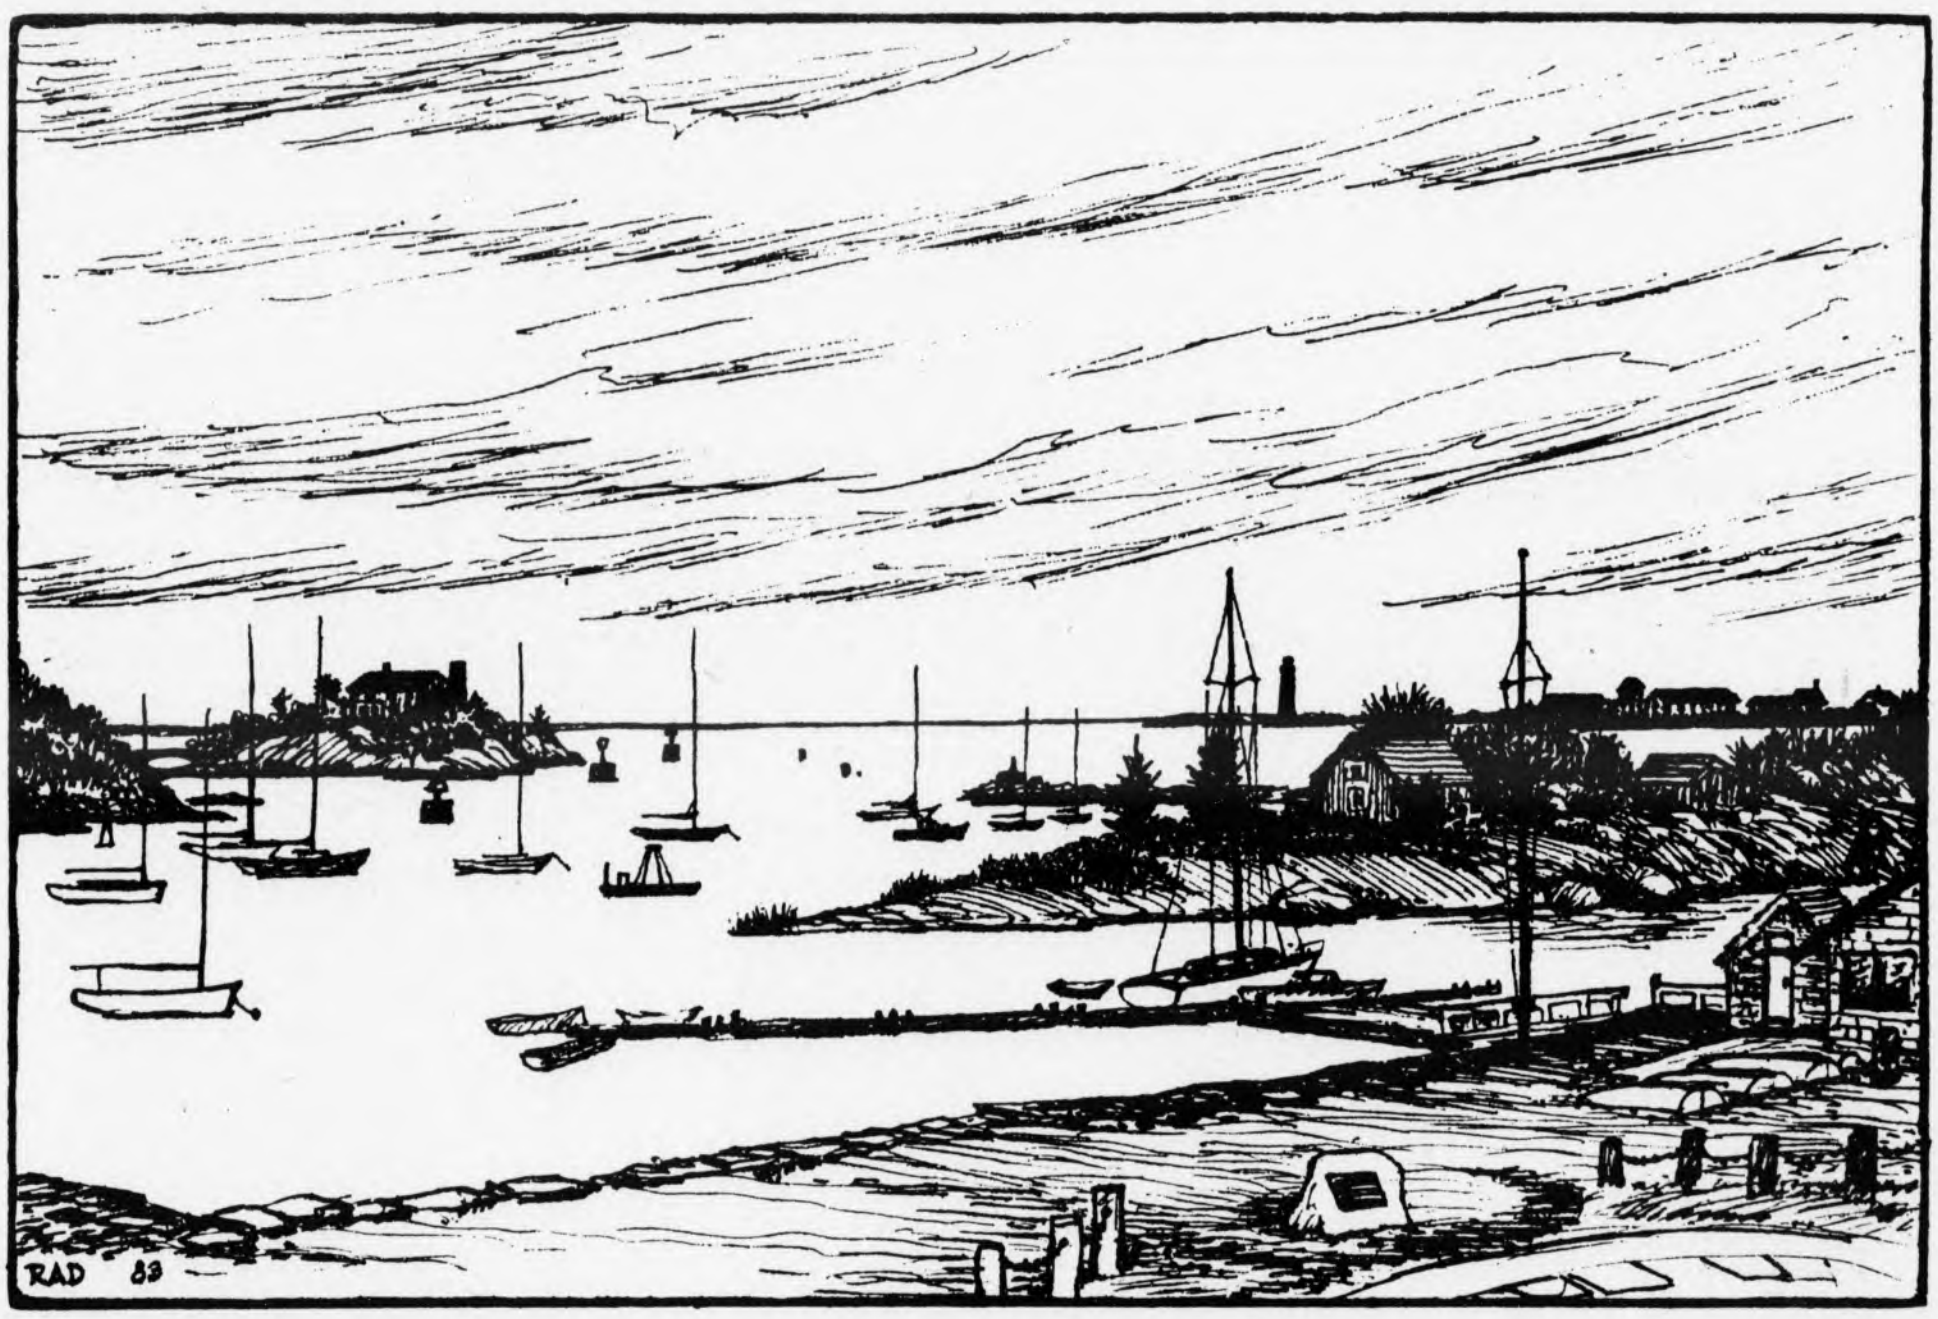
I did not see any mention of the 57,000 Americans that were killed in this conflict in Dr. Muir's article.

Indeed, I feel that the anti-military feeling amongst some people in our area is in reality their just burying their head in the proverbial sand.

Who wants to see a nuclear holocaust in our time?

But just as important is the question, who wants to live under a Communist state where I could not voice my opinion or Dr. Muir could not voice his.

I ask to where that voice in the wilderness calling for justice and peace is.



I also hear other voices calling out names like Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania and more recently Afghanistan.

Where are their civil and religious liberties today? If we don't take a stand, will we also be added to the above list? I hope not.

Obituary

Hollis T. Gleason

Hollis T. Gleason, 95, of Atlantic Avenue, a well-known Boston investment banker and attorney for many years with Coffin & Burr, Inc., now Putnam, Coffin & Burr Division, Advest Company, died Saturday at his home.

Gleason became a bondsman with Coffin & Burr in 1919. He remained active in the firm for the next 60 years and retired in 1979.

In addition to his business interests, Gleason took an active interest in Cohasset town affairs. He lived in Cohasset for more than 60 years. He had served as secretary of the Finance Committee and as a member of the town's Advisory Committee, as president of the Local Improvement Assn. and as a member of the State Commission for Mosquito Control on the South Shore.

He also had been chairman of the Norfolk-Plymouth Republican District Council, president of the Sandy Beach Assn., and a trustee of the Cohasset Savings Bank, Derby Academy and the Trustees of Reservations.

In addition, Gleason had been a director of the World Affairs Council of Boston and a member of the Harvard Fund Council and the Boston Committee on Foreign Relations.

Gleason was an avid mountain climber, and in the 1930s, he scaled Mt. Whitney, Mt. Rainier and various peaks in the Canadian Rockies.

He was born in Jamaica Plain on April 13, 1888, the son of Edward H. and Julia (Hamilton) Gleason.

Gleason was a graduate of Roxbury Latin School, and was believed to be the school's oldest living graduate.

He was a member of the Harvard College Class of 1909 and was its Class Agent the rest of his life. He also had served as a member of the Graduate Board of the Harvard Crimson and as a member of the Harvard Fund Council.

In 1911, Gleason received his law degree from Harvard and entered the firm of Stone & Webster. During World War I, he served with the US Food Administration in Washington. After the war, he returned to Boston and began his long association with Coffin & Burr.

Gleason leaves a son, Herbert P. Gleason of Beacon Hill, former corporation counsel for the city of Boston; a daughter, Eleanor Bleakie of Cohasset; and eight grandchildren.

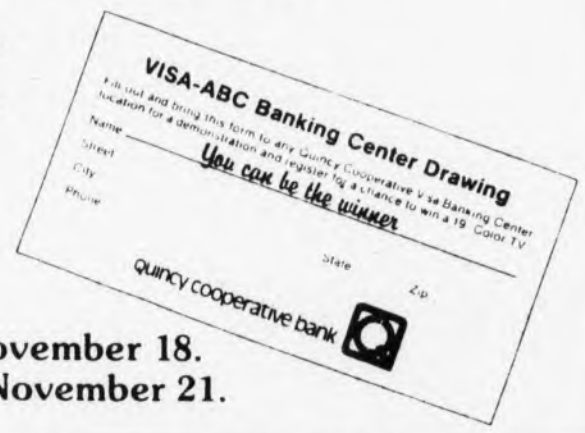
A memorial service will be held Sunday, Nov. 13 at 2:30 p.m. at the First Parish Church in Cohasset.

Protulis named Easter Seal Banner Chairperson

Massachusetts Easter Seal Society recently announced William Protul is of the Cohasset Fire Department will serve as Banner Month Chairperson for Cohasset.

Banner Month is a four-week promotion beginning Tuesday, Nov. 1 and running through Wednesday, Nov. 30. During this period, establishments participating in this fundraiser will ask their patrons to donate $1, which will go directly to Easter Seals.

Money raised from this promotion will be used to help continue services and programs for physically disabled children and adults form all over Massachusetts.



Anyone wishing further information on services which include therapy and social services, camping and recreational programs and support groups for people who have had strokes, is urged to call Protulis or the regional office of the Easter Seal Society, Boston, at 482-3370.

First Parish Church

By the Rev. Edward Atkinson

Twenty years ago Thich Quang Duc, a Buddist monk, burned himself to death in the streets of Saigon. Americans were both horrified and mystified by this terrible incident, but many dismissed it as the insane act of a religious fanatic. We did not understand the significance of Thich Quang Duc's sacrifice for the Vietnamese people. Our lack of understanding cost us dearly.

Much to our dismay a week ago someone drove a truck loaded with explosives into the Marine barracks near the Beirut Airport and the resulting explosion took the lives of over 220 American fighting men. Today we unite in mourning the deaths of those young men, but our thoughts must also be focused on the young man, to date of unknown nationality, who drove the truck. For what cause was he so willing to sacrifice his life? President Reagan has described him as "vicious, cowardly, ruthless, a thug and a terrorist." Perhaps so, but I fear that this characterization is far too simplistic and potentially as dangerous as Madame Nhu's callous description of Thich Quang Duc as a "Buddist barbecue."

Lacking knowledge of who the truck driver was let me suggest one possibility. His grandparents were citrus farmers from Nazareth who once cultivated a small plot of land that had been passed down to them for centuries by their ancestors. They were driven from their land during the 1948 conflict following the partition of Palestine. His parents lived in a refugee camp on the bank of the Jordan but they in turn were driven into Lebanon by the 1967 War. Last year his aunt and cousins were slaughtered during the Beirut massacre. Stripped of dignity, of ancestoral lands, of any opportunity to redress his grievances, grief stricken over the murder of family members and feeling no hope for the future, this young man decided to sacrifice his life and in so doing to take with him as many as possible of those he saw as responsible for his plight—those who had given support and protection to his enemies.

From that perspective we may begin to see this young man not as a coward and a thug but as a hero in his own eyes and in the eyes of his people as he sought redress of a tremendous injustice.

If we would become true peace keepers we must better understand the conditions which lead people to make war, the relationship between justice and peace and the need to provide hope for the future. And before we begin to label others as thugs and terrorists, we best question why we call it terrorism when a bomb is delivered in a truck, but somehow fail to call it terrorism when a bomb is delivered by an airplane, or a battleship, or in the nose cone of a rocket.

ADULT EDUCATION

The "New U" orientation class in Unitarian Universalism and the First Parish began Nov. 7 in the Parish House living room. The class is open to all but is especially intended for persons new to the church who are considering membership and would like to know more about our history and traditions. There will be three one and one-half hour sessions led by the minister Nov. 14 and Nov. 21. No advance registration is necessary.

WREATH WORKSHOPS

Village Fair Wreath Workshops will be held Nov. 15, 17 and Nov. 22, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at 211 Fairoaks Lane. For further information, call Jean Manganaro, 383-9337.

YOUTH GROUP

Thanks, thanks, thanks! to all of those special people who helped with the Halloween Party. Wonderful job. Karl Becker thanks you for your extra help.

This week we'll plan for our trip to Boston on Veteran's Day. We will also be organizing for the big pie bake off before Thanksgiving. This is an important meeting! See you Sunday at 7 p.m.

The Youth Group is once again preparing and selling pies for your Thanksgiving feast. Last year we had raves about these pies, so get your order in early. There will be a sign-up available Sunday, Nov. 13 after church. We are offering apple, pumpkin and pecan.

FUEL ASSISTANCE

Weddings

Blakeslee/Daniels

Kim Elizabeth Daniels and H. James Blakeslee exchanged marriage vows Aug. 6. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Benbow at the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset. A reception followed at Cohasset By The Sea Inn.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore her mother's embroidered organdy wedding gown made by her great grandmother, and a handmade wreath of silk flowers. She carried a bouquet of white roses, frescia and stephanotis, arranged by Barbara Power who designed the flowers for the wedding party and church.

Sally Siehl, serving as maid of honor, wore a light orchard gown and added personal expression to the ceremony by playing two pieces on flute accompanied by organist Ellen Fryling. Bridesmaids Susan Lena, Carolyn Sidor and Paula Baker dressed similarly in lilac. All attendants are friends of the bride and groom from college.

Serving as best man was Dwight Blakeslee, brother of the groom. Guests were seated by Scott and Stephen Daniels, brothers of the bride, Jim Kaczynski, nephew of the groom and Bruce Meinsen, friend of the groom.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Daniels of Cohasset, is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Mount Holyoke College. She currently works as a Behavorial Consultant at Metropolitan Beaverbrook Mental Health and Retardation Center in Watertown, and is completing work for her master's degree in Applied Behavior Analysis at Northeasern University.

The groom, son of Mary Blakeslee of North Haven, Conn., and Dwight Blakeslee of Wolcott, Conn., graduated from North Haven HighSchool and Connecticut College. He is employed by the law firm Lublin, Lublin, Wolfe and Kantor in East Hartford and attends the University of Connecticut School of Law.

The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in Lake Tahoe, Nevada and are now living in Framingham.

Mr. & Mrs. H. James Blakeslee

Krieger / Grisdale

Jennifer Karsalie Grisdale and Barry Krieger were married at the Old Ship Church in Hingham recently.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Grisdale, Cohasset, is a graduate of Simmons College, and is employed as a technical writer at Wang Labs, Lowell.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Krieger, Brooklyn, N.Y., is a graduate of Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and is employed as a senior engineer with IDE Associates, Bedford.

The couple will live in Boston following a trip to the Bahama Islands.

More than good taste contributes to Johnston's talent

By Melanie Mars

"Ten years ago, the wealthiest woman in town who owned the largest home was considered to be the purveyor of good taste," said Cohasset's Marie Johnston of Johnston Interiors.

Today, good taste is not enough to become an interior decorater.

A designer uses more than her innate sense of design. She must consider the light a house receives, where the windows are placed and where the home is located, Marie added.

Marie was also recently selected as a volunteer designer for the March of Dimes Gourmet Gala held at the Copley Plaza on October 30th. Marie and 11 other greater Boston designers were selected to create innovative decors for the cooking stations used by the celebrity chefs.

"You really have to know your products and to understand space and scale, then to be able to put it all down on paper," she said. "It really is a much more intelligent approach."

A designer must analyze the usage each room will receive and the needs of the people who will be living there.

"A designer would not recommend the same thing for a family with three boys, two dogs and a cat as she would for a couple," said Marie.

She believes a designer should not simply decorate the interior of a home but she should help to educate her clients as well.

"It is a process of learning and climbing together," Marie said. "When I leave, they should be able to go out and buy their lamps, their artwork or small pieces."

Marie has been an interior designer for family and friends since she attended the Chamberlain School of Retailing and the Harvard School of Design.

After spending a year in Saudi Arabia, Marie decided to make her passion her career.

"It was very quiet out there," she said. "I had a lot of time to reflect."

Three years ago, she had 300 engraved cards made officially announcing the opening of Johnston Interiors and sent them to friends.

Almost immediately afterwards, Marie bid on and won a room at the Junior League Decorator's Showhouse.

"I believe that if you follow your natural abilities then things will come to you," she said. 'You will be in the right place at the right time."

Marie strives for longevity and quality in her work. She views her approach as very personal and customized to the needs of her clients.

"When people come to you, they have a particular idea in mind but they don't know how to execute it nor do they know how to take it up and beyond the retail level," Marie said.

Marie takes their ideas and looks at them through her "designer's eye" and improves them. She wants to know her clients and their needs very well before beginning a project.

"A room should reflect the owner's personality," she said. "The greatest compliment for me is to have someone enter my home, come into my living room and say 'this room reminds me of you,' that's what I try to do for my clients."

Richard Scarry, a famous children's writer and illustrator, was Marie's second client. She designed the interior of his chalet in Switzerland. "I did all the custom work for the chalet using photographs" said Marie. "Then I flew it all over there."

Marie's style, which is consistently growing and evolving, is mainly 18th century historical, updated with a new twist.

While Marie likes to view her work individually and not compare it, her favorite is the afternoon tea room she decorated for the Junior League Decorater's Showhouse recently in Wellesley. It was photographed for"House Beautiful."

"That was me, my ideal," said Marie. "It was done in English antiques and reproductions."

Marie incorporated the March of Dimes theme of cranberries and apples into the color scheme for her booth. She used mainly blues, reds and greens.

Marie designs mainly residential spaces and only does small personal business spaces such as a doctor's office or a small hotel.

"I am a designer who pays attention to details," said Marie. "For instance, do the pillows have cording, do they have tassels. I like details."

While Marie enjoys buying the small items, the details, and finds one is always decorating, she feels the main pieces in a room should be bought once.

"House Beautiful" and "Home & Gardens" are the two best reference points for the woman who cannot afford a decorator or prefers to do it herself, Marie said.

She suggests going to furniture stores and observing what the decorators at the store are doing.

"Stick with what you like," Marie says. "If you start with English, don't be tempted by Modern or Colonial."

She also says, "Don't be afraid to refinish or recover furniture, or go to auctions or yard sales.

"And it is important to decorate in colors that you can wear well.

"The colors in your rooms should glow off of you," Marie said.

Marie sees herself continuing to grow and expand over the next 10 years. She would eventually like to open an office near Boston. However, Marie does not want to lose the personal approach with her clients.

"I don't want to come in and throw fabrics at a client and quickly dash off to another client ever," she said. "I enjoy working personally with each client."

Marie Johnson (fourth from left) joins other Boston area designers to view the Copley Plaza Hotel Grand Ballroom. Johnston was selected as a volunteer designer for the Oct. 30 March of Dimes Gourmet Gala.

Cohasset Village Fair

Cohasset's unique Village Fair, uniting five churches in a joint ecumenical fundraising effort, will be held this year in buildings around Cohasset Common Saturday, Dec. 3 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. In addition, fair organizers will be drawing workers and buyers from neighboring towns.

With the addition of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic and the new Greek Panagia (Orthodox) churches to the sponsoring group, organizers are finding committee members and workers from Hull, Hingham and Scituate on the roster of several hundred persons.

St. Anthony's has many parishioners from Scituate, while the Greek congregation in the former Pope Memorial church near the Hull line, attracts worshippers from a wide area of the South Shore.

The other sponsoring churches, St. Stephen's Episcopal, First Parish Unitarian and Second Congregational, also extends their welcome to parishioners living in surrounding towns.

This 43rd edition of the Village Fair will offer a range of all types of holiday gifts and decorations, home-cooked foods, wreaths, crafts, children's items, candy, a Santa Claus, bargain bazaar, books and a raffle of valuable prizes.

Leadership of the fair is on a rotating basis among the five churches and this year St. Stephen's Episcopal is providing the top management. Ayn DuVoisin of Scituate is General Chairman, while Sue Mullett and Bill Broe, also of St. Stephen's, are secretary and treasurer respectively.

Each of the five churches provides representatives on the Central Committee and takes on responsibility for several segments and activities of the fair.

Representatives this year are: St. Anthony's, Kathy Brennock and Angie Kelley with Denise Desmond as advisor; Greek Panagia, Jean Syrmopoulos and Barb Kiriakos; Unitarian, Jean Burgess and Judy Volungis; Congregational, Carol Sandblom and Marilyn Fessler and St. Stephen's, Jean Broe and Betty Madden.

Glastonbury Abbey auction

What do thoroughbred yearlings and old wooden carousel horses have in common? Both are avidly sought and purchased at auction; the real horses at astonishing sums.

At a first auction night to benefit Glastonbury Abbey, Hingham, a yearling is perhaps the only item of value the Abbey will decline to accept.

The auction will be held Saturday, March 31, 1984 at the Hingham Armory, and everyone is welcome. During the fall months, Abbey members will be looking for donations of interesting items, artifacts, furniture, goods and services to be auctioned.

For those who wish to donate something for the auction, please call Janet or Melissa at 749-2155 and arrangements will be made to accept the items.

Community Center activities

The Cohasset Community Center is scheduling the following activities in November. Please call 383-0088 to register for workshops. Pre-registration is required.

A Pinata-making course, given by Marilyn Adams, will be offered for adults. This craft combines papier-mache, painting and crepe paper collage techniques. Classes meet Wednesdays, Nov. 9, 16 and Nov. 30 from 8 to 9 p.m. The cost will be $7.

"CPR Techniques" will be taught Wednesday evenings, Nov. 9 and Nov. 16, from 7 to 11 p.m. The cost will be $7. Linda Farrag, R.N., and Dr. Michael Equi, Red Cross Certified Instructors, will cover emergency resuscitation for cardiac and respiratory arrest, as well as procedures to alleviate choking.

What to do on a rainy day? Eve Liberty, 7, and her dad, Page, read up on dragons.

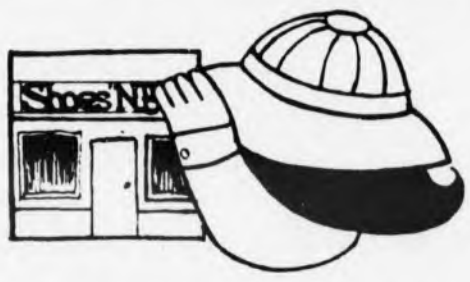
"Create A Garden Basket" with Donna Darling Kelly will be held in two sessions, Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m., Nov. 30 and Dec. 7. The cost is $16 and includes materials. The Garden Basket is a functional, flat reed, rectangular and shallow basket.

The Center will host a very special Thanksgiving holiday Puppet Show. The Village Green Puppets, featuring Pat Boylan, will present "Heidi" Nov. 25 and 26, at 1 and 3 p.m. Admission is $2.50.

This delightful, originally adapted puppet show, is a pleasure for all ages. Children will love the introduction to this classic tale, and adults will enjoy the presentation, scenery and custom-made puppets.

PSO child seminar Nov. 16

Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Deer Hill School Cafeteria the PSO and the Deer Hill Administration will present a panel discussion and question session entitled "Your Child in a Time of Transition." The goal of the evening is to provide parents with an overview of the expected developmental growth of fourth, fifth, and sixth graders.



Members of the panel will include: Kenneth Ekberg, Deer Hill School Principal; Joe Becker, Sixth Grade Deer Hill Teacher; Michael Gill, Cohasset Health Education Coordinator; Dr. Robert Sceery, Cohasset Pediatrician and School Physician; Dr. Alan R. Gruber, Psychologist; Susan Downey, Director of Alcohol Prevention Center; Mary Benbow, Occupational Therapist, and Brian Noonan, Cohasset Police Department Prosecuting Officer.

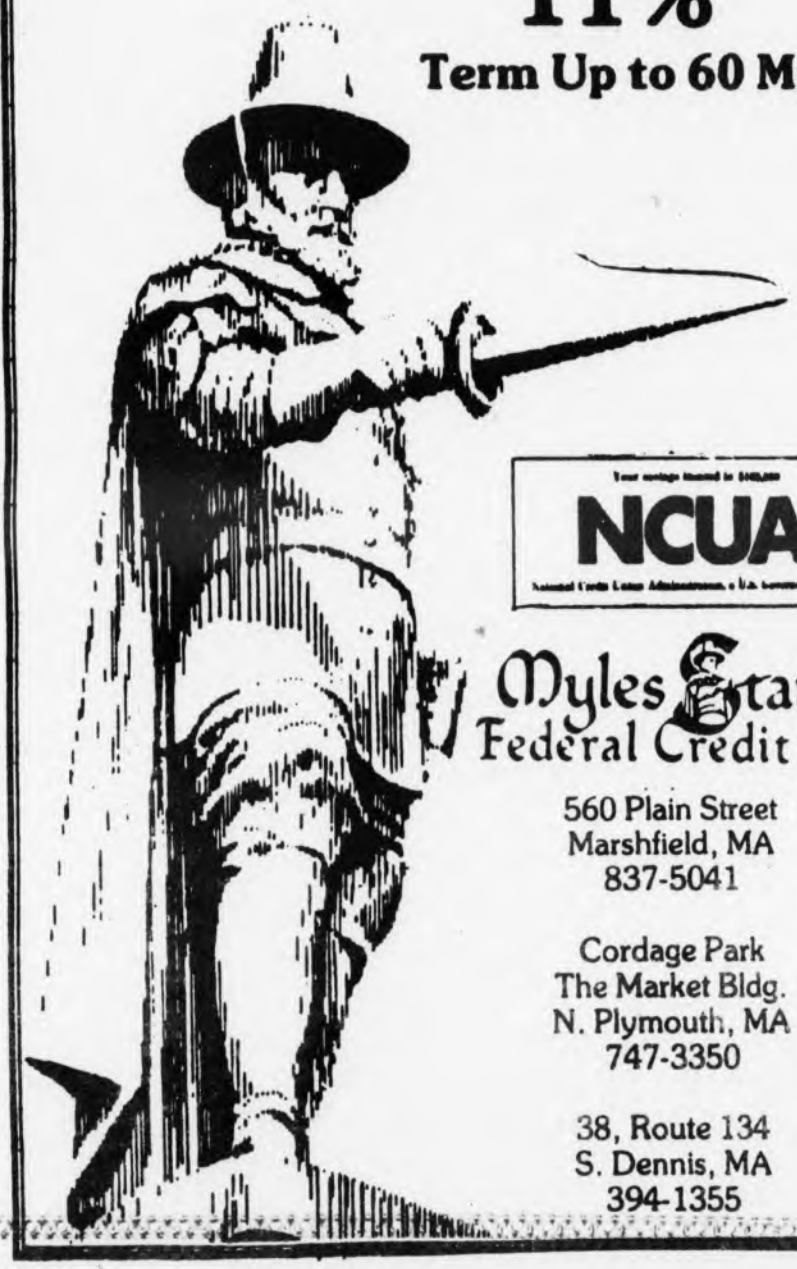
If you are able to time your vacation to coincide with off-season periods, substantial savings can be gained. With proper guidance from your travel agent the risk of poor weather can be kept to an absolute minimum as well. "Peak season" is the most desirable time to visit a particular destination. Naturally, this time period is based on seasonal considerations which vary according to destination. The "value season", or "off season", is the period during which travel is at a low ebb. This is the time to get the best bargains. Lastly, the "shoulder season" is the brief period between peak and off season. Prices begin to decline but the weather can be very good.



A knowledgeable, experienced staff fully versed in all areas of travel are available at COLPITTS TRAVEL CENTER to service your travel needs. From reservations to assistance with Visa and passport applications, we are here to make your travel preparations easier on you. Visit us at our travel headquarters conveniently located at 3 Brook St., Scituate. We can be reached by calling 545-4500 or 383-1717. Stop by our office from 9-5 Mon.-Fri.; 10-4 Sat.; and by appt. CHS sports report for the week . . .

The boys' soccer team outdid all season records since 1977 with a 8-7-3 record.

Coach John Anderson said, "We would have finished fourth in the league if we did not lose to East Bridgewater, but we ended up in fifth place."

Cohasset lost to East Bridgewater last year but they defeated Whitman-Hanson, 5-2. Lee Reid broke the ice on a penalty kick and scored the first goal.

Once the floodgates were open Cohasset kept firing away. Other scoring Skippers were: Bobby Schultz, assisted by Kevin Leary; Mike DeSantis, assisted by Greg Igo; David MacDonald, assisted by Bob Schultz and Desantis, assisted by Reid.

Season top scorers and all stars were MacDonald, with ten goals and three assists, DeSantis with nine goals and five assists. Reid also played in the all star game.

The coastal school teams beat the inland school teams, 2-1 at Saturday's all-star game, in Middleboro.

Football

Cohasset had a 1-5 record when they faced East Bridgewater with a 6-1 record Sunday. Cohasset held East Bridgewater to one touchdown, in a 7-0 game.

Cohasset football coach John Leone said, "East Bridgewater averaged 46 points a game this year. Some players like Danny Curran, Peter Caruso, John O'-Connell and Chris Kuhn did very well against them."

"We just had a lot of trouble scoring. Twice we were inside the five yard line and we were stopped," he said.

This season Cohasset has been troubled by injuries. Three starters could not play the East Bridgewater game.

Leone keeps his eye on the upcoming freshmen. "The freshman team has a lot of momentum this year. They have a record of 1-2-1. They just beat Hull 48-6," he said. "Any freshmen that show promise will be brought up to play in the last varsity game."

Field hockey

No other field hockey team in the South Shore League can say that they are an even match to almost every team they played except Cohasset, with a 2-5-11 record.

Next year is bound to bring different results to the team as they are losing eight starters, of 22 players.

Returning players are goalie, Lisa Schumaker, half back Maria Cahill and full back Dina Potolicchio. Cindy Spooner has another four years ahead of her. The eighth grader started as a wing this year.

Cindy's sister, Vicki Spooner was the teams high scorer with four goals and two assists. Vicki will also return as an inner.

Seahawks Youth Hockey report...

The Bantam A team coached by Phil Thomas scored a come from behind victory against Milton this weekend. The Bantam A's fought back from 3-0 deficit to a 4-3 win. The winning goal was scored in the last minute of the game by a hustling Danny Pompeo. Pompeo, Jeff Hartwell and Mickey McCarthy scored the other three goals with assists going to Andy Thomas, Andy Johnson, Todd Fitzpatrick and Ned Flaherty.

The Bantam B team coached by Steve Chalmers lost to Brockton by a score of 3-1 this weekend.

The Bantam C team coached by Chris Brennan was shut out by a tough Weymouth team in Pembroke this weekend by a score of 8-0.

SQUIRTS

Barry Resnick's Squirt "A's" team was overshadowed by Brockton 8-1. The one bright spot for the "Hawks" was an unassisted goal by Billy Tibbetts.

The "C" team, coached by Pat Averil, had a shoot-out while dominating Duxbury 9-0. The big guns leading the Seahawks were Matt McGuirk and Bobby Lawrence with four goals each. Sean McGowen provided the other marker. Matt Ventolieri was a standout in net keeping the door shut on Duxbury's offense.

PEE WEES

Bill Robert's Pee Wee "A's" continued their unbeaten string with a 9-3 dubbing of Brockton. Mike Richardson spearheaded the attack with 4 goals and Steve Boardman added 2. Single goals were scored by Bill Lincoln, John Zimmer and Jeff White. Brian Pompeo led the team in assists with 3 while Paul Norton, Chris Sullivan, and Pat Glennon each had 2. To complete the scoring assists were also credited to Jeff White, Bill Lincoln, John Zimmer, and Eric Steverman.

The Pee Wee "B's" coached by Tom Hingston, also defeated their Brockton counterparts 6-3. Dave Orpen led the scoring with two goals and Nickey Tibbetts added one.

Phil Stidstone's Pee Wee "C's" ended the weekend at .500. On Friday, in a wild battle which saw the Pembroke coach ejected and one player suspended, the Seahawks came up with a 1-0 victory on a Jeff Montague goal. On Saturday, the "C's" were less successful coming up on the short end of a 2-0 loss to Plymouth.

MITES

Coach Mark Salvador's Mite A team beat Pembroke 1-0 this weekend behind shut-out goaltending by Guy Scarpeci. Joey Andrade scored the only goal of the game assisted by Allison Salvador.

Is it tough to tell the Mariner & the Globe apart? (No)

By Lois Martin

As the country mouse visited the city mouse in that charming tale, so a weeky newspaper devotee visited the Globe last week.

And it's uptown in town.

The major building housing the daily's operation is on Morrissey Boulevard, which I found, a feat deserving of at least seven points.

Inside the lobby facing the walker-in is a huge mural of New England. That used to be in the old Federal Reserve Bank before being shifted to the Globe. It's made of 2.8 million year-old Vermont marble. How does that grab ya?

Now here just inside the Mariner's side door, facing the walker-in is what used to be John Flavell's dining room.

PATCHES

The Mariner, unlike the Globe, does its work in a grand old home on Main Street, which once housed the Flavells and his livery and assorted businesses. The barn attached to the house is the production area. It's been a long time since John and Nellie and the kids lived here, and the building has transisted through a number of uses, reaching this one.

Nellie, if I'm right, and I know I'll hear about it if I'm not, used to be on the School Committee. People who spend days here now write about Nellie's board, though her term has long since expired as has her life's membership.

There's a man in the Globe lobby who signs you in when you visit. Getting to their cafeteria was a piece of cake. Lunch was stewing there though coffee was the big seller in that pre-noon moment. There was a sign on one side of the large area that said, "Soiled Dish Section."

At the Mariner lunch time is announced when the blue concession truck blows its horn twice in the dooryard. That's about 20 minutes after the Fire Department gives two blasts on its horn proclaiming noon.

There is no cafeteria here, though there is a small room which houses our prized possession, the coffee-maker. There is a Coke machine too and in the barn is a candy coin-operated wonder, housing favorite choices. But we don't know who ordered all the sunflower seeds.

Here we call used dishes "dirty," rather than "soiled." And we all pretend we had nothing to do with them.

People are friendly at the Globe. The newsroom is huge and at that moment last week it was downright quiet. Those new word processing things have something to do with that. They replaced the constancy of typewriter keys.

I saw the Sunday section staff, those who work on the Living pages. Gail Perrin, the food editor, was standing over a desk covered with sinful delights from some bodies' ovens.

There was that area where the columnists write, and through a corridor one reached the editorial staff, which could be seen in conference behind a lot of glass.

Here at the Mariner people are equally friendly and cordially bundled together so that one could discuss a subscription, a news story or a bill all within earshot.

The production barn is seldom quiet and it is the hub of this operation where weekly news is typeset and waxed into place for the week.

But as there are many people from this area who work at the Mariner, so it is at the Globe. Bruce McCabe of Scituate was on the phone, taking notes. Linda Mann, a graduate of Marshfield High School in 1960, not to mention a former majorette, was at her desk. Ian Menzies of Hingham wasn't at his. But there were names mentioned of those who drive to that boulevard daily to work on the daily.

If someone at the Globe can tell a person from Marshfield about Grace E. Ryder, that late educator who wrought education, extra curricular activities and terror in the hearts and minds of thousands of youngsters in this town for decades, you know there have to be similarities between the Mariner and the Globe.

But the strongest affirmation of our commonness were the words in a hugh bronze plaque mounted on the lobby wall behind the desk of the sign-in man.

It was the cornerstone quoting Gen. Charles Taylor, founder. "My aim has been to make the Globe a cheerful, attractive and useful newspaper that would enter the home as a kindly, helpful friend of the family. My temperament has led me to dwell on the virtues of men and institutions (I'm sure he meant people and institutions.- Ed.) rather than upon their faults and limitations. My disposition has been always to build up rather than to join in tearing down. My ideal for the Globe has been that it should help men, women and children to get some of the sunshine of life, to be perhaps a little better and happier because of the Globe."

Nicely put, General. We're with you on that, we city papers and we community ones.

The information sheet on the founder said he believed human nature responds to confidence and kindness and that "the natural temperament of the editor determines the tone of the newspaper."

Loved it, sorry I missed the General the day I visited the Globe as surely as someone from there would have missed John Flavell in stopping by here.

The Globe's there. We're here, neither ways nor ideals apart, in being friendly people who want to do a proper job in a good day's work.

And they're all welcome to visit the Mariner office any day. Our founder is still right here to speak his philosophy in person.

By Joan Pinkham

Winter approaches with its long nights and drifty days. It's a time for baking aromas in the house, for filling larders with holiday delights; when stoves should have kettles and cauldrons gleefully bubbling. Soup brands vary from market to market, so read the label. If it reads like a cookbook recipe you might consider buying it; if it reads like a chemistry textbook, leave it alone. Progresso is the closest to homemade and dry soup mixes are not much more encouraging. Those that are free of additives are nothing more than an assortment of dried beans and dehydrated vegetables and that small packet of spices is where most of the undesirable ingredients are found. Here is a recipe for soup free from additives and so easy to make that it doesn't take much longer to prepare than a trip to the market for a can of soup would take.

Leek Soup Roumeli

4 leeks, sliced, stems and bulbs included
3 or 4 potatoes
1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
4 T olive oil or butter
4 qts. chicken broth
2 eggs
4 T milk or cream

Clean leeks and mushrooms. Slice leeks into 1" pieces and separate rings in basin of water to rinse thoroughly. Peel potatoes and dice. Heat oil in deep pot. Cook vegetables over medium heat for 5 min., stirring constantly. Add broth and bring to a boil. Reduce heat. Cover and cook on medium heat for 30 min. Remove from heat. Whisk egg and milk (or cream) with fork and stir into soup.

A gift from your kitchen can be stored in the freezer and just like money in the bank, handy to have when the need arises. Most of us feel that holiday baking should include a loaf or two of cranberry bread or a few cookies for gifts, but no freezer should be without something tucked away for other occasions such as when a friend returns from the hospital, has a birthday, or a baby. It's also that time of year when you seem to be on everybody's list for a contribution to the baked goods table for the holiday fair your favorite groups have planned. Foods that can be transported with ease are best, as are those that can be stored for several months on the pantry shelf: candied citrus peel, spiced teas, jellies, or Mary Jane West's

Sugarplums

Chop finely 1/2 cup each of dried apricots and pecans
1/4 cup plus 1 T grated sweetened coconut
1/4 cup each of golden raisins and dried apples
Add 2 T kirsch and blend the mixture (in blender or food processor) for 5 seconds. Form mixture into 3/4" balls, pressing each candy firmly into shape and in a shallow bowl sprinkled with 3 T sugar roll the sugarplums to coat them evenly. Sugarplums keep in an airtight container at room temperature for up to two weeks or can be frozen for several months. Makes about 36 sugarplums.

New England cooks are frugal and to an outsider a peek in a Yankee's refrigerator might be a source of puzzlement, for nothing is thrown away. Tucked away are meat bones, chicken carcasses, leftover veggies, celery leaves, beet tops and a few baked beans left over from Saturday night's supper. Nancy Townsend says no home should be without a couple of fresh lemons, garlic, parsley and sour cream. "If you have them you can always put together a meal with some vegetables from your garden, or leftover in your freezer." Have you ever thought what you can do with just one apple? With it you can make a little Waldorf salad, put the Cub Scouts to work making a pomander for Mom's closet by sticking it with cloves, whip up apple muffins or even make this quickie dessert called:

Mrs. Truman's Ozark Pudding

1 egg
3/4 c. sugar
2 T flour
1¼ tsp. baking powder
1/8 tsp. salt
1/2 c. each chopped nuts, chopped raw apple
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat egg and sugar until light and fluffy. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into egg mixture. Add apples, nuts and vanilla. Bake in buttered pie plate at 350 for 35 min. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream.

Meet Call Firefighter Denise Parsloe

Among the 22-member Fire Dept. call force is Denise Parsloe of Norfolk Lane, a call firefighter since March.

She is Cohasset's only female firefighter and Fire Ch ief Martin Dooley would like to see more women volunteer for the call force.

Her full-time job is an EMT (Emergency Medical Technican) serving private ambulances for Roxbury, West Roxbury, Jamaica Plain and Roslindale.

"I'm no different than any other guy (call firefighter). In fact I have to work harder to pull my own weight," she said.

She described a recent training session for both regular and call men at Cohasset High School where they climbed aerial ladders and then carried a small ladder up a large ladder.

Parsloe is used to competition. In Quincy she was a member of the high school band there for several years and participated in competition in Bermuda. She also participated in track competitions, running the 1,000 yard dash and throwing the shotput.

She saw her occupation as helping people whether they are car accident or fire victims.

Her long range goal is to be a regular firefighter and she has taken the Civil Service examination for that position.

She has no relatives who are firefighters but said a Quincy firefighter encouraged her to begin training.

But she began rescue training at 13 years old when she joined the Junior Civil Air Patrol and participated in rescue searches for lost private airplanes. She went to "bootcamp" weekends to learn patrol techniques.

She acknowledges that being a woman does give an advantage in civil service testing since she is considered a minority."

But as part of the Cohasset Fire Dept. she gets treated no differently at all from the men or by Chief Dooley.

She especially admires Call Capt. Cliff Dickson who has been a call firefighter for many years. "You should do a story about Cliff," Parsloe said.

Helen Mulhern commends the October winners: Grade 4, Mrs. Chase, Grade 5, Mrs. Magoun, and Grade 6, Mrs. Cisneros.

MUSICIANS OF THE MONTH

Ruth Dalbeck, band director, named the "Musicians of the Month" for extra effort and participation in band practice and special programs. Congratulations to Karen Atkinson, Liz Buckley, Erin Chase, Veronica Devos, Allison Kornet, Matt Leary, Madlyn MacDonald, Sophie Redfield, Jimmy Reidy, Joel Reidy, Carrie Ripley, Brian Shultz and Bart Weisenfluh.

In addition, the band director showed a film in the library to the fourth graders on "Whole, Half, Quarter Notes and Rhythm" taped on video by Mrs. Murphy, Deer Hill media specialist.

I.M.S.

By Suzzanne DeCruz, Grade 6

"They learn while they earn" is a quote from the somewhat pleased I.M.S. (Individual Mathematics System) teacher, Mrs. Mulhern. The "point" chart is the newest invention of hers. "The 'point' chart makes the children want to work and earn at the same time."

Instead of Mrs. Mulhern coming to us, we go to her in her fully equipped room. Her room is equipped with everything from grease pencils to prescription sheets. She designed the chart herself. She thinks it was worth her while because it makes the children more interested in the program.

Fourth grade winner was Mrs. Chase's class; fifth grade, Mrs. Magoun's class won first place. And last, but not least, the sixth grade winner was Mrs. Cisneros' class.

Congratulations to all the winners. "All the classes worked hard and the final results were fantastic," concluded Mrs. Mulhern.

Earn those points!

HEALTH UPDATE

Cohasset Police Officer Cliff Jones visited Mr. Deakin's health classes last week and showed the students a video tape on CPR and a film on babysitting emergency procedures.

GLOBE SANTA GETS PAID FOR MISTAKES

By Erin Chase

In Mrs. Magoun's and Mr. Shultz's fifth and sixth grade Open Space classroom, coming to class unprepared costs money. Forgetting homework, pens, pencils, rulers and library books costs a nickel. Other offenses are leaning back in chairs, leaving lockers open and talking during class. The money collected will go to the Boston Globe Santa. Hopefully the fines will help a needy child have a happier Christmas and will teach the students in the Open Space classroom to be more responsible.

This "fine" program is strictly voluntary. Anyone not wishing to participate need only bring in a note from his or her parent.

JR/SR HIGH

CHILD STUDY CLASSES

The pre-school class operated by students in Child Study classes began November 7.

Mrs. Wunschel's Child Study Class enjoyed a visit from Marda Collett, assistant dean of admissions at Wheelock College. Collett described the many new fields of employment in child related careers. Her instruction in applying for admissions to colleges today was most informative.

TESSAHOC PATRONS

Parents of the senior class will be receiving letters soon requesting their patronage of the 1984 yearbook, Tessahoc. Prompt replies will be appreciated.

ATTORNEY VISITS LAW CLASSES

Attorney Steven Coren visited Edward Sheehan's law class November 1. Coren, a practicing attorney with offices in Brookline and South Weymouth, conducted a question and answer session with the seniors in the elective class. Coren, a member of the Mass. Bar Assoc., is one of the prime movers in his organization's program to team practicing attorneys with high school and junior high school law teachers.

During the very lively class, questions were fielded by Coren on such law-related subjects as arrest and trial procedures in Mass., Civil law and criminal law, plea bargaining, the client/lawyer relationship, the advocacy system, rules of evidence, the trial as controlled drama, witnesses, the trial as a search for truth, and taking dispositions from witnesses.

Attorney Coren, who is a law partner with James Horan of South Weymouth, will return to Cohasset High School in December to answer more of Sheehan's future lawyers' penetrating questions.

DEBATING TEAM

The Cohasset High School Debating Team is presently preparing for its opening debate on Wednesday, Dec. 14. The local debaters, who are coached by Edward Sheehan, chairman of the Social Studies Department, are members of the nine-school South Shore Debate League.

During the 1983-84 Debate year, high school and college debaters all over the country will be debating the resolution "that the United States should establish uniform rules governing the procedure of all criminal courts in the nation."

Cohasset debaters this year will go up against novice and intermediate debaters from such schools as Somerset H.S., Dartmouth H.S., North Attleboro H.S., Bishop Feehan H.S. from Attleboro, Foxboro H.S., Rockland H.S. East Bridgewater H.S. and Woonsocket (Rhode Island) H.S.

The debate schedule for 1983/84 is: Wednesdays at 3:30 p.m., Dec. 14 and Jan. 18 at Dartmouth, Feb. 1, Feb. 15 and Feb. 29 at East Bridgewater H.S.

League Tournament will be held in March.

SRA test results lead to curriculum review

The School Committee recently discussed the results of the SRA Achievement tests which are used as one of the measures to evaluate the progress a child is making in the school system. The tests were administered in May and June.

Stephen Hart, assistant superintendent, reported the Cohasset school system has continued to maintain a high level of scores but offered several curriculum recommendations to the committee.

"These recommendations are based on a formula which equates achievement to aptitude; that is achievement should be directly proportionate to aptitude if other factors do not interfere: One would be naive not to consider behavioral, emotional, family and social factors in a true measure of achievement."

The curriculum recommendations are:

Grade 1 - emphasis on auditory discrimination and listening; Grade 2, review spelling program and emphasize language arts-mechanics; Grade 3, emphasize language arts-mechanics; Grade 4, review Social Studies, science curriculum and problem solving emphasis in mathematics program.

Grade 5, review science curriculum and emphasize spelling program; Grade 6, emphasize spelling curriculum; Grade 7, emphasize spelling curriculum and reading and Grade 8, emphasize spelling curriculum and reading.

For Grades 9, 10 and 11, Hart said, "The results of Grades 9, 10 and 11 do not include an Educational Ability Series percentage, however, a review of the E.A.S. scores previously given indicate that achievement is within acceptable range as it relates to ability."

The girls field hockey team recently received a pep talk from the coach during a Scituate contest.

New perspective on learning disabilities at PSO program

Over 100 parents, teachers, and administrators learned new perspectives on learning disabilities at a PSO program on Special Needs Nov. 2 at Cohasset High School.

Norma Grassey, PSO Special Needs Chairman, introduced the discussion with a clever and informative filmstrip on learning disabilities which has been shown to students at Deer Hill.

Guest speaker Dr. Jean Mooney, coordinator of the masters program for moderate special needs at Boston College, defined "learning disabled" as a generic term for a heterogeneous group of students with learning problems intrinsic to the individual resulting from a dysfunction of the central nervous system.

Causes of a learning disability could be prematurity, generic makeup, birth trauma, drug use, but since research in the area is relatively new, educators really don't know the definitive causes.

Teachers are concerned with how to teach the learning disabled child. They ask, "What is it the child cannot do? How can we intervene to promote learning?"

Learning disabilities can be perceptual, behavioral, oral, or they can be associated with memory. Children with a learning disability often suffer from low self esteem from the stress of constant failure in school and the frequent insensitivity of other children. They need to know what their problem is and how they can overcome it or compensate for it. Their concerns deal with not wanting to be different, wanting to be able to read, ride a bike, or play ball like everyone else.

Dr. Mooney said that the post-secondary school prognosis is brightening, with many colleges, like Boston College, providing special admission procedures and academic service centers for learning disabled students.

Steve Hart, Cohasset Special Education Director, said that parents can contact the high school Guidance Department to arrange for untimed S.A.T.s.

Transcripts should include complete informaiton, and students should visit the prospective school to judge if their facilities and staff can meet the student's special educational needs.

All teachers should be aware of who their learning disabled students are and how they can help them to learn, Dr. Mooney said, and all students would benefit from a sensitivity to learning disabilities.

Steve Hart said the Oct. 20 release day workshop provided training in special needs education for Cohasset teachers. Norma Grassey described the "Handicap Awareness Program" the PSO has planned for elementary school children which will teach children about blindness, deafness, physical handicaps, learning disabilities and mental retardation.

Kindergarten teacher Christine Collins asked about the best screening device for pre-school and early elementary children to detect learning problems. In response to a question from Special Needs teacher Ruth Muir, Dr. Mooney said it is the school's responsibility to design a curriculum with more than one approach to the teaching of reading, for example; otherwise, you could "lose" more than half your students.

For further information, contact Steve Hart, Director of Special Education (383-6104) or PSO Special Needs chairman Norma Grassey (383-6857.)

Cohasset students enroll in six-week mini course

By Dorothy Wondolowski

Saturday at 8:15 a.m. 12 Cohasset students will assemble for a trip to Brockton. Their destination is Massasoit College where each is enrolled in a six-week minicourse.

Classes in math, social studies and creative arts are taught by college faculty. Students range in age from eight to 13 years old. The focus in each class is a hands-on experience and small groupings which permit maximum individual attention.

Dr. James Yess, dean of academic services, was the major force in making this opportunity available to Cohasset students. He anticipates an active association between the schools and an increasing enrollment in the spring courses.

The success of the initial two-and-a-half hour session is marked by the enthusiastic comments of students.

Dan De Michele, enrolled in the TV production course said, "We got to use Camera #1." Lauri Bronstein puzzles over her assignment to develop an idea for a commercial.

Jonathan DeLima, Kenneth Caristi and Donald Caffrey share some of their math puzzles with fellow passengers. "Do the circle one." "Watch how he does it." "This is really hard."

As the van returned to the Deer Hill school, the students were discussing choices for the spring term.

Students and courses are Michael Cisneros, fifth grade, Clipper Ship; Tom Reardon, fourth grade, Clipper Ship; Diana Kornet, seventh grade, Let's Put on a Show; Kathleen Conroy, fourth grade, Let's Put on a Show; Michael Figuerido, seventh grade, Futuristics; Kenny Caristi, sixth grade, Jonathan DeLima, sixth grade, Donald Caffrey, sixth grade, Figuring Figures; Julie Caristi, sixth grade, Child Care; Karen Story, sixth grade, Fun with Math; Laurie Bronstein, fourth grade and Dan DeMichele, fourth grade, Introduction to a TV Studio.

☐Well done is better than well said.

☐According to a schoolboy, a regatta is a sails meeting.

☐Herbert Morrison made a speech on economic policy in which he said, "If it were just a little matter that didn't matter, it would be another matter." He only had an outside chance at being elected leader of the Labor party but that speech killed him.

☐Some more Beacon Hill bloopers as reported by Sen. John Parker:

If Cal Coolidge were alive today to witness the actions of this House, he'd roll over in his grave...

There comes a time to put principle aside and do what's right...

Let's violate the law one more year...

From now on I'm watching everything this House does with a fine tooth comb...

More money for next year's budget

By Mike Berger

Advisory Board Chairman Jim Lagrotteria had some good news for town department heads and the School Committee Tuesday night.

"We do have some money but not alot of money,"he said.

The bottom line is the town will have $198,318 extra to spend for the Fiscal Year 1984-85, beginning July 1.

A special town meeting will be called in January to spend $184,000 generated by revenue from motor vehicle excise and license fees and a $84,000 reimbursement from the MBTA.

Expected to be on the agenda for the January meeting is a $100,000 request from the Water Commission to finance a study of possible pollution impact to Lily Pond from the Cohasset Heights landfill.

In addition selectmen plan to submit a finance plan for repairs to the police and fire station.

The school board will receive an extra $96,079 above last year's $3.8 million school budget. This is 2.5 percent above last year's expenditure and will mean the school budget will be 55.3 percent of the town budget.

Lagrotteria said the reason for the specific increase for the School Dept. is the town can only increase spending by 2½ percent and the advisory board wanted to establish a set percentage.

Some departments, said Lagrotteria, need a 10 percent increase and others need only one percent. He noted some departments returned a total of $90,000 to the town and added this helps the town's financial situation in borrowing and credit rating.

Despite the added bonus of more money this year, Lagrotteria had some word of warning.

In previous years the town set aside $98,868 as part of the Metcalf and Eddy central sewer plant expenditure.

However, the town by virtue of recent town meeting votes rejected this plan. The state has brought the town to court over the action. Lagrotteria said the town may or may not have the money to spend.

Chartis Langmaid, member of the Citizens Waste Water Advisory Committee to the Sewer Commission, said the advisory board should take into consideration as much as $200,000 may be needed to finance an

Firefighter claims meeting illegal

Firefighter John Boswell III will be in Dedham Superior Court Friday, Nov. 18, for a preliminary hearing he filed against the town.

Wednesday, Nov. 9 Selectmen ordered Boswell suspended without pay for six weeks for working a part time job while out on paid sick leave.

In his suit Boswell is charging Selectmen with violating the town's open meeting laws.

Boswell alleges Selectmen discussed his case at a closed meeting Oct. 17. Boswell added that Selectmen did not notify him of the meeting and he had no chance to defend himself.

Fire Chief Martin Dooley saw Boswell at Instant Printing in Norwood where Boswell worked part time, on Oct. 17. Boswell said Dooley's trip to the print shop was no coincidence. He said Dooley was hanging around outside the shop, "peeking through window blinds" looking for Boswell.

Boswell claims after finding him at the print shop, Dooley returned to Cohasset where he joined Selectmen in their closed meeting.

Boswell said Selectmen decided his suspension during the closed meeting of Oct. 17. Because of this alleged predetermination Boswell said, "No matter what the outcome, I would never get a fair hearing."

Selectman John DeBassio declined to comment on the meeting of Oct. 17, saying "posted meetings are a matter of public record."

Executive Secretary Selectman Mark Lanza said that meeting was held to discuss pending litigation on a matter "which I am not at liberty to discuss." He said Boswell's case "was not mentioned at that meeting in any way.""

Parents should care about 'The Day After'

School administrators, the Cohasset PSO and state and local health officials are concerned about youth reaction to the ABC T.V. film special, "The Day After," which will be aired Sunday.

Officials have issued a special warning to parents about the program through several releases.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

"The Cohasset Parent-School Organization has asked me (School Supt. Eugene Crowell) to make a statement concerning the ABC T.V. film special "The Day After," which graphically depicts a nuclear attack on Lawrence, Kansas.

This ABC production will be shown on Sunday evening, November 20 at 8 p.m.

We believe it is not the role of the public schools to censor or usurp the power of the home in deciding what is appropriate material for themselves and their children to view, but we do feel that it is incumbent upon us to alert the public to the fact that the American Broadcasting Company's official position on the viewing of the film will be that parental discretion should be carefully exercised.

It is also a fact that many organizations such as the Boston Area Chapter of the Educators for Social Responsiblty (ESR, 11 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA) and the National Physicians for Social Responsibility and many psychologists are recommending, "that children under the age of 12 not be allowed to watch the movie and that discretion in deciding whether young people between 12 and 15 years-old should watch, must be carefully considered by the home."

"The Cohasset School System will not ask any of its students to watch this program as an assignment. Our staff has been alerted to the situation; however, none of us has been privileged to preview the show.

"Enclosed is an additional statement from the Head of Social Studies Department concerning the production."

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPT.

"Sunday, Nov. 20, the ABC Television Network will present a two-hour and 15 minute drama entitled "The Day After." Beginning at 8 p.m., this dramatic presentation will depict the effects of a nuclear strike on Lawrence, Kansas, and the surrounding area.

Cohasset High School Social Studies teachers (and other members of the faculty) have made their students aware of this dramatic presentation; however, no

Declining enrollment sets language review

It wasn't that long ago when French was considered the top foreign language for junior and senior high students to study.

But that has turned around now.

Latin, once considered a "dead language" and Spanish are the two most popular foreign language courses at Cohasset High School with French now rated third.

Spanish enrollment over the last six years has remained steady with 35 percent of those students taking a foreign language electing Spanish.

Latin enrollment has doubled over the last four years but French enrollment was cut in half.

The reasons for the enrollment changes are unclear.

But what is clear is: With declining enrollment staring the School Com mittee in the faces for the next five to seven years, board members have at least two choices to make.

Foreign Languages Dept. Chairman Paul Narkiewicz presented two options to the committee Monday night and both options will be examined by committee members.

The problem, said School Supt. Eugene Crowell is a smaller number of students will be entering the seventh grade. In addition, foreign languages are planned sequentially for college credit and achievement testing.

"It becomes necessary to decide whether or not the system can afford to make a commitment to small class sizes in foreign languages or in the interest of efficiency, class sizes above 15, and teacher reduction alternate the number of foreign languages offered beginning in September of 1984," said Crowell.

Alternative I is to offer to the incoming seventh grade, the three languages of Latin, French and Spanish. This means the committee will commit itself to classes of 15 students or less because of scheduling conflicts and small numbers.

It also means with attrition, those class numbers could diminish to one or three students when the class

Tennis court settlement

Town meeting voters will be requested to pay Lowry Bell Jr. $45,00 to drop his civil rights lawsuit against the town.

Bell of Gammons Road filed a $500,000 federal suit in 1981 charging town officials had unfairly refused to issue him a permit to build a tennis court. The $45,000 settlement was reached this week by Bell and town attorneys.

Bell received a building permit to build a tennis court in 1980. But trouble began when he applied to build a fence and enlarge the playing area.

The building inspector refused to amend the permit. The issue was if the fence was considered a building, which would require a setback requirement from the property line or if the fence was a structure that required no setback.

A family living across the street opposed the court, claiming it disrupted their lives.

The ZBA rejected the application and Bell went to Norfolk Superior Court where a judge ruled a fenced court could be built under the zoning bylaw.The state appeals court upheld the lower court ruling.

New Fire Dept grievances

Five new grievances were submitted by firefighters to Fire Chief Martin Dooley. Dooley plans to reject them and send them on to selectmen. Some of the grievances concern Dooley's decision to send EMT's to cover soccer games as a result of a South Shore League rule, mapping levels and a letter of reprimand to a firefighter.

Zoning variance requests

The Zoning Board of Appeals heard two requests for zoning variances Tuesday evening. Both cases involved private homeowners.

Barry Getto of 36 Jerusalem Road requested a variance to build a one-story garage 10 feet from his property line. Mr. getto said the neighbor abutting his property has no objections to the plan.

Maxwell Pounder applied for permission to add a small addition to his home at 48 Stockbridge St. Although Mr. Pounder's home does not conform with zoning bylaws, he said the proposed addition would not bring his home any closer to his property line.

Both requests were taken under advisement by the board.

All-night parking limit

Police began enforcing the night parking limit Tuesday. Between Nov. 15 and March 15, motorists are allowed to park on all Cohasset streets for one hour between 2 and 6 a.m.

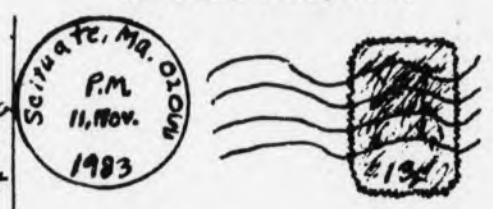
Watering system work

The Cohasset Tree and Park Department will be installing and revamping the watering system at Woodside Cemetery, North Main Street. The department has marked the areas at Woodside which will be dug, with a white line.

The area which is marked is considered a pathway according to town records.

Any questions will be answered by Supt. Peter Laugelle or the Cohasset Tree and Park Department. Also the Town records are displayed at the Collector-Treasurer Office. Elizabeth Ripley, Assistant Treasurer will assist those people who want to see them.

Sewage questionnaire request



Sewer Commissioners request that those property owners who have not answered their sewage disposal questionnaire please submit them at their earliest convenience.

The greater the response the better the job our engineer can do for our town, said Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis.

Woolworth's break

Police and State Police are investigating a break into Woolworth's, discovered by Ptlm. Richard Yocum Sunday at 7:12 a.m. On a routine check of the plaza, he found a large rock was used to break open a front glass door.

Several cases containing watches and films were broken into and taken.

Several finger and footprints were found.

New lunch rules

The Federal Government has issued new regulations which affect the school children who seek to participate in the school lunch program through free and reduced price meals.

Under these regulations, school administrators of the lunch programs must require a randomly selected number of parents to provide evidence verifying the income stated on children's lunch application forms.

Three percent of all applicants who have been approved by their schools as being qualified recipients of a free or reduced price meal will be selected and asked to provide documentation of income. Such documentation can include wage stubs, award letters, letters from employees, or current participation in the Food Stamp Program.

Drainage problems listed

The Drainage Advisory Committee has been advised by the Board of Health (Elaine Eliopoulos) that known drainage problem areas are: Windy Hill, Stevens Lane, Hobart Lane, Heather Drive.

Specifically they are: 88 Forest Avenue, 24 Stevens Lane, 726 Jerusalem Road, Cedar Street Landfill and Lothrop Lane.

The board will tour these sites as soon as possible and report findings back to selectmen.

The board also determined repairs are needed at the Bird Sanctuary.

The board viewed James Brook at the Legion property and found it to be acceptable except for a couple of boulders which should be removed from the channel.

Home Services list

The Social Service League of Cohasset will provide people with a list of names of employees if they are in need of home services.

Experienced R.N.'s, L.P.N.'s, nurses' aides, home health aides, companions, housekeepers and babysitters are available for service.

All references and financial arrangements, however, must be made by the provider and the client. Call the Social Service League office at 383-0771 or 383-0821 between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. for further information.

Any experienced and qualified persons interested in working can register with the League's office.

Children's Christmas party

The George H. Mealy American Legion Auxiliary 118 will sponsor the second annual Childrens Christmas party, Dec. 10 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the post function room. Children and grandchildren 12 years old and under of paid Auxiliary and Legion members are invited. Please call Linda at 545-6486 no later than Nov. 30 with names and ages of children attending. Santa Claus is hoping all the children can make it.

A few hints for EMS week

By Capt. James Lee Gurry
EMT Coordinator

This year, Massachusetts EMS Week will be celebrated during the week of Nov. 13 through Nov. 19.

The Fire Dept. provides the Ambulance Service to the residents of Cohasset and the public is invited to visit Fire Headquarters and inspect their ambulance and have a free blood pressure reading taken.

Emergency telephone numbers are listed below as well as key findings from a market research completed in February, 1983 by Metropolitan Boston Hospital Council.

Fire-Ambulance—383-0260, Poison Control Center—232-2120.

KEY FINDINGS

Public understanding of emergency situations

In general, the public is knowledgeable about how to get help in five emergency situations (choking, burn victim, poisonings, chest pain and car accident victim).

In terms of administering first aid, 85 percent of those surveyed knew the Heimlich maneuver; 70 percent knew the appropriate action for a burn victim; 21 percent of the respondents had been trained in CPR in the last three years; 80 percent of the respondents who had been trained in CPR would administer CPR to an unconscious accident victim who was not breathing; 32 percent would call the Poison Control Center after a child accidentally swallowed bleach (however, 29 percent would incorrectly induce vomiting as a first action).

Of note, general demographics (age, income, education) play no significant role in defining the person more knowledgeable or better able to handle any of the emergency situations presented.

Respondents with family heart attack experience are no more apt to respond with CPR to an unconscious victim who is not breathing than are those who have never been exposed to a family heart attack.

PUBLIC AWARENESS

Only 21 percent of the respondents in non-911 areas knew the correct ambulance number to call in an emergency.

Only 26 percent of all respondents knew the local organization which provides ambulance service.

Most people do not know whether they have Advanced Life Support services in their area. In non-ALS areas over 75 percent of the respondents thought they had this service.

PUBLIC TRAINING & PREFERRED METHODS OF ACQUIRING INFORMATION

Two-thirds of the public have not participated in any first aid or medical treatment program within the last three years.

Twenty one percent have taken CPR within the last three years.

Television programs, direct mail and articles in existing newspapers and magazines are the media through which the largest segments of the population are interested in obtaining first-aid information. Few are interested in attending classes.

Although there is little interest in classroom instruction, respondents chose their local hospital as the preferred educational sponsor over all the other presented groups combined (school, community organizations, religious groups, etc.).

alternative sewer system.

But she said firm figures won't be known until March.

Besides the $96,079 amount for the School Committee, other mandatory increases for the town are $50,000 for pensions, $23,000 for health insurances, a $6,000 state required audit, a 2½ percent increase in state and county assessments amounting to $7,341.

Lagrotteria also warned about litigation costs for the Sewer Dept, Cohasset Heights, cover material for the landfill, and new contracts for the Police, Fire and School Depts.

He also said all the budgets are workable for next year and the advisory board will not tolerate unnecessary unpaid bills.

Because of the extra money the advisory board wants department heads to submit requests for capital repairs. "In past years those areas were necessarily set aside," Lagrotteria said.

Department heads have until Dec. 15 to submit budgets to the advisory board. Board members were given their assignments to meet with specific department chairmen.

In a related matter, advisory board member Nelson Pratt resigned and the Town Moderator, Selectmen Chairman and the advisory board chairmen will meet to appoint a successor.

Alternative 2 is to offer Latin and French on an alternate year basis.

Crowell said this would not "shortchange or preclude" a youth from taking either Latin or French for four years (Grade 9 through 12) at the high school but would remove the choice between French and Latin for sixth graders.

Crowell said the disadvantage to the second alternative is the non tenured member of the department, who must by law be released, is one of the teachers who is the most needed because of her skill.

Crowell said many smaller towns such as Hilngham have used Alternative 2 and find once the parents and students are accustomed to it, the program does not cause too many parent or student complaints.

The development of cable television could save all three languages, said Crowell. A consortium of schools with small numbers of students interested in the advanced sections of the language could enroll in the class. A regional instructor could instruct the class via cable TV.

It appears at least two committee members Diana Kornet and Martha Gjesteby support keeping the three language offerings intact. Gjesteby also noted Cohasset may be experiencing a building boom and declining enrollment may be levelling off.

Board member Joe Nedrow said what will matter to him is the best return on the investment. He added he wouldn't want to make a commitment without hearing a budget report from the rest of the school system's department heads.

Committee member Jack Langmaid said department administrators should prepare a statement of philosophy to tell parents and students why the language is being offered.

'The Day After' . . .

assignment is being made to our students.

Because of the realistic portrayal of this hypothetical nuclear attack, teachers have recommended that their students consult their parents first before viewing it.

After reading a viewers guide on the show, Edward Sheehan, Chairman of the Social Science Department, revealed the following information about the topic of nuclear war and its effects on our society:

"Rather than talk about their nuclear anxieties, many adults try to avoid the subject altogether — especially around children. Yet, fear of nuclear war so dominates our times, it cannot be avoided.

"Research conducted under the auspices of the American Psychiatric Association reveals that at least 40 percent of American children have heard about nuclear weapons before 12 years-old. Studies also reveal that many of these young people are deeply worried about the threat of nuclear annihilation.

"Therefore, one of the best places to deal with this fear is in the safe context of the home. Surrounded by a circle of family or friends, young and old alike can talk openly about their concerns.

"Parents of young children will want to decide whether their family is ready to view this TV show and then discuss its contents."

STATE AND LOCAL HEALTH BOARDS

"I (Health Commissioner Bailus Walker, Jr.) wanted to alert you to the upcoming TV film "The Day After," which will appear on ABC-TV on Sunday night, Nov. 20. A number of articles have appeared in the Boston Globe in the past week concerning the program.

"A representative of my office saw a preview of the film several nights ago with a number of psychiatrists from the Boston area. The general consensus was that children, especially those under 14 years-old, might be quite disturbed by watching the program. A whole town is destroyed by nuclear weapons in the movie and a fair amount of destruction and some deaths are depicted in the program.

"The public schools may well experience the after-effects of the emotional upset in the days following the program. You might wish to contact the schools in your area to alert them to the film and potential problems that might arise from it. In addition, local boards of health and physicians may receive calls from concerned or frightened citizens.

"The film will undoubtedly be an important consciousness-raiser for many people concerning the importance of preventing nuclear war. I am hopeful that we can channel the concern that is raised in a constructive manner."

Mall parking ban enforced

Effective Monday, November 14, the Hanover Mall will began enforcing a ban on unauthorized and all-day parkers at mall parking areas.

According to mall officials, all day, overnight, and other non-customer parkers interfere with lot cleaning and maintenance and pose a particular hazard during snow and ice removal operations at the mall.

Signs to be posted at all mall entrances will warn that all violators will be subject to penalty.

Appraisal Day program analyzes antiques

By Melanie Mars

Saturday was Appraisal Day in Cohasset.

"The quality of the items brought in today has been very, very high. People in Cohasset have a great sensitivity to antiques and are quite informed about what they own," said Kathryn Corbin, an appraiser from Robert W. Skinner, Inc.

Stephen Fletcher, Robert Cleaves and Corbin, all appraisers from Skinner Inc., in Boston were at the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, giving verbal appraisals on a wide range of antique items, as well as more modern pieces.

The program was sponsored by the Cohasset Historical Society.

Various factors are analyzed when appraising an item, including the condition, availability of the item and current trends. Age is also taken into consideration.

An item must be over 10 years old to be legally considered an antique.

The three appraisers drew on their collective knowledge when giving the value of items including furniture, paintings, dolls and glassware.

Fletcher's specialty is American furniture and the Arts and Crafts movement. Cleaves' area is jewelry, 18th century European furniture, porcelain, paintings. And Corbin's specialty is art.

Corbin said finding an item that one believes to be worthless, then finding out it is valuable is mainly "wishful thinking."

"The best place to go to buy antiques is an auction," said Corbin.

At an auction hall, the auctioneers will tell a buyer what the problems are with an item. Also a buyer can learn from more experienced buyers about the value of various pieces, Corbin said.

The Robert W. Skinner Inc. firm is New England's largest auction firm for volume. They have two facilities, one in Bolton and the other in Boston.

Funds raised from the Cohasset Historical Society's first appraisal day will be used to maintain the society's two local museums, the Maritime Museum and the Capt. John Wilson house as well as finishing the restoration of the Lothrop House which serves as the society's headquarters.

The Lothrop house contains Cohasset's historical library and archives. It is open, by appointment only for students and others interested in researching the town's history, said David Wadsworth, the society's curator.

It also houses the town's theater archives and a great many period pieces including a grandfather clock built in Hingham in 1820 and a stereoscope used for viewing two-dimensional pictures.

There is also a painting done by Frank Shapleigh, a renowned New England artist, showing a view of Cohasset's Harbor.

Appraiser Robert Cleaves of Robert Skinner, Inc. looked over a book of Christmas and New Year's cards from 1880-81 at the Antique Appraisal Buy at the Lothrop House Saturday.

NOW to show film 'Men's Lives,' Nov. 21

South Shore National Organization for Women (NOW) invites women and men of the area to a showing of the film "Men's Lives" on Monday, Nov. 21 in the Cushing Room of the Rockland Trust Company, Rte. 3A, Cohasset (Cushing Plaza.) Preceeding the Academy Award-winning documentary will be an informal wine and cheese reception at 7:30, followed by the showing of the film at 8 p.m.

It features the frank conversations of men and boys caught in the male mystique—the pressures, competition and conditioning of American men. After the film there will be an opportunity for discussion and commentary, with particular focus on the ways in which the changing lives of men and women can be understood.

All NOW meetings are open to the public. For further information, write to South Shore NOW, Box 78, Accord Station, Hingham, 02018.

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping . . . the flower-strewn meadows . . . and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000

Town Hall will become Dickens' London

By Helen Ketcham

Last spring, I cornered Ron Massa, past president of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, and asked casually, "Any suggestion for shows for next year?"

"Why doesn't the Dramatic Club put on something for the whole town. For all the kids. Their mothers and fathers. Even grandma and grandpa?" His voice grew with excitement.

"Like what?" I challenged.

"Dickens' CHRISTMAS CAROL."

I brought the proposal home to my son, Scott, who was at that time chairman of the Club's play selection committee. "Why not!" he grinned. His eyes glinted, "And I want to do the set."

The idea of Dickens' CHRISTMAS CAROL hit a snag when several of Cohasset's top directors, when approached, turned thumbs down. "Impossible!" Can't be done!" "Seventeen scenes? Impossible to stage!" Until Julia Jordan was asked. "I love it!" she sang. "What an idea! I'd love to do it!"

The Club's reaction, when told of the plays' selection, was unanimous. "Inspired!" "What fun!" "I want to be in it!"

The CHRISTMAS CAROL was off and running.

September's auditions mobbed the Cohasset Town Hall. They came in unprecedented numbers. From everywhere. An excited and exciting crop of Scrooges, Tiny Tims and Ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future.

Cast finally, rehearsals were underway in October.

And what a cast! (At last count there were around sixty-five!) Cohasset has pulled out many of its biggest guns for this show: Ben Duffy (Scrooge), Alice Duffy, Judy Holmes (of the Elizabethan Companie of Wayts and Players fame), Derek Holmes, Molly Hochkeppel, Bob Julian, Ron Massa, to mention only a handful.

Kids! Kids! Kids. No - more than just kids, now-young performers. There must be at least thirty of 'em, headed by Kate DiLima as Tiny Tim and Gerald McNabb as Young Scrooge. And let us not leave out their mothers who are holding forth back stage, handing out props, slapping on make-up, doing the various and sundry jobs that are associated with show biz.

There is music-under the able direction of Joni Appel, professional musician.

After much research, the set has been built, rebuilt and is ready to be painted. Soon, the Cohasset Town Hall will be transformed magically into Charles Dickens' London.

This, then, is Cohasset Dramatic Club's gift to the Town of Cohasset and to every community on the South Shore.

For the convenience of all ages, there will be both evening performances and matinees.

Show dates: Friday, Dec. 9 at 9 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m.; Sunday, Dec. 11 at 2 p.m.; Friday, Dec. 16 at 8 p.m.; and Saturday, Dec. 17 at 2 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall.

Tickets are available at the door: $4 for adults; $2 for children 11 years old and under. Senior citizens are invited to attend the final dress rehearsal Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m. at no charge.

'Single Living' to be published in Dec.

The first issue of "Single Living," the January one, will be published in mid-December. "Single Living" will be sold through subscription and on the newsstands.

The newspaper is the result of the overwhelming response to the supplement published in October, "Single on the South Shore."

Some of the regular features in "Single Living" will be a list of resources and events, restaurant/entertainment reviews (always from the single perspective), an interest page, personals and classifieds, an advice column called "Singe Sources," features dealing with single parenting, single celebrities, single problems, entertaining and entertainment.

Letters, commentaries (perspectives), suggestions are welcome. Also free lance writers and photographers are invited to submit material for consideration.

Personal ads should be 20 words in length, for $8, and 10 cents for each additional word. Remember, this publication will refuse to include ads that could embarrass readers, fellow advertisers or the editor.

A sample personal ad could read: "Reasonably attractive mid 30s male intends to use his intelligence and wit for an interesting evening with woman who shares same attributes."

The interest page will be a forum through which people can find others with whom to share activities, like bridge, skiing, dinner or the opera. Residents are invited to mail in the specific interest and include a phone number or address that will be published.

Questions for the Single Source will be answered succinctly, and where necessary, after gaining advice from a professional whose opinion would be important.

People who wish to participate in the Service Swap (for example, "Will swap an hour of typing for an hour of yard work.") may send the 10 words to the address below for publication each month free of charge.

All material should be mailed to: "Single Living," Box 682, Marshfield 02050.

For further information call the office at 837-2884 or 383-6731.

Noted artist Ruth Bornstein of Cohasset is shown with theatre magnate E.M. Loew at a reception in his honor at his estate in Milton. Loew was honored by Public Action for the Arts, the public-action group which helps fund the arts in the state, for his efforts in furthering the cultural and art efforts in Massachusetts.

☐Had a nice note from Eileen Sargent last week. Eileen and Stuart are now residents of Grantham, N.H., after years of living in Cohasset. Eileen wanted everyone to know about their son Jon's wedding Sept. 3. Among those in the wedding party were Jeff Badger and Jeff Pratt, both fellow graduates of CHS in Jon's class. It seems hard to believe, all of the "kids" who were students such a short time ago are now a part of the adult world.

Jon, after graduating from Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., went on to the University of Dayton School of Law and is now an associate with Robert Ades & Associates in Lanham, MD.

☐On the subject of weddings, I must tell a cute tale. I received a note from Priscilla Daniels last week, the report of her daughter Kim's wedding. It seems that Priscilla tired of searching the Mariner every week for the picture and announcement that Priscilla and Ed have a "new son," and hoped that after reading about it, Kim would send her announcement in. Kim "beat her to the punch"...and it was in last week's edition, as a surprise to Mom! Now everyone's happy!

☐As you may remember, last week I asked the "Mailbox" to identify itself...a local sleuth uncovered the mystery for me! It was Michelle Massa, daughter of Ron and Trisha Massa of North Main Street. Ron was the designer and architect of the masterpiece, and Michelle was number one helper in the project.

☐Congratulations to Jack McNeill, a new member of the Boston College Hockey Team.

☐Betty Maree of Parker Ave. had a true surprise last weekend, when a surprise 55th birthday was held for her. The party was given by Bill Dowding and her daughter, and a grand time was had by all, especially the "Birthday Girl," who claimed to be truly surprised.

☐Dave Wadsworth called with exciting news last week, to tell about the Cohasset Dramatic Club's latest efforts. The club is putting together "A Christmas Carol," to be opened Dec. 9, with following shows to be held on Dec. 10, 11, 16 and Dec. 17 and matinees to be held also. Dave reports the cast consists of 80 people, all ages, and rehearsals have been underway for a while. A great way for all to "get into the Christmas Spirit."

☐The new Chamber of Commerce in Cohasset has announced the group will do its part in getting the Christmas Spirit into residents' veins. Chamber members are planning the third annual hayride, directed by Ellen Morrisey and Tina Watson. It will be held Dec. 3 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., starting at Cohasset Parkingway Lot. The tickets, available in advance at Cohasset Hardware, will cost 50 cents.

☐Nancy and Tom Anderson had a delightful time in the Bahamas. Now that they are home, they must dig right in and finish up the arrangements for their daughter Kathy 's wedding. Talk about living the busy life...

☐The Ripley Road Nursing Home was "rocking" Halloween night with many of the big and little monsters of the town dropping in on our Halloween Party.

Residents and their families and even the staff with their kids enjoyed cider and doughnuts and cheese, and the whole place was vibrating with a great sing-a-long!

☐Stephen Kellman, son of Jacqueline Jean of Osterville, and William Kellman of Cohasset, is among 19 Colgate University students spending the fall term with a London, England, study group.

Kellman, a graduate of Manchester West High School, Manchester, is a member of the Colgate class of 1985 and is concentrating in English.

The students are studying the English artistic and intellectual scene, directed by Atlee Sproul, Professor of English and Director of University Theater.

☐Continue to keep us informed by calling or writing with your news.

Cohasset briefs . . .

Stover recovering

David Stover is making a good recovery from an Oct. 22 accident in which two of his fingers were severed by a log splitter.

David underwent emergency surgery at the Mass. General Hospital to reattach his fingers. He arrived home Oct. 29 after a week long stay at the hospital.

The operation was a success and David will be able to keep the fingers. He is "not sure yet" if he will regain full use of his fingers.

David is able to bend his fingers as part of his physical therapy.

License rejections

Selectmen will not renew the Class I motor vehicle dealer's license to Autohaus, Inc., unless Autohaus removes two truck trailers stored behind their building on Rte. 3A.

Autohaus uses the trailers for storage. However, Cohasset's zoning bylaws prohibit the permanent placement of trailers.

Selectmen discovered Autohaus was not notified of the violating in writing.

Bob Dennis, the town's zoning officer, will write to Autohaus this week.

Autohaus has two options: remove the trailers or apply for a zoning variance to store them.

Highay Motors, also on Rte. 3A, will not be allowed to renew their motor vehicle dealer's license unless they move a sandwich-board sign back from the road.

The sign was there when Highway Motors moved on to the property and was therefore "grandfathered in." However, the sign has been moved from its original location closer to the road.

Dog problems

The town's dog officer told selectmen he received a letter Oct. 24 with 26 signatures claiming there is a dog problem at Fair Oaks Lane.

James Quinn of Fair Oakes Lane told selectmen that his child was chased and "almost attacked" by a dog owned by M.L. Drake, also of Fair Oaks Lane Quinn said, "I think my children should be allowed to ride their bikes on the street."

Drake said his dog "goes out three times a day at most" and "that dog is being restrained."

Many area residents were concerned about the number of dogs running free in the neighborhood.

Francis Johnston said, "Every morning I go out I count seven to nine dogs." Another resident said he is no longer able to jog on Fair Oaks Lane because of the dogs.

Dog Officer Richard Yocum said, "I get $300 a year for mileage. I can't go up there every day." He asked residents to call him when they have a dog problem, and he would report to the scene.

Selectmen urged residents of Fair Oaks Lane to obey the town's animal restraint law. One resident said, "That's the problem. The ones who are breaking the law are not here tonight."

Selectmen said that if residents do not cooperate with the town's animal restraint law, then the only alternative would be a leash law. A leash law would require a van, a dog pound and a full time dog officer. "You're talking about a $40,000 or $50,000 a year department," said Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur.

Lothrop House improvements

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset enhanced the Lothrop House, contributing over $10,000 in a continuing program of landscape design for the historic house on Summer St., Cohasset.

The white picket fence, painted by volunteer members of the club and just completed by Lot Bates, retired builder-carpenter, is a replica of an historic house found in Stonington, Conn., after a long search by the landscape design committee headed by Barbara Power.

Club members devoted themselves to many long hours raising money through their endeavors which have included fall "Farmers' Market" and the ever popular Christmas House Tour — the latest to be held Dec. 15.

The Lothrop House will be one of the focal points on the tour, decorated by club members and featuring a Greenhouse Boutique and a tea.

Mr. Bates graciously donated his time and expertise to adapt the milled redwood fence to this landscape project at Cohasset's Lothrop House.

Holiday banking hours

The North Scituate office of the Cohasset Savings Bank will be closed on Saturday, Dec. 24, and Saturday, Dec. 31, so that employees may enjoy the holidays with their familes and friends.

Editorial

Civil rights question

Before the Cox Estate variance legal battle settles into the sunset a few remarks should be said about the agreement.

With many other town problems looming before selectmen it seems unlikely an application will be submitted in the near future to the appeals board.

It is funny that the whole process is back to the appeals board.

But the difference is the Planning Board which brought the court complaint against the appeals board won't have any direct say on whether selectmen submit the parking lot application or if the appeals board approves the variance.

From a planning point of view, a parking lot for town docks, piers, floats etc. is a good land use. We have no no problem with that.

But we do have a problem with the civil rights of Yankee Oil and Gas Company, the new owners of the Cox Estate.

If a consumer purchases a home, that is private property. The only way anyone else can take over his property is through foreclosure or by town eminent domain procedures. In Cohasset's case that is through a town meeting vote.

We still don't understand why a granted variance was delayed week after week to negotiate a lease for a parking lot.

We feel the same result could have occurred through direct and open negotiation with Yankee Oil and Gas and not through a court complaint which ultimately costs the town money in litigation costs.

From some of the legal minds we have talked to, Yankee could have brought a good civil rights suit against the town.

But instead the firm through President Paul Montle and Atty. Chris Sullivan decided they wanted to come into Cohasset on good terms, ie. good neighors.

The company will still allow picnics for the Yacht Club and touch football games on the lawn. Essentially the same good will Mrs. Cox extended to the community will be maintained by Yankee Oil and Gas.

But what if Yankee Oil and Gas sells? How will another company react to the Planning Board's demands?

One other thing bothers us. How will the neighbors including State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (28 Margin St.) react to a parking lot in a residential setting?

Training costs money

One firefighter who asked not to be identified has disagreed with Fire Chief Martin Dooley's decision to send new firefighters Robert Protulis and Peter Trask to a month-long training program in Quncy.

Chief Paley claims it is only costing the town mileage to Quincy.

This firefighter has calculated the manpower replacement costs to be over $7,000. He said if two particular shifts are shorthanded, through sick, injury, or vacation leave or suspension, overtime must be spent to replace the men.

This firefighter supports an in-house training program which he said would have placed the men already on two regular shifts.

Right to Know, wrong in the kitchen

By Claire McDonough

Skipper looked up from his Civics homework. "What's the Right to Know?" he asked.

"It means," Breida told him, "that manufacturers have to inform their employees of the hazardous nature of any materials they may be working with. Just like packaged food products have to have the ingredients listed on the wrapper."

"It doesn't go far enough," Patrick volunteered. "It's a step in the right direction, but it's still a compromise between management and labor. By rights, we should all have access to the names and properties of any substances we may come in contact with or ingest."

"Yeah," Skipper agreed. "Like, for instance, Ma should have to tell us what she puts in her meatloaf."

"Why do you care?" Breida asked. "You never eat it anyway. But how about that stuff she makes after she cleans out the refrigerator? I think Right to Know should cover that."

"Or how about the time," Larry interjected, "that Dad fed us all liver and told us it was steak?"

They nodded in agreement. "A clear violation of Right to Know," Patrick decreed.

"Now wait a minute," I told them. "It isn't as simple as that. During debate preceding the passage of "Right to Know" some of the major companies pointed out that industrial spies are everywhere. You know how often a company will advertise that it has a "secret ingredient." Revealing everything in a product could violate patent rights and give unfair advantage to the competition. I could have the same problem if I had to reveal the ingredients in everything I cook."

Skipper looked surprised. "You're going to have to explain that one."

"Well," I began, "there are secret recipes that have been passed down in my family from generation to generation. If I had to tell you what was in something — my beef stew, for example — and Brendan Goss happened to overhear me, he could go home and tell Mrs. Goss and our secret ingredient would become public information."

Breida looked sceptical. "A can of Campbell's soup in the beef stew is a secret ingredient?"

"In my family it is. or how about my famous avocado and peanutbutter sandwiches? It's the touch of smashed banana that makes the difference."

Larry held his stomach. "Can we talk about something else?"

Patrick considered his plate. "Yeah. Like what are we eating right now?"

I looked over his shoulder. "Do you mean the spinach ragout or the lamb's kidney tempura?"

The Dragon pushed his plate away. "Please," he begged. "Not while I'm eating."

"The trouble with you," I told him, "is that you don't appreciate culinary creativity. If something's a little out of the ordinary you don't want to try it."

"Wrong," he said. "I don't mind trying it if you don't tell me what it is. As Boris Karloff said in "Frankenstein," 'There are somethings that man was not meant to know.' "

He turned to the children. "From a legislative point of view, Right to Know is great. It's fine in the workplace. But let's keep it out of the kitchen. So far as your mother's recipes are concerned, I opt for the Right Not to Know."

Advisors concerned about landfill cover

(Here is a letter sent to the Board of Health Chairman Marilyn Sweeney from the Advisory Board Chairman. Ed.)

Dear Marilyn:

We are responding to the letter of your board's employee, Elaine Eliopoulos, which warns us that the Board of Health has already spent half the amount budgeted for landfill cover within the first three months of this fiscal year and that you also expect a deficiency in the diesel fuel account.

She wanted to know how your board should proceed in December/January, when presumably you will have depleted these accounts.

Clearly you have a serious problem. Members of our board have examined the records and have observed the operation of the landfill. We have determined that you are exceeding your engineer's estimate of average daily cover material needs by 36 percent (58 cubic yard actual versus 16 cubic yard estimate).

Your board cannot continue to demand more funding from the town without first addressing the basic problems. When the Board of Health proposed the plan to cap and expand the landfill site and to use bins and a traxcavator in its daily operation, you never indicated that your costs would triple. Evidently your estimates were unrealistic and the bin-traxcavator plan was poorly conceived.

We recommend that you marshall the facts and, with your engineer, create a workable solution to the town's landfill problem before you request any additional funding.

Murray's memos

Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

Among bills I filed and listed as priorities include a bill which calls for a work program for juvenile delinquents, those convicted of felonies and those operating under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

These persons would clear state parks and forest and perform public works service in cities and towns.

I also filed banning advertisements of any alcoholic beverages on television. I feel very strongly youngsters watching TV are being subtley brain-washed that there is nothing wrong with drinking. The fact that no one knows whether they are prone to alcoholism is never stressed through these ads.

Another of my bills deals with definitions and penalties for drunk driving boat operators and a monorail study.

I re-co-sponsored an organ donor bill calling for establishment of a fund through private donations and/or a tax credit for this prupose for those who have no means to fund a transplant. This was a late-filed law in 1983 and we haven't been able to get the Senate to admit to the bill.

I also filed the Norfolk County Solid Waste Program. Costs of operation outside of the initial costs will be borne by member participants. All of our towns are facing shutdowns of our disposal areas and we must act to provide a fine operation to close the gap.

Rep. Thomas Brownell of Quincy and I have co-sponsored legislation imposing a penalty for illegally signing someone's name to a petition. This came as a result of person's names on a petition favoring casino gambling who actually opposed casinos in the Commonwealth. Both Representatives Brownell and I called our constituents and this is how the forgeries were discovered.

The Pier bill has been refiled and coastal legislators have co-sponsored this piece which will provide for pier and other improvements in coastal cities and towns. I hope this bill will pass this year. The Speaker has informed me the bill will come out before the end of the session. I and other House members have sent a letter to non-coastal members uring their support of this bill.

A test for those persons arrested for drugs, extension of daylight savings time, removal of MBTA assessments on Cohasset and Hull and reduced assessments for the town of Hingham, no coin-operated machines under the Lottery, a 50 percent increase for lottery tickets which would be used to benefit elderly programs, no standing on school buses for Kindergarten through Grade 3 and seat belts on school buses, same age group, are others filed by me.

Rules changes which I have consistently filed, but unable to get out of Rules Committee are roll calls in committee of committee members and there should not be outside sections not related to finances in the budget.

Of local interest are the bills for establishing noise monitors of airplanes in Cohasset, Hingham and Hull; a bill calling for the dredging of Hingham Harbor, (I have co-sponsored a multi-million dollar dredging bill with Rep. Michael Morrissey of Quincy) and money in lieu of taxes for Cohasset, Hingham, Norwell and Scituate for the takeover of Wompatauk State Park.

I am also seeking $500,000 both in the Senate and House for the purpose of securing Allerton Bluffs to prevent the loss of homes there.

WINDS OF CHANGE ON BEACON HILL... 3RD PLYMOUTH DISTRICT — COHASSET, HINGHAM AND HULL

"As a result of what has happened in the last two weeks, I have full realization that a majority of the members of the House want some rules changes. The Massachusetts House will not leave before it takes action on that report."

— Speaker Thomas W. McGee
on legislative rules reform, November 2.

Recently the House Committee on Rules, chaired by the Speaker and consisting of both the Democrat and Republican members of leadership, met for the first time in several years. The topic was reforming the rules of the legislature.

At that meeting, a committee of five (three Democrats, two Republicans) was established and ordered to study all of the rules reform proposals including the Rules Reform Coalition's initiative petition and to report their findings and recommendations no later than Monday, November 14.

And so, it now appears that the House will have an opportunity to debate and adopt rules reform this month and will begin to operate under new rules.

What remains to be seen is how seriously the Democrat leadership pursues this effort now that they know that more than half the legislators have committed themselves to a more open, democratic process than we have seen in many years.

But, while people in the hallways of the State House speculate on how much the recent challenge to the Speaker had to do with this sudden willingness to discuss rules reform, I believe the real impetus is coming from the voters.

It is very clear that a vast majority of the people across the state want to see the House and the Senate operate in an open, responsible, representative manner. Incumbency is not a right, it is a privilege earned only by serving one's district well.

As of this writing, the Coalition has collected about two-thirds of the signatures they need to collect to place rules reform on the ballot — 70,000 people have signed!

It is exciting and encouraging to finally see a "good government issue" like rules reform given serious consideration by those who control the majority. For too many years it has been the lone cry of the Republican minority.

Is the sentence harsh ?

To the Editor:

Citizens were rightfully upset when it was recently learned a Cohasset Firefighter was being paid his full salary in addition to medical benefits while employed by a printer in Norwood. Many of us are asking if the Selectmen's action in this matter (six weeks suspension with no pay) is harsh enough. Do Selectmen feel their action deals severely enough with the misuse of public funds?

When an individual on public assistance is discovered collecting a salary and public benefits at the same time, that action is considered to be fraudulent and oftentimes criminal charges are lodged.

Just as interesting as the Selectmen's logic behind their decision on this issue will be any statement the Firefighter's Association (and a statement is expected by citizens) might make in defense of or against a member of their union. This awaited-for statement will give us all a good insight into the minds of these men, and how their love of the Town relates to economics.

Regardless of any Civil Service action on this issue, the public will continue to ask these questions:

Did this particular fireman ever consider going to his Chief and asking to be put on light duty at the fire station? Could he have dispatched, answered phones, done paper work, scheduling? Is there no job this firefighter could have done, that would have been as taxing as pasting up art work and running a printing press?

The public continually hears about the great love the firemen have for their jobs, the Town, and its citizens. The Firefighters publicly complain that the town is insensitive to their needs. How will the Association rationalize this misuse of public funds by one of their own members? Does the Association dare to attempt to rationalize it?

How will the Association rationalize that the Town was best served by this ambulatory fireman working at a printing press in Norwood and not at the fire stration, at less taxing duties?

Firefighting is a full-time responsibility. Should the Association of Firemen support this kind of behavior by one of its members, then I feel it should be incumbent upon the Selectmen to seriously question the motivation of its firefighting complement, and Selectmen should feel obligated to poll the entire area for qualified individuals to be interviewed for jobs in the fire department.

At the time of interviews, Selectmen should stress to these candidates that firefighting is a full-time job in Cohasset, and that they will be accountable to the Town, to the job, and that no part-time job should interfere with those primary duties.

I have no doubt that should such a poll take place, selectmen would discover no shortage of qualified individuals who would be capable of taking on these responsibilities, who would more than earn the public's trust, and who would be exemplary employees.

Respectfully submitted,
Frederick Johansen

Citizens Against Casino Gambling, Inc. sent president, Carol Oteri of Hull, and board member, Beth Harling of Hingham, to a Nov. 10th meeting of L.A.N.C.E. (Legislators Against New Casino Establishments) in Harrisburg, Pa.

LANCE, a 10 state coalition of anti-casino legislators and grassroots activists, met at the State Capitol, where Pennsylvania State Representative Joseph Battisto announced 55 members of his state's legislature have become LANCE members to oppose casino gambling in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset, Hull, Hingham) is chairman of LANCE and addressed the group by a telephone hookup. She described the role LANCE plays, preventing one state from being "played off against another" by pro-casino forces.

She said, "They say, 'You'd better get casino gambling because the other states will get it." Cooperation and LANCE's service as a clearing house of information defeat such tactics, she added.

Mrs. Oteri delivered an update on the anti-casino movement in Massachusetts, stressing the importance of a strong grassroots organization in the struggle against prosperous casino promoters.

The recent report on Atlantic City's experience with casinos released by the Twentieth Century Fund, a New York-based research foundation, was praised by Oteri, who said that the results of 2½ years of study by the Center for Urban Policy Research at Rutgers University confirm what C.A.C.G. and others have said all along.

She quoted from the report, "The visitor to the city who passes beyond the thin layer of tinsel trappings along the boardwalk enters a wasteland with perhaps less economic activity than there was before casinos. There can be no question that the city's stock of affordable and adequate housing declined after the casinos came."

Published by the Harvard Press, the report described casinos as "walled off universes" who provide little "spillover" for other business. Jobs went to surburbanites, not to the poor who were supposed to be helped, the report said.

In the future, we expect to hear directly from members of the Board of Health about budgetary matters. As elected officials, you, not the health agent, are accountable to the town. When you are ready, we would be glad to discuss these matters with you further.

Chairman

Protect Our Pets comment

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people in your community and surrounding area who have signed our intitiative petition to end the use of pets in experimentation.

Our goal is to collect 100,000 signatures of registered voters before Nov. 23. Thanks to the compassion of your readers, we have passed the halfway point.

It is my sincere hope that we will soon see an end to the inhumane practice of sending lost and abandoned dogs and cats to laboratories for purposes of experimentation. Vital research must continue. However, these unfortunate pets should not be used.

Let us maintain our municipal pounds as they were intended — safe havens for lost and abandoned pets, not clearinghouses for laboratory animals. The citizens of Massachusetts should not have to worry about the possibility of their pet ending up in a lab.

Our campaign will continue until this issue is resolved which may be accomplished by a statewide ballot vote in November of 1984. Anyone interest in helping me with this campaign is urged to call Protect Our Pets (ProPets) at 617/938-9004 or write Suite 508, 10 Tower Office Park, Woburn, MA 01801.

ProPets is a coalition of concerned citizens organized by the New England Anti-Vivisection Society and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Sincerely yours,
Samuel Rotondi, Chairman,

The study described casino gambling as a "cash-rich industry and the law enforcement problems it generates are legion," causing law enforcement to become more time consuming than anticipated and resulting in street crime "run rampant" in Atlantic City.

Both Oteri and Harling, a former resident of Pennsylvania, were struck by the similarities between the tactics used by casino backers in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

In both states, they said, casino legislation was filed for specific districts by legislators who did not represent those areas, causing anti-casino legislators from the targeted towns to ask, "If casino gambling is 'so good' for my district, why haven't they proposed it for their own districts?"

State Senator Paul J. Clymer, who represents a portion of the Pocono Mountains resort area being eyed by casino interests, called for a rededication to the "solid work ethic" and resistance to "easy fixes" for budget imbalances which would "set a national policy and stand gambling next to the advanced technology on which our economy is based."

State Rep. Sam Hayes, Minority Whip of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, said the government's role is "to find good ways of doing things better" and casino gambling does not fit within that definition. He urged people to see through the glossy arguments being offered to promote casinos and to note the darker side of casino gambling.

State Sen. Jim Lloyd described the General Assembly as "the architect of our social structure" and said Pennsylvania would be better served by continuing and increasing its emphasis on light manufacturing, high technology, service industries, tourism and academic institutions.

Thomas Laverne of New York's anti-casino organization, No Dice-We Love New York, and a driving force in the LANCE group told the audience to think about the kind of communities they want to live in.

Assignment given to Waste Water Board

By Bill Hayward

At the first meeting of the Waste Water Advisory Committee, the Sewer Commissioners told committee members the board's first task will be to critique a draft of sewer engineering options drawn up by Ward Engineering Co.

The revised draft will then be discussed at a public meeting. All public comments will be recorded, printed and distributed at another public meeting which will be held six months later.

The first public meeting will be held Dec. 12 at 8 p.m. at the town hall.

Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis said by the time of the second public hearing, he hopes the major questions on the sewer issue will have been settled to the satisfaction of the town's residents.

If all goes as planned, that meeting will be "just fine tuning" DeSantis said.

COX ESTATE

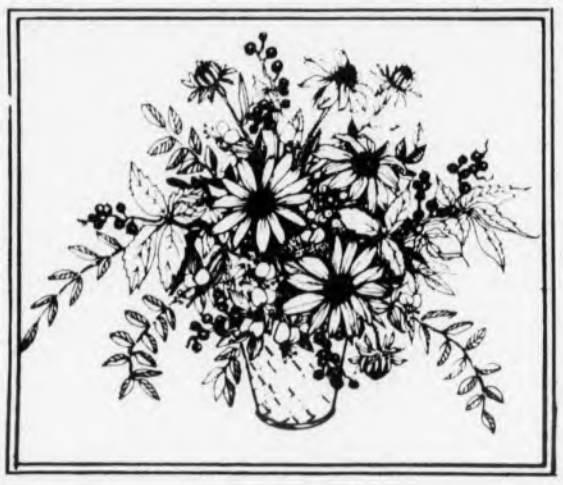
In another matter concerning the Sewer Commission, Charles DeSantis said Yankee Oil will have to file a special permit application in order to change the Cox Estate's sewer permit from residential to commercial.

The Cox Estate is currently connected to the town's sewer system.

It is up to the Sewer Commissioners to determine whether sewage flow from the Cox Estate will exceed state "sewer ban" levels.

The state sewer ban prohibits any change in sewer permits if the new owners of a property cause sewage flows to exceed 1977 average levels for that property.

DeSantis, speaking for himself, said he does not predict problems for the Cox Estate because there are unused leaching fields on the property. If necessary Yankee Oil could use those leaching fields instead of the town's system.



Sam Wakeman talks with appraiser Kathryn Corbin. They were trying to determine if Wakeman's painting was English at Appraisal Day at the Lothrop House.

Art Center exhibit opening Nov. 18

Fashion, fabrics and textures will combine to create an intriguing dimension of artistic expression and will be the focus of an altogether unusual exhibit opening at the South Shore Art Center, Nov. 18.

The opening, from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18,will culminate an effort by Linda Summers, gallery coordinator, to bring together beautifully created wall hangings, soft sculptures and other decorative uses of fabric with the elegant use of artistically created textiles for fashion design.

During the opening at the South Shore Art Center's Invitational Gallery, 103 Ripley Road, artists will informally model their unique creations—kimonos, scarves, dresses—made from hand-weaved, hand-colored and hand-painted materials.

Invited to exhibit in the Textile Show are Clara Wainwright, cloth painting and wall hangings; Yasuko Yabe, hand painting on silk; Pamela Martell, contemporary screens and kimonos; Shirley Britton, soft sculpture; Carol Ramsey, period costumes; and Cynthia Porter, weaving and hand-painted cloth. Allison Abbott of Silkscapes, Boston, will model her creations on the night of the opening reception.

Using cloth as her media, Clara Wainwright creates intriguing wall hangings using either exquisite materials such as taffetas or brocades or the more common place materials of simple cottons.

From her bolts of various and sundry fabrics, she creates what she describes as "paintings out of materials." She is particularly delighted when external forces—wind, sun, humidity—add an unplanned dimension to her creations.

Architectural-scale wallhangings, bas-relief murals and soft sculptures are created by Pamela Martell. Working from her studio in Scituate, her work has been exhibited in shows at the Boston Visual Artists Union, Brockton Art Museum, South Shore Art Center, Duxbury Art Complex and Boston City Hall.

Bold design, contoured surfaces and brilliant color are characteristic of Martell's work. Most of her work is privately commissioned for specific spaces and collections.

Shirley Britton, whose soft sculptures will appear in the show, may be remembered for the work she did with the Boston Science Museum on its cells exhibit.

With a BA in Textiles from Boston University, Cynthia Porter weaves her own materials for her creations. Two of her wall pieces and her scarves will be in the Art Center show. Her work also includes the printing and dying of her cloth.

She was the curatorial assistant for the Peruvian textile project at the Peabody Museum of Archeology and Ethnology at Harvard University. She has also worked on the restoration of Oriental rugs.

Yasuko Yabe's work is called "Roketsu-zome," a textile design art made by a wax and dying process which she mastered as an apprentice in Kyoto, the center of traditional arts and crafts in Japan. Her works in the show will include hand painting on silk and a rather large scale work with a wave motif.

As explained by Yabe, modern "roketsu" is common in Japanese daily life in such items as clothing, folding screens, framed pictures, Noren curtains and pillow covers. The process, which combines wax-resist and dye, gives a highly original effect to the material.

Period costumes designed by Carol Ramsey will be displayed. She does costume design for theater, opera and Shakespearean plays.

The informal modeling by Allison Abbott will be her original designs. She is the owner of Silkscapes in Boston.

The textile Show should provide an opportunity to see what is happening in the Boston area with fabric and textile designs and the many ways they are incorporated into artistic designs.

The show is open to the public, Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For additional information, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

Elderly Legal Services offers seniors legal help

Greater Boston Elderly Legal Services provides legal help to elderly people over 60 who cannot retain a private lawyer.

A lawyer will be coming to the Hersey House Senior Center, 229 North St., Hingham, to talk individually with people about their legal problems the first Tuesday of every month from 9:15 to 12 noon. Residents must make an appointment by calling 749-0582 and all South Shore residents are welcome.

For those who cannot come to the Senior Center, residents may be able to get advice over the phone by calling the Quincy Legal Services office at 472-3177.

The lawyer can provide advice or assistance on benefits (SSI, Medicaid, Fuel Assitance, Welfare, Food Stamps, etc.); housing (condo conversions, subsidized housing, evictions, landlord-tenant, utilities, public housing issues, etc.) and other legal issues.

In addition, he will provide advice only on financial information such as wills, estates and consumer problems.

If the lawyer is unable to help you, he will refer you to someone who can.

Village Fair offers something for everyone

Appealing hand crafted gifts and decorations for the upcoming holiday season will once again be the special focus of the 43rd annual Cohasset Village Fair Saturday, Dec. 3 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a bounty of merchandise filling buildings around the historic Common to attract early holiday shoppers.

The entire area will be radiating the holiday spirit as residents from many neighboring South Shore towns join local residents in browsing, shopping, munching and having fun at this joint benefit effort of five local churches.

Probably unique as a demonstration of the ecumenical spirit, the Fair links St. Stephen's Episcopal, St. Anthony's Roman Catholic, Panagia Greek Orthodox, First Parish Unitarian and Second Congregational churches in a common cause. This year is St. Stephen's turn to provide the top leadership and Ayn DuVoisin of that church is general chairman.

Cohasset Town Hall in particular will provide a holiday shopper's paradise. This will be the location of the boutique, selling scores of gifts and novelties made over a period of weeks by busy groups headed by Marsha Silvia and Carol Sandblom of the Congregational Church.

Competing for shopper interest will be dozens of wreaths of all sizes and festooned with bows, pine cones, and other traditional decorative touches.

This year the committee will add to the usual evergreen wreath offerings a selection of popular grapevine wreaths. Wreath workers have been busy for several weeks now preparing the decorative touches in advance. During the final week before the Fair the group will be gathering daily in the vestry of the Congregational church to work on the wreaths themselves, ensuring that the greens will be fresh when offered for sale.

Jean Manganaro is chairperson of the large group working on wreaths, and workshops have been held in the Fairoaks Lane home of Marie Kelley.

Also in the Town Hall will be the Kitchen Crafts Table, expanded from the earlier and popular Apron table. The Greek Orthodox congregation has assumed leadership of this table with Jean Syrmopoulos and Roxanne Mendrinos heading up the group of workers and salespersons.

Occupying the center of the Town Hall auditorium as usual will be the Children's Table offering a wide variety of gift items appealing to children and parents. This segment has been the special assignment this year of parishioners of St. Anthony's church with Corinne Leung as chairman.

MTA files tax and school reforms

A major school reform bill, two school finance proposals, and a comprehensive tax reform package head a 28-bill legislative program filed recently by the 55,000-member Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA).

The MTA bill addresses nine key areas, including:

Curriculum Reform — calling for State Department Education approval of local curricula, following "significant input" from teachers and parents.

Student and Parent Rights — calling for school committees to publish and distribute to parents information which describes what they have a right to expect from their schools.

Class Size — calling for the Department of Education to regulate class size "to insure optimum teaching and learning conditions."

New Teachers — calling for a scholarship fund to attract qualified undergraduate students to Massachusetts public colleges and universities to become Massachusetts public school teachers.

Teacher Certification — calling for a fifth year Teacher Education Internship-Seminar to be added to undergraduate preparation.

Special Funding — calling for funds to support innovative school programs, teacher improvement-retraining, and teacher training in educational technology.

The MTA package includes two major proposed changes in school finance:

A proposal to increase the state's share of local education costs to 50 percent (the national average), up from the current level of 37 percent.

A proposal to earmark local aid for public education, given the tendency for schools to receive less than a fair share of local aid increases.

"The present funding mechanism for our schools virtually guarantees an unequal level of educational opportunity," said MTA President Carol Doherty. "Our proposals seek to address the belief that a child's educational opportunities should be the same, no matter where that child lives."

MTA's tax reform proposal would correct inequities in the state tax code by taxing computer software and business machinery and by eliminating the state's investment tax credit.

"Our proposal seeks to tax those whose share of the overall tax burden is less than the national average. To do less would be to ask Massachusetts taxpayers to continue supporting a system they know is unfair to the average person," Doherty said.

MTA's legislative program also calls for the creation of a Joint Labor-Management Council to resolve collective bargaining disputes between school employees and school committees and between public higher education employees and their employers.

Doherty said MTA members in more than 50 cities and towns are engaged in surveying the public, their school administrations, and their fellow teachers to provide a firm base of data describing the current condition of education in Massachusetts. The surveys are part of MTA's "Leadership for Better Schools" campaign, and should be completed by early December, she said.

S.S. Elder Services provides emergency meals for seniors

South Shore Elder Services, Inc., of Cohasset packaged 1,000 emergency meals Tuesday, Nov. 15, and Wednesday, Nov. 16 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Scituate.

Each year the Nutrition Department staff and volunteers assemble emergency packages containing enough canned goods for three meals. These are distributed to the homebound clients to be used in the event inclement weather prevents home delivered meals from being distributed.

Volunteers from the local Councils on Aging, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Nutrition Project Council, and a group of 20 students from the Living and Caring Class of Scituate High School, guided by their teacher, Anne Fenn, shared in the project activities.

South Shore Elder Services provides 40,000 meals a month to the elderly in this area. More people are needed both at the local congregate meal sites and as drivers, especially in the Quincy area.

For more information about the Nutrition Program and volunteer opportunities, contact Marge Hall or Kathleen Bryanton at 383-9790.

When it comes to long-distance, your phone's still got the right connections.

By now everyone knows the Bell System is breaking up on January 1, 1984. And that New England Telephone will still provide local phone service.

But some people are wondering how they'll make toll calls and long-distance calls after divestiture.

Relax. Your phone still has the right connections.

New England Telephone will still provide toll calling within your area code as well as local service. And we'll still give you access to long-distance lines. Just as we always have.

So after January 1, 1984, you can still make and receive local, toll, and long-distance calls the same way you've been doing right along.

What's going to be different?

Practically speaking, very little.

After divestiture officially happens, long-distance service will be restructured according to Local Access Transport Areas, or LATAs. In New England, these LATAs conform to the existing area codes.

After divestiture, New England Telephone will continue to provide local and toll calling service within your LATA, or area code.

And we'll continue to provide your connection to long-distance service outside your area code.

Long-distance options.

Outside your area code, or LATA, you can get long-distance service from AT&T or you can choose another long-distance carrier.

If you want to continue with AT&T, do nothing. Your present service will continue uninterrupted. After January 1, the only difference you'll notice will be a separate bill from AT&T which will be included in your New England Telephone bill.

But if you've been thinking about changing your long-distance company, the first thing you should do is examine your phone habits.

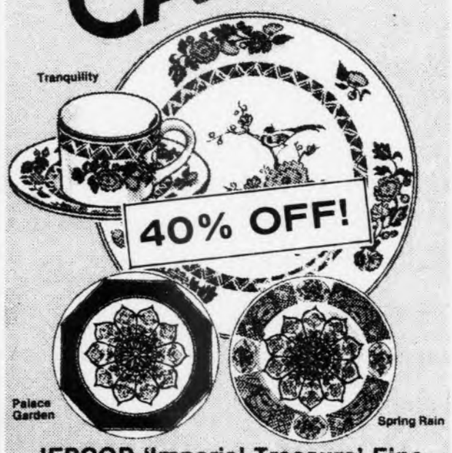
Figure out how often you make long-distance calls, the time of day that's most convenient for you, whether you generally call during the week or on week-ends, and the cities you call most frequently.

Then you can choose the long-distance company that meets your needs—and your budget—best.

Of course, the company you choose will bill you separately.

Questions and answers.

If you have any questions, call our special "Let's Talk" number, 1 800-555-5000. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Or watch for more detailed information with your bill.



Keeping you informed of all the changes taking place is part of our commitment to giving you the best phone service we can.

The Bell System is breaking up, but New England Telephone's got it all together.

Scoop on cafeteria cuisine

By Lois Martin

It was not for love nor money that he came home. It was for food.

During the months he's been gone, I'd hear tell of other freshmen in college, by-products of the Awesome '83s, coming home for the weekend, or for a Monday holiday.

Not so my offspring. Once sprung from the embrace of his home to the confines of UMass/Amherst, he might as well have changed the address on his draft card registration.

I had heard from him . . . once. I sent a ticked-off message to him through his brother, who assured me it was natural for the newly-gone to forget communication with from whence he came.

PATCHES

Fine, I said. I am prepared for him to be gone. I am not prepared for him to be dead.

I called him once, early, annoyingly so, to help prove my point. "This is your Mother," I said, "5 feet, 5½ inches, a few too many pounds overweight, blue eyes. Perhaps you remember me."

Finally, last weekend he did. He called to say he'd come home to get something to eat, "some real food."

I thawed the hamburger, set the bread to rise, pared the apples for a pie. Strange but sometimes it's easy to confuse the college freshman son with the prodigal one.

What can better warm a mother's heart than a son who misses her food, a boy who promises to look gaunt and undernourished because of his absence. Serves him right and affirms her importance. Man cannot live by bread alone. His mother has to make it for him.

Having grilled him repeatedly over the weekend as to the nature of the food and its apparent failings, I was gratified by the cafeteria cuisine in that it has been and will be the only means by which I get to see him now and then.

Mind you I'm not lobbying for 42 year old sons to surround my hearth. College kids look wonderful coming and going.

But now and then you like visual proof of what you did as a parent, if it's flattering, and if it's not a policeman who breaks the news.

From what I understand UMass/Amherst's cafeteria has made its major mistake in buying what should have stayed as an ice cream scoop.

"Everything's round," he said. "Round potatoes, you get round rice, round mounds of cole slaw, round pudding." He and his brother described their harsh view of the most memorable cafeteria worker . . . someone with a cold that has loosened to its most contagious point.

My heart warmed by the depletion of the institution's kitchen to favor mine, I engaged his further commentary by asking him about the chicken, surely that could not have gone afowl.

I'm certain he's wrong about chicken being starved to death before cooking.

But he claimed between mouthfuls of pie, that the two prime ingredients in the lunchroom are powdered eggs (served round) and margarine. Next he'll be telling me they mix the margarine by hand with those little orange packets that emerged during World War II.

My assessment is that what ever vitaminless damage has been done in the cafeteria is not through the food, out through psychology.

My recommendation to UMass decision-makers would be to throw out that ice cream scoop. Bake token loaves of bread not to be served but to create a swell aroma in the cafeteria.

Put a pleasant aproned person up front to serve large spoonfuls of potatoes. Put a pocket in the ruffled patterned apron for an embroidered hankie. Put up posters of Frank Perdue. Leave a "reserved" sign on a few tables, implying anyone's lucky to get a seat.

Throw out those white aprons if you can't get the chocolate pudding stains out. Ban the wearing of white tee shirts if the cafeteria workers are rolling their Luckies up one sleeve.

Remember that there is psychological impact in inexpensive decor.

But make no mistake, I'm appreciative. The visitor appreciated his mother. That wouldn't have happened had he not had the round potatoes. He called when he got back to school to say he'll bring the pieplate home.

It's heartening to know that he's well enough to go back to the library full time again.

And I've learned something invaluable in case any of them decides to come home to live as permanent adults. I'll just get a small size ice cream scoop.

Cohasset worship . . .

First Parish

By the Rev. Edward Atkinson

With a bitter-sweet mixture of sadness and relief we learned that Hollis Gleason had died peacefully in his sleep. For 60 years Hollis has given tremendous leadership, service, support and warmth to the First Parish.

In addition to their steady participation in the church, Hollis and Emily Gleason were generous contributors to the construction of Trueblood Hall, made possible the complete renovation and expansion of the organ in the Meeting House and most recently created an endowment for special music programs for our services of worship.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

Letters are being sent out this week announcing our fifth annual First Parish Christmas Concert by the Broad Cove Chorale and Unciron Singers under the direction of Margo Euler. The concert will be held on December 11 at 4:30 p.m. and will feature Restighi's "Laud to the Nativity," along with a number of carols arranged for audience participation. Proceeds from the concert this year have again been earmarked for the benefit of the DOVE shelter for battered women in Quincy. We hope that many of our members and friends will join with us in becoming patrons of this program which provides not only the opportunity to enjoy some beautiful Christmas music, but also makes possible a generous Christmas gift to a greatly needed service in the larger community.

FIRST PARISH NOTES

Since Christmas falls on a Sunday this year and we will be meeting for our customary Christmas Eve Candlelight Service Saturday, the Parish Committee has voted not to hold a service on Sunday, Dec. 25.

Village Fair wreath workshops will be held Nov. 15, Nov. 17 and Nov. 22 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., at 211 Fairoaks Lane. No special talent is needed. For further information, call Jean Manganaro, 383-9337.

Second Congregational

An "offering of letters" will be part of a Thanksgiving observance Sunday, Nov. 20, at the Second Congregational Church in Cohasset. The letters will be addressed to Congressmen and Senators urging their support of the Human Needs and World Security Bill.

The bill calls for a $250 million increase in funding for selected development and disaster aid programs, and for a cap on increases for 1985 in military aid.

This project was previewed at the worship service Sunday. The idea is for members of the congregation who wish to write such letters to either bring them to church and have them a part of their Thanksgiving offering or stay after the worship service and participate in a "letter writing" party.

The "Offering of Letters" technique is sponsored nationally by Bread for the World, a Christian citizens movement whose members seek government policies that address the basic causes of hunger.

For the past seven years, BFW has been instrumental in getting Congress to pass legislation to help relieve hunger and elminate causes every year.

These measures include the Right to Food resolutions, U.S. farmer held grain reserves, food aid reforms, emergency famine aid and nutrition monitoring.

The church would welcome participation in this letter writing project by any other interested persons as a unique and meaningful way of observing Thanksgiving. For more information, call Eleanor or Chester Smith at 383-1517.

Sha'aray Shalom

Religious school students at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main Street, Hingham, will take an active part in the Shabbat service this week.

Friday, Nov. 18, Anne Tolbert's first grade class will prepare and serve a Shabbat dinner at the Temple for themselves and family members. The dinner will begin at 6 p.m.

A Shabbat Family Service, beginning at 7:30 p.m., will be led by students from Dassie Abelson's Hebrew Class. During the service, children whose birthdays fall in the month of November will receive a special blessing from Rabbi Karol and a small gift from the Temple.

Parents are asked to notify the Temple (749-8103) in advance if their child is to receive a birthday blessing.

Professor Lisa Anderson will speak on "Libya in the Middle East Context" Sunday, Nov. 20, at 11 a.m., at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main Street, Hingham.

Professor Anderson, of Harvard University's Center for International Affairs, will appear at Congregation Sh'aray Shalom as part of the Social Concerns Committee's ongoing Speaker Series. The lecture is free. Brunch will be served following the discussion.

St. Anthony's

CHOIR

Lucy Yetman, Music Director and Organist, is looking for men and women to help in the choir for Christmas. Rehearsals are held Thursday evenings at 7 p.m.

CCD

First grade classes begin Thursday, Nov. 17, in the church conference room at 3:30. High School classes meet Sunday evenings at 6:30 p.m. at the church.

Thanksgiving donations of non-perishable food items for needy families may be brought to classes or to the CCD office.

VILLAGE FAIR

Wreath workshops will be held on Nov. 15, 17 and 22 at 211 Fairoaks Lane. Workers are needed to wire pinecones, make bows, etc. No special talent is needed.

Workshops for the children's table continue Thursday mornings at 9:15 in the church conference room.

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will hold a Holiday Bazaar, Nov. 19, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Congregational Church, Cohasset. Handmade quilt raffle as well as gifts and ornaments will be available.

The Great American Smokeout is Nov. 17 and is sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Guild presents Scammell Nov. 20

Sunday, Nov. 20 at 2 p.m. the Music Guild of the Scituate Arts Association will present soprano Jeanne Scammell of Norwell, violinist Pauline Rowe of Hingham, and pianist Carolyn Curtis of Marshfield, in a recital. The recital will include works by Telemann, Bach, Beethoven, and Bloch and the free program will be held at the Scituate Town Library.

Jeanne Scammell, soloist at the First Parish Church, Cohasset, and with the Unicorn Singers, Hingham, studies with Clara Shear of Boston. She has performed in the chorus of Boris Gudonov, Boston Opera Company, the Handel and Haydn Society, Summer Stock productions of "The King and I," "The Boyfriend," "The Pirates of Penzance," and is a member and past president of the Hingham Civic Music Theatre, Inc.

Pauline Rowe, B.MUS applied violin-Boston University School for the Arts, studied at the South Shore Conservatory of Music, and continued in Boston where she was a member of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra, the Young Artist Program at B.U., and the Tanglewood Young Artist Instrumental Program in Lenox.

She has studied and performed chamber music at Kneisel Hall in Blue Hill, Maine, and with the Portland String Quartet.

Her orchestral experience includes the Boris Goldovsky Opera Orchestra, the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra, the South Shore Chamber Orchestra (Concertmistress,) and the Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra.

She also teaches privately at the South Shore Conservatory, at home, and with several South Shore school systems.

Ripley named president of S.S. Art Center

Sheldon Ripley, Cohasset, has been elected president of the South Shore Art Center.

At an annual business meeting, members of the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Rd., Cohasset, voted in a new slate of officers.

Serving with Mr. Ripley are Peter Chapman, Cohasset, treasurer; Anita Franks, Plymouth, recording secretary; Ali Swedock, Scituate, corresponding secretary; and Henry du Laurence, Hingham, board member.

Continuing as board members are Jan Daggett, Cohasset; Stan Nikkel, Hingham; Dorothy Simpson-Kraus, Marshfield Hills; Don Lettis, Hingham; and Claffy Williams, Cohasset. Paul Baccari, Quinc[illegible] will serve on the long range planning committee.

During the meeting, members reviewed some of the Center's upcoming events, special projects and classes. A series of noon-time demonstrations will usher in the holiday season. The noon-time programs are currently being put together and should offer a unique opportunity to attend a mini-workshop.

The course schedule also calls for an expanded department in "Design for Living" geared for non-artists to show how to use their own creativity in their daily lives and their environments.

The invitational gallery will be the setting for the monthly exhibits including the All New England Juried Photography Show. In April young artists from Braintree will exhibit their work in the gallery.

The South Shore Art Center is affiliated with the Massachusetts College of Art and the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance.

Anderson elected for student government

Ingrid Anderson has been elected Cohasset High representative to Student Government Day.

Michael DeSantis, a fellow member of the junior class, has been chosen Cohasset's alternate delegate. Both students will attend several workshops and meetings at the State House in Boston before taking part in the program Friday, April 6.

During the Student Government Day program, high school students will take active roles in state government Jan. 27.

There will be a glass bowl drawing and school delegates' names will be drawn. The lucky students will then occupy the positions of elected and appointed state officials on Student Government Day April 6.

Both Ingrid and Mike are active members of the Cohasset High School Student Council.

Ingrid is also a member of her school's cheerleader's squad while Michael is a member of the boys track and soccer teams.

Faculty advisors of the local Student Government Day program are Edward Sheehan and Joseph Bouchard of the Social Studies Department.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

I was feeling pretty pleased with myself after making a cheese ball and cranberry-orange relish to tuck in the freezer for Thanksgiving—until I talked with Connie Gerard, that is. She had made 150 cheeseballs that day, while her husband, Arnie, had started making gravy. The Gerards shift into high with the coming of November, for this marks their 23rd holiday season as owners of Gerard Farms where people come from miles around, especially when turkey and all the "fixin's" are on the menu. An attrative couple in their 40's, they've seen their business grow to the point where they're planning on two thousand orders for this year's prepared turkeys. The sales room on Ocean St. is lined with shelves laden with homemade rolls, cranberry bread (Connie's grandmother's recipe is used) and freezers holding cartons of turkey gravy, turkey pies, cranberry relish and all sorts of homemade cooking. With no additives, preservatives, not even MSG, it's frozen food at its best. Connie is in charge of the salesroom, with Arnie presiding over the kitchen where he was making gravy on a grand scale the other day in 60 qt. kettles, using turkey stock, drippings, flour and other seasonings to make the thick, golden sauce. If you treat yourself to one of their roasted turkeys for the holidays, then you'll have time for making extras such as Janet Newton's

CRANBERRY PINEAPPLE RELISH

1 can (1 lb.) cranberry sauce, jellied or whole berry
1 c. drained crushed pineapple
Grated rind of 2 oranges
Dash of salt
1/2 c. chopped walnuts or pecans, optional

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Add drained pineapple, orange rind and salt. Mix well. Store in covered jar in refrigerator at least three or four hours before serving. Stir in nuts if desired. Makes about three cups.

The Gerards have seven ovens and when I peeked in one the other day the turkeys were roasting on revolving spits. Arnie was basting them with a bristlec paint brush and the 72 birds in that particular oven were roasting to a golden brown with crackling skin, but it's what goes on after they're done that is a wee bit unusual. That's when their cement mixer is put to use making a traditional bread stuffing. Arnie buys bread cubes, sautes onions in butter, adds his seasonings and then tumbles the entire concoction in the mixer that is epoxy lined and used exclusively for this stuffing-making ritual. If you are expecting a crowd for Thanksgiving dinner, you may wish to buy two 10-pound turkeys instead of one 20-pounder. Just think—you get four drumsticks, instead of two, you can make two different kinds of stuffing and cooking time is less. In addition to having the turkey prepared in advance, vegetables are easier to handle if you are making a dish such as this the day before:

GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE

3 c. fresh or frozen green beans
1 c. slivered celery, cut slantwise
1/2 c. thinly sliced onion
1 c. sliced water chestnuts
1/2 c. sour cream
1/4 c. mayonnaise
1/4 tsp. curry powder
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook beans, celery and onion. Add water chestnuts. Mix with remaining ingredients. Bake in 300 degree oven in shallow casserole until hot. Run under broiler to brown.

The sales room at Gerard's should be made off limits when you're hungry, for the aroma is enough to whet one's appetite. Pity the poor people lined up before turkey day to pick up their birds, for you're surrounded by tempting foods. Each turkey is wrapped in foil and includes a sheet of instructions for heating and while the oven is going, you may wish to prepare these

MINCEMEAT CHIFFON TARTS

1 env. unflavored gelatin
1/2 c. orange juice
1/4 c. Triple Sec liquor
2 eggs, separated
1 c. prepared mincemeat
1/8 tsp. salt
1/4 c. sugar
1 c. heavy cream, whipped
8 fluted baked tart shells

Sprinkle gelatin on orange juice in top of double boiler to soften. Beat together Triple Sec and yolks. Stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved and mixture is slightly thickened. Remove from heat. Stir in mincemeat. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Beat whites and salt until stiff but not dry. Gradually add sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture and whipped cream. Spoon into baked tart shells.

Book Review:
Best Friend Insurance

BEST FRIEND INSURANCE by Beatrice Gormley, ill. by Emily Arnold McCully, E.P. Dutton, NY, 1983, 147 pp., $10.95.

Best Friend Insurance -- a policy guaranteeing replacement of a best friend within 24 hours -- seems the only answer for Maureen Harrity, age 10, who suddenly finds herself demoted to 2nd best friend to Tracy. How could Tracy choose Gwen, instead of her, as a partner for the class field trip? Gwen -- the meanest girl in class!

In desperation, Maureen fills out her Friend Loss Report, though many questions on the form perplex her. After all, she figures, Mr. Costue, the jolly, friendly insurance man, said his sole aim was to make sure everyone was happy with a best friend -- someone who would like her no matter what!

When the friend does indeed appear, Maureen discovers some shocking (and funny and scary) truths about the best friend insurance business. And the reader is caught up in the magic and suspense as Maureen's troubles increase to spine-tingling intensity.

Written by Duxbury resident Bea Gormley, this exciting tale is one of the "can't-put-it-down" variety. Bea's masterful writing draws the reader right into the scene to experience all the emotions of the main character as she proceeds from dejection and desperation to hope and relief, with a myriad of feelings in between. It isn't until the last page is turned, that the reader can breathe a sigh of relief and relax.

Divided into 12 chapters with 12-13 pages in each, the book is ideal for good readers in grade 3 through junior high age (though just about anybody could enjoy curling up with the tale for an evening's light reading). So packed with action and excitement, this story's a natural for an after-school TV adaptation.

Best Friend Insurance is Bea Gormley's 3rd published book; her other 2 are Mail-Order Wings and Fifth Grade Magic, all available at local bookstores.

We congratulate Bea on her success as an outstanding author for young people and we look forward to watching her career blossom forth with more delightful additions to our bookshelves.

Obituaries

Kathleen Perry

Kathleen M. Perry, 71, of Cohasset, a nurse and former Provincetown health board member, died Nov. 9 in South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Born in Lowell, she had lived in Provincetown for many years before moving to Cohasset five years ago. She graduated from St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing in Lowell and was a nurse in Lowell for a few years. She then moved to Provincetown and practiced with her husband, a doctor, for 40 years.

She was on the Provincetown board of health for more than 10 years, serving as chairman for several years. She was a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Barnstable Medical Society and the Catholic Daughters of America, Provincetown chapter. She also worked for the Heart Fund and the United Way.

She leaves her husband, Dr. Thomas F. Perry; four sons, Thomas F. Perry, Jr., of Wollaston, John M. Perry of North Truro, Christopher Perry of Kansas City, and Dr. Richard Perry of Lakeville; and a daughter, Judith Ann Perry of Cohasset. A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday in St. Peter's Church, Provincetown. Burial was in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Ruth Queeney

Ruth A. (Reddy) Queeney, formerly of Cohasset, died Sunday in Yale University Hospital, New Haven, after a long illness.

Born and educated in Cohasset, she had lived with her son, Jerome W. Queeney, in New Haven for several years. She attended Kent's Hill Prep School in Augusta, Maine, and was a graduate of Garland College, Boston.

Wife of the late Jerome W. Queeney, she leaves two other sons, Christopher Queeney and Mark Queeney, both of New Haven; a daughter, Blanid M. Queeney of New Haven; and a brother, Clarence Reddy, Jr., of Brockton.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Saturday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset, where visiting hours will be held from 9 to 10 a.m. Burial will be in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 47 West Elm St., Brockton, 02410.

Marie Leahy

Marie V. (Hinchley) Leahy, 61, of Cohasset, died Nov. 8 in New England Medical Center, Boston, from where she had been a retired secretary.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Canton before moving to Cohasset several years ago.

Wife of the late Edward W. Leahy, she leaves two sons, Edward W. Leahy of Hingham and James Leahy of Norwood; four daughters, Linda Caldwell of Hingham, Judy Lamkins of Marlboro, and Paula Leahy and Virginia Leahy, both of Cohasset; a sister, Eleanor Lyons of Cohasset; and 11 grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Friday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Senior Citizen's news

Thursday, Nov. 17, cheese and butter will be distributed at the Unitarian Parish Hall on the Common. This is the same day and time of the regular 60 Plus Club Luncheon.

Proof of residency will be required.

This is a reminder that the opportunity to enjoy a good lunch at a very reasonable price ($1.40) is available every Tuesday at the Unitarian Parish Hall. The Council on Aging urges residents to take advantage of the luncheon and have the chance to see and meet friends.

KINDERGARTEN NEWS

The Indian crafts and lore that Mrs. Collins' classes are studying include painting shells, music, weaving, making corn meal bread and cranberry sauce, transportation, food, clothing and the peace-pipe ceremony.

Some examples of the Indian names chosen by the children are "Running Bear," Caroline DeLima, "Golden Star," Meredith Equi, "Jumping Buffalo," Ryan Sawchuck, "Bird Feather," Conor Mangan, "Little Chief," Evan O'Neil, and "Beautiful Hair," Christine Burns.

ACHIEVEMENT TESTS

Achievement tests in Latin and European History will be given only in December and May '84. Guidance Department has details.

CABLE T.V.

Cable television is underway in the schools. Cable equipment has arrived, the school committee has met to hear cable plans, and teachers have received training in television off-air recording.

Almost all of the $17,000 worth of equipment given to the schools by American Cablesystems is here and being used. The last few football games were recorded on one of the new cameras. Enthusiasm is growing for sportscasting on cable; several students have signed up as announcers and interviewers for sports airing next spring.

Dr. John Packard and two American Cablesystems representatives gave an overview of the future potential of cable at the last school committee meeting. Televisions value in supporting the specific objectives of existing classroom programs was stressed.

Teachers in all schools have begun to examine the most appropriate programs now being broadcast on cable for this purpose. Schedules of the Mass. Education T.V. offerings have been distributed and systems for recording, storing and using these programs set up.

Deer Hill and Osgood will soon have their own recorders with timers to accomplish this more efficiently.

Future training plans include camera and studio work for teachers and students.

The Educational Television Council (ETC), an advisory group formed by the school committee last spring, will resume its activities this month. The first meeting will be on Wednesday, Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. in the home economics room in the junior high wing. Participants are urged to attend this open meeting.

CHS GOVERNMENT DELEGATE

Ingrid Anderson, daughter of Daniel and Barbara Anderson of Stockbridge street, was elected CHS Delegate to Student Government Day ceremonies at the State House.

Michael DeSantis, a fellow junior, was chosen as alternate delegate. He is the son of Frank and Dee DeSantis.

Ingrid and Mike are very active in school and community affairs. Ingrid is a member of the CHS Cheerleader Squad and a member of the school's tennis team. She is also active in the First Parish Church Youth Group.

Mike, a member of the soccer and track teams, is also active in the school newspaper. He is a peer counselor.

Both representatives will attend a series of workshop meetings as part of the program. Student Government Day Program is an informative program about state government. The program ends April 6 with students actually participating in the role of elected or appointed state officials to "run the state government for a day."

The school elections were conducted by the Student Council under the direction of its President, Senior John Replogle. Edward Sheehan, chairman of the Social Studies Department, is the faculty coordinator of the program.

FRENCH HALLOWEEN

Students in the French IIIH class celebrated Halloween week by writing ghost or "spooky" stories in place of a composition assignment. They were read on October 31 by flashlight in a darkened room. Other students opted to put their story on video tape as a play. Later, this class wound up their Halloween adventures by reading a fascinating article from "Cheznous" on 'La Parapsychologie.'

RELEASE DAY WORKSHOPS

The topic of the November 1 release day workshop for teachers was "Children of Divorced or Separated Families." Organized by Health Education Coördinator Michael Gill, teachers heard speakers from the Divorce Resource and Mediation Center, Inc.

Elementary staff discussed with Rona Troderman-King the major issues facing children during and after separation. Preparing children, anticipating their behavior during this crisis, and recognizing when their behavior warrants outside intervention were discussed.

Junior/senior high teachers discussed the major issues facing teenagers when their parents divorce or separate with Jerry Weinstein. Teachers learned how to recognize and minimize problems associated with these issues.

CHS NON-ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES

Drama Club and One Act Play, Ron Emmons, advisor, meetings vary with productions; All School Musical, Emmons and Bryan Marks, advisor, late Fall; Chorus, Marks, advisor, meets period four and after school; Band/Jazz Ensemble, Jeff Dodge, advisor, meets period four and after school; AFS Club, George Fortin, advisor, meets Tuesdays at 2 p.m.; Student Council, Gino DiGirolamo, advisor, meets at rotating times during school day; Debate Club, Edward Sheehan, advisor, meets individually, daily; Literary Magazine, JoEllen Wood, advisor, meets at 2 p.m. six times a year; Newspaper, William Kite, advisor, meets Thursdays at 2 p.m.; and Computer Club, Don Walsh, advisor, meets Wednesdays at 2 p.m.

Class size

School Committee member Jack Langmaid made it clear Monday night he does not want to see Osgood or Deer Hill School closed. But he proposed a discussion on class size to solve a school opening problem of overcrowding or too few students per teacher.

He suggested either "tracking between grade levels or a reorganization of Grades K-6." Langmaid said the system now is rigid and "what we need is flexibility."

Parent Karin Bartow said what concerned parents was fairness. She said parents don't think it is fair when one class has 24 students per teacher and another class has 28.

Personnel actions

Head Ice Hockey Coach Thomas Burnell has tendered his resignation because of family problems. School Supt. Eugene Crowell added, "Mr. Burnell told me he cannot give to the boys what they deserve." But he will remain as coach if another head coach cannot be found in time to begin the season.

In other personnel actions, Linda Jorgensen, has resigned and the school board appointed Matthew Salerno as Boys' J.V. Basketball coach and Michael Maher as an Osgood School instructional aide.

Seahawks report . . .

SEAHAWKS

Coach Mark Salvador's undefeated Mite A team fought back after being down by two goals to a 4-4 tie last weekend. The attack was spearheaded by Joey Andrade who scored a hat trick.

Scott Peacock was responsible for the other goal and Mike Valista was credited with an assist.

Frank Greenberg's Mite C team lost to Abington 2-1. Michael Shields was the lone scorer for the "Hawks."

SQUIRTS AND PEEWEES VICTORIOUS

The Seahawk Squirt teams were undefeated this week, beating Milton, Whitman-Hanson and Pembroke.

Barry Resnick's Squirt "A's" overwhelmed Milton 13-3. John Mahoney led the attack with four goals, Billy Tibbetts had three and John Resnick and Greg Salmaine added two goals each. Alan Rogers and Tim Getto completed the scoring with one goal each.

In the "A's" other outing, the Squirts bested Whitman-Hanson 11-8 in a shootout at the Pembroke Corral. John Mahoney again came out blazing with five goals with Billy Tibbetts a close second with four tallies. Greg Salmaine added the final two goals from the point. Three assists were credited to Billy Tibbetts and two to John Resnick.

In the other Squirt game Pat Averil's club bested Pembroke 5-2. Bobby Lawrence and Mat McGuirk each had a pair of goals and Sean McGowen added a single tally. Assists were credited to David Lambie and Adam Stillman.

The Peewee clubs also were successful this past week, turning in a 4-1 record. Bill Robert's Peewee "A's" continued their dominance of the South Shore Conference with a 4-2 victory over Milton.

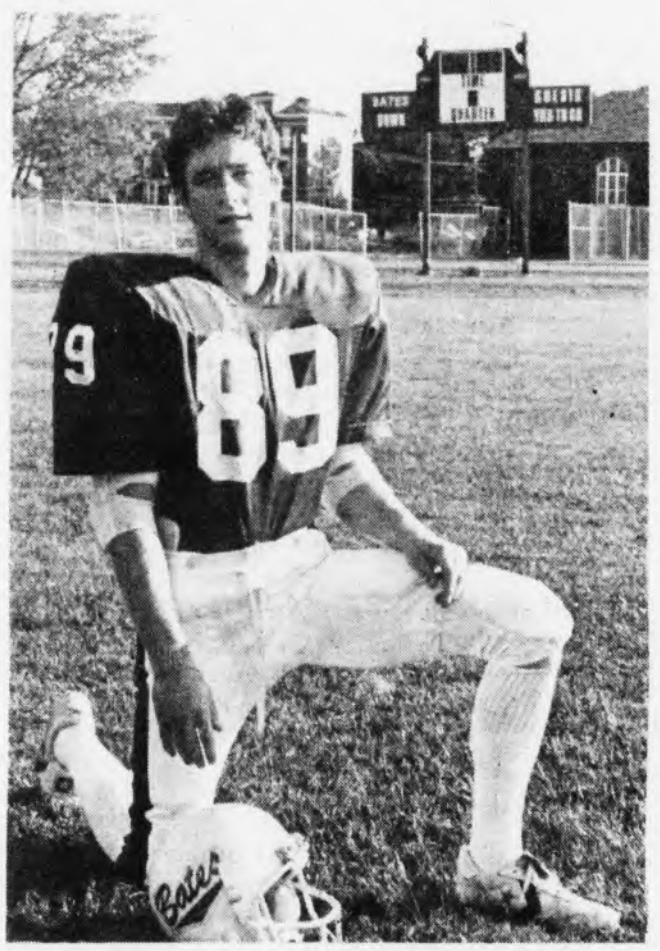
The scoring was evenly distributed with Steve Boardman, Paul Norton, Mike Richardson, and John Zimmer scoring goals. Assists were credited to Norton, Chris Sullivan, and Eric Steverman. The "A's" with Kevin Norton at the helm, also beat Plymouth 5-0.

Billy Lincoln led the Hawks with four goals and John Zimmer lit the lamp for the other. John Zimmer and Paul Norton each had four assists to complete the scoring. Kevin Gibbons was superb in net, continually making outstanding saves in preserving the shutout.

The Peewee "B's" coached by Tom Hingston, easily defeated Milton 8-1. This game saw hat tricks by Sean Noonan and Mike Dundon. Mark Resnick and Mat Derrigo also added goals. Assists were credited to Billy Hingston (2) Tony Ventolieri (2) Mark Resnick (2), Mike Meers and Dennis Peacock.

The Peewee "C's" coached by Phil Stidstone, lost to Weymouth 9-2. The two Seahawk tallies were scored by Beau Bousquette and Rick Jacobi.

Cohasset had shot to beat Jamaica Plain



Cohasset's 13-0 shut out against Jamaica Plain only lasted for one quarter until Jamaica Plain turned the game around to 46-13.

Coach John Leone said, "We just made too many turnovers and Jamaica Plain capitilized on them. We had a lot of momentum going but with fumbles and interceptions we were down 34-13 at the half."

Mark Lahive came out strong for Cohasset with a 21 yard run for a touch down. Lee Wilson kicked the extra point.

Jackie Cooper tackled Chris Kuhn and fielded a fumble for another touchdown.

"We were far ahead and before we knew it far behind," concluded Leone.

Bill Duffy

Bill Duffy exceeds for Bates football team

Senior wide receiver Bill Duffy of Cohasset was named Bates College football player of the week by head coach Web Harrison.

Duffy was cited for play in the Bobcats' 33-15 win over CBB Conference rival Bowdoin last Saturday.

Duffy made three crucial catches in the Bowdoin game for 24 yards. In seven games this season, he has caught 12 passes for 161 yards. A graduate of Cohasset High School, he is the son of Michael and Rosee Duffy of (264 Fair Oaks Lane,) Cohasset.

BANTAMS

The Bantam A team coached by Phil Thomas was shut out by Brockton Saturday. At Hobomock, on Sunday, the Bantam A's played to a 3-3 tie with Duxbury.

Steve Chalmers' Bantam B team lost 4-2 in their contest against Milton Sunday. Jamie Hoffman and Scott Ruddick accounted for the Seahawk scores.

The Bantam C team coached by Chris Brennan was defeated by their Pembroke counterparts by a score of 5-2. The Seahawk's offense was shut down by Pembroke for the first two periods.

An unassisted goal by Brian McGovern sparked the team for an exciting ending. But, one more goal by P.J. Breen assisted by Brian Spitz and Danny Decoste ended the scoring. Kevin Gibbons did a fine job in net.

Annual Cohasset hayride

The third annual Cohasset Hayride will be Saturday, Dec. 3 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Town Parkingway Lot.

Tickets are 50 cents. Those interested can purchase the tickets in advance from Cohasset Hardware.

Swim Club fundraiser

Christmas is coming along with holiday parties and gift giving.

The South Shore Swim Club is again selling bags of Georgia mammoth fancy pecan halves to benefit the club's scholarship fund.

The pecans come in one-pound bags, can be frozen, and sell for $5 per bag. To purchase these delicious treats, contact the following town captains:

'Messiah Sing' Nov. 27

Sunday, Nov. 27, at 3 p.m., Ellen Fryling, well-known organist, cellist and music conductor will direct the annual "Messiah Sing" at the Second Congregational Church on Cohasset Common.

Mrs. Fryling is director of music of the church and this year marks her 22nd "Messiah Sing" on the South Shore. She will direct a chamber orchestra which includes Al Alabiso of Hingham as concert-master, Carolyn Curtis of Marshfield as organist, and four well-known vocal soloists: Jean Knapp, soprano, of Hingham; Sylvia Hawe, contralto, also of Hingham; David Norris, tenor, of Marshfield; and Rev. James O'Brien, bass, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Holliston.

The unusual feature of this "Messiah Sing" is the chorus which consists of the general public whoever attends and their love for singing Handel's oratorio.

As a joyous and beautiful beginning of the Christmas season, the public is invited to participate in the inspirational event. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

Bridal showcase

It's never too early to plan a wedding and reception, especially for a spring or summer date!

For most brides-to-be who are planning their wedding soon, the best time to reserve your reception facility, hire a band, select the color scheme with your florist and reserve tickets for a honeymoon flight are now.

With that in mind, the Nov. 20 Hugo's Lighthouse in Cohasset Harbor will host the semi-annual Bridal Showcase. This offers South Shore brides and grooms-to-be a unique opportunity to preview the newest bridal fashions and shop for services for their wedding day.

Using the services of local merchants and supplies, one can reserve a ticket now. The Fall Bridal Showcase will start with a fashion show. Musical entertainment will play throughout the afternoon while people can browse at booths, munch on pastries and shop for their upcoming wedding day.

Participants in the Fall Showcase will be Colpitts Travel Center of Cohasset and Scituate; Deja Vu Video Productions, Hingham; representatives from Mary Kay Cosmetics and Princess House Products; edible delights served from the Swedish Bakery of Norwell; exquisite jewelry and gift ideas for your wedding day party from King Jewelers of Cushing Plaza; Cohasset photographer James Tringale, from Scituate; silk floral designs from Joan Maree Originals of Weymouth; and an introduction to the floral artwork from the new Scituate Flower Shop.

Horizon Enertainment will provide the musical entertainment and fashions will be shown from Gloria's Bridals of Weymouth and Miltons of the South Shore Plaza. A new addition to the showcase will be Mr. Sid's Rolls Royce Limousine Service who will provide a sample car for review.

Newcomers Club bazaar

The annual bazaar of the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will be held Saturday, Nov. 19, at Bates Hall, Congregational Church, Cohasset Common, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Proceeds from this event will again provide scholarships for both a Scituate and a Cohasset High School senior.

Other community projects, to be chosen later, will also receive contributions. The Scituate Library and the Water Rescue Equipment Fund of Cohasset were last year's recipients.

Highlight of the day will be the raffle of a quilt made by a group of "Newcomer" grandmothers, directed by Jo Peterson. It is a double nine pattern quilt in shades of blue.

Carmen Schramm and Lee Drew are co-chairmen of the bazaar.

Newcomers have attended many workshops to create a variety of handmade items. There will be wreaths, dried flower arrangements, knitted and needlepoint items, stuffed animals, baby gifts, baked goods, books and many other boutique items, even something for the family pet.

Refreshments will be available and parking will be provided at the Town Hall parking lot.

Carmen Schramm of Cohasset inspects a stuffed elephant, one of many items to be offered at the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club holiday bazaar. Ms. Schramm is co-chairman of the event.

JFK remembered 20 years later

'He was the leader of the "new generation of Americans" . . .'

By Sallyanne Chatterton

No one needs to be reminded of the event that took place twenty years ago this week; the news media certainly has done its share to remind all of us.

When John F. Kennedy said those famous words, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country!" he, of course, had no idea that he would give up his life.

Everyone knows exactly where they were, and what he or she was doing the very moment they heard the tragic news bulletins.

Age is no factor in this instance.

Paul Laugelle, a student in Deer Hill at the time, remembers "he was in Mrs. Mullen's sixth grade class, and they were out at recess."

Leo Fiori had the day off from the Post Office, and he was on his way to do some shopping at Purity Supreme when he learned of the president's death.

Susie Reardon was a college coed, and remembers that she was playing bridge with her college friends when they were interrupted by a woman noted for playing pranks on everyone. When she came in and told them the news, everyone thought it was yet another "practical joke," until the girl became hysterical.

She'll never forget the shock that overcame

Health Board worried over landfill cover costs

By Bill Hayward

Health board members say they are running short of funds to buy landfill material for the town dump.

One problem is the town's level funding policy which is a result of Proposition 2½. The health board originally requested a $48,000 dollar budget for the landfill but were turned down by the advisory board.

"We gave an estimate, they said it was way out of line for previous years," said Board member Dr. Charles M. Bliss.

The health board requested a much larger budget than previous years because landfill material has risen 30 percent in cost over the previous year.

Dr. Bliss said it isn't realistic to level fund a budget when there is such a sharp rise in materials cost. He added "You either vote to override 2½ or you don't."

The board said another factor contributing to the funds shortage is the inefficient use of landfill material. Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos said that according to a professional consultant, two to three times more fill than necessary is being used.

The board has been trying unsuccessfully for some time to pressure Land fill Supervisor Joseph Laugelle to use less fill. Board members were frustrated they could not control Laugelle, and threatened disciplinary action against him.

Laugelle said he is using only the amount of fill required by state law. "If you want to follow state rules and regulations we have to use that amount of fill."

Regarding where the money to keep the dump open will come from, Eliopoulos said, "We need a concrete answer to that question. We need to know whether or not we lock the gate."

The Disposal Study Committee is studying the possibility of sending Cohasset's refuse to the proposed Semass resource recovery plant in Rochester, MA.

The disposal study committee was formed by selectmen four years ago to find a cost effective, long term method of trash disposal for the town.

The Semass plant, scheduled to begin operation Jan. 1, 1987, will produce electricity by burning rubbish. The Civil Service Commission overturns sick leave decision

The Civil Service Commission overturned a selectmen's decision to suspend Firefighter James Runey three days for abuse of sick leave.

The commission ordered selectmen to restore Runey's pay in full and to reverse the suspension.

The commission said selectmen failed to prove "just cause" to suspend Runey.

Selectmen, by virtue of a 4-1 vote ruled that Fire Chief Martin Dooley acted properly in his decision to suspend Runey.

The chief observed Runey fighting a fire and later traveling south on Rte. 3A in his own vehicle.

Runey was docked his pay for three days and refused compensation for an overtime firefighting detail.

Runey responded to the fire at the home of Selectman Mary Jane McArthur when he passed by the home. Selectmen said Runey put the town in jeopardy because the town would have been liable for extended disability payments if Runey injured himself while being treated for an infected knee.

Runey said he responded to the fire by instinct.

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said selectmen may appeal the commission's decision.

In other related Fire Dept. developments, town employees out of work for sickness or injury will be prohibited from working a second job.

This action by selectmen came after the board's

Sixth graders remember Pilgrim life

"Would you have liked to live in the days of the Pilgrims?" six 11 year old sixth graders in the Deer Hill School were asked.

Responding were Tegan Hamilton, David Farrag, Colin Studds, Mary Vallas, Zack Hochkeppel and Erin Chase.

Their responses were:

"In a way I would, in a way I wouldn't."

"Girls couldn't go to school. That's important for the future."

"There were a lot of flies on the food."

"They didn't have bubble gum or candy."

These children should know enough about Pilgrims.

For two months they studied the early Massachusetts settlers and their native American friends; researching and reconstructing the Pilgrims' journey from England, the first year of the Plymouth colony and especially the first Thanksgiving.

The project included a trip to Plymouth Plantation and viewing the movie "Mayflower: The Pilgrims' Adventure."

When the students finished compiling this information, they divided themselves into six groups, two Indian and four Pilgrim.

Each group was led by an "organizer-supervisor."

"It's not all that much fun being a leader. People think it is, but it's a lot of work along with regular class work," sighed one of the group leaders.

Each group created costumes, designed sets and scenery and wrote brief speeches describing the characters portrayed in various historical stages. These included the Mayflower voyage, arrival in the New World and the formation of a colony.

The students presented their production to their schoolmates Monday, Nov. 21, and to their parents Nov. 22. This presentation culminated in a Thanksgiving feast, catered by the students.

The "Thanksgiving Feast" has been performed every year for ten years by the open space classroom at the Deer Hill School.

However, Larry Shultz and Joanne Magoun, the teachers for the open space classroom, said the whole production goes beyond commemorating a national holiday.

It is "an all-encompassing activity;" a method of enhancing a child's social growth through group cooperation, and sharpening a child's sense of history.

What exactly did the students learn about the Pilgrims?

Their responses were:

"They talked different."

"They believed tomatoes and potatoes were poisonous. But we're having them at the feast anyway."

Teen drinking forum

Thursday, Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. in the CHS new study hall, the Cohasset Health Education Department is sponsoring a forum on teen drinking practices within the community. This program is a follow-up to the forum and survey on teen drinking held last spring.

Health Education Coordinator Michael Gill will present an overview of the alcohol education program within the school system. The findings of last year's survey will be discussed in conjunction with ideas suggested from parents and professionals about dealing with teenage drinking practices in Cohasset.

All parents and interested citizens are urged to attend.

Library postpones system

The Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library have decided to postpone asking the town to spend $10,000 for a book theft prevention system.

The trustees will ask the Town Capital Outlay committee to keep the item on the long-range plan for a future year.

Library director Richard Hayes told the board at a recent meeting that with "level funding of the library entering its fourth year," he was reluctant to recommend the security system.

Not only would the initial purchase compete with other vital needs of the town, but the annual maintenance and operation of the system would increase the operating budget.

"Last year," he said, "we had to cut the book budget $900 to pay for rising fuel costs," he said.

Both Scituate and Hingham have book security systems. Hayes said it is always a hard decision to spend money on security instead of improved services, "but when you have to cut the book budget and reduce services to pay for it, it's especially hard."

The library trustees and staff appealed to homeowners to search for books, records and magazines with library property marks on them and to drop them in the outdoor return box.

Hayes said, "If 50 percent of missing materials were returned by this simple action of citizens, we could permanently table the security idea."

Town meeting articles

Warrant articles for a January special town meeting will close on Friday, November 25.

One major concern to the town is the possibility of contamination draining from the Cohasset Heights landfill to Lily Pond.

If Lily Pond is being effected, than Cohasset Heights Limited, Inc. will have to pay for a trench system to stop the water from being polluted at the dump.

A selectmen's request for a consultant to the fire department will call for up to $15,000. John DeBassio hopes that a consultant may be able to ease tension between Chief Martin Dooley and the Cohasset firefighters.

There is a 'remote possibility,' said Executive Secretary Mark Lanza that more funds may be needed for labor counsel.

Housing agreement found

Selectmen, the Planning Board and Housing Authority scrambled last week to find the original low-income housing agreement which would give Cohasset money for public projects which were frozen until the town submitted the agreement to the state. The agreement was found and submitted in time to state officials. The amount in question was a $239,000 state grant to replace worn and leaky water mains along Atlantic Avenue. Selectmen and the other town boards met and finalized an agreement. Selectmen signed it Sept. 26 and the planning board later signed it Oct. 7. While looking for the lost agreement, the water plant manager and a police officer were sent to the homes of the officials to sign the agreement. In addition, the Water Commission met in an emergency session Friday to draw up a design contract for the water project. The application was submitted by a bonded courier to deliver the contract in time.

Road race permission granted

The Rotary Club received permission to run a road race from the Town Hall parking lot, on April 1, 1984.

Beer and refreshments will be served at the finish of the race.

Street light decision

The only street lights that the town will install in Cohasset will be on public streets said selectmen at a recent selectmen's meeting.

Selectmen approved a street light at the corner of Cushing and Norfolk roads but they denied requests for many private ways.

Selectman Frank England said, "If people who live on private ways want to put the lights in fine but they should pay for the current."

Many intersections still remain dangerously unlit. "Many intersections do not have street lights and they need them. I drove around with the two chiefs (fire and police) and we spotted several intersections where you could not see a kid riding a bike," said selectman Rocco Laugelle.

Rec Comm. seat delayed

The recreation commission arrived at the selectmen's meeting after the last candidate for the commission was interviewed.

Recreation commission chairman Richard Barrow said, "We found out that interviews were going on from a candidate who was going out the door. We should have been notified as to what was going on."

The recreation commission does not want to decide on which two candidates to appoint out of the five who applied.

Barrow said, "We believe that they are all really good candidates so let the townspeople elect them."

Putting the recreation commission appointments on the ballot would mean waiting until April to vote.

Recreation commissioner James Gallagher said, "So many people are qualified that it should not be our responsibility. If people want this position they can go out and earn it."

Selectman DeBassio said, "These are supposed to be elected positions." If the recreation commission does not want to elect than it should be up to the board of selectmen.

Selectmen are deciding whether they agree with the April vote or an earlier appointment should be made.

St. Stephen's Church housing plan sketched

St. Stephen's Church is planning to submit to town boards some kind of an elderly housing plan but details on the plan are unavailable.

Several church members said the report issued by The Patriot Ledger this week concerning the plan had several inaccuracies. Comments on the plan were referred to the Rev. Richard Muir.

Church member Paul Neelon said Rev. Muir will be the only spokesman for the project. However, Rev. Muir was unavailable for comment.

The only information to date is St. Stephen's has a very tentative plan but a specific site has not been decided.

In addition, it was learned Rev. Muir announced his resignation to the congregation Sunday to devote time to the project.

Inspector General Barresi . . . Cosmo D. Capobianco Challanges you to a DEBATE

- Joseph Barresi is the author of a defamatory report on the MDC that is full of falsehoods, miscalculations, unwarranted assumptions and hyperbole.
- This report has defamed the reputation and integrity of my firm, Somerville Engineering, Inc., the hard working and conscientious people at MDC and the Professional Engineering Community.
- Commissioner William J. Geary of the MDC states, "The report is analytically deficient. This deficiency is exacerbated when conclusions are drawn from this faulty analysis and are applied wholesale."
- Douglas K. Kinan, MDC Director of Personnel, states, "The general findings" of this report "are not accurately stated."
- Julia B. O'Brien, MDC Director of Planning states, "The Inspector General has a continual problem with selectively taking excerpts out of context from interviews to support preconceived notions."
- James F. McCann, MDC Contract Administrator states that the Inspector General's indication that MDC has discarded many of the procedures prescribed by the McKinsey Manual is "distorted and untrue."
- Governor Michael S. Dukakis has referred this matter to MDC Commissioner, William J. Geary, "to comment in detail on the issues you (Somerville Engineering, Inc.) have raised."
- Francis H. McCarran, Jr., MDC Director of Parks, states, "The statement that the presentation to the Commissioners was based on a one page handwritten report is totally false."
- Cosmo D. Capobianco, President of Somerville Engineering, Inc., states, "The Office of the Inspector General Carries with it great power and great responsibility, and if that power is abused,individuals and professional reputations can be ruined beyond repair. If you, Mr. Barresi, continue to stand in silence behind an error-filled report, you are committing an abuse of power just as great as the abuses were hired to uncover."

Village Fair offers wide variety of home-cooked food

A wide-ranging menu, from Cog au Vin Chicken to tacos and popcorn, with a variety of home-cooked specialties from Cohasset kitchens in between, will be offered again at the 43rd annual Cohasset Village Fair which opens its doors at 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, in buildings around the historic Cohasset Common.

Food in most all forms has always been a staple attraction of the Village Fair, which again this year finds five Cohasset churches of different denominations working together in a uniquely ecumenical fund-raising effort.

Under the leadership this year of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Fair also enlists hundreds of workers from St. Anthony's Roman Catholic, the Panagia Greek Orthodox, First Parish Unitarian and Second Congregational churches.

The Village Fair dinner, which in the past has ranged from potluck suppers to candlelit feasts, will continue in the recent gourmet tradition directed by Beca Lamb. The custom-designed catered menu features seafood chowder with French bread, Cog au Vin Chicken, green salad and a special Christmas chocolate cake. The dinner will be served in Walton Rodgers Hall of St. Stephen's Church at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 3. A limited number of tickets at $10 each are available from representatives of the individual churches on the Central Committee.

At the other end of the taste scale but mighty popular among children of all ages will be the colorful popcorn machine directed by Rod and Marilyn Hobson.

In the Town Hall, the busy Snack Bar will be in its usual location near the stage where a staff of short order cooks headed by Phil Shockman and Jack Riley will be offering hot dogs and soft drinks.

At the other side of the hall, Ham Tewksbury will be cutting, wrapping and dispensing chunks of specially selected sharp cheddar cheese brought in for the day from dairy regions of New York State and Vermont.

The vestry of the Second Congregational Church next to the Town Hall will also have its special food attractions. A large area of the hall will be given over to the Chowder Bar which has become the traditional lunching spot for many Fair visitors and workers. In addition to the chowder staple, Bob Began and his workers will offer sandwiches and beverages.

Ranged along another wall of the Congregational vestry will be the food and candy table. Gertrude Hooper heads the large group soliciting and selling these delicacies. With the addition of the Greek Orthodox congregation to the Fair organization, the food table has come to include many popular Greek pastries.

Solicitors who are enlisting food contributions in the individual churches are as follows: Greek Orthodox, Anna Panos; Unitarian, Beverly Williams; Congregational, Rachel White; St. Anthony's Grace Donahue; and St. Stephen's Harriet Partridge and Gertrude Parsons.

So that no Village Fair location would be without its food outlet, the Tacos Bar this year will be in the Unitarian Parish House, sharing that facility with the busy and crowded Bargain Bazaar. Priscilla Seddon is the adult leader of a corps of 'teen-agers of the Congregational Church who take as much delight in fashioning the crispy tacos as their 'teen-age friends do in consuming them.

Food again features prominently in the prizes for the big raffle which is a standard money-maker of the fair.

Top prize, is the portable color TV, with an Atari 5200 game as a close runner-up, but more appealing to diners-out are the brunches and dinners being offered by Hugo's, Harrington's and P.J.'s. Fred Howe, the chief ticket seller, is also touting the contributions of hairdressers Charlottes and Reflections, the boat blanket donated by The Linen Chest, meals at the Log 'n Line and hors d'oeuvres from the Strawberry Parfait.

The Kit and Kaboodle, Flemings, Designer Creations, Cohasset Colonials, and Mr. Beam are also contributing prizes to aid ticket sales.

Ron Rawson, impressario of the Music Circus, is offering two tickets to next year's Liberace show. Energetic raffle ticket sellers in the individual churches including Sue Costas in the Greek Church, Mary Campbell in the Congregational, Jill O'Donnell in St. Anthony's and Marge Howe in St. Stephen's. Tickets will also be on sale the day of the fair in the Town Hall.

Dramatic Club to present 'A Christmas Carol'

By Gerald McNabb

As the winds begin to blow bitter cold, an aura of warmth can be found at the Town Hall as the Cohasset Dramatic Club prepares for the holiday season.

This year's opening production is a unique performance of Dickens' classic "A Christmas Carol."

The show and its preparation should prove to be a delightful holiday outing for all involved, audience and players.

The heartwarming tale of Scrooge has come to be a Christmas tradition in the holiday celebrations.

The play, adapted by Brian Way, is the classic one. The specialty of the show however, lies not in story but rather in the club's approach.

The production, directed by Julia Wood Jordan is different from anything the club has ever done.

The show will be performed later in the season, Dec., 9, 10, 11, 16 and Dec. 17, to make it more accessible for people to attend.

These dates stretching across two weekends will allow for two matinees making the show available to the whole family.

The play incorporates music, something which hasn't been seen in a CDC production since "Where's Charlie" 15 years ago.

The biggest change is the inclusion of younger thespians into the show. The cast, usually predominantly adult, is more than 50 percent children under 18 years old. The large 64-member cast now includes nine families from Cohasset and Hingham.

Families such as the Dohertys, the Dormers, the DeLimas, the Kuhns, the Massas and the Slotnicks of Cohasset and the Dassorias, the Duffys and the Holmes of Hingham incorporate both parent and child.

This age old classic will never lose its appeal for the young and the young at heart.

Tickets are only $4 for adults and $2 for children. Bring the whole family and share "A Christmas Carol" and some holiday cheer with the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

Civil Service overturns sick leave decision . . .

decision to suspend firefighter James Boswell III for six weeks without pay because he worked a second job while on paid injury leave.

Selectmen acknowledged there were no town regulations but Boswell violated the spirit and intent of the law.

Selectman John DeBassio came to several conclusions about disagreements in the fire and police department.

Step one is for "All department heads to immediately draft and appropriate policy probibiting employees from working in any other position or capacity while on injured or sick leave from the town of Cohasset."

The second motion instructs the Cohasset Fire Department to "immediately undertake the task of preparing an appropriate set of rules, regulations, policies and procedures for the governance of the Cohassset Fire Department."

A preliminary written document should be submitted for review to the board of selectmen on or before January 15, 1984.

The concluding motion is to authorize police chief Joseph Kealy to recognize that officer Richard Abbadessa was recently awarded. Kealy may assign up to three days off with pay to be taken at the officer's discretion.

Landfill . .

rubbish will fire steam boilers which will power turbines. Semass plans to sell the electricity to Commonwealth Electric Co.

Semass has similar resource recovery plants operating in Albany, N.Y. and Ontario, Canada.

In order to finance the project, Semass needs rubbish delivery commitments of 1 million tons per year. The plant will be capable of handling 1.5 million tons per year.

To attract rubbish commitments, Semass is offering reduced rates for 27 years to the organizatons which deliver the first 400 tons of rubbish to the plant. The study committee is interested in this offer.

Semass will be able to sell their electricity cheaply, their rates will fall each year. It is estimated that by 1998 there will be no cost to the town for disposal at Semass, except pay transportation costs.

Kennedy . . .

everyone, "for the first time everyone in the room was completely silent, unable to utter a word!"

Barbara Davenport was a student at Cohasset High School at the time. She remembers walking down the hall with Ward Grant when the news came over the loud speaker. "They waited until school was over to tell the students," she said.

Carolyn Contis was working in New York City at the time of President Kennedy's death, having a business luncheon. What also stood out vividly in Carolyn's mind was that her friend got married that weekend and the reception was held at one of the hotels that Kennedy frequently stayed.

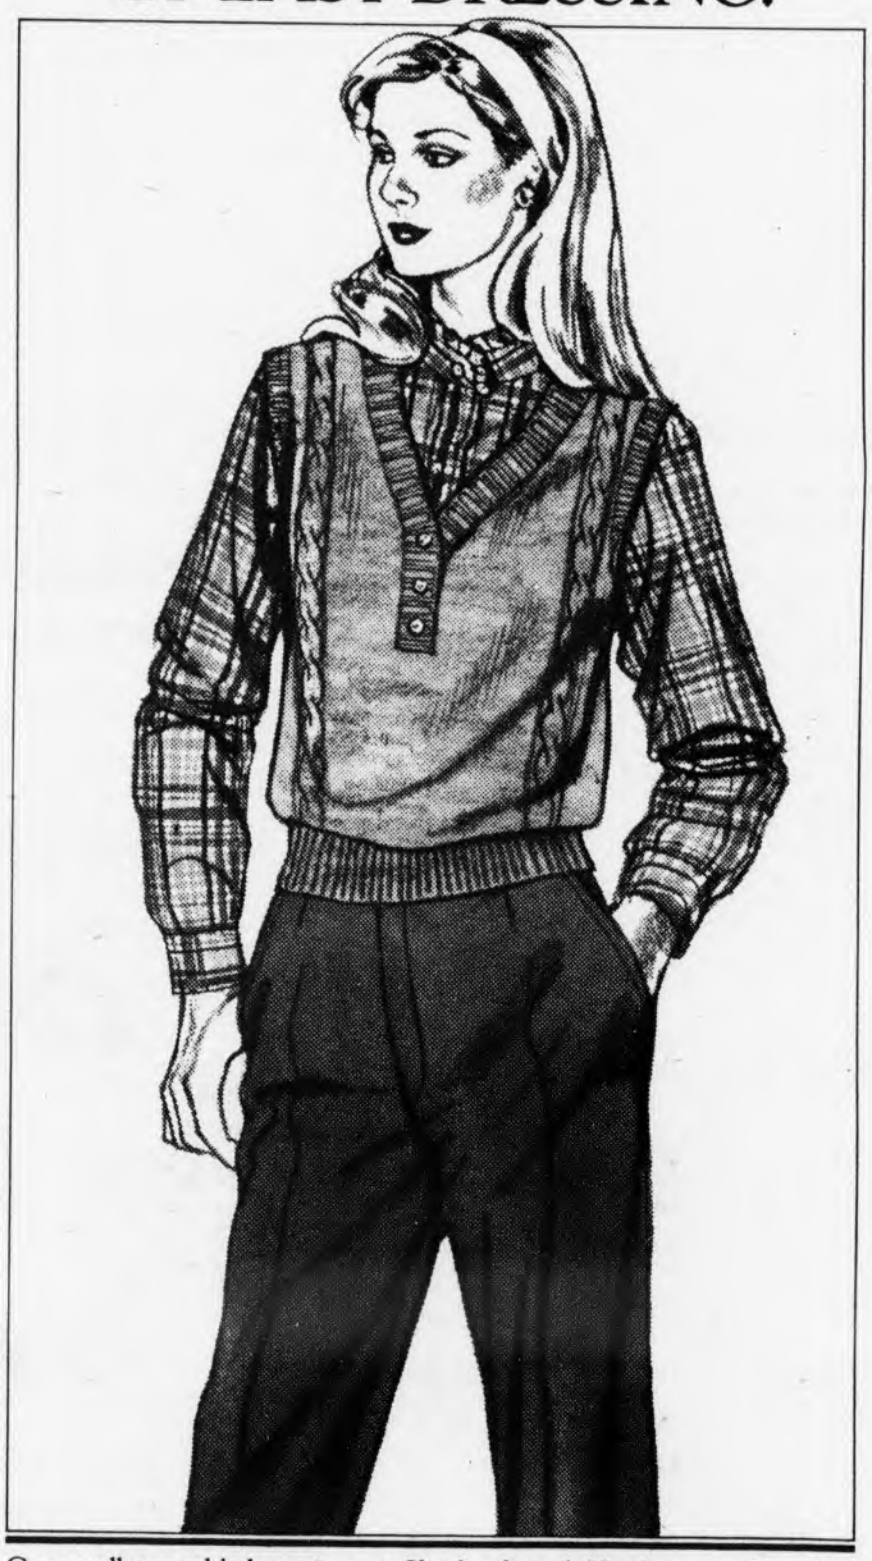
They weren't allowed any music, and everything was draped in black in memory of the president.

Eric Pearson was at his dealership working when word came about the shooting.

Rick, the assistant manager at Curtis Compact, says he remembers the day well . . . in eighth grade at the time, he "watched the whole thing on television, and will never forget it!"

Everyone remembers with vivid details the feeling of shock that the country was in.

I was in the midst of frantic preparations for my wedding, to be held the following week. After hearing the news, we were unsure as to whether or not to postpone it!



President John F. Kennedy will always be remembered for his famous quotations as well as his charisma and the way in which he led his country.

He was the leader of the "new generation of Americans," and those of us that were a part of his leadership will never forget where we were, what we were doing or the terrible feeling of frustration and loss that we felt.

Cohasset Worship: First Parish Church

By Rev. Edward Atkinson

Three weeks ago I received a notice under a cover letter from the Director for Religious Education of the Unitarian Universalist Association announcing the presentation of a film about a nuclear attack on the United States. The film is entitled "The Day After" and was aired Sunday, Nov. 20 on ABC-TV. Printed in large letters at the top of the notice is the warning, "Watch 'The Day After'...but don't watch it alone." Then we are further cautioned that the program is harshly realistic, offers no message of hope, and is not recommended for children under the age of 12.

I am committed to the urgent need for arms control and the cause of peace, but I am troubled by the distribution of this notice. Could it be that we are being subjected to another slick piece of what has been called "media hype?" It is a familiar ploy. Children and weak kneed wimps won't be able to watch because it is too scary, which of course does not include any of us, while "mature adults" must see it, which of course includes all of us. If so it is one of the oldest con games in the world played by side show hucksters and promoters who sucker the public by appealing to their morbid curiosity and their desire to be "adult."

As the executives at ABC lick their chops over potential high ratings however, I wonder if those peace groups and our own denominational officials who seem to be caught up in the seductive web of this media event have considered the possibility that they are being used and that this film could turn out to be dangerously counter productive to their goals. I have never believed that the best way to change human behavior for the better was to frighten people to the point of despair, nor do I believe in the kind of sudden religious conversions won by publicity conscious evangelical preachers who say, "Come forward now and join my crusade or you will end up in hell!"

According to ABC they have had difficulty in locating sponsors for "The Day After." I am inclined to suggest that their best potential customers might turn out to be among the arms manufacturers. After all as people watch the terrible aftermath of a nuclear attack on Kansas City what is to keep them from concluding that we need more and bigger bombs to intimidate the Russians out of launching such an attack or at least to insure that if we die we take them with us. Is not despair, anger and hopelessness what leads people to suicide and war and away from life and peace?

Last week I watched a program on television which offered a far better approach to the prospect of death than the so called realism of "The Day After." It was a portrait of the life and work of Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross entitled "To Live Until We Die." The timing and cause of death were far different in the Kubler-Ross film, but in certain respects the facts of the human condition addressed were really the same-impending death. But the Kubler-Ross film admonishes us to, "Never give bad news without also giving hope." Her message is an old and a wise one. Live until you die. In other words, knowing that death is real, spend your time well today, give yourself over to worthy purposes, share your feelings honestly with those closest to you, try to be reconciled where differences have separated you from others - "Look to this day . . . For yesterday is but a dream. And tomorrow is only a vision . . . "

Edna St. Vincent Millay spoke for my feelings on the matter when she wrote, "I shall die, but that is all I shall do for death." Next Sunday evening I do not plan to worship at the altar of death by gazing upon a glowing electronic idol peddling headache remedies and beer as it panders to the public's appetite for violence and as it bids us to rush vicariously to the scene of the ultimate disaster for humankind and look on in impotent horror.

"They were really religious. They believed God would guide them on the trip. They depended on God, even when they were sick. Some wouldn't take medicine when they were sick because they believed God would heal them."

What did they learn about the Indians?

"They took sweatbaths to heal themselves from fever."

"They believed in many gods, gods for the sun, rain, snow."

How did they feel after the project was done?

"I learned a lot. I know more now than I did before."

Parent supervision stressed at PSO panel

Closer communication between parent and child and stricter parental supervision of children, particularly at house parties were the major topics of conversation at a recent PSO child development session.

The Parents School Organization (PSO) recently held an open panel discussion at the Deerhill School, entitled "Your Child in Transition".

In opening the discussion Marie Hartnett Leary of the PSO said the theme would be problems of elementary school children and how parents can tell "when it is a phase, when it has gone beyond."

Eight panelists, each an expert in a different area of child development, spoke at the meeting which was attended by about fifty parents.

Dr. Robert Sceery, a highly respected pediatrician in Cohasset, said elementary school age children are in a "latent" period and that parents usually form "close, comfortable relationships" with their children at this time.

Dr. Sceery said "This is the time to make contact with children." He added, "At 10 years old a boy thinks his father is God personified."

Dr. Sceery said that if parents do not form a close relationship with their children during this latent period, they probably never will. He said it is important for parents to "keep in intimate contact" with their children during the middle childhood years so when children begin to form their own sense of identity, parents can help them.

Dr. Dave Speigler, a child psychiatrist practicing in Norwell, said during middle childhood (6 to 12 years old) children "start forming their own identities." Because of this "kids begin to feel a sense of aloneness and separateness."

Dr. Speigler said this sense of separateness is healthy and natural as long as parents help their children to find activities which can be successful at strengthening individual worth.

When children have difficulty learning skills, and receive no help from their parents, "their self image suffers. They don't feel they can make it out in the big world."

Susan Downey, from the Alcohol Resource Center for Primary Prevention in Newton, told parents that alcohol use among children is a growing problem. "Fifth and sixth grade children are beginning to experiment with alcohol."

Downey said most of these children start using alcohol in their homes when their parents are out.

"Alcohol abuse by parents is also a major problem for children," she said. On a national average, "one out of four children in class are from alcoholic homes."

An alcohol survey given to seventh, eighth and ninth graders by Michael Gill, health education instructor for Cohasset, supports Ms. Downey's assertions.

The survey shows that 57 percent of the seventh graders who have used alcohol started drinking in their homes. Thirty-six percent began drinking in friends' homes.

Gill runs a program called "Forum of Teen Alcohol Practices" where parents and children discuss alcohol use and abuse. Usually twenty to thirty parents attend these meetings. But after front page coverage of a meeting by the media 200 showed up at the next meeting.

Gill said parents were "shocked" to discover their children were experimenting with drugs and alcohol in their homes.

Rec Department offers ski lesson registrations

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct Ski Lesson registrations at the Recreation Office, Town Hall, Thursday, Dec. 15, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m.

It is essential that parents register children as a permission form must be signed.

The cost for this year's program will be $41 per person, which includes five, 1¾ hour ski lessons as well as bus transportation to the Blue Hills Area.

The program is open to children and youth, 6-18 years old.

Checks should be made payable to "Town of Cohasset".

Lessons are scheduled to begin on Thursday afternoon, January 5, 1984, and continue for 5 weeks, ending Thursday, February 2. The program will be limited in size and participants will be registered on a first come-first enrolled basis.

Equipment rentals are available for $6 per person. Buses will leave Town Hall at 3:20 p.m. sharp, and return to Town Hall at about 6:45 p.m.

around town

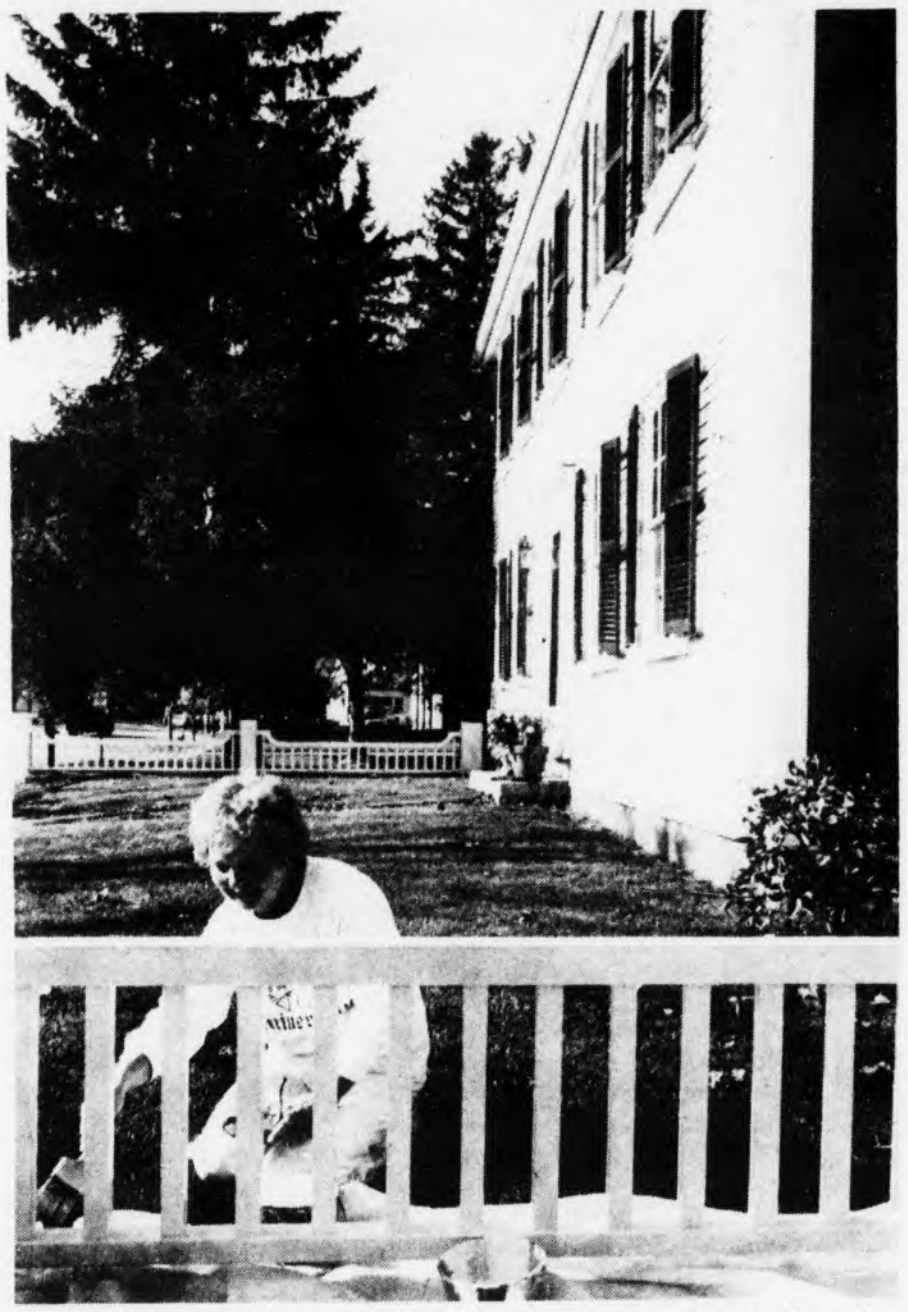
☐The new soccer kick-board that was installed served a dual purpose last Saturday...for the hardy fans that "weathered" the football game, it offered great protection from the wind that was whipping around at the field. So, football fans want to add their thanks for installing the soccer goals!

☐Had a full report on Dianne Maloney, daughter of John and Rose Maloney of Woodland Drive. Dianne is a senior at Northeastern University this year...Wow! Dianne has really done a good job (as she always has!) and is majoring in Physical Therapy, and recently completed six weeks at Mass. Hospital School in Canton working with children. Dianne is now at Mt. Sinai in Baltimore, Maryland, for another six-week stint, this time working with upper respiratory patients and orthopedics.

Mt. Sinai is the largest physical therapy unit in the country. As for Dianne's academic standing, that's super, too! Every semester has seen her name on the Dean's List, and she has been invited by Kappa Zeta Chapter at Northeastern to join Kappa Delta Pi, the National Honor Society. Dianne wishes to say a big hello to all!

☐Donald F. Beale of Cohasset has accepted a top-level voluntary position with the United Way of Massachusetts Bay for its 1983 fundraising campaign.

Beale will serve as Scituate community chairman and will coordinate the drive in his area.



Vice president for Mahoney & Wright Insurance Agency, Inc., Beale was also 1982 Scituate community chairman. A member of Scituate Kiwanis, Marshfield Elks and Hatherly Country Club, Beale is also a director of Mahoney & Wright Corporation.

The United Way's 1983 fundraising campaign goal is $32 million, a 14.8 percent increase over last year's total. This year, contributions will support 176 health and human service agencies serving almost one million residents in 86 cities and towns in eastern Massachusetts.

☐ Again this year, Mary Pecce of the Cohasset office of Jack Conway, Realty has attained the enviable goal of selling more than $2 million in real estate.

Mary has been a broker in the Cohasset office on Rte. 3A almost as long as the office has been located there. She has been a top sales associate for 22 years in Cohasset. In fact, Mary has been a million dollar broker "for more years than I care to remember," she said.

This year, Mary's tremendous sales volume has earned her a trip to St. Maarten, sponsored by the Conway Co. She is also a former Broker of the Year for Jack Conway, Realtor.

Kay England applied her brush to the fence surrounding the Lothrop House last week in time for fall shape-up and Thanksgiving. (Rose Cundari)

Mary credits her phenomenal career with the Conway Co. to "my ability to relate well with others. I enjoy working with other people. And I think I have an ability to follow through, to build a good referral program which is the most important thing in the real estate business."

Mary, who is a graduate of the Real Estate Institute, and is a Certified Residential Specialist, is on the Board of Directors of the Plymouth County MLS, and is a hospitality chairman of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors, and is currently on the grievance committee.

Mary has three children, Elaine Bongarzone of Scituate; Jay, who is employed at GE Aerospace Division near Washington, D.C., and Christopher, a recent Nichols College graduate who is employed at Leading Edge Co., a computer firm in Canton.

☐Mrs. James Hagler called last week with some news that is certainly worth repeating, especially with the fact that this is Thanksgiving week. It seems that her grandson, James, loved Cohasset so much on his last visit he wrote a poem about it. James Brooks Fenno is a seventh grader at Fessendon School, and is 12 years-old.

Cohasset

I like Cohasset best
Where the world is calm and nature rests.
Only in Cohasset can be found
Nature's truthful sound.
I like Cohasset's rocky shore,
Where the tide comes in and seagulls soar.
A special sight you shouldn't miss,
Nature's truthful bliss.
In Cohasset's normal state,
You see a town that's simply great.
Go there on a starry night,
Where stars are sure to show full light.
I've never seen a likelier sight,
Where stars could shine so bright.
I went there on my birthday eve,
Now I hope to never leave.
If I ever have to go,
My heart will crush, you know.
I love Cohasset.

James is the grandson of Professor and Mrs. James Hagler of 133 North Main St., and Mrs. Mark Hopkins of Chestnut Hill and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fenno of Gainsville, Florida.

☐Had some news about Gary Ormiston, son of Peter and Joyce Conway of Pond Street. Gary is in his junior year at U. Mass., Amherst, and was recently inducted into Delta Epsilon, Civil Engineering Society and Tau Beta Pi, National Engineering Society. Gary is a Dean's List student and maintained a 4.0 average his sophomore year. During the summer he worked as a summer intern at Stone and Webster Engineering Corporation. He was also recently awarded Engineering Alumni Association Work-Study Fellowship for the analysis of residual stress patterns in trees.

☐Want to wish Jennie Long, Kim Crawford, Ann Taylor, and Sarah Atkinson good luck in their endeavors to put together a volleyball team.

☐Justine Hoffman, a freshman at Boston College, received a true education on the shooting of President Kennedy. She was in the audience of the television show "People are Talking" with Nancy Merrill last week. The topic was the shooting and there were guest speakers there who made it their business to investigate the matter.

☐I am happy to report that David Stover was spotted "around town" this week, and that he looked great!

☐Happy Thanksgiving to all. Hope the day is the best one yet!

Acid rain is no problem in Cohasset

By Cindi Bondi

The threat of acid rain destroying local sources of water alerted a volunteer study group this year but most people do not know how much acid rain will directly affect them.

Out of 113 ponds in Massachusetts, 30 are critical, sustaining very little plant and animal life, 30 are bordering an acid imbalance and 25 could easily become acidic.

These ratings and others have been devised by an acid rain volunteer study group of Plymouth County. The Plymouth County Coordinator is Arthur Paradice, of Scituate.

Paradice said, "The year long study started in March. Every three weeks volunteers take samples from bodies of water in Scituate, Norwell, Hingham, Duxbury, Pembroke and Marshfield."

Other counties sample waters sources every three weeks and the results are logged in state-wide data base.

Cohasset water is tested through the Norfolk County District volunteer program.

The three places tested in Cohasset are Bound Brook, Lily Pond and the reservoir. Out of a seven point non-acidic scale, all Cohasset sites read 6.5.,said Joe Hamilton, who tests for the Cohasset Water Department.

Paradice continued, "You have to demonstrate that things are getting worse so we have to have some basic facts to later compare with. After we record this year's results we will have statistics to compare with later."

To date three Miles Standish Reservation ponds in Plymouth have been cited as highly acidic. Lime has been thrown into these ponds to neutralize the acid. But liming only works temporarily.

Paradice said, "Liming is costly and time consuming. As soon as it rains and snows, more acid goes into the pond."

Some people fear that acid rain is destroying Black Pond, in Norwell. "I don't think acid rain is the cause of the trouble. A lot of decaying matter and plants, especially tree tissue, releases a lot of tannic acid which makes a pond turn acidic.

College Pond, in Plymouth is on the endangered list. This does not mean that swimming in an acidic pond is dangerous.

Anyone who swims in one of the three highly acidic rated ponds at Miles Standish will not be able to identify it as acidic.

Paradice said swimming in the water is not harmful. He added, "Actually high acid containing ponds are deceiving because the visibility is much better. There are no plants and algae because the pond is biologically dead."

New England takes the brunt of acid rain partially because the soil is made of water granite and not limestone.

The principal cause of acid rain is pollution from the smoke stacks of Midwest industries, carried in the rainfall to the Northeast.

Cohasset Water Commissioner Peter Pratt said, "The solution for acid rain cannot only be found in the Midwestern industrial states. Their power plants have 300 foot smoke stacks that go into the weather cycle winds which prevail in the west and go to the east."

Gov. Michael Dukakis asked Lt. Governor John Kerry to lead the acid rain study for the state.Kerry receives the data from the groups testing for acid rain in the Northeast.

Larry Carpman, press secretary to Lt. Governor Kerry, said, "Tests have shown that 30 percent of acid rain in Mass. is caused by sulphur dioxide within the state. Most of it comes from the southeast and Midwestern states."

Carpman added, "Some local ponds have been affected such as Brewster Pond in Barnstable, which is biologically dead."

However, "I do not know of any bodies of water abutting Cohasset with high acidity," he said.

Now that the volunteer groups have determined the causes of acid rain, the groups are looking for a solution.

"Nobody is accusing anyone in particular for producing acid rain. Massachusetts will help to share the costs to prevent smoke stack pollution," Carpman said.

Kerry was appointed to come up with a fair and effective bill to Mass. and other states which will move in Congress as a nationwide acid rain bill.

Editorial

A bouquet of thanks

Often, perhaps too often, we are apt to use this small editorial medium to complain about the problems of this community, or to disagree publicly with those who serve it.

But when we reach to our back copies, and see the news from other towns, we realize that life is not all that bad here and indeed we can be thankful for much about our hometown.

So, as we all prepare to say private thanks for our good fortunes, the Mariner would like to make a few public thanks:

To all town officials, from the selectmen to the school board members to each and every elected and appointed member of our municipal government; while we have not always agreed with their policies or decisions, we have never observed them perform in less than a professional, conscientious manner.

To the clergy and our churches, who lead their congregations by action and example and who join in the true meaning of ecumenical spirit.

To all those citizens who offer our youngsters a wide choice of activities: from the school music and athletic programs, to the Rec. Dept. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts etc.

There is something to interest every youngster, boy or girl, in this town besides trouble, and we have a dedicated group of volunteers from these groups to thank for that.

To the teachers in the school system, who have put up with reduced forces, reduced budgets and reduced programs, and still maintain their spirit to educate with pride.

To the men of the Police and Fire departments, who put their lives on the line each and every time they answer a call.

To the many civic groups and clubs who do so much to enrich our lives through community projects — from planting flowers in the summer to hosting Santa's visit next month.

And finally, to the people of Cohasset who have proved time and again the true meaning of the word neighbor.

Sewer Commission update

Ward Engineering gave a progress report on their study of Cohasset's sewer problems to the sewer commissioners Tues. Nov. 22.

Ward has received 620 of the sewer questionnaires sent out. Approximately 20 percent of the people who responded reported some sewerage problems.

Ward said "We have developed a pretty good sense of the varieties of systems and types of problems" in Cohasset.

The sewer commissioners would like to see more replies to thequestionnaires sent in.

Sewer commissioners also heard a presentation on the Powder Activated Carbon (PACT) sewer filtration system. This system uses specially prepared carbon, and could be more effective than the chlorine system currently used at the town's waste treatment plant.

The sewer commissioners are considering a three month test of the PACT system which would cost between $2,000 and $3,000.

Aftermath of the Smokeout

By Claire McDonough

"What is a Dragon without smoke?" Breida asked.

"Grouchy," Skipper replied. "Also irritable, jittery, and definitely to be approached with extreme caution."

I looked at them in disbelief. "You mean...?"

They nodded. "Daddy hasn't had a cigarette in 24 hours," Breida announced.

I grabbed a chair for support. "You mean the man who has smoked no less than one and sometimes up to five packs a day ever since he was 15 years old?"

They nodded.

"The same individual," I continued, "who lights one cigarette from the end of his last? Who usually has at least one going in an ashtray in each room in the house? Who smokes in the shower?

"Who complains that cigarettes should come already lit because it takes too long to get the first one of the day started? Who buys his month's supply of cigarettes before he pays the mortgage, but runs out of them anyway because he always underestimates how much he's going to smoke?

"The man who wouldn't go to see "Ghandi" because it would make the interval between smokes too long and he didn't think he could stand it?"

They nodded.

I sat down and shook my head slowly from side to side, trying to comprehend the magnitude of what happened.

"What made him do it?" I asked. "Right now, I mean. After all, I've been nagging him in and out of print for years to stop smoking and all he ever did was mutter about reformed sinners being the worst and keep right on puffing. Why now?"

"He said," Larry explained, "that if Kitty Dukakis can do it he can do it."

"I think the hour he spends coughing every morning before he can light his first cigarette of the day may have something to do with it, too," Patrick added. "Anyway, be careful when you go near him."

Breida nodded. "I'd hate to tell you what he called the cat earlier."

I trepedatiously approached the Dragon's Lair. "Are you in there, Honey?" I asked sweetly.

The response was a snarl. "What's it to you?"

I sighed happily. He still wasn't smoking.

Three days later, despite a few slips, he's still trying. (O.k., Breida and Skipper say he's very trying.)

All right, as I sit here typing I can see the end of a cigarette that was surreptitiously extinguished under his desk. So I'll admit that the children's vocabulary has expanded during the past half week, and several of them are threatening to leave home.

Nevertheless, there's a glimmer of hope. Maybe he will be around and we can grow old together, after all.

In the interim, the kids and I can put up with a testy (o.k., miserable) disposition for a few weeks.

Why? Because we love him.

Firefighter and taxpayer sounds off

Letters

To the Editor:

Yes, the Cohasset Firefighter may have deserved the punishment dealt out to him by the Board of Selectmen.

But, I do not believe that his children or the taxpayers should be so unfairly punished also.

An eight-week period without a paycheck with Christmas only four weeks away is reminiscent of the treatment dealt out to Bob Cratchet by Ebeneezer Scrooge in Dickens "A Christmas Carol."

The two children of the Boswell family do not deserve to be denied the right of a joyous holiday because of the suspension.

The taxpayers are being unjustly punished because this suspension will necessitate more overtime money being spent unnecessarily. Firefighter Boswell will be coming back from his suspension just as our vacation period is ending: Jan. 4, 1984.

If his supsension were to start instead of finish on Jan. 4th, the need for 30 days of overtime could be avoided.

I think the Chief of the Fire Department lacks compassion and foresight in this very serious matter.

Caristi family message

To the Editor:

The Caristi holiday table will be set with a special remembrance of love and kindness for all those who softened our sorrow in the last month.

A morsel of kindness was a mountain of mercy when we walked through a deep valley of sorrow.

The community of Cohasset helped our family walk through that valley.

May your holidays be as blessed as ours as we remember with joy all those we love.

Love,
Marie, Julie, Ken & Mark Caristi

Murray's memos

Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

Among bills I filed and listed as priorities include a bill which calls for a work program for juvenile delinquents, those convicted of felonies and those operating under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

These persons would clear state parks and forest and perform public works service in cities and towns.

I also filed banning advertisements of any alcoholic beverages on television. I feel very strongly youngsters watching TV are being subtley brain-washed that there is nothing wrong with drinking. The fact that no one knows whether they are prone to alcoholism is never stressed through these ads.

Another of my bills deals with definitions and penalties for drunk driving boat operators and a monorail study.

I re-co-sponsored an organ donor bill calling for establishment of a fund through private donations and/or a tax credit for this purpose for those who have no means to fund a transplant. This was a late-filed law in 1983 and we haven't been able to get the Senate to admit to the bill.

I recently received the thanks of the Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA) for filing legislation to give appropriation power over MDC budgets to the local officials whose communities fund the MDC .

"The Association is truly grateful that Representative Murray offered her support on an issue which has a substantial impact on the budgets of 40 communities within the MDC water, sewer and park districts," MMA Executive Director James Segel said recently, adding, "We look forward to working with Rep. Murray on this very complicated issue."

The legislation, which was filed for consideration in the upcoming 1984 session, would create an advisory board composed of mayors, selectmen or managers representing the cities and towns in each of the three MDC districts, with the power to approve the proposed MDC budget.

Communities would have a weighted vote reflecting their share of the MDC assessment in a format similar to the weighted votes of the MBTA and county advisory boards. Communities who are not part of all three divisions of the MDC would vote only on the budgets of those in which they were members.

The statewide MDC assessment is $49 million, making this a significant budget item for those communities in the district, Segel said "The MDC has a wide spectrum of problems and this legislation we hope will open a dialogue on the agency's future," Segel concluded.

I also received thanks from the MMA for filing legislation to clarify the ability of all local governments to appropriate and to contract for goods and services.

The legislation, which was filed for consideration in the upcoming 1984 session, removes the specific list of goods and services for which communities may appropriate money or contract.

The present statutory list has been so inflexible that it has been changed 35 times since 1961, each time to add another specific item. A separate statutory change was required to allow contracting for laundry services for municipal hospitals, another to allow contracting for oxygen supplies for municipal hospitals, and yet a third to allow leasing of hospital equipment.

It has been 362 years since the first Thanksgiving and while traditions have changed over the years, it is, perhaps, our most genuinely American holiday.

The first Thanksgiving took place in 1621, a three day feast in October to celebrate a successful harvest and to shore up spirits against the imminence of another cold hard winter. While turkey has come to be the symbol of our modern Thanksgiving holiday, historians now tell us that the pilgrims ate various kinds of fish, an occasional goose or duck, and perhaps deer meat offered to them by the Indians. The celebration would have come while they were preparing their foods for the winter by smoking meats, salting fish and drying vegetables and herbs.

Thanksgiving is the holiday in which we have shaped our roots as Americans. It was a northern holiday until Abraham Lincoln introduced it to the rest of the country after the Civil War. Sara Jane Hale, the author of the children's song "Mary Had A Little Lamb", lobbied hard to make Thanksgiving a national holiday, and in 1863 she succeeded.

A re-creation of the day-to-day lives of pilgrim men, women and children can be experienced at the Plimoth Plantation in Plymouth, Massachusetts. It is a fascinating drama, with costumed actors playing the roles of the early settlers shoring up their homes for the winter with twigs and logs, putting food up for the winter and explaining their schools, churches and recreation. (Plimoth Plantation is open throughout the summer and fall through November 30.)

My best wishes for the very best Thanksgiving of all!

Shipbuilding makes a historic return

By Melanie Mars

Shipbuilding is coming back to the area.

"The New England Historic Seaport Inc. was involved in bringing the Tall Ships to Boston in 1976 and 1980 and is planning a similar thing in 1984," said Henry Dormitzer, a member of the board of directors.

"We are also building our own sailing training vessel to be called the 'Spirit of Massachusetts'," he said.

Dormitzer a local maritime historian, spoke to the Cohasset Historical Society at its annual meeting Nov. 17.

He spoke about the upcoming Donald McKay Festival scheduled for June 2 through June 7 and the building of the Spirit of Massachusetts, a 'Fredonia' type schooner for the state.

"It will be a replica of a Boston Gloucester Fishing vessel and will sail as a sailing training ship for young people in the summer," Dormitzer said.

In the spring, it will be available to corporations in the area, especially those that have been supporters of the project.

When winter arrives, the schooner will head south to act as a good will ship. Dormitzer said it will do as much as the 'Pride of Baltimore' does for that city.

The ship is modeled after the 'Fredonia' designed by Edgar Burgess. Nearly 60 to 70 ships of that type sailed the seas during the years of 1880 to 1910. These ships overcame a serious weakness that affected ships previous to that time. The ships previously tended to capsize.

"We laid the keel of the ship on April 4th of last year," said Dormitzer.

The New England Seaport Inc. will build the ship. They have employed 10 shipwrights, mostly from Maine. Thirty apprentices are learning to build the ships as they did in the late 1800's.

"We have 100 volunteers who gave or are giving us services in one way or another," said Dormitzer.

The vessel will be 125 feet in length and will carry groups of 30 young people on two week voyages as well as six professional crewmen and the instructor.

Various groups have become interested in the project and have donated items for the completion of the ship. The U.S. Navy has donated several buildings in the Charlestown Navy yard for the ship building.

Also white pine wood, which will become the deck of the ship was donated from Brimfield. The shipbuilding has caused quite a stir in the Boston area. The New England Seaport Inc. is attempting to build the ship the way they did in the late 1800's, an art that is practically lost today.

The training voyages will go from Boston to Halifax and Boston to Bermuda.

"It will teach young people self-reliance, the ability to stand on their own feet, self discipline, navigation, seamanship and also to teach them about our ocean resources and our maritime history," said Dormitzer.

The idea for Massachusetts to have its own sailing vessel is based on past experience the New England Seaport had in sponsoring trips for youth on other brigs.

"Based on that success, we decided that we should have our own ship," said Dormitzer.

The name of the ship, 'The Spirit of Massachusetts'

Concern about Ambulance Committee

Letter

To the Editor:

As a Cohasset firefighter/EMT, I am very much concerned about the ramifications of the results of the newly appointed ambulance study committee.

With over 16 years of service with the Town of Cohasset, my worry is not for my job, but, with the quality of service that will be provided to the citizens of Cohasset in the future.

Comparisons of costs between a town provided service or a private ambulance service are unfair, because dollar figures can be made to appear favorable or unfavorable depending upon which group is preparing the report.

I have been assigned to the Cohasset Fire Department ambulance since February 1977. Only three other firefighter EMT's are assigned to the ambulance at any one time.

When the ambulance responds to a first-aid the second man in the ambulance comes from the Ladder truck. If a third man should be needed, as when CPR is being performed, this man is the driver of the responding engine.

This gives us two EMT's in the back with the patient with at least a first responder driving the ambulance.

As a firefighter/EMT at the top pay scale I receive as a base pay $18,000. Because I am an EMT I receive an additional 5 percent of my base pay ($900) to maintain my skills and provide my EMS skills to the Town, as well as being a firefighter when the need prevails.

Half of my medical coverage is paid by the Town of Cohasset. The Town contributes matching funds into my pension and I receive longevity pay of $300 per year.

All told, I doubt very much if I cost the Town of Cohasset in excess of $22,000, not counting overtime.

As I pointed out, only four men are assigned to the ambulance (they are also firefighters in the truest sense of the word) therefore, the total cost of these four men used to man the Cohasset ambulance is approximately $90,000. As I understand it this represents less than $1 on the present tax rate.

Add the annual breakdown cost of a new ambulance ($12,000 for 4 yrs) and we still provide an excellent service for no more than $1 on the present tax rate.

Vanpool may be the answer to X-way traffic mess

By Judith Denzer Cooper

If you commute to Boston every day call 227-POOL and do it soon. As plans for 1984 reconstruction of the southeast expressway are developed two things become certain. State agencies are sincerely trying to prepare for the event and it's still going to be a mess.

The vanpool hot line (227-POOL) may be the most reasonable solution for local residents. If you have regular hours and work in one place each day a carpool or vanpool will be the cheapest and fastest way to travel.

The State Department of Public Works, the MBTA and Mass. Area Planning Council (MAPC) are making careful preparations but as plans are refined the difficulties become clear.

For example: there will be four lanes of traffic going each way during the rush hour. There will be two permanent and two reversible lanes in each direction. The reversible lanes will be express lanes and trucks will not be allowed to use them.

The problem is that all four lanes will be relatively narrow and limited by concrete barriers. The anticipated speed in the eight mile construction area will be 25 miles per hour when everything is going well.

Pam Wolfe, coordinator for commuter information for the project, says that 3,000 cars must be eliminated from normal rush hour traffic each day. This can best be accomplished by vanpools, park and ride facilities and buses.

The DPW will double its park and ride capacity in the South Shore by March of 1984. There are presently 1600 spaces and this number will increase to 3,200 by the time reconstruction begins.

The red line (MBTA) is improving its scheduling and trying to increase service but during the key 7-8 a.m. hour there will still be problems.

The southeast expressway carries 20 percent of the daily commuter traffic in and out of Boston. The road was designed for 75,000 cars and is presently carrying 150,000 on an average weekday.

Wolfe said the purpose for the reconstruction is safety. Bridges have deteriorated and the road must be rebuilt. Reconstruction will begin at the junction of Rtes. 3 and 128 and continue to the South Station tunnel.

There will be two construction periods: March-November 1984 and March-November 1985. Snow removal and temperature problems will prevent winter construction.

Several exit ramps will be closed during the project and so drivers are asked to investigate alternative routes. Charles Sterling of the State DPW listed four major alternatives which will have direction signs and improved traffic control.

The alternatives are Quincy Shore Drive, Dorchester Avenue, Rte. 138 from Canton and Rte. 1 through the Jamaica Way.

Sterling said he realized none of these routes is ideal but each road can carry some additional traffic and that will reduce the number of cars on the expressway.

Buses will also play an important role, especially from the park and ride facilities. At the Nov. 16 transportation meeting held at South Shore Vocational School in Rockland, Wolfe announced there will be two meetings in December to plan improvement and coordination of private bus routes on the South Shore.

Catherine Buckley of the State Central Planning Agency, added that train service is one issue that has been investigated in detail. Unfortunately there are no longer any facilities to bring trains over the Neponset River from southeastern Mass. and construction of a new bridge and additional facilities at South Station could not be completed before expressway reconstruction begins.

Therefore, for the immediate future the only use for commuter trains would be to bring people to the present red line in Braintree or Quincy. Buckley said a comparison study of feeder buses and trains will be completed shortly.

All of the speakers emphasized that the reconstruction project should bring long term improvements that go beyond a safer eight mile strip of road.

They hope the project will be the impetus for better commuter boat parking facilities, improved MBTA service and more frequent bus service.

Shipbuilding . . .

has been recommended to become the slogan of the Commonwealth.

Dormitzer said, "Added to that will be something like 'Catch the Spirit' or 'Capture the Spirit' ".

The Spirit of Massachusetts will weigh 165 tons when completed. The date of April 10, 1984 has been set for the ship to be hoisted into the water where the rest of her ballast will be added, her masts put into place and she will be finished for the Donald McKay Festival in June.

The New England Seaport and the Board of Education in Massachusetts are involved in creating a book on New England's maritime history. A copy will be given to each school system in the commonwealth. Teachers will be encouraged to create a curriculum for their grade level to make children aware of Massachusetts maritime history.

Ambulance Committee concern . . .

Something unique about our Town owned ambulance is the personal service that we quite often provide to our citizens.

On most all of our calls the patient is known to us or at least we may know a family member personally.

We sometimes swing by the patients house to pick up a family member for patient comfort on the trip to the hospital. Always, we try to do this, when a child is involved.

The Fire Department ambulance works very well with doctors who have practices in Cohasset. We are able to call upon any of them when a patients condition is so critical that we feel a doctors assistance is necessary. Just about all the doctors who practice in Cohasset or some that do not have ridden in your town owned ambulance on numerous occasions.

We welcome their assistance and I believe they respect the fine job we have done since we took over the Cohasset ambulance.

Please allow us to continue to provide quality ambulance service to you and your families.

Respectfully submitted,
Linwood L. Davis
Cohasset Firefighter/EMT

Chimney fire is number 1 fire hazard

By Capt. Mark Trask
Fire Prevention Officer

Temperatures are decreasing on a daily basis as the seasons march into winter. As the weather grows colder our thoughts turn to keeping warm. In recent years with enormous fluctuations in the price and availability of conventional fuel sources (oil, gas) many economy minded home owners among us have converted to wood and coal for primary and auxiliary heating purposes.

This trend has been reflected by Cohasset Fire Department statistics which show that a chimney fire is the number one type of fire incident occurring in our homes.

What is a chimney fire? What causes chimney fires? What can you do to prevent a chimney fire in your home? When wood burns it produces heat energy which is radiated into your home by the stove. What we don't feel or see are the other products of combustion which travel into the chimney.

Acids, aldehydes, carbon, water vapor, and heat all exit the home via the chimney flue. These materials in combination condense and harden onto the relatively cool surfaces of the chimney flue.

After prolonged use (one year) these condensed materials, commonly referred to as creosote, built layer upon layer can amount to a serious threat to both your home and its occupants.

A chimney fire occurs when these "creosote" deposits are heated to ignition temperature and a fire occurs in the flue of the chimney.

Chimney fires occur in varying degree from relatively minor "spot" fires within the flue to full blown where the chimney becomes in essence a multistory blowtorch. Faulty chimneys, high temperatures, and improper stove installation all become factors inviting extension of the chimney fire into the structure of your home.

How can we achieve prevention of this menace?

Remove the fuel-on an annual basis clean the entire heating apparatus (stove, smokepipe, and flue).

Examine the heating apparatus for any defects and repair or replace any components in questionable condition.

If you are making a new installation or replacing an existing one contact the Building Inspector, Bob Dennis at 383-0017 to be certain of proper installation.

When lighting a fire, control the rate of ignition. Use kindling (never use paper as it compounds the build up within the flue) and your draft controls to maintain a safe rate of ignition. Never allow a stove to operate at full draft for an extended period of time. Never leave a stove unattended during the initial ignition.

Use dry, well seasoned wood to minimize "creosote" build up. Should you suspect that you have a chimney fire do not delay notifying the Fire Department at 383-0260. Have a Fire Safe heating season and smoke detectors can save lives.

Professor Zotos noted for engineering

Prof. John Zotos, formerly of Brockton and currently living in Cohasset, has been awarded several honors by two professional groups and his undergraduate engineering students while commencing his 24th year of full-time teaching, research, and consulting within Northeastern University's Mechanical Engineering Dept.

In March, Prof. Zotos was inaugurated into Phi Kappi Phi, the Interdisciplinary Honor Society. In June, he was honored by the seniors within the College of Engineering at their First Annual Graduating Engineers' Day and presented a stone engraved desk set which read: "Presented by the 1983 Engineers' Council in gratitude for leadership and dedication to Professor John Zotos, Faculty Advisor."

In September, Prof. Zotos was named the "Arthur H. Church Memorial Lecturer" by the American Society for Metals' Southern Connecticut Chapter.

His presentation, "The Role of Computers in Metallurgical Technology" was presented by him in Ansonia, CT, Sept. 15.

Tau Beta Pi, the National Engineering Honor Society, named Prof. Zotos as one of their outstanding Advisors in 1982 and had him as one of their guests at their National Convention held at the University of Idaho located in Moscow, Idaho.

Since then the District 1 Chapters of Tau Beta Pi (New England States) had him address their convention at the University of Rhode Island in April, 1983, on the subject of "Engineering Ethics."

In addition, Oct. 19 Prof. Zotos spoke at M.I.T.'s Recognition Night on the subject of "Tau Beta Pi and You," which he also presented at N.U.'s Recognition Night on Nov. 2, 1983.

Prof. Zotos continues to serve within the civic and religious communities as an active board member of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Northeast Region, and as an active layman within the Greek Orthodox Diocese of Boston.

Sunday, Nov. 20, he preached the sermon at the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church on the subject of "A Layman's Perspective of Christian Stewardship."

Prof. Zotos lives in Cohasset with his wife, Libby, and their three children, Michael, President of the Phase Six Music Company, Braintree; Yoanna M., a senior in N.U.'s College of Arts and Sciences, and Frederic P., a freshman in N.U.'s College of Engineering.

'The Kicks' went undefeated

Throughout the fall season, the Cohasset Recreation team, "The Kicks" from Division A were exceptional.

"The Kicks" went undefeated through five regular games and two playoff games.

Linc Marsac was high scorer for the team, followed by Billy Murphy, Joshua Stevenson, Billy Baird, Jennifer Plante, Ben Dean, and Jonathon Mitchell.

Members of the outstanding defense were Michelle Woodland, Anna Sandell, Ben Chittick, Bob Hughes, Jessica Pyfrom, Danny Baird, Jason Pearsall, and Jenifer Anstead. The team had a celebration party Monday night at Papa Gino's.

Happy Birthday to Cora Blodgett, alias 'Ma Bell'

By Lois Martin

Ms. Belle is 100 years old and getting on with it well.

You know Ma, only technically, she's New England Telephone Company. That big deal business started in 1883 when skirts were longer and circuits were shorter. And it's come a long way since Alexander Graham Bell summoned Watson in curt tones to his office.

The telephone company had a party for its employes last week at Christo's II in Brockton. It was a night when operators and linemen dressed up in good clothes to take notice of their roles in communication.

I like Christos II. I hadn't been there since June of '81 when I was part of a hometown retirement celebration that was great fun. I saw Catherine and Bessie, the arrangers of nightly events and we rehashed the Bud Nangle night and hashed the telephone party.

PATCHES

What became evident is something we usually forget. Behind the impersonal corporate structure are personable men and women like the rest of us. I often wish corporations, the men at the top, had the vision, ease and courage to insure that humanness is never displaced by corporateness.

Because the people themselves are more powerful and more pleasing than any business structure can be.

They had vats of fresh shrimp there. I immediately sensed it would seem rude to sit beside the iced cauldrons of succulent seafood so I got a dish and sat down. I left the mingling to those who do it well and I did instead that which is one of my favorite sports . . . just sitting and watching.

The brief film was appealing, as were the exhibits of old company pictures. They had a portion of one of the few square telephone poles, for example. And they went over the company's participation in emergencies, like the Blizzard of '78.

Some honchos spoke to the group about the heritage. And the film touched on funny moments for the employes like a little girl dialing Operator to speak with her grandmother.

But I longed to give them the heritage from the view of a faithful dialer. They know all the in-house crazy things we consumers do.

But I know why we did them. I wanted to thank Gloria for one, the woman who talked with me one dark midnight when I was getting unsettling calls. Gloria was with me on my side. She and I, two strangers, worked to resolve the problem. She was empathetic, constructively directive. Thanks, Gloria. Happy Birthday.

And Jeff, the guy with the great sense of humor who showed up to take out the telephone when he had a misinformed work order that I was moving. Birthday greetings.

And Mrs. McDonald who believed me when I told her I wasn't moving. And Mrs. Reynolds because she's always pleasant and efficient. And Carolyn McKeon because she can take it when people complain about service and is amenable to doing something about it.

But really I wanted those people to know about Doris Boylston who was the "Bell" of Marshfield all her years, epitomizing the person-to-person relationship we had before we got so automated.

And Cora Blodgett. I can't say Cora's been with the company 100 years at her board in Brooksville, Maine. But those hundreds of people last weekend should know about her. Cora served as the prime resource for all communications in Brooksville. During many of those years she was only a crank away, in many ways. She'd tell you where Everett was and when he'd be back. She called out the men when lightening struck the church steeple with one of her long never ending rings. She got help when Seth fell down the cellar stairs.

Oh the heritage of the people, those unseen beings behind the familiar voices traveling from pole to pole.

It is unfortunate that the Jan. 1 change in structure for the company is called a "divestiture," because no one knows what that means as a word or as a process.

We consumers know how frustrated and annoyed we get when the phone doesn't work. And we have not been shy about saying so.

I guess what was brought home to me the other night is the humanness of the company that unfortunately doesn't show up in our ordinary dealings with it.

So here's to you, Cora, and to those hundreds of men and women in New England for whom the phone is not only a sought-over and about contraption in our homes but also a way of life and a living.

Sometime I suppose I should explain to Operator Sandra why I asked the silly questions about Poughkeepsie. Another time, another line. And keep the Coras on call, New England, to safeguard the best of 100 years heritage.

COSMETOLOGY INSTRUCTOR

The Vo-Tech School Committee hired Beverly Mahoney as a cosmetology teacher, beginning Jan. 3, 1984, for the remainder of the 1983-84 school year.

Mahoney worked in cosmetology for 27 years, including seven years as an instructor at Brockton Academy, Supt. Dr. Cliff Easton said.

A cosmetology program will begin at Vo-Tech in January.

MANAGEMENT GOALS

The Vo-Tech School Committee approved deadline extensions for Supt. Dr. Cliff Easton's Management By Objective goals for the 1983-84 school year.

The committee also suggested Easton develop some personal goals and work to revise the student handbook.

The following is the list of MBO's approved by the committ

— To revise the English curriculum for Grades 9 through 12 and obtain school committee approval by Jan. 11.

— To work, as a member of the school committee team, with Federation Representatives to develop and implement a teacher evaluation system by Jan. 27.

— To design and implement an evaluation system of support staff (secretarial and custodial) by Jan. 6.

— To develop a five-year program and total school development plan for committee approval by Feb. 8.

— To develop a five-year budget plan linked with the program/school development plan by Feb. 8.

— To develop a plan to increase revenue through both in-school activities and funding from outside sources by March 14.

— To develop and implement a model program evaluation system by April 1984 for full operation during the 1984-85 school year.

— To promote a change in the regional agreement to permit programs of educational and fiscal value to occur outside of the eight communities comprising the South Shore Regional School District by Jan. 6, 1984.

Easton requested the committee evaluate him, saying, "I haven't been given a raise since a long time ago."

Committee member Joseph Downey, Jr., of Hanson said salary raises are usually reviewed by July 1. Board Chairman Walter Easttey of Abington said he thought the committee voted on a salary raise this past summer. The committee agreed this was not done, then agreed to evaluate Easton and school accountant Robert Kelley, Jr., who also was not evaluated this summer.

COMPUTER PURCHASED

The committee approved the purchase of a Terack computer from Mackesy Associates of Norton for $13,935. The unit will be used as drafting equipment since it has computer assisted design capabilities.

Drafting teacher Paul O'Donnell said, "This is an industrial machine. It is used by educational institutions all over the country. It's used by the Navy and Air Force."

It is three-dimensional and may be used as a word processor, he added. Work with the CAD program will supplement the current drafting program, with students spending 120 hours total on the system by the time they graduate, O'Donnell said.

The system uses an eight-inch floppy disk and is "state of the art," he said.

BIDS AWARDED

The Vo-Tech School Committee awarded the fuel contract for the 1983-84 school year to Belcher New England at a base price of .7940 per gallon at an escalation factor of 70 percent on a seven-day average.

The School Committee awarded Colony, Incorporated of Hingham, the low bidder, a contract for welding supplies at $4,752.70. Colony, Inc., the only bidder, was awarded the metal shop equipment contract for $3,273 to provide two welding wire feeders and two burning machines.

VILLAGE CHRISTMAS FAIR

New articles for the Children's Table will be gratefully received.

Please come and help-no talent needed.

Used books in good condition are needed for the Book Room. Books may be left at the rectory or call Alice Daunt at 383-1163.

Please plan on donations of baked goods or other food items for our Food Table. Bring all contributions to the Congregational Church Friday, Dec. 2, from noon until 4 p.m. or at 9 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 3.

For further information please call Grace Donohue, chairman, at 383-9288.

Second Congregational

By the Rev. John Benbow

Yes, I watched the ABC film dramatizing nuclear destruction. No, I was not aroused to demand either nuclear disarmament (labeled by William Buckley as "the debilitation of America") or the granting of all of the Pentagon's wishes (which appear to be the President's, as well) for more and more weapons.

And yes, my emotions were powerfully affected: tears came to my eyes when, in the aftermath of destruction, an overdue baby was born to a terrified mother. ("If you were in utero and had any choice in the matter," she had said earlier, "would you want to be born into this kind of world?")

To my own surprise, I found myself more in agreement with Henry Kissinger than with most of the other persons assembled to discuss the film. (Incidentally, did no one else notice that no women were on ABC's panel of response?) Dr. Kissinger noted that the film was simplistic, depicting the most devastating and possibly least likely scenario of nuclear war. I agree.

If nuclear weapons were to be unleased in the foreseeable future, it would most likely be as a terrorist act by a nation or faction which feels helpless. For nations as for persons, helplessness is the fuel of rage. This is one of the best arguments for maintaining a credible defense—and for honoring the defenses of other nations. One of the ironies of the nuclear age is that we must guard the security of other nations (even "enemy" nations) as rigorously as our own. We're all in this world together.

For me, viewing "The Day After" was an experience of the spirit. It was not a "conversion experience," radically altering my viewpoint; neither was it a "confirmation experience," confirming opinions already held. Instead, it was an experience like that part of our service of worship which is labeled "The Call to Prayer." As Christian persons, we are called to intercede for the world in prayer. We are called to pray for all who live in the nuclear age, enemies as well as allies, and for all of our leaders. We are called to pray and work for that peace on earth we can no longer so easily take for granted, and to ask God's blessing of peace for Reagan and for Andropov, for Gemayel and for Arafat.

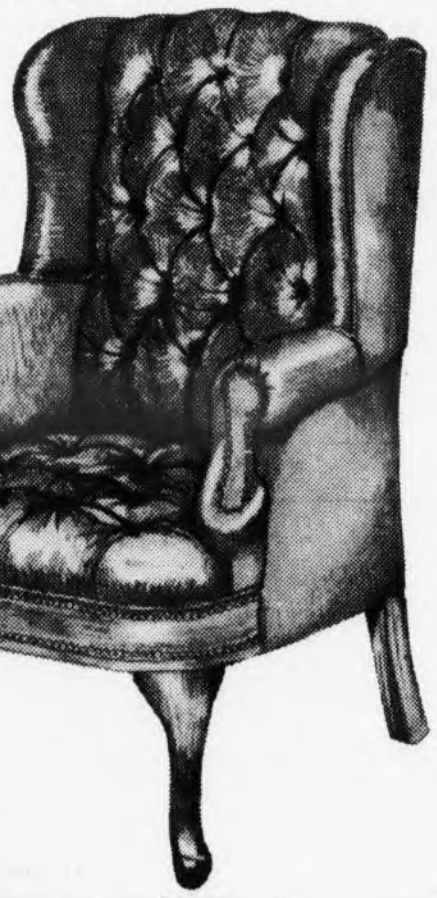
We are called to pray for children born into "this kind of world." Whatever else our own awareness of the realities of this world may do to us, we must allow it to be our call to prayer.

Messiah Sing

Let the joy of your Christmas season begin with our Messiah Sing next Sunday at 3 p.m. The orchestra and soloists are ready; the sanctuary is decorated; come join the performance and singalong of Handel's "Messiah." Listeners, please arrive early. Seating will be in the balcony which often fills by 2:30 p.m. For the reception which follows, we need donations of cookies, brownies, etc. Bring them to church any time Sunday.

Village Fair

Actual wreath making will begin Monday, Nov. 28 through Thursday, Dec. 1 from 9:30 to 4 p.m. in Bates Hall. Also, two evenings, Tuesday, Nov. 29, and Thursday, Dec. 1, from 7 to 9 p.m. Please come for all or part of the time, have some coffee, visit and work! Bring a friend.



Bargain Bazaar needs volunteers for Friday, Dec. 2, to help with pricing. This table is in need of grocery bags of all kinds.

Around Town

☐The powderpuff football game was held last Saturday, and it was reported to be the best game yet! The game was the closest that anyone could remember, with the seniors winning. It was reported the plays called in the huddle were the trickiest yet. The crowd was outstanding, the day beautiful, and a good time was had by all.

☐Congratulations to Ingrid Anderson, who was elected CHS Representative to Student Government Day; and to Mike DeSantis chosen alternate delegate.

Sha'aray Shalom

The Social Concerns Committee of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main St., Hingham, will sponsor a one day symposium on aging on Saturday, Dec. 3, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The symposium, open to the general public, will provide participants with the opportunity to explore many of their fears and questions regarding the aging process.

Workshops will be led by professionals in the field of gerontology. Films and group discussions during the day will focus on such issues as: the illness of a parent or spouse; the declining ability and/or increasing dependency of a parent, spouse or friend; financial complications; alternatives to nursing home placement; and dispersement of the nuclear family.

A registraton fee of $3 per person will cover morning refreshments and lunch. For more information on the day's schedule and registration, please call the Temple office at 749-8103.

Shabbat Service

Rabbi Stephen Karol of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, will conduct a Shabbat service Friday, November 25 at 8 p.m. Rabbi Karol will lead a Torah discussion during the service. An oneg shabbat (refreshments) will follow.

First Parish Church

Sunday, Nov. 27 at 10:30 a.m., First Parish Church, Unitarian-Universalist, will have as guest speaker Professor Richard A. Horsely of the University of Massachusetts-Boston.

The topic he has chosen is "When Peasant Leaders Challenge the Established Order: the Case of Jesus of Nazareth."

Dr. Horsely, a New Testament scholar specializing in Christian origins and the history of religions, chairs the Program in the Study of Religion at UMass. He has also held a faculty position at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, received his undergraduate degrees and doctorate at Harvard University, and has published numerous papers in scholarly journals.

First Parish Church welcomes visitors to this and other services.

The address will focus around the theory that Jesus was executed by the Romans as a political revolutionary and that he had, in fact, been preaching and organizing a social revolution in Galilee before he went to Jerusalem to challenge the ruling groups.

Our fifth annual First Parish Christmas Concert presented by the Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers and directed by Margo Euler will be held at the Meeting House on Cohasset Common Sunday afternoon, Dec. 11 at 4:30 p.m.

The program will feature "Laud to the Nativity" and also will include participatory singing of Christmas carols by the audience.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), an agency in Quincy for battered women and children that provides temporary shelter, a 24 hour crisis hotline, support groups, and court and welfare advocacy for victims of domestic violence on the South Shore.

Those wishing to become Patrons should mail a check for $25 or more, made payable to First Parish Christmas Concert, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset 02025.

Two tickets to the event will be returned to the donor by mail. For additional information call the church office, 383-1100, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. weekdays.

Young Life Nov. 29

Young Life of Hingham will hold a Parent's Mock Meeting in Barnes Auditorium at the Hingham Town offices, adjacent to the Hingham Public Library, Tuesday, Nov. 29, at 8 p.m.

The information evening is helpful to parents who have high school students interested in Young Life Club. Young Life is an informal meeting held weekly in the home of one of the high school participants. You will discover first hand the unique gifts Steve Oliver, director of Young Life in Hingham for over ten years, has been able to bring to the direction of youth in our community.

You will learn why guitar singing, acting, and camping experiences have meaning to those involved in the Young Life Club. Steve Oliver will answer questions as to the purpose of this Christian youth ministry, and why it is relevant to adolescents today. Refreshments will be served.

Holiday ornament contest gets underway Nov. 28

Hanover Mall's second annual Holiday Ornament Contest gets underway Monday, Nov. 28. The deadline for all entries is no later than 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 17. Last year, ornaments of baked dough, musical ornaments, and soft sculptured ornaments were submitted. There's no limit as to what can be submitted; in fact, creativity counts! So, don your artist's smock and follow these simple rules:

1. You may use any medium.
2. Deadline is no later than 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 17. Late entries cannot be accepted.
3. Age categories are 5-10, 11-17, 18 years and older.
4. You must be five years of age or older to enter.
5. Sorry, professional artists are not eligible.
6. All entries MUST have a "gift tag" attached with entrant's NAME, AGE, ADDRESS, AND PHONE NUMBER. Entries without this information will not be accepted.
7. Entries will be judged on Monday, Dec. 19. Judges' decisions are final. Winners will be notified by mail.
8. All entries become property of the Hanover Mall and will not be returned.

First, Second, and Third prizes will be awarded in each age category. First prize winners will receive $100 in Hanover Mall gift certificates; Second prize winners, $50 in Hanover Mall gift certificates; Third prize winner, $25 gift certificates. There will also be one Grand Prize winner for the Overall Best Entry in any category, and that lucky person will leave with $200 in Hanover Mall gift certificates!

So, if you didn't win last year, try it again this year. And, if you didn't ENTER last year, what are you waiting for?

When you OPEN A

Meet the Suhrbier family: Art Center, PSO

The Mariner is starting a new feature series on interesting people who live in Cohasset. If you know of any exciting people, call the Mariner. Ed.

By Theresa Sullivan

John and Robin Suhrbier are shown with their kids, Pat and Michael.

They live in an old house a few feet from the Village.

They are regulars at the Log 'n Line and they spend their summers between Sandy Beach and Cohasset Sailing Club.

One might think they are natives, but the Suhrbier family moved to Cohasset in August of 1982.

Robin Suhrbier is a junior high school representative to the Parent School Organization. She's a member of the Democratic Town Committee and she works part time as the South Shore Arts Center's publicity director.

Robin and some four other members of the PSO are in the preliminary stages of writing a student handbook for junior high and high school students. She says she enjoys writing brochures and directories.

While living in Minneapolis, Minn., Robin wrote a book called "Children's Activities Directory for the Twin Cities." "Our kids were really little (at the time,") she said. The directory included Recreation Depts., ski resorts, youth services, phone numbers and a hotline number, Robin said.

"We didn't just stick to the tourist things. We talked about Minnesota winters," she explained.

"I like doing handbooks; I find it interesting. I want to put one together for the Cohasset Sailing Club."

Robin lived and worked in New York City for a magazine. After moving with her family to Los Angeles, she continued to freelance for the publication.

John Suhrbier

John Suhrbier coaches two soccer teams, one in the spring and one in the fall. His coaching partner is Steve Geary. "I kind of like to work with kids and they needed coaches. Steve had some background (in soccer.) We seem to make a pretty decent team."

When asked why he enjoys coaching, John said, "I guess it's a whole bunch of little things. You see them work at something and get better at it, and you see them get happy.

"I guess I like teaching. There's a little bit of that in everybody. You're helping somebody learn something, the joy of seeing them succeed."

Last year John gave a computer demonstration to a Grade 6 class at Deer Hill School. He is electrical engineer working with computers.

He demonstrated a computer's capabilities on the school's microcomputer. "Kids getting involved with computers is good. They better learn how to use it and not be afraid of it or they're going to have a hard time."

He compared the necessity of computer literacy to the necessity of driving a car. "It's a tool. They have to learn how to use it.

"We don't ask if a secretary can type. We ask if she can word process," John said. His company has replaced all its typewriters with word processors, he said.

Their son Mike, 12, spent this summer sailing and swimming. In the winter he competes in ski races at Crotchet Mountain. John helps out with the other parents, allowing each of the 180 kids to ski two runs a day.

Patrick, 9, another son, has been taking piano lessons for five years. He also plays soccer.

"Getting involved helped us like the town," Robin said. "We got to know the people. I think when you move, if the parents are unhappy, the kids are unhappy.

"Any place you move to, if you've left a place you like it's really difficult. You really miss your old friends. It takes a good year to really adjust to the new area."

The Suhrbiers moved to Cohasset from Madison, Conn.

When they knew they were moving to the Boston area, they looked for a town with a similar flavor to Madison, Conn., Robin said. "We wanted to be in the center of town, in bicycling distance from the beach, schools and downtown."

She said mid-western people tend to be more friendly than Eastern people. But, she said, Cohasset residents were friendly to their family when they moved in.

Speaking of Cohasset, Robin said, "I love it. It's a great place to live."

Even though she's only lived in Cohasset a little over a year, Robin is already sounding like a long-time resident. "Cohasset has a lot to offer," she said. "I wouldn't even think of leaving Cohasset in the summer."

Some prose from the schools

Future Jargon
Chris Crowley

What is this language now being spoken?
With bits and bytes, peekin' and pokin',
PROM and EPROM, and parallel ports,
High resolution, and electrical shorts.

With lasers, masers, phasers and such!
Holograms, holographs, and holography's too much;
Positrons, hadrons, gluons are new,
Psi's, and charms, and anti-matter too.

DNA,RNA, and ATP are old
Compared to robotics, cybernetics, and droids, and more.
Light waves, microwaves, sine waves make it worse,
Without amplitude and modulation (just to make it terse).

This language of the future has already arrived,
Expressions like "insufficient wet-ware," replace the modern jive.
I feel like I'm an S-quark lost with e-space,
But, ya' know, this language seems to have its own special form of grace.

The Willow
By John Kuntz

Deep within the forest,
Among leaves of Emerald and jade,
A solitary willow stood,
In leafy masquerade.

And with its flowing branches,
The zephyrs softly played,
Calling for an echo,
A lonely nymph had made.

And to this silent kingdom,
The man a visit paid,
And crushed the mighty forest,
Where the creatures laughed and played . . .

Deep within the city,
With leaves all black and gray,
A solitary willow stood,
Among rubble of stone and clay.

Shrouded in her branches,
The mighty willow cried,
And high above the tenements,
A joyous echo died.

Looks Kill
By Glen Hochkeppel

Got back a test
From a teacher
With a grin
Of an axe-man cornering a victim
Don't you wish
Looks
Kill
Got pushed
By a kid
With the eyes
Of the biggest warthog of the litter shoving the runt out of its place
Don't you wish
Looks
Kill
Just been put down
By your best friend
With the air
Of a shoe crunching a cockroach
Don't you wish
Looks
Kill
If looks killed
Well
I guess there would be very few grudges
Until
One day you
Look
In the mirror and
Look
At what you've done and
Look.

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping . . . the flower-strewn meadows . . . and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street one mile to our entrance on the left. from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Can you imagine anything growing out-of-doors here in "the dark of December?" Neither could the Pilgrims when they set food on our grey, bleak South Shore and, as we all learned in the first grade, they were in dire straits that first winter. Most were tradesmen and artisans; indifferent fishermen, hunters and farmers. Some were more accustomed to bending over the Bible than the plowhorse, but those who survived, were thankful just to be alive. Even in those days our swamps and bogs were ideal for the wild berry they called "craneberries," a traditional part of our holiday meal. A way back in '75, Ellen Garretson wrote me the following note: "Always read your interesting column and would like to share with your readers a couple of cranberry recipes. The first has been a favorite with my sons for 20 years, long before I came to live on a cranberry bog. It's simply delicious, very easy and you don't have to chop the berries." Well, like a good joke, some recipes bear repeating, so here is Ellen's

BAKED CRANBERRY PUDDING

2 c. cake flour
1 c. sugar
2½ tsp. baking powder
3 T melted shortening
2/3 c. milk
1 egg
2 c. cranberries

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Add shortening, milk and egg. Beat 2 min. Stir in cranberries. Bake in 9 or 10" square pan, 350 oven about 40 min. Serves 9.

BUTTER SAUCE

Melt 1/2 c. butter in double boiler. Add 1 c. sugar and 3/4 c. light cream. Mix well. Cook over hot water about 5 min., stirring occasionally. Serve hot.

* * *

Among the leftovers at this time of year are pumpkins, pillowed high at roadside stands like unpurchased pine trees on Dec. 26. Many grocers are selling them at discount prices now and if you can find firm, small ones (between 3 and 5 pounds), which are the tastiest, they are the produce buy of the season. Use them in pies, soups, muffins and puddings. And, of course, you can go the canned pumpkin route to make Karen Menslage's

PUMPKIN NUT LOAF

Cream 2/3 c. shortening with 2½ c. sugar
Add 4 eggs
1 can pumpkin
2/3 c. milk
3 1/3 c. flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. baking soda
1½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. cinnamon
1½ tsp. powdered cloves
2/3 c. each walnut and raisins

Blend together and bake in either two 9x5x3 loaves, or five mini loaves that have been floured and greased, in 350 degree oven for 60 to 70 min., depending on size of pan. Can be frozen.

* * *

Weatherwise, our long holiday weekend usually doesn't lend itself to outdoor fun—unless you consider raking leaves a good time, but there are some of us who can work up quite an appetite just sitting by a warm fire. That's when it would be a good time to have a snack such as this, a sell-out at this fall's Cranberry Festival given by the Scituate Garden Club.

TOMATO CHEESE SPREAD

8 oz. cream cheese
1 c. fresh chopped tomatoes, drained, peeled and seeded
8 oz. grated cheddar cheese
1 stick sweet butter
1/3 grated onion
2 cloves crushed garlic, optional
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. cayenne pepper.

Combine all and spread on crax.

* * *

Now, here's a recipe I found in a very old cookbook I have, just right for Thanksgiving and called

RECEIPT FOR A NEW LIFE

Take yourself . . . peel off all layers of egotism and self pity . . . Cut out all seeds of unkind thoughts and unhappy emotions . . . Add to this one firm belief that life is worth living . . . Season with a sense of humor and optimism . . . To this add one firm determination to live at your highest every hour of every day, no matter what happens . . HAPPY THANKSGIVING.

Some historical thoughts on 'Cohasset Rocks'

By David Wadsworth
Historical Society Curator

In 1808, the first ocean-going lifeboat constructed in the United States was stationed on the shore of Cohasset, near the treacherous ledges known to seafarers as the "Cohasset Rocks."

Stretching in a line from the town's Black Rock Beach to Scituate's Glades Point, these fearsome obstructions formed an area of constant hazard to mariners approaching the port of Boston, and were famous for the toll of ships and lives they claimed each year.

Thus it was that one of America's earliest volunteer lifesaving organizations, the Massachusetts Humane Society, based its new and experimental lifeboat in the sheltered waters of Cohasset Harbor.

The site chosen for the Society's first boathouse was the small inlet known today as Whale Meadow. The new lifeboat, constructed in Nantucket by shipwright William Raymond, was patterned after a successful design made by Henry Greathead for the Royal Humane Society in Great Britain.

It was 30 feet in length, with a beam of 10 feet, provided for 10 to 12 oarsmen, was steered by long oars, one placed at each of its sharply pointed ends, and was designed to carry up to 20 rescued persons.

The cost of the new boat was $1,433.11 and of the Whale Meadow boathouse $160.

Humane Society records list the first commanders of the Cohasset lifeboat as Captains John Jacobs Lothrop and his brother, Peter Lothrop, members of a prominent Cohasset seafaring family.

There appears to be no local record of the first shipwreck the local volunteer lifesavers assisted, but they were busy, as the Cohasset Rocks continued to claim their dreadful toll.

In 1813, the lifeboat house at Whale Meadow (now referred to as the "White Head Station") was used by the assembled units of Massachusetts militia defending the harbor from marauding British warships whose troops had been burning the small seaports of Cape Cod and southeastern Massachusetts.

The Cohasset defense was successful, and the English flotilla departed local waters after seeing the strength of militia forces.

In 1831, Cohasset lifesavers received medals for heroic service as the vessel "Boston" struck Cohasset Rocks and foundered. In 1857 more awards were made to the lifeboat crew for their action at the sinking of the brig "New Empire" near Minot's Ledge.

By that time, Humane Society lifesaving stations formed an unbroken line from the New Hampshire border to Rhode Island, and several hundred volunteer crews maintained lifeboats of various sizes. Among them, those at Cohasset, Hull and Scituate were perhaps the busiest. The 1869 Humane Society list included lifeboats Nos. 20 and 21 at Whitehead under Alfred Whittington, and boat No. 19 at a newer station near Pleasant Beach commanded by hotel-keeper Peter Kimball.

The Pleasant Beach boat had been constructed in part by funds given by Boston merchant and shipowner Enoch Train.

At that time the Cohasset lifesavers also maintained a smaller "surfboat" at Hull's Gun Rock inlet, then known as Symon's Cove, commanded by Thomas Hudson.

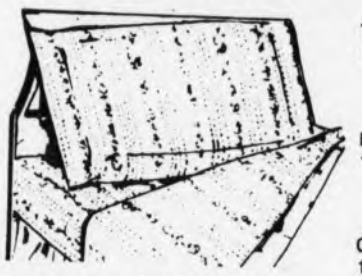
It was the Pleasant Beach lifeboat (a later model noted as boat No. 23) that made a vain effort to rescue the stranded crew of the coal vessel "Lucy Nichols" at the height of the Great Gale of 1898, an effort which saw the lifesavers pitched into ranging seas at Black Rock Beach as their boat capsized.

Though their boat was severely damaged, the lifesavers themselves made their way back to safety by swimming through pounding surf. The crew of boat No. 23 on that day were: William J. Brennock, Captain; Antoine Salvador, Albert J. Morris, John E. Fratus, Frank Salvador, George E. Antoine, Joseph J. Grassie, Joseph E. Grassie, James E. Brennock, Thomas A. Brennock, Manuel E. Salvador and Frank F. Martin, Jr.

Not so fortunate several days later were the crews of the Cuttyhunk and Monomoy lifesaving stations who perished while on similar missions of mercy.

The crew of "Lucy Nichols," trapped near their sunken vessel at Cohasset's Black Rock, later were rescued by the Hull lifeboat under command of the famous lifesaver Capt. Joshua James.

In 1912, the Humane Society's list shows Cohasset's lifesavers manning boat No. 22 at Gun Rock Cove under B.A. Atwood and boat No. 23, along with "Hunt Gun" (a small cannon used for firing lifelines) at Pleasant Beach under Capt. Frank Salvador.



In 1918 a new type of non-sinkable motor lifeboat built for the Society by George Lawley & Sons shipyard was tested in the waters off Cohasset. In 1930 the Pleasant Beach station had two boats, one motor powered, and a Hunt Gun, operated under Arthur O. Wood.

But America's great "Age of Sail" was drawing to a close, and most lifesaving duties were being taken over by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Humane Society closed its Pleasant Beach station in 1941 and sold the remaining lifeboat. The old boathouse itself was destroyed by a fierce Atlantic hurricane in 1944, thus ending the 136 year tradition of volunteer lifesaving in Cohasset.

Frances Rita Antoine

Frances Rita (O'Connor) Antoine, 78, a retired licensed practical nurse who was active in community organizations, died Saturday in Carney Hospital, Dorchester, after a long illness.

She was born in Worcester and had lived in Cohasset for several years. She was a member of the Ladies Sodality of St. Anthony's Church, the 60-Plus Club, Cohasset Nurses' Club, George H. Mealy Legion Post Auxiliary, Cohasset Women's Club, Girl Scouts, Council on Aging and Red Cross.

Wife of the late Abraham Joseph Antoine, she leaves a daughter, Rita M. Carroll of Dorchester; a son, A.J. Antoine, and a daughter-in-law, Marjorie King Antoine of Cohasset; a brother, Timothy J. O'Connor of Needham; a sister, Mary B. Taylor of Florida; nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the Kidney Center, 1055 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, or the Carney Hospital, 2100 Dorchester Ave., Boston.

Art Center plans noon programs to suit schedule

The holiday season will usher in a series of fun programs at the South Shore Art Center, programs designed to give a brief interlude to the busy schedules of holiday preparation.

The Center, 103 Ripley Rd., has planned three noontime programs geared to fit everybody's busy work and pre-holiday schedules.

Participants are invited to "drop in" at the Center at high noon Wednesdays, Nov. 30, Dec. 7 and Dec. 14 for coffee, dessert and a creative demonstration or talk.

Gift wreaths of wildflowers, weeds and herbs will be demonstrated by Marion Bush of Hingham at the Nov. 30 noontime program.

Materials and dried flowers will be available for purchase at the Center.

The Dec. 7 program will feature Pam Martell of Scituate discussing her soft sculpture and kimonos and Donna Kelly of Cohasset demonstrating how to create a small gift basket. Participants may also enjoy seeing Martel's work in the current exhibit Textiles in the Invitational Gallery and Kelly's baskets in the Center's Holiday Shop.

"Meet the Artists" is the program planned for Dec. 14 and will feature artists Judeth Van Hamm Weirs and Harriet Zabusky-Zand.

Both women will discuss and demonstrate what will be taught during their mid-term workshops planned for January.

Weirs who will teach "Seeing Selectively" Jan. 9 through Jan. 13 will give an overview of this course and will discuss how to decide what to paint and what goes into a painting decision.

Zand, is scheduled to teach Portrait Basics, Jan. 9 through Jan. 13, will demonstrate in watercolor her approaches to painting a portrait.

Participants in the Wednesday noontime events will also have an opportunity to browse in the Center's Holiday Shop filled with handmade gifts for all ages.

For inquiries regarding these activities or the Holiday Shop call the Center at 383-9548. Participants may bring bag lunches.

CCC basket workshop

The last Basket Workshop for the Cohasset Community Center fall session is offered Wednesday evenings, Nov. 30 and Dec. 7, from 7 to 9 p.m. Sign up to create the Garden Basket, a flat reed, rectangular, shallow basket. The instructor is Donna Darling Kelly and the $16 cost includes all materials. Preregistration is required. Call 383-0088 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays.

SAFARI IN KENYA

If you wish to take a truly exciting look "inside" Africa, Kenya offers all that you could hope for. This 244,960 square mile republic offers "Africa", past and present. Consider that it has nearly 35 national parks and game preserves. It has game lodges, ice climbing at the Equator, scuba diving in the Indian Ocean, hot air ballooning and more. You can witness the largest migration of mammals anywhere in the world, ascend the second highest mountain on the continent or visit the second largest lake in the world, Lake Victoria. Surely, you will also want to go on safaris which are offered in any degree of ruggedness. Kenya offers enchantment.

An exciting world of travel is available to you at COLPITTS TRAVEL CENTER. We are familiar with the major resorts around the world, as well as intimate vacation spots to less known places. We can arrange an exciting vacation holiday to meet your budget requirements. Plan to visit us soon at 3 Brook St., Scituate. Most major credit cards honored. Tel. 545-4500 and 383-1717. To all our many friends and neighbors, we wish you a very Happy Thankgsgiving.

TRAVEL TIP

The word "safari" in Swahili means "to travel".

Snowflake Fair Dec. 3

Margaret Bonney's eyes looked off as if to a far away place; she smiled, savouring memories from her 75 years. Having been a lifetime member of the First Parish Church in Scituate, she spoke fondly of the history of the upcoming Snowflake Fair, a tradition which church members and townspeople alike look foward to.

It began in 1929, when the fair was called a Christmas Sale and was sponsored by the Alliance, the women's group in the church. The women have historically played a very important role in the church—making sure that the church survived economically.

By sewing and cooking items to sell, organizing rummage sales, dinners, socials, and the like, the women kept the doors of the church open through some of its poorest times.

The Christmas Sale, with its hand-sewn items, wreaths, baked goods, jams and candies, was another effort by the Alliance to bring in needed revenue. The proceeds went to the Alliance and were then spent on the upkeep of the church.

By 1950, a group of younger women forming the Unity Club joined the Alliance in sponsoring what was then called the Snowflake Fair; and by 1970, it was an all-church event with the proceeds being split between the Unity Club, the Alliance and the church treasury.

Margaret says the fair hasn't changed much over the time in its basic structure, but the Alliance and Unity Club are always trying to come up with interesting and attractive gift ideas.

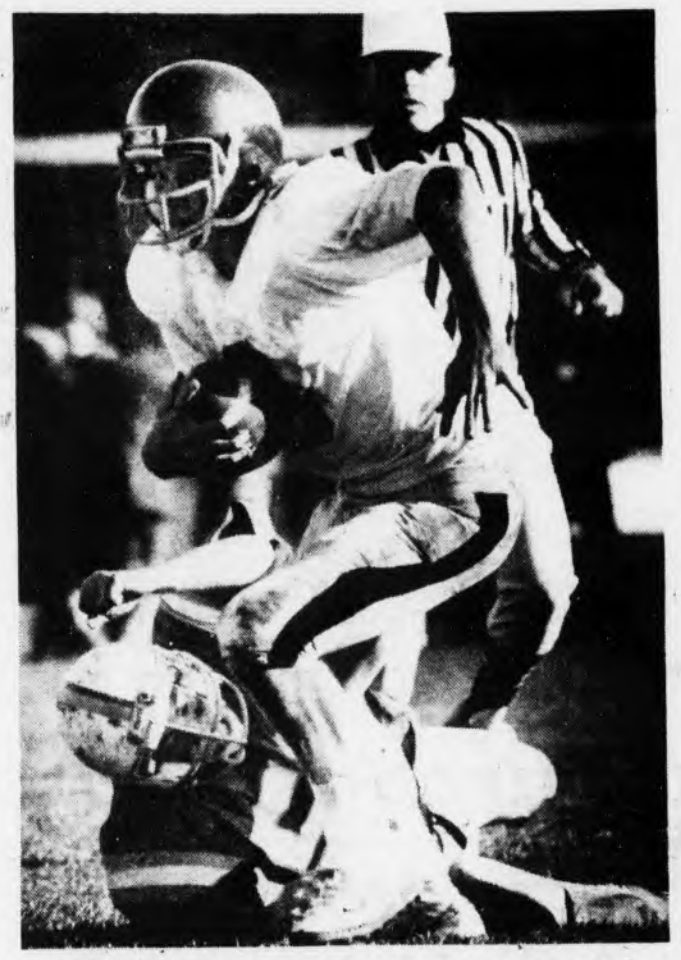
This year's fair promises a selection of hand-made stuffed animals, knitted goods, pillows, hand-sewn items, wreaths, baked goods, jams, fudge, and many other holiday treats. Dec. 3 is the date of the Snowflake Fair as it is traditionally held on the first Saturday in December.

CHS presents 'Grease'

Dec. 4, 8, 9, and Dec. 10 Cohasset High School will present the musical "Godspell".

Like "Grease" performed last year, this all-school musical promises to provide excellent entertainment for the whole family and for the community.

Proceeds will benefit the newly formed Performing Arts Scholarship Fund. This revolving fund has been established to provide "seed" money for future all-school musicals and for scholarships for Cohasset High School seniors who have demonstrated talent and dedication in the performing arts. In the spring of 1983, two $250 scholarships were awarded.



The Parent School Organization, in cooperation with Cohasset High School asks the public to consider serving as a patron for "Godspell" and, in so doing, making a worthwhile contribution to the Performing Arts Scholarship Fund.

Contributions are tax deductible and will be earmarked specifically for scholarships. Patrons will be listed in the program and, for businesses, space for a small advertisement is available.

Please consider this worthwhile cause and the creative aspirations of the students. To become a sponsor, please send your contribution (checks payable to Cohasset High School) to Mrs. Barbara Donahue, 185 Jerusalem Rd., by Monday, Nov. 28. Donations will be welcome at any time, however, only patrons responding by the above date can be listed in the program.

"Godspell" performances are scheduled in the High School Auditorium for: Sunday, Dec. 4 at 2 p.m.; Thursday, Dec. 8 at 8 p.m.; Friday, Dec. 9 at 8 p.m.; and Saturday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $3. Reserved seats are available now from all cast members, or call Barbara Donahue at 383-0132.

Seahawk report . . .

BANTAMS

The Bantam A team coached by Phil Thomas lost to Weymouth last weekend, 5-1. Jeff Hartwell assisted by Danny Pompeo scored the only tally for the Seahawks.

In Pembroke, the Bantam team was victorious over Plymouth, 6-3. Andy Thomas dented the nets for two points while Mulcahy, Pompeo, Ahern, and Fitzpatrick had one each. Assists went to Pompeo (2), Fitzpatrick, Flaherty and Mulcahy.

Steve Chalmers' Bantam B team edged Hingham, 3-2, in Cohasset, Sunday. Jamie Hoffman (2) and Scott Ruddick provided the scored on feeds from Mike Henderson, James Misakian and Jon Hoyler. Mike Brown did another fine job in net.

The Bantam C team coached by Chris Brennan was defeated by Hanover, 5-2, in Pembroke last weekend. The Seahawks led 2-0 on goals by Brian McGovern and unfortunately, that ended the scoring for the "Hawks". Despite the loss, Kevin Gibbons made some fantastic saves in net.

SQUIRTS

The Squirt "A" team dropped a tough game to the Hingham Harbormen 7-3. Leading 3-2, into the third period, the seahawks gave up five unanswered goals. Scores for the Hawks were posted by Jon Mahoney, (2) unassisted, and Billy Tibbetts with assists from Getto and Ventoleri.

The Squirt "C'S" also went down to defeat, dropping a 7-0 decision to Whitman-Hanson at Kingston.

PEEWEES

The PeeWee "A'S" successfully kept their winning streak alive with a 6-1 defeat of Hingham. Pat Glennon and Paul Norton each scored a pair of goals to lead the attack and Billy Lincoln and Damon Sparrow added single tallies.

Assists were credited to John Zimmer (2), Chris Sullivan, Brian Pompeo, Paul Norton, Erik Steverman, and Steve Boardman. Once again, Scott McCay turned in a strong performance in net.

The PeeWee "B'S" also put forth a solid effort in besting Hingham 5-3. Mark Resnick led the charge with two goals and single tallies were added by Bill Hingston, Dennis Peacock, and Mike Dunden.

Jay Harris and Danny Kessinger were credited with two assists each and Greg Neville and Mark Resnick also received assists.

The PeeWee "C'S" tied Whitman-Hanson-Kingston 3-3, keeping the PeeWee record for the week intact. Coming from a 2-0 deficit the Seahawks put on a charge scoring three unanswered goals. With 54 seconds left, W-H-K scored the tying goal. Goal scorers for the Hawks were David Pertrello, Jason Scott, and David Smith.

MITES

Coach Mark Salvador's Mite A team crushed Hanover this weekend, 9-1. In this shooting match, scores were tallied by Scott Peacock (2), Keith McCready (2), Joey Andrade, Jeffrey Thomas, Mike Balestra, Stephen Peacock, and Allison Salvador.

Assists were credited to Allison Salvador (2), Joey Andrade, Mike Balestra, Stephen Peacock, and Ekas. Guy Scarpaci did a fine job in net.

In the second game, the Mites lost a close one to Plymouth, 4-3. Goals were scored by Mike Balestra, Scott Peacock, and Allison Salvador assisted by Andrade (2), Salvador, and Balestra.

OSGOOD

Thanksgiving Poetry by Shirley Manna's Third Graders

What Thanksgiving Means to Me by Jennifer Knowles

Thanksgiving means a turkey.
Thanksgiving means sharing with your family.
Thanksgiving means sharing with a friend.
Thanksgiving means loving!

Turkey by Peter Collins

Turkey, Turkey so plump and fat.
You'll make a dinner for us.
Add some carrots, peas and rice.
We'll cut you, we'll chop you
And have you for dinner.

The Turkey by Matthew Gromada

The turkey is so dumb, you know
He has no common sense.
Just between you and me
I think he's very dense.
He isn't very smart
Because he smells like a tart!

THANKSGIVING STUDIES

Mrs. Price's Kindergarten classes culminated their Thanksgiving unit of study on the Pilgrims and Indians last week. They learned about the Mayflower and met a friendly Indian, Samoset, who with his Indian friends, helped the Pilgrims learn to build, weave and plant seeds.

The children did cutting and sewing of Indian canoes, made Indian vests, Indian figures and Pilgrims, and paper and pine cone turkeys.

The classes brought cards and treats to their "instant grandparents" at the Ripley Road Nursing Home Nov. 22 and Nov. 23 where they shared a Thanksgiving party.

WEATHER CENTER

Room 12 has a weather center. Every day the students observe the wind velocity, precipitation, or lack thereof, cloud conditions and temperature. They record the observations on a chart which is taken home on Fridays. Some children are saving their charts so they can check at the end of the school year to determine how many sunny days, how many rainy or snowy days; which was the hottest or coldest day during their time in first grade with Mrs. Fink.

DEER HILL

READ ALOUD STORIES

Mrs. Magoun's and Mrs. Cisnero's sixth grade English classes got together to read and comment on their creative writing stories.

The program went like this: a pupil from Mrs. Magoun's class got up to read. When he or she was finished, the students from both classes were able to comment on the stories. They followed this procedure until all 10 children, five from each class, were finished.

The children who read stories were Dudley Bryan, Brooke Anderson, Veronica DeVos, Robin Haynes, Kenny Caristi, Julie Manns, Minday Johnston, Brian Pompeo, Brian Shultz and Mary Vallas.

Overall, the children reading and criticizing them had so much fun that they will be getting together in the near future to do it again.

A FEW NOTES FROM MRS. DALBECK

Mrs. Dalbeck, the band teacher at Deer Hill, is preparing for the Deer Hill band concert which will be held Thursday, Dec. 15, at 7:30 p.m., in the Cohasset High School auditorium. Fifty advanced band students in the fifth and sixth grades will perform. Mrs. Dalbeck taught in Holden for 12 years before she moved to Cohasset. She has lived here for three years, and was a substitute teacher for two of them. This is her first year teaching band at Deer Hill. "I enjoy teaching," she said.

Submitted by Neely Hemassi and Lauren Isele.

ARTS AND CRAFTS OF MEXICO

CHS art teacher Tom Lucas and 1983 AFS'er Kathy Corbett have put together a colorful and most interesting display of arts and crafts of Daxaca, Mexico, in the school's central display case. Both Lucas and Corbett visited Daxaca and donated Mexican artifacts for the exhibition.

The Spanish classes were involved by naming and labeling all the items on display.

Raffle at St. Paul's school

Raffle winners at St. Paul's School PTO annual Christmas fair will walk home with Waterford crystal, two passes for New York Air, bride dolls, handmade baby and full-sized quilts, a handmade train toy box and numerous other items.

The raffle table is among many tables of homemade and donated goods offered annually to raise funds for the parochial school which is located in downtown Hingham across the street from Talbot's retail store.

The fair will be held on Friday, Dec. 2, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Dec. 3, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school hall at 18 Fearing Road. The public is invited to attend.

Featured items at the fair will include a white elephant table, book table, homemade candy and fudge, knitted goods, handmade decorations and gifts, houseplants, greens and poinsettias and a Santa photo booth. Coffee, doughnuts and a luncheon, including clam chowder, hot dogs, pizza, meatball subs and drinks will be available.

Christmas trees will be sold in the parking lot outside the school. Games for children will be offered and Hingham resident, Catherine Pietrafitta, will do calligraphy.

The committee for this year's fair includes: Jeanne Park of Scituate, Susan Harrington of Cohasset, Debbie Bowman of Norwell and Chris Kirk of Hingham.

Cohasset Historical Society reports good fiscal year

By Melanie Mars

The Cohasset Historical Society came through the year (Nov. 1, 1982 to Oct. 31, 1983) with a positive cash balance according to the Society's fiscal report.

The Society in its 55th year held its annual meeting Thursday, Nov. 17, which included dinner and a guest speaker, Henry Dormitzer, of Cohasset, a maritime historian. The meeting was held at the Unitarian Parish House Hall.

"This has been a good year but we're not out of the woods yet," said Bob James, a member of the Historical Society.

James referred to the Caleb Lothrop house which the society recently purchased and is restoring the house. "We still owe $22,000 towards the purchase of the Lothrop House," he added.

This past summer's tours of the Cox Estate were a huge success for the Historical Society. They had over 1,500 visitors netting a total of $4,500 for the society according to James.

Another successful event was the Appraisal Day held Nov. 12 at the Lothrop house.

"We have been asked and will have another appraisal day in the spring," said Constance Parker, Historical Society president.

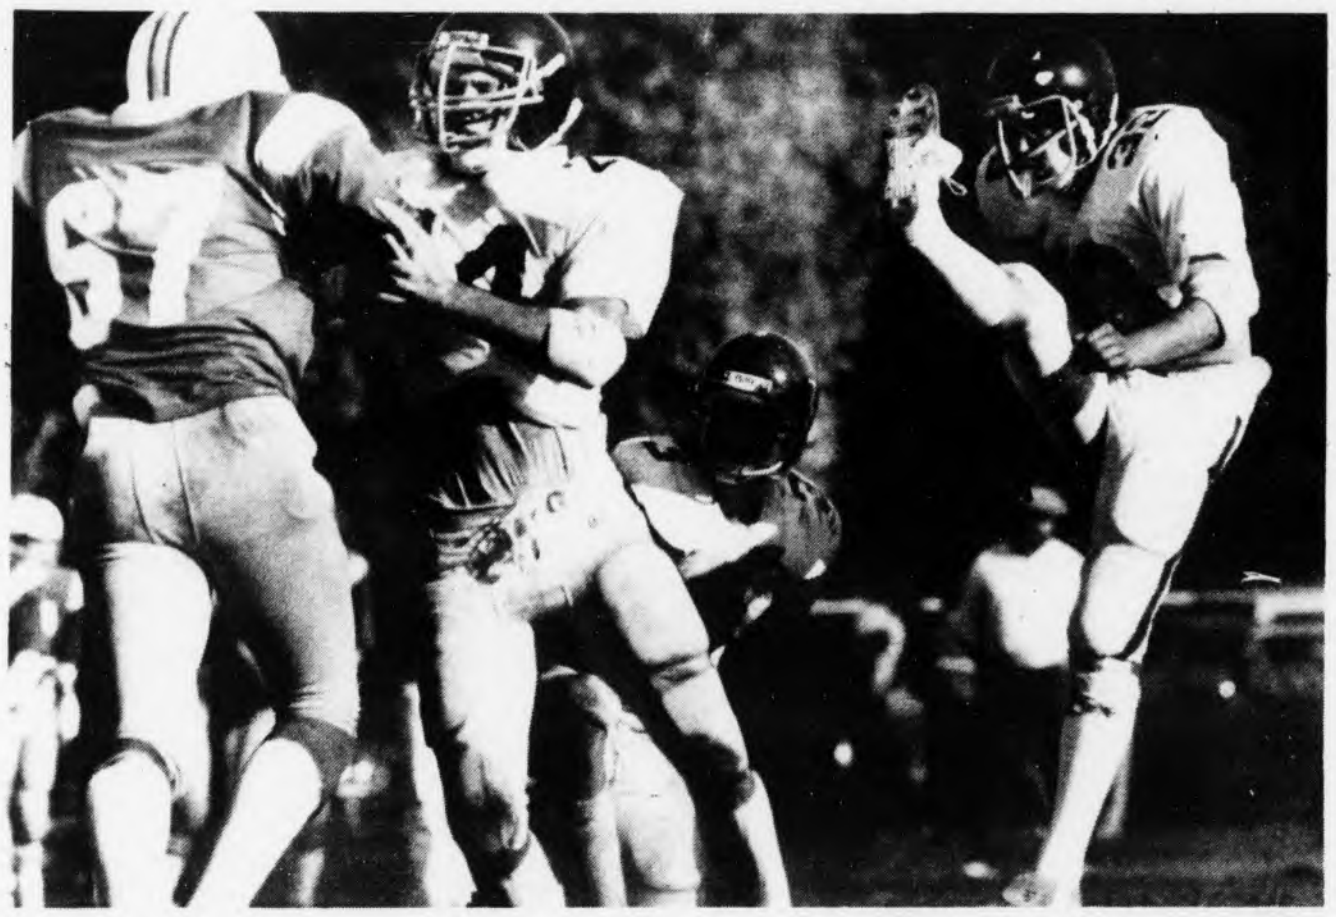
Parker informed the members the major work in the basement of the Lothrop House is complete. The basement was excavated and concrete was laid, making it a safe, dry place to store the gowns from the Independence Gown Museum which was recently returned to the town.

"The building had developed constructional faults," said Parker.

She added the society is not auctioning or selling any of the gowns.

Most of the gowns have already been removed from the Independence Gown Museum. Now Parker and David Wadsworth, curator, are cleaning out the attic of the building.

"We were very surprised by what we found up there," said Parker.



They have discovered 50 linen petticoats.

After all of the items have been taken from the museum, the society plans to call in experts from the Merrimac Textile Co.

"They will tell us the proper storage, packaging and filing of the items," Parker said.

She added, "Once we know what we have, we will be better able to make use of them."

"The items should be out of the building by the end of this winter," Parker said.

#33 Lee Wilson, a senior, got an extra point for Cohasset against Norwell earlier this season. (Derr)

New property figures draw complaints

By Mike Berger

The conversation in Cohasset this week was almost unanimous. Every homeowner received their new property revaluation figure.

For some, the figures were staggering as the assessment doubled.

The problem is not necessarily the amount of taxes to be paid as it is people are wondering if they can sell their home at 100 percent revaluation price.

For example, a small house with two rooms was valued around $80,000.

Comments heard around the village and Town Hall are many people feel the assessments are over-priced.

But these prices were not calculated by the Board of Assessors.

To complete 100 percent revaluation, the board hired Appraisal Consultants of New England.

The revaluation procedures were tentatively certified recently by the state officials. This meant the assessors office could send out these preliminary re-assessment figures to homeowners.

Those homeowners who question the figures were told in a letter to call the Assessors Office at 383-1640 and make an appointment with an official from Appraisal Consultants until Friday, Dec. 2.

Interviews will be conducted the following week.

Once the interviews are completed and revisions made, a final list of figures will be given to the Board of Assessors for a final review.

If the board accepts the figures, a new tax rate of $19 per $1,000 valuation will be set in mid-January.

Assessor Chairman Brian Wilkin said the Assessors Office received many calls Monday concerning how the assessors calculated the reassessment figures.

At this stage, he said, assessors do not get involved with the calculations.

Appraisal Consultants is required to set up the appointments, hold the hearings and "square away any problems."

Before 100 percent revaluation was required by the state, Cohasset was assessing property at 42 percent of fair market value.

Wilkin said there is "no rule of thumb" that a property valuation will double as a result of 100 percent revaluation.

It depends, he said, how the property was valued under the old valuation figure and its value in a "fair market value" formula.

Deer Hill Outdoor School question unresolved

By Cindi Bondi

School Committee members and parents discussed every alternative from expanding the fifth grade outdoor school to abolishing the program at a Monday meeting.

Superintendent Eugene Crowell wants a consensus of agreement from the school committee and the parents.

He read a letter which said, "Knowing that the school committee thinks the outdoor school should continue . . ." He paused to ask, "Did I make an assumption that is not true?"

Crowell received mixed reactions to his question.

School Committee member Jack Langmaid said, "We have to determine whether the teachers want to continue outdoor school. Also, to me, $200 for four days of outdoor school is way out of the ballpark."

Committee member Diana Kornet agreed financial cost increases work against continuing the outdoor school.

"There would be an increased expense to families and to the school," she said. "I would like to suggest a sixth grade outdoor school instead. In the meantime we would have a year to find out how many families want to shell out $200."

The committee discussed a possible fall outdoor program for sixth graders to begin next year.

Deer Hill School Principal Kenneth Ekberg said he was not opposed to a fall program. He added, "Outdoor school costs were approximately $50, when the program began 10 years ago."

Teacher Christine Collins said, "I have had experience as a fifth and sixth grade teacher. I do not think that fall is a good time for outdoor school because the students and teachers have not had enough time to form a comradery."

Committee member Joseph Nedrow said, "For two of my children, outdoor school was an intrical part of their fifth grade experience. There ought to be some sort of financial compensation."

Two years ago outdoor school meant taking an overnight trip. During the past two years outdoor school has taken afternoon trips to marshes or beaches, to view a tidal pool or other educational experiences 'with a local flavor.'

Ekberg said, "Kids don't need the camp experience of going overnight just to go overnight. The original idea

Rev. Muir explains elderly housing plan

Rev. Richard Muir of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church will resign from his position Jan. 1 because he wants to devote more time to planning an elderly housing project.

Rev. Muir said there is an urgent need to develop this project because there are not enough housing alternatives for senior citizens.

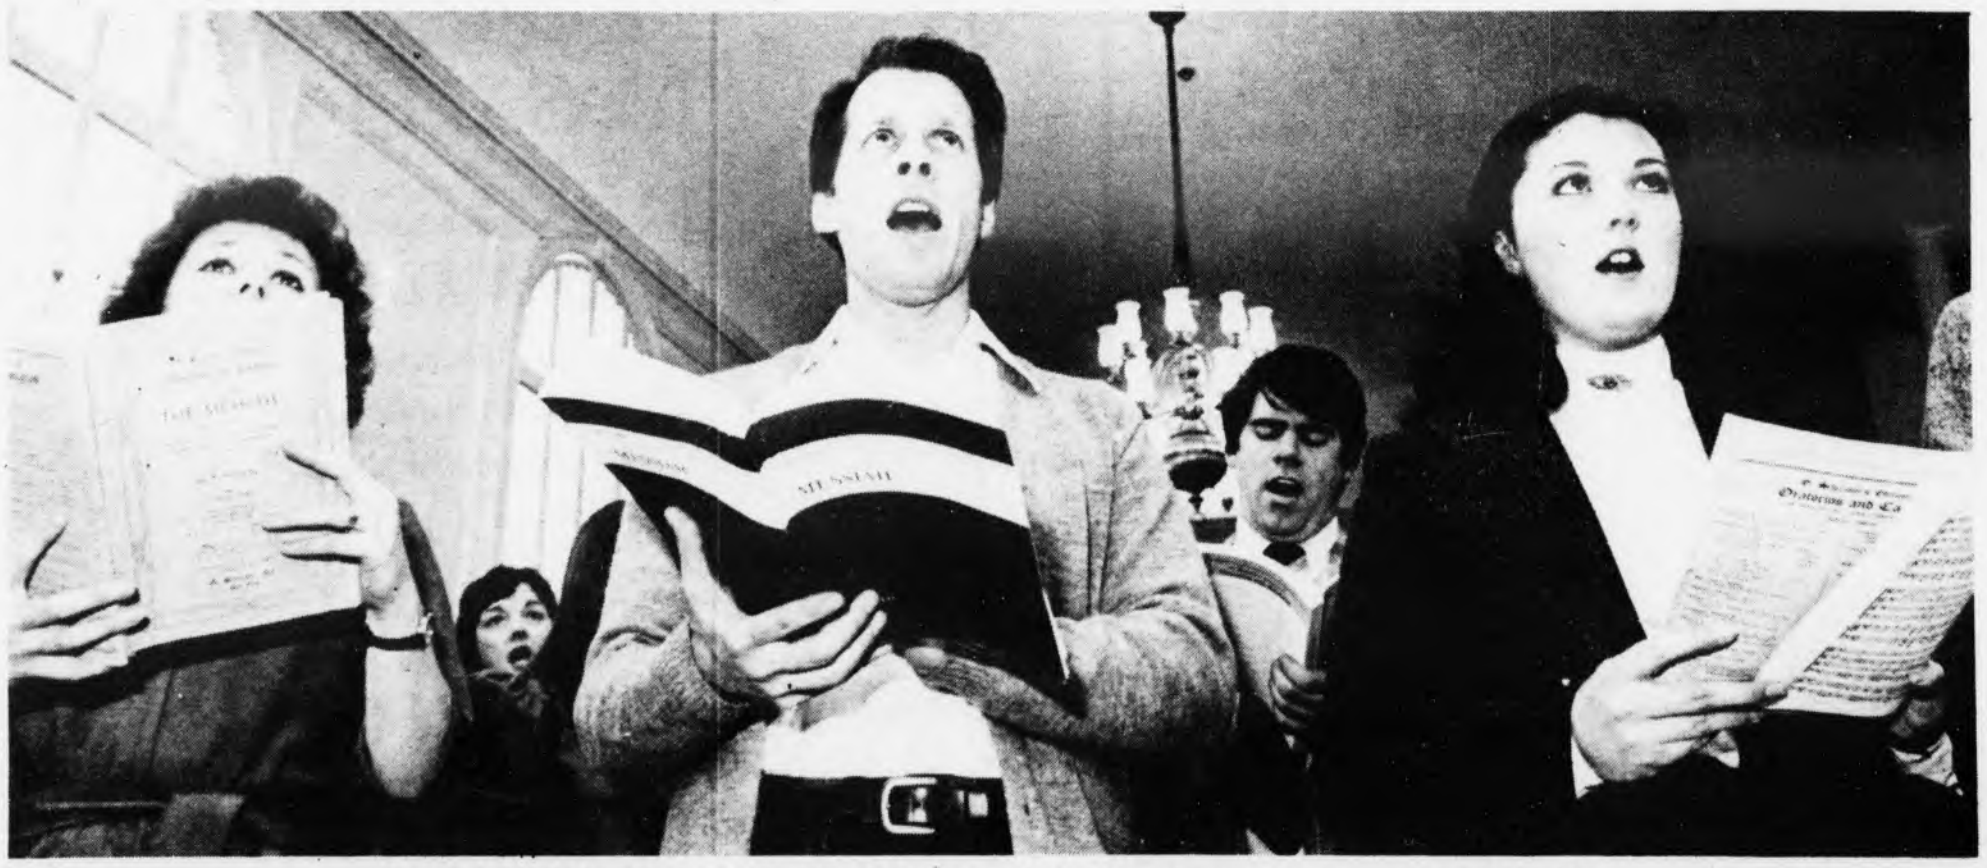
Many Cohasset residents, he said, are forced to go into nursing homes when "they are young and healthy" because there are not enough small houses available for older people.

The second but equal reason for the project is to help those people who do not have the financial resources to "find a place to live."

Last week The Patriot Ledger published an article which said the church plans to use church funds to build an elderly housing complex.

The story said the complex will consist of at least 24 apartments and will range from efficiencies to one and two bedroom dwellings.

Preliminary plans, said the article, call for a pavilion with a food store, gift shops and work areas where tenants can do woodworking or pottery.



When some church members were called by the Mariner last week, they refused comment because they said the Ledger article had misinformation and because the sole project spokesman was Rev. Muir.

Rev. Muir was unavailable for comment last week.

However he said this week he would prefer not to talk to the press.

"We are not in a position to make anything definite. I would at first like to report to the congregation on the feasibilty study before we report to the community," said Rev. Muir.

"We have many unanswered questions in our own minds on what we are going to do. But what we can say at this point is we are concerned as a church about adequate housing in this community," he said.

People join in the "Messiah Sing" held Sunday night at the Second Congregational Church.

Pape family to retire

The Pape family, who maintain and store the school buses on their Rte. 3A facility, have informed School Supt. Eugene Crowell they plan to retire next year. This means the school board must find a way to maintain and store the buses.

Correction

Beginning this weekend, Cohasset High School will present "Godspell" and not "Grease" as last week's headline indicated. Grease was performed last year.

New coaches appointed

Three new coaches were appointed at a Monday School Committee meeting.

John Bowen was appointed head ice hockey coach. Superintendent Eugene Crowell said, "Bowen has an extensive background. He was assistant track caoch at Norwich University, a coordinator of the special olympics, and a coach at Wilmington University in Vermont."

Thomas Flaherty will serve as assistant ice hockey coach.

Torin Sweeney, a 1981 Cohasset High School graduate, will be the wrestling coach.

Computer course approved

The School Committee approved a computer course for elementary school teachers. Dennis Walsh will teach the staff. Seven hundred and $50 will be spent for this research and development program.

Math course overview

Charles Davis presented an overview of math courses in all Cohasset schools including a breakdown of estimated costs and an estimate of $20,000 in computer hardward and software.

The School Committee will continue to examine the school budget to determine how much the expense of each program, or which programs, will be cut.

This week Davis proposed estimated costs of $2,400 for Osgood School, $8,000 for Deer Hill School and $9,000 for the Junior Senior High School math departments.

Honor system discussed

School Committee asked Senior Class President Jennifer Ralff and Student Council President John Replogle to discuss the possibility of an honor system at the Junior-Senior High School.

An honor system was established a few years ago but committee members do not know when the program is obsolete.

Hallmark 100 Properties

Chris Ford has become the sole owner and principal broker of Hallmark 100 Properties in Cohasset.

Hallmark 100 Properties is a 100 percent commission office started by former owner David Kuendig in 1980.

Sales associates have the option of paying an annual fee and retaining 100 percent of the commission or of participating on a standard commission basis.

Chris Ford was Hallmark 100's first 100 percent commission sales associate and during the past 12 months Ford personally completed a total of over $2.5 million in listing and sales transactions.

Chris lives in Cohasset with his wife Karen, who is also a Hallmark 100 sales associate. Their three children are Cohasset school students. Chris is a 1959 graduate of Cohaset High School and holds a Ph.D. from Michigan State University. Prior to becoming active in real estate, Ford was a university professor for eight years and also worked as a legislative aide in the U.S. State House of Representatives for four years.

Firefighters object to private ambulance service

By Bill Hayward

Firefighters from Cohasset, Scituate and Hull objected to a private ambulance service at a meeting of the Ambulance Study Committee Nov. 29.

Representatives from Brewster and Bay State ambulance services presented their qualifications to the committee and answered questions.

Arthur Dove of Bay State ambulance service said he did not want to offend the firefighters. "We feel the firemen here do the job sufficiently."

Dove told the committee that Bay State has over 40 ambulances and a communication tower on the Prudential building in Boston.

He said the average Bay State Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) works 60 hours per week, but that the maximum work shift was limited to 33 hours.

George Brewster of Brewster Ambulance Service said his EMTs are limited to 8 hour shifts and allowed to work a maximum of 45 hours per week.

He added that Brewster only hires experienced EMTs and they are paid the highest wages ($6.50 to $9.50 per hour.)

One firefighter, who is a former Bay State employee, said he works up to four 24 hour shifts in one week for Bay State.

Committee member Capt. Mark Trask said "Did I hear you right? Sometimes you worked up to 96 hours per week?" "Yes," he replied.

The same firefighter said "The (employee) turnover rate, in my experience, is quite high." He added, "Their first priority is to make money. They are going to want the surrounding nursing homes . . . this, in my experience, is what they have their eye on."

Another firefighter said "Brewster Ambulance pays their EMTs on about the same scale as us. With a backup ambulance, that's a lot of money." Even with only one ambulance it could cost over 200,000 dollars per year.

A firefighter asked what would happen "two years down the road" if a private service did not work out. "What happens to the (Cohasset) EMTs if they lose their certification? Where do your EMTs come from then?"

Regarding the upgrading of medical services provided by an ambulance and crew, a Scituate firefighter said "The minute you contract out to a private service you might as well all go home. It's out of the town's hands then."

A Cohasset firefighter asked, "Who is going to do your extricating?", in cases where special equipment not available to private services is required.

The committee is also considering studying the possibility of "regionalized" ambulance service.

Committee member Dr. Mark Friedman said regionalized ambulance service "has been going on for ten to fifteen years in the rest of the country. It is something whose time has come to Massachusetts."

John Fields, of the Cape and Islands Emergency Medical Services System (CIEMSS) told the committee how a regionalized system works.

Each town keeps its own fire or police department ambulance, and the county government coordinates a large group of towns. CIEMSS is coordinated by Barnstable County.

Ambulance equipment is upgraded and ambulance crews are trained to the paramedic level, so life saving action can be taken on the way to the hospital.

A communication network is set up so rescue vehicles have direct contact with vehicles and area hospitals. This allows paramedics to receive on the spot instructions from emergency room doctors and also makes efficient mutual aid possible.

CIEMSS uses two private ambulance services in

- Joseph Barresi is the author of a defamatory report on the MDC that is full of falsehoods. miscalculations, unwarranted assumptions and hyperbole.
- This report has defamed the reputation and integrity of my firm, Somerville Engineering, Inc., the hard working and conscientious people at MDC and the Professional Engineering Community.
- Commissioner William J. Geary of the MDC states, "The report is analytically deficient. This deficiency is exacerbated when conclusions are drawn from this faulty analysis and are applied wholesale."
- Douglas K. Kinan, MDC Director of Personnel, states, "The general findings" of this report "are not accurately stated."
- Julia B. O'Brien, MDC Director of Planning states,"The Inspector General has a continual problem with selectively taking excerpts out of context from interviews to support preconceived notions."
- James F. McCann, MDC Contract Administrator states that the Inspector General's indication that MDC has discarded many of the procedures prescribed by the McKinsey Manual is "distorted and untrue."
- Governor Michael S. Dukakis has referred this matter to MDC Commissioner, William J. Geary, "to comment in detail on the issues you (Somerville Engineering, Inc.) have raised."
- Francis H. McCarran, Jr., MDC Director of Parks, states, "The statement that the presentation to the Commissioners was based on a one page handwritten report is totally false."

their region, but only for transfer work, never for emergency calls.

CIEMSS has been in operation since 1974 and is made up of 26 towns.

A large part of the CIEMSS budget comes from donations. It would be financially impossible for one town to begin this type of service on its own.

Fields said Wareham, which is a member of CIEMSS, considered the rejected private ambulance service for their town.

Regarding Wareham's decision Fields said, "They knew what they had and they didn't want to gamble that away."

Two area doctors recently told the Ambulance Study Committee Fire Dept. emergency medical technicians (EMT) should receive more extensive emergency medical training.

Dr. Stephen Golden, a former member of the committee, said "If EMTs were trained one step above where they are now, they could be 200 percent more effective."

The training would bring the men up to the level of intermediate EMT and would require 200 hours of training.

This extra training could help EMTs save lives by allowing them to stabilize seriously injured or ill patients while on route to the hospital.

Currently the EMTs are not permitted to use some stabilizing methods, such as intravenous (IV.)

One firefighter said he knew that an IV could help prevent a person in shock from going into deep shock, but added that now "all we can do for people in shock is elevate their feet and keep them warm."

Dr. Golden said, "It is inexcusable for the town to bring them (EMTSs) to this situation."

Dr. William Raskin suggested that as a temporary measure, some of the doctors living in Cohasset could volunteer to be on call one day or night a month to go on ambulance calls where patients need immediate stabilization.

Dr. Raskin said, "This town has more doctors than any town I have ever seen." He added "I don't think that carrying a beeper one day a month, and going out possibly once a year, is an inordinate burden on them (doctors.")

Committee member Dr. Mark Friedman will contact doctors living in Cohasset to see how many are interested in volunteer ambulance duty.

The committee will be sending out cost quotes from private ambulance services on the levels of service they offer.

Outdoor school . . .

of outdoor school was contrived so that kids and teachers spend time together."

Finding volunteers has been another obstacle for outdoor school. Ekberg has sent notices home to parents and from 1979-1983 Karen Bartow responded with two letters and a few other parents called to volunteer.

"If the positions opened with some compensation the teachers will be happy to continue with outdoor school. I have been talking to teachers about that for three years," said Ekberg.

Ekberg added two parents surveyed this year's fifth grade parents. This year's class has not experienced spring outdoor school. Fifty percent of parents liked the overnight Camp Wing program, 25 percent liked the new way of day trips and 25 percent said that no program or another alternative was acceptable.

Crowell said, "I see outdoor heading towards a choice of three alternatives: abolishing the outdoor school; finding a place for students to go on a four day trip; or finding volunteers to continue the program.

wedding

Branagan / Loving

Karen Elizabeth Loving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edward Loving of Maprik, Papua New Guineau, was married Sept. 10 at Lyle's Baptist Church in Wilmington, to Lyle Arthur Branagan of Dublin, Cal.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Edward Branagan of 65 Pond St.

The Rev. John Hershman officiated at the ceremony.

Treese Loving of Wiliamsburg, Va. was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Branagan of Cohasset, Kimberly Piland of Norfolk, Va. and Mary Ellen Zator of Charlottesville, Va.

Peter Brangan of Brookline was best man. Ushers were James Branagan of Cohasset, Douglas Bell and Jim Bielk, both of Charlottesville, Va.

A reception was held at Granite Hills, the ancestral Loving home.

The bride graduated from the University of Virginia.

The groom also graduated from the University of Virginia and he is employed by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. of Cal.

After a wedding trip to Vermont, the couple is living in Dublin, California.

Hunneman Realtors expand to Cohasset

By Bill Hayward

Hunneman Co., Inc. Realtors opened a branch office at 17 South Main St., Cohasset village recently.

An open house, held at the new office, complete with wine and cheese, was crowded with real estate brokers, builders and prospective home buyers.

The Hunneman Co. has 19 offices in the greater Boston area. Hunneman caters primarily to "the up-market towns" according to Company President Saul Cohen.

Most of the Hunneman offices are located in wealthy suburban towns such as Wellesley, Concord, Chestnut Hill and Hingham.

The Hunneman Co. is just starting to expand their operations to the South Shore. Cohen said "the South Shore has a very promising future." An office in Duxbury is scheduled to open soon.

Hunneman Co. is affiliated with Better Homes and gardens magazine, which gives Hunneman nationwide referrals from people planning to move to the Boston area.

A large part of Hunneman's business comes from corporate executive relocations. Many large firms use Hunneman's services when they relocate executives to Boston.

Hunneman was founded in 1929 and offers investment counseling, property management, insurance and consulting on commercial, residential and industrial real estate.

Cohen said he "feels very, very strongly about professionalism" and his company has "the most knowledgeable brokers in the business." He added that Hunneman is the only major real estate firm serving the Rte. 128 arc, both north and south of Boston.

When asked if he thought Hunneman would give Jack Conway Co. a run for their money on the South Shore, Cohen chuckled and said "I know we will."

Elder Services accepts $5,000 donation

South Shore Elder Services of Cohasset has accepted the generous donation of $5,000 made to the Anderson-Long Memorial Fund in memory of Lucian A. Voyer.

This fund was established in 1982 to aid in purchasing of medical equipment or household supplies for needy, isolated, older people on the South Shore.

Voyer, a glassblower by profession, grew up in Salem, where his family still resides. After traveling extensively, he spent his remaining 20 years in Weymouth.

His accomplishments included service in World War II, extensive work in the Raytheon defense program, the design of revolutionary medical equipment to transport blood plasma and the restoration of priceless antique barometers.

Voyer was noted for his quick wit and love of children.

South Shore Elder Services, Inc. is a private, non-profit, community-based corporation. They maintain and develop resources and support services for elderly people of 11 local communities. These services keep people safe and independent in their own homes.

Among the services are information and referral, case management, homemaker services, chore services, transportation, hot meals, home delivered meals, and the companion program.

Those interested in learning more about the Anderson-Long Memorial Fund may call Peg Balboni during regular business hours at South Shore Elder Services, 335-1310 or 383-0700.

'Godspell' ready for Sunday performance

Sunday, Dec. 4, the familiar music of "Day By Day" will again be heard in Cohasset as the musical "Godspell" returns to the high school auditorium in time to lift hearts and spirits subdued by news reports of warfare and media prophecies of nuclear catastrophe.

This contemporary retelling of the Gospel according to St. Matthew is set to a blend of diverse musical styles — rock, folk, ragtime, country, Broadway, and pop — with the emphasis upon rock.

The show also employs a wide variety of theatrical influences as diverse as vaudeville, puppet shows, slapstick comedy, story theater and mime.

Choreographic influences range from graceful modern dance to raucous country square dance, from gymnastic routines to children's games.

As diverse as the music, acting and dance styles employed in "Godspell," is the background of the three members of the production team, all of them on the high school staff who have been preparing the show.

They are: Bryan Marks, producer and musical director, and Ron Emmons, director and production designer. Both teach, the former vocal music, and Emmons teaches English. They, along with choreographer Andrea Pallardy, high school gymnastics coach, were responsible for last year's successful production of "Grease."

New to the team is costume designer, Elizabeth Glasfeld, high school librarian. Her wit and sense of color adds much to the show.

Featured in the cast of "Godspell" are many veterans of last year's show as well as impressive newcomers to the musical format.

Performing in leading roles are seniors Lilly Carbone, Nancy Donahue, Kurt Hochkeppel, Tom Jones, Jove Osterling, Richele Sargent, Nancy Walls and Linton Young, in addition to juniors Shawna McCarthy and Sarah Muir, sophomore Glen Hochkeppel, freshman Andrew Glasfeld, and eighth grader Michele Meagher.

A chorus will augment the musical quality of the score. Providing accompaniment will be a band made up of students, graduates and a teacher.

Ruth Dahlbeck, a Deer Hill School teacher, will play the piano. Recent graduates Jon Durant and Guy Martin will play guitar and bass, and Chris Crowley, a junior, will perform on synthesizer, while another junior, Skip Urmson, will play drums.

Heading up the technical staff is senior Jeff Rhind. Stage managers are juniors Lise Pierotti and Vicky Spooner.

The Dec. 4 performance of "Godspell" will be a special matinee at 2 pm. Other performances Dec. 8, 9 and 10 will begin at 8 p.m. All seats are reserved.

Tickets may be purchased at the high school or by calling 383-0132 or 383-6945.

Any remaining tickets will be sold at the door. However, those waiting to buy tickets are warned that advance sales have been brisk, especially for Friday and Saturday performances. Prior purchase is recommended.

Early release day, Dec. 8

Thursday, Dec. 8, will be an early release day for the elementary schools ONLY. There will be no afternoon Kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

Buses will depart Deer Hill School at 12:45 p.m. and Joseph Osgood School at 12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in both of these schools.

This early release day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee. The release time at the elementary schools will be devoted to Parent Conferences.

Cohasset Village Fair opens Saturday

Climaxing a whirlwind week of final preparations by workers from the five participating churches, the 43rd annual Cohasset Village Fair will open for business Saturday morning (Dec. 3) at 10 a.m. in buildings around Cohasset Common.

The fair will offer a wide array of holiday decorations, gifts, foods, bargain treasures and special treats for children.

Talented and energetic members of the congregations of St. Stephen's Episcopal, Panagia Greek Orthodox, St. Anthony's Roman Catholic, First Parish Unitarian and Second Congregational churches have combined to work together in this ecumenical project.

Christmas and children are the fair's two major themes.

An expanded Children's Midway, headed by Cindi and David Reid and Thomas and Deborah Cook, will be staged in St. Stephen's Church beginning at 10 a.m.

In Walton Rodgers Hall of St. Stephen's Church youths will find no less than 10 games to test their skills and reward them with prizes.

The games will include a video game, a lollipop grab, ring toss, "knock-'em'down," Big Pop (a balloon game,) bean bag toss, Foosball (a soccer-type game,) "catch-a-prize" fishing game, and a Mexican hat toss.

In addition there will be "E.T." dolls and Santa Claus mitts to make, face-painting by Christine Moore and Julie Atkinson, and silhouette cutting by Pat White.

One group working hard on gifts and decorations in these last few days, has been the large wreath committee, directed by Jean Manganaro.

After more than a month of making and collecting appendages for the wreaths, including pine cones, dried flowers and grasses, rose hips and ribbons and bows, wreath makers have turned the vestry of the Second Congregational Church into a balsam-scented workshop this week putting the finishing touches on the wreaths.

The wreaths will be placed on the stage of the Town Hall Saturday.

Jean Syrmopoulos and Roxanne Mendrinos of the Kitchen Crafts committee, promise a wide variety of attractive hand-made creations for the kitchen in addition to aprons and pot-holders.

This year Syrmopoulos is planning a special attraction in "Kitchens of the World," featuring decorative articles for the kitchen from many areas of the globe.

Vying with wreaths for special holiday attention at the fair will be the plant table headed by Dee Alexopoulos. Her committee will offer a variety of holiday plants, in bloom, or ready to bloom to give homes the distinctive lived-in appeal of greenery.

Santa Claus has accepted the invitation of Jeff Steele to visit Cohasset's Village Fair Saturday. He will arrive in style about 10:45 a.m. and set up court in his sleigh within a specially-constructed bower in the center of the Common.

For the next several hours until 2 p.m. Jeff and Margaret Young will bring children for a recitation of their Christmas wishes and have Polaroid pictures taken to record the event.

Another popular attraction for young children will be the Secret Room in the Congregational Church where they can shop in private for their parents, aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters and friends.

A good selection of modestly priced items will be available. Children will be admitted to make their selections and have them gift-wrapped all ready for the Christmas tree. Theodora Vasiliades will preside over this recent innovation at the Fair.

Behind the scenes of an enterprise as extensive as the Village Fair is an army of movers, administrators and supernumeraries. Bob Ripley and Penny Redfield head a transportation group which will bring tables from the schools and churches to the Town Hall and other locations of the Fair for set-up.

They also will help with the Midway set-up and transporting the multitude of items that will fill Trueblood Hall of the Unitarian Parish House at the Bargain Bazaar.

Cohasset Village Fair planners Ayn DuVoisin, general chairman, left, and Central Committee members Jean Broe and Betty Madden, chat after a meeting on fair arrangements. The fair will be held Saturday, Dec. 3.

Celeste Churchill heads the purchasing of materials and other items needed to stage the Fair. At the microphone during the day will be Chet Ellis, announcing the various attractions and calling attention of Fair-goers to the special events scheduled.

Eve Sedell heads the group which has assembled the attic and basement treasures of the Bargain Bazaar. Esther Wilson will preside over a section of very special treasures, both in the Unitarian Parish House.

Book-browsers and buyers will again find hundreds of bargain-priced volumes in the vestry of the Congregational Church where Alice Daunt and Helen Hopper will supervise the sale.

Nuclear freeze discussion

Tuesday, Dec. 13 at 8 p.m. at the Cushing Room, the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will sponsor an address by Steve Rowley, Tenth Congressional District Representative to the Massachusetts Nuclear Freeze Committee.

Rowley will address the significance of a nuclear freeze vote taken one year ago Dec. 13 at the United Nations.

He will also conduct an open discussion of nuclear weapons issues, especially those which might relate to the recent television film, "The Day After."

The Democratic Town Committee encourages interested Cohasset citizens to attend the meeting in the Cushing Room, next to the Rockland Trust Co., Cushing Plaza.

around town

☐ Navy Lt. James R. Brackett, son of Dr. Phillip S. Brackett of 41 Ripley Rd. and Hope R. Brackett of 365 Atlantic Ave., recently departed on deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian Oceans. During the deployment, the ship will participate in various training exercises with other U.S. units and those of allied nations. Port visits are scheduled in several Far Eastern countries. The Wadsworth is 445 feet long and carries a crew of 210.

☐Carl Shockman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Shockman of Meadow Lane, in Cohasset, has been elected co-captain of the Noble and Greenough football team for the 1984 fall season. Carl is in his junior year at Noble and Greenough in Dedham and is looking forward to an exciting and successful 1984 season.

☐Cohasset resident John M. Cahill, M.D., a physician at University Hospital in Boston recently was honored at the Hospital's Second Annual Physician Recognition Brunch at the Westin Hotel for 10 years of service and loyalty to the hospital's patient-care mission.

The honorees were selected from among those celebrating their fifth, tenth, 15th, 20th and 25th years of membership on the Medical-Dental Staff at University Hospital.

J. Scott Abercrombie, Jr., M.D., president of University Hospital and Bruce Lowney, M.D., former president of the Medical Dental Staff at University Hospital, presented Cahill with a certificate of appreciation for his record of service.

☐Cohasset's Dr. Roger Pompeo was recently reappointed Norfolk County Medical Examiner by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

☐Sarah Froio was home for Thanksgiving, and that's the last time she'll see Cohasset for a while! Sarah, a sophomore at Johnson and Wales, is about to undergo a training program which is part of the standards which have to be met in her program. "Poor Sarah" has to go to Disneyworld for this training! She will be in the warm climate of Florida learning more culinary skills while she thinks of us freezing in Cohasset. Don't be surprised to see some visitors, Sarah!

☐Bud Howorth's wife reports Bud is feeling much better following his recent surgery at South Shore Hospital. Bud is one of the men in town that is always doing for others. Here's hoping he's better real soon. He will be in South Shore Hospital for another week, followed by a week or so at home to recuperate.

☐There was a mass exodus out of Cohasset last Friday, all headed for the Boston College football game, although the weather was the "pits."

☐This weekend marks the official beginning of the Christmas season in Cohasset, with the Village Fair and the Hayride to kick off the whole thing. Be sure to attend both, as the committee tells me the fair is "bigger and better than ever." To watch the hayriders is a treat in itself. The Snowflake Fair is always a good one, with the mouth-watering chowder, something everyone can look forward to.

☐Pat Leonard and Dan Curran both ended the football season on an unhappy note. Pat had to have an operation on his knee the day after Thanksgiving, and Dan broke his wrist. Both guys had a super season. Here's hoping they mend real fast!

☐Another thing to be marked on the calendar is CHS performance of "Godspell," to be held Dec. 4, 8, 9, and 10 at the High School auditorium. Tickets are $3, and the entire school is involved in the production. They do an outstanding job. Don't miss it.

☐Holly Pompeo gave her grandmother her Christmas present early this year. Holly took a course at the new Clay Shop downtown and made a beautiful Christmas tree, complete with colored lights. It is truly a work of art, and Mimi was thrilled, and it is already displayed.

☐Be sure to visit the central display case at the High School where there is a display of arts and crafts of Daxaca, Mexico. It was put together by Mr. Lucas (the art teacaher) and Kathy Corbett (the AFS student). Both have been to Daxaca, and their efforts are special.

☐The Messiah Sing was a grand success. It was almost as hard to find a parking space outside of the church as it was to find a seat inside! The orchestra and singers did a beautiful job, and the church was beautiful to see. Always a nice way to begin the season.

☐Bob Walls had the biggest family gathering ever for their Thanksgiving turkey...Bob, however, couldn't help at all since recent surgery on his hand prevented him from performing surgery on the turkey!

☐With the holidays approaching, so does news for "Around Town." Be sure to fill me in with yours, so that it may be shared with all!

Cohasset's narrative history book is available

By David Wadsworth
Historical Society Curator

At a March, 1894 Town Meeting Cohasset voters established a committee made up of public-spirited citizens to research the history of Cohasset.

The original members of that committee were Rev. Joseph Osgood, venerable pastor of Cohasset's First Parish and one of the founders of its Public Schools and Public Library; Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, minister of the Second Congregational Church; prominent businessmen Newcomb B. Tower and Aaron Pratt, Esquire; Dr. Oliver H. Howe, local practitioner; and E. Pomeroy Collier, son of Cohasset's most illustrious "Deep Sea Captain."

This group of historians began to assemble relics and memorabilia of the town's past and to research its history.

In 1896 the committee resolved to write a comprehensive history of Cohasset. The task of compiling the accumulated information fell to Rev. Bigelow who volunteered to write a fully documented volume tracing the town's development from its beginnings.

The passing in August, 1898 of its Chairman, Rev. Osgood, caused a major vacancy on the committee which was filled by the addition of public figures, Ira B. Pratt and George W. Collier.

Later that year, the Committee on Town History issued a 561 page volume titled "A Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset, Massachusetts."

In writing this landmark book, Rev. Bigelow produced the definitive history of the founding and development of a small New England village.

Bigelow began his journey by voyaging back to study the bedrock granite and the glacial epoch which shaped the contours of our land.

The original Quonahassit Indians who inhabited this rocky coast and gave their name to the town are described. They were fishermen and their stone implements had been found throughout Cohasset.

The first known European explorer to visit Cohasset Harbor was Virginia Colony's Capt. John Smith, whose brief stop here ended in a skirmish with the Quonahassits during 1614.

By the 1630's, English settlers were arriving in the Boston area, and one group from the Parish of Hingham, England, chose a spot called Bare Cove to settle.

Bare Cove soon became Hingham, and it was from Hingham that the first settlers of Cohasset came. At that time, our town still was part of its parent town.

After 1670, when Hingham landowners divided the "Conahasset" uplands among themselves, the first farms and homesteads were started here. Rev. Bigelow describes the early years of Cohasset in chapters titled, "The Quonahasset Pioneers," "Dividing the Land" and "The First Homes."

In 1717 Cohasset became the Second Precinct and Second Parish of Hingham, with the right to maintain its own school and church, and in 1770 the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony separated Cohasset entirely from Hingham and made it a town by itself.

Cohasset soldiers served in numerous Revolutionary War campaigns, and the town was strongly pro-Revolutionary. This is documented by Rev. Bigelow in the "Narrative History," and part of Cohasseter Ambrose Bates' diary describing the battle of Saratoga is reproduced in its pages.

By mid-1800, the town had become a fishing and shipbuilding village whose seafarers took mackerel from Atlantic coastal waters, and though the "Age of Sail" was drawing to a close as Bigelow wrote, Cohasset seafarers contributed much to the book in describing a way of life unique to seacoast communities and fishing villages of New England.

By 1898 the era of mackerel fishery was over and Cohasset was a summer haven for the wealthy of Boston, whose large estates and "cottages" lines our shore roads.

In his summing up of the town's situation at the turn-of-the-century, Bigelow, with some insight, forecast the changes which have occurred more recently and which have forever altered the town to creat a modern suburb where farmers once plowed the land and fishermen dried their nets.

The original edition of Bigelow's "A Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset" long ago was sold out, but the Cohasset Historical Society now has available a commemorative reprint of this fascinating and informative volume. For research or for just plain enjoyment, the Bigelow history makes a thoughtful and valued gift at Christmas time or for other occasions.

To purchase a copy of this unique narrative of Cohasset's past, please call the Society at 383-0773 or 383-6930.

Selectmen review

This fall has seen a variety of legal problems plaguing the town and some overheard resident comments seem to blame the current five-member Board of Selectmen.

It's been over six months since the new board was formed and although the Mariner originally criticized the idea, we now applaud it.

Government in Cohasset has changed rapidly since April. There's a new blood, experience and talent among the new selectmen and other town boards.

Physically, it's an improvement to be able to sit in a hall, ask questions and hear what the selectmen are talking about. The Question and Answer period, instituted by the board is also a good measure.

The Mariner originally criticized the increase from a three to five member selectmen board because we were afraid of district representation.

We were concerned that people would be elected from different sections of town and vote the way the district wants instead of considering the opinions of all town residents.

This has not happened.

The new selectmen's board has the talent, expertise and common sense to solve the Fire Dept. problems and to negotiate new contracts and working rules for both the Fire and Police Depts.

As we have said before we do not support a special town meeting article to spend $10,000 to $18,000 for an outside consultant to tell selectmen what's wrong with the Fire Dept.

Selectmen, collectively, can find the answers.

It is not fair to blame the current selectmen for all of the town's legal problems. It is the fault of past administrations. But the results of those actions are now being felt.

Town meeting agenda

There will be six articles for the Jan. 17 Special Town Meeting. The warrant for the meeting closed last week. Expected to be on the agenda is a $80,000 to $100,000 request from the Water Commission to finance a possible pollution impact report to Lily Pond from the Cohasset Heights landfill.

The Board of Health has asked for an undetermined amount of money for landfill cover and diesel fuel.

Selectmen are sponsoring an article which will cost between $10,000 and $18,000 for an outside professional firm to evaluate the Fire Dept.

Town meeting voters will be requested to pay Lowry Bell Jr. $45,000 to drop his civil rights lawsuit against the town. Bell had originally filed a $500,000 federal suit in 1981 charging town officials had unfairly refused to issue him a permit to build a tennis court.

After the appeals board rejected the application, Bell went to Norfolk Superior Court where a judge ruled a fenced court could be built under the zoning bylaw. The state appeals court upheld the lower court ruling.

Nearly $2,000 to $3,000 will be requested by selectmen to prime, stain and sandblast the Bates Building and more money will be requested to be deposited into the town's Stabilization Fund for capital projects.

This special town meeting is called to spend $184,000 generated by revenue from motor vehicle excise and license fees and a $84,000 reimbursement from the MBTA.

Confessions from the kids

By Claire McDonough

Skipper pushed a plate of uneaten meatloaf away and forestalled my objection with a smile and a skilled maneuver.

"Remember how you used to tell us to never climb the gum trees in the backyard?"

I shuddered. 'I certainly do. I caught Patrick at the top once, and I was afraid to yell for him to come down for fear he'd fall and break his neck."

"Well," Skipper continued. "I think it's time you knew. I cannot tell a lie. Breida used to climb them all the time."

"Fink!" Breida whispered. "And anyway, that was years ago, before I learned the wisdom of obeying my mother in all things. Right, Mommy Dearest?"

"I can't believe you did that, " I told her. "Those things are 75 feet tall. Do you realize you would have been killed if you fell?"

"Not really. I was just stunned for a while. And it did hurt a lot."

She realized her slip, and went on hurriedly. "Anyway, Larry used to climb them more often than I did. And he fell all the way from the top. It's a good thing he kept hitting branches, or he probably would have been killed."

Larry glared. "It was the big kids' idea. They looped a rope around the top branch, tied one end around my waist, and told me they were giving me suborbital space rides. Nobody expected the rope to break."

"So long as you're indulging in true confessions," I said icily, "can you recall any other pecadillos on the part of your siblings?"

"Well," Larry began, "when you used to let us sleep out on the back porch at night, we'd wait till you and Dad were asleep. Then we'd go to the harbor and buy Pepsis."

I gasped. "You mean you all did this and we never knew it?"

"Not all of us," he admitted. "Eileen was too chicken, so we left her on the porch with instructions to tell you we were looking for fireflies if you woke up."

"I don't believe this," I said. "How often did this happen?"

"Twice. The second time Kevin talked back to a policeman and we didn't dare try it again."

I groaned. "What did the policeman say?"

"He said, 'What can your parents be thinking of, letting you roam the streets at this hour?' "

"Wonderful." I turned to the Dragon. "You've been remarkably quiet during this discussion. Don't you have anything to contribute?"

"As a matter of fact, I do," he responded.

"According to my calculations, everyone but Eileen is grounded until they're 37 years old or until May 26, 1993, whichever comes first."

Highway Surveyor asks for cooperation

Letters

To the Editor:

An open letter to the citizens of Cohasset:

This past month of November, our area has been hit with several major rain storms, resulting in serious flooding conditions in certain areas of town. Most of the flooding was caused by catch basin grates being clogged with leaves. These leaves create a solid barrier and the water cannot flow through to the basins, hence, the serious flooding.

There are over 1,100 storm drains in town. With only five men, it is pretty difficult to get to all of them to clean them of built-up leaves. I would like to suggest to those residents who live in an area where this type of problem exists—a few minutes with a rake is all it would take to free the basin and possibly avoid a serious flooding condition.

By no means am I suggesting that my fellow residents do the work of the Highway Department. What I am asking for is your assistance in keeping the storm drains free to reduce the flooding and possibly avoid damage to your property.

As an additional piece of information, I am sorry to say that the Highway Department does not have any equipment for pumping out flooded cellars. In the past, it was the policy of the Fire Department to help flooded homeowners. Now, as I understand it, the policy is no longer in effect. With absolutely no pumping equipment, I am sorry to say that my department can be of no assistance in alleviating flooded cellars.

Now that we are entering the month of December, I am sure we are all aware that the snow storm season will soon be upon us. I would like to take this opportunity to make another suggestion to avoid a lot of anger and frustration. If at all possible, do not shovel the last six or eight feet of your driveway until plowing operations are completed. My men and trucks have absolutely no way to avoid throwing the snow back into a newly-shoveled driveway.

I understand your anger and frustration when this happens, but it does no good to swear, scream and throw your shovels at these trucks. The men are trying to do the best job they can.

Of course, I know that there are some people who

On giving and receiving

By the Rev. John Benbow
Second Congregational Church

A good friend of mine, who stays away from church religiously, once challenged me to make some sense of the familiar biblical text "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Since I frequently quote those words just before the offering is received, he felt I ought to defend them or abandon them.

As I began to explore the familiar words, they became curiouser and curiouser: they come to us as the words of Jesus, as quoted by Paul, as quoted by Luke (the author of Acts)—so that when I say them on a Sunday morning, they are at least four times removed from their original context. Indeed, there is no way to recover precisely what the words originally meant, for we will never know the context in which they were spoken.

But that does not decrease their importance for us. Some of the most important realities of our human experience are reflected in the words: "giving" and "receiving" are among the most important of human actions. Life itself is a matter of giving and receiving—especially on the non-material plane of our deepest experiences. We receive love, and we give it (or refuse to); we receive pain, or forgiveness,or support, and we give them (or fail to). Our life depends upon what we give and what we receive.

That fact is reflected in the third important word in the text: "blessed." The word itself means simply "happiness." Our happiness, our well-being as persons, is deeply related to the way in which we give (or fail to give) and receive (or refuse to receive).

Clergy speaks

One modern translation of this text plainly states its claim: "There is more happiness in giving than there is in receiving." Is that claim correct? Does it fit our experience?

Consider receiving. I once knew a man for whom Christmas was the worst season of the year, even though he enjoyed buying, wrapping and giving gifts. What bothered him was receiving gifts from others. Each Christmas morning he found some excuse to put off opening the gifts his family gave him. Once in midsummer his wife discovered a few of them squirreled away in a closet—still wrapped in Christmas paper. For him, as for many of us, it was not only presents which are hard to receive, but also the gifts of friendship or caring or love. We are embarrassed to receive. We feel as if the giver has somehow controlled us when we receive from them.

At first sight the words of Jesus seem to support our reluctance to receive. Still, he didn't say, "It is blessed to give, and cursed to receive." He said, "It is more blessed to give..." You see? It is a matter of comparing two good things, two comparable sources of happiness. It is blessed to give, and blessed to receive. There is happiness in giving, and happiness in receiving.

The comparsion is important. Giving and receiving are two good things; of these good things, giving is the greater good, not the only good. The gracious receiving of a gift is one of the finest (and most difficult) tasks of living—and one of life's greatest sources of joy.

Now consider giving. To give is also a source of joy—a less complex, easier joy. Yet giving is also subject to our human capacity to distort and demean. It is possible to give selfishly, or manipulatively, or even destructively. When parents give a child all the things they never had, they may be doing it for two terrible reasons: they may be expressing resentment of their own parents, or they may be trying to manipulate the life of the child. When we give to those whom we love, we may be demanding love from them in return, or "paying" them for their love; and neither of these is a very good motive for giving. Our giving to the poor may be to keep them from our door. Our giving to the weak may be to keep them under our control. Remember Paul's words: If I give away all I have, and do it unlovingly, my gift is worthless.

So giving is not so simple. It may be as complex and difficult as receiving. To give lovingly is somehow the key: to let our giving be neither a power-play nor a guilt-trip, but a simple matter of caring and sharing. And that's not easy.

How do we learn to receive graciously and to give lovingly? One way is to involve our third term, "blessed," happy. What is happiness? It is what we discover in giving and receiving. It is what we find when we receive graciously or give lovingly. Happiness—blessedness—is the subtle treasure hidden in every gift truly given and received.

Life is a gift. It is not only a gift given to us, but also a gift we learn how to give. We live most fully and deeply, most happily and blessedly, when we receive most graciously and give most lovingly. It is blessed to receive, and more blessed to give: and if our living at last is giving, it is also and always receiving.

Murray's memos Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

Finally the new car "Lemon Law" initiated by the Republican Caucus has been signed by the governor. It is the strongest law in the nation providing long awaited relief to consumers who have chronic problems with their new cars.

I was a co-sponsor for the legislation.

The law, which goes into effect January 1, 1984, was also supported by a coalition of auto dealers and consumers and defines a "lemon" so that the consumer has an easier way to deal with defective automobile problems.

The single largest area of consumer complaints involves automobile repair and defect problems. Car problems can result in severe financial cost to the owner. A consumer should not be expected to return again and again to a dealer with a new car, only to find that more repairs are needed. The Lemon Law will clearly spell out consumer rights.

Major provisions of the Lemon Law include:

Any buyer of a new car, motorcycle or truck for personal or family purposes is covered by the bill for one year or 15,000 miles, whichever comes first.

If a vehicle is in the shop for the same substantial defect three or more times or is in the shop 15 or more business days, the manufacturer gets one final chance, not to exceed seven business days, to fix the car.

If the problem continues to exist, the consumer can take his or her case to an arbitration proceeding that is binding on the manufacturer, but not the consumer.

Arbitration Boards must have half their members appointed by Secretary of Consumer Affairs Paula W. Gould.

Any replacement car must be acceptable to the consumer. If it is not, he or she may demand a refund.

Manufacturers must reimburse lemon-owners for towing and rental costs if they did not provide those services.

Lemons may not be resold without disclosure that they were brought back under the law.

Upon request my office will send to you a Consumer's Guide on the Lemon Law. Write or call Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, Room 134 State House, Boston, Mass. 02133, 722-2400.

Frances Antoine's family says thanks

To the Editor:

This past week we have lost a very special person, our mother Frances Antoine. She has touched our lives and many of yours over the years. Showing love, concern, courage, Christianity and great faith in the Lord.

For years she did for others never expecting anything in return. It has been returned to her by many of you, especially over the last six years in which she has been on dialysis. We want to thank you all.

You may have been a policeman, fireman, priest, minister, nun, doctor, nurse, orderly, student, hospital roommate, janitor, driver, cleaning lady, therapist, coordinator, passenger, friend, relation, very special neighbor, personnel of Carney Hospital or the Kidney Center or just someone who has touched her in some way over the years.

You will always be remembered by our family.

Union firefighters respond to Fire Dept. issues

An Open Letter

Dear Citizens of Cohasset:

Your firefighters have shown that the safety of you, the people of Cohasset, always has been and will be their utmost concern. This has not nor will it ever change.

You are aware that your firefighters have taken quite a beating lately in many respects, and frankly, to put it mildly, it has been an extreme embarrassment. When problems began to surface in the late winter of 1983, they were brought before our Board of Selectmen for resolution.

These very serious and sensitive issues were discussed in Executive Session. The problems were discussed in this forum for a multitude of reasons, none of which was to short-change, hide, or cover it up from you, the citizens.

As a result of this and many meetings since, the parties involved were asked by the Board of Selectmen to refrain from comment, and specifically instructed to avoid media exposure.

Although your firefighters have been frequently tested they've remained mute as requested by the board and are working through the system for an agreeable solution with all parties involved.

It must be stated that at all times your firefighters have been willing to sit and be party to meaningful discourse that would build toward solution of any and all of these problems which are multiplying even as this is written.

We ask you as firefighters, and many of us as fellow citizens, to urge all parties involved to work diligently to solve the problems plaguing your Fire Department.

Respectfully,
Your Firefighters

must clear their driveways to get to work, school, etc. To these people I extend my apologies for making more work for them. Knowing this is a problem for homeowners every winter, I wish that I could offer a simple solution, but I can't. I can only ask you to bear with us, keeping in mind that we do the very best we can do in keeping our roads safe and our schools open during a major storm.

I thank you all for your co-operation.

As a post-script, I would like to publicly thank Tree & Park Superintendent Peter Laugelle, for his assistance during the "monsoon" we endured on the day after Thanksgiving. He worked side-by-side with my men trying to alleviate as much flooding as possible. It points out the fact that inter-departmental co-operation is still alive and well in Cohasset.

Foursquare Gospel

The International Church of the Foursquare Gospel announces the opening of the Scituate Foursquare Church at 344 Country Way, Scituate (Satuit Masonic Temple.)

The public is invited to attend Sunday services, starting at 10:30 a.m. Nursery care will be provided.

According to its assistant pastor, Robert O'Donnell, it is a full - gospel church, preaching Jesus Christ as Savior, healer, baptizer in the Holy Spirit, and soon coming King.

Worship is open and spontaneous, following the pattern of the early church as recorded in the New Testament.

Headquartered in Los Angeles, CA, the Foursquare Church has over 1,000 churches in the United States, and an extensive, world-wide missions outreach. Locally, it has experienced rapid growth. From a single congregation several years ago, churches have been established in Hanson, Easton, Raynham, New Bedford, Peabody, Foxboro, and now in Scituate.

Those wishing more information should direct inquiries to the pastor, Rev. David Holland, P.O. Box 398, Easton, MA, 02356, (238-1280.)

Sha'aray Shalom

Wednesday, Nov. 30, Jews around the world began an eight-day celebration of Chanukah. The Hebrew word, Chanukah, means "dedication," and refers to the victory of the Maccabees over the armies of Syria in 165 B.C. and the subsequent liberation and "rededication" of the Temple in Jerusalem.

Legend also says when the Maccabees entered the Temple and began to cleanse it, they immediately relit the Eternal Light. A single jar of oil remained, which was sufficient for only one day. The messenger who was sent to secure additional oil returned eight days later.

But miraculously, the single jar of oil continued to burn for eight days. The rabbis of the Talmud, therefore, attributed the eight days of Chanukah to the miracle of the little jar of oil.

Today, home celebrations of Chanukah center around lighting the candles in the menorah, singing songs, playing dreidel (spinning top,) eating latkes (potato pancakes,) and exchanging gifts.

But most importantly, Chanukah commemorates the liberation of the Jews and their affirmation of human dignity and freedom of religion.

Congregation Sha'aray Shalom,1112 Main Street , Hingham, has several activities scheduled in honor of Chanukah. Tuesday, November 29, Hebrew School students held their annual Chanukah Happening.

Friday, December 2, Rabbi Stephen Karol will lead a Family Shabbat Service which will also include the lighting of the Chanukah candles.

During the service, the Dalet Hebrew class will present a play about Chanukah. The Family Service will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday, December 4, from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., religious school students will celebrate Chanukah in a variety of ways in their classrooms. Students will also participate in the lighting of the Chanukah candles and the saying of the prayers.

THE HOLOCAUST

Harvard University Professor Eric Goldhaggen will speak on the Holocaust at Congrégation Sha'aray Shalom Sunday, Dec. 11 at 10:30 a.m.

Professor Goldhaggen, who is currently affiliated with the Russian Research Institute at Harvard, has taught courses on the Holocaust and has published numerous articles on the subject.

Professor Goldhaggen will appear at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom as part of the Social Concerns Committee's ongoing Speaker Series. All lectures in this series are free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served following the lecture.

TINTINNABULATIONS
By Julianne Mehegan

"Ding dong, ding dong, Christmas bells are ringing!" And indeed they will be Sunday, Dec. 4 at our service of worship. Our selections are from the Alfred Burt Carols. Burt and his father composed a carol each year to send to friends at Christmas. In 1952 a collection of the carols was first performed in California.

After Burt's death in 1954 a group of his friends had the carols published. "Caroling, Caroling" is perhaps the most familiar of the Burt carols, and we will be ringing an arrangement of it for handbells. Our second selection will be "Ah Bleak and Chill the Wintry Wind." Although less familiar it has a simple, haunting melody.

We have 14 enthusiastic ringers. We had to bring in another table to accommodate everyone! Thanks to Dick Seeley who served as "guest conductor" while I was out of town this week. Incidentally, Dick was director of a choir in Michigan which performed the Burt Carols before they were available for the public.

The Youth Group will meet Sunday, Dec. 4.

POWDERPUFF TRIUMPH

On Saturday, Nov. 19, about 400 people witnessed one of the most exciting football games that have occurred at CHS in 10 years. In a literally last minute, come from behind victory, the senior girls defeated the junior girls by a score of 38-34

In a school that is relatively blase about tradition and school spirit, the annual game between the junior and senior girls has been one exception to this attitude. Both teams topped off a week of 3-hour practices by decorating the corridors of the school and by wearing the team colors to class. This is one of the occasions when class unity and enthusiasm are the rule rather than the exception.

The emotion reached its peak on Saturday morning, when the seniors, captained by Lil Carbone, Nancy Walls and Janet Carlson, vowed to continue the 15-year senior unbeaten streak and to avenge their 38-0 loss last year as juniors. On the other hand, this year's juniors, led by captains Sarah Muir and Sarah Seavey, contained an outstanding group of athletes and had the best chance in years to break the tradition by unseating the seniors.

Both teams played up to, and perhaps beyond, their potential in a game that had everything for the spectators who watched from the hillside: Sarah Seavey returned two kickoffs for touchdowns; Nancy Walls ran two quarterback sweeps into the endzone; Joan Chisholm intercepted a Walls' pass and darted in for another six points. Ingrid Anderson, Nancy Donahue, Jennie Mitman, Beth Riley and a host of others made key defensive plays. There were too many excellent plays made by too many people for this article to give proper credit to the tremendous effort that both teams demonstrated.

Incredibly, the game went down to the final 30 seconds. With a four point lead, the juniors had the seniors on the 23 yard line with a fourth down and 13 yards to go. Using their final time out, the seniors huddled and called a reverse to Kim Wittet, who swept left, eluded four tacklers and crossed the goal line with a mere seven seconds left on the clock. When the conversion succeeded, the seniors had a 38-34 lead. After a short kick off, it was time for some junior heroics. Quarterback Kerry O'Brien called for the "double slot" pass. From the shotgun formation fullback Janet DiGirolamo lofted a 30-yard pass to Tracey Keating, who leaped into the air, caught it amid three defenders, and streaked for the endzone. Bedlam broke loose as Keating dove across the goal line at the corner of the field, but silence descended as one referee signalled touchdown and the other signalled out of bounds at the 1/2 yard line. After a conference with the coaches, the refs awarded the juniors one more play from the five yard line. This time the end-around reverse didn't work as defensive end Jen Mitman grabbed the flag to preserve the victory.

Fittingly, the crowd gave a standing ovation as both teams shook hands on the field. The girls had provided an example of everything that is positive about high school sports.

A report on the game would be incomplete without noting the voluntary efforts of Dennis Walsh and Mike Gill, who refereed an excellent game. Furthermore, coaches Bill Fallon, Gino DiGirolamo (seniors), and Ken Cisneros, Jim Franey and Ed Leary (juniors) devoted hours of their time preparing each team for the confrontation.

Student Council Reacts

By members of the Cohasset High School Student Council

Recently an article, written by Michael Greiner, entitled "Student Council On Trial," appeared in the CHS Lamplight. Not only was the article "slanted and biased," but it also was a demonstration of poor journalism.

Michael Greiner's article was an all-out, bitter attack on the Student Council. However, this attack was based on misquotes and twisted false statements. It becomes difficult for the Council to consider Greiner's comments, for, not only does it appear that he has an axe to grind, but also he has never attended a Student Council meeting.

After publication of the article, some members of the Student Council spoke with Mr. Reade, whom Greiner often quoted. Mr. Reade stated that he was upset because what he had told Michael had been taken out of context and when printed, came across in a different manner than intended. For example, Greiner wrote "drug and alcohol abusive students who exert considerable influence on the Council in a very negative way." When one reads over this ,he or she is likely to interpret it as meaning that the members of the Council are abusers of drugs and alcohol, rather than the small percent of the student body Mr. Reade was actually referring to.

There are also at least two other disturbing and quite major flaws in Greiner's article. First, he states that "the student representatives to the school committee are also the least effective members of the Student Council." Not only has Michael Greiner never attended a School Commitee or Student Council meeting, but, he has also never met the representatives to the School Committee, who happened to be the President of the Student Council and the President and Representative of the Senior Class. It is evident that Greiner's statement is completely without basis, for how could it be possible that the three most powerful members of the Student Council are concomitantly the least effective. It just doesn't make sense.

To Michael's credit, he did interview a member of the Council. However, he twisted his interviewee's words to fit his negative depiction of the Council. Finally, after failing to mention any positive contributions the Council has made to the school and school body, such as the awarding of two scholarships annually and the recommendation for the formation of new and necessary courses, Greiner ends his article with no real solutions or suggestions by which such a "massive problem," as he takes it, may be resolved.

The New AttendancePolicy at C.H.S.

By Julia Sechen and Staci Stobart

This year a new attendance policy went into effect at Cohasset High School. Even though the school sent out a bulletin and Mr. Streeter held a special assembly, both the students and parents do not quite understand the policy.

The problems are mainly the result of the ignorance of the students. The policy is composed of several different points. The first point involves illness. If at home because of illness, one should have a parent or guardian notify the attendance office by 10 a.m. On the day the student returns, he must bring a note, signed by the parent or guardian, excusing the absence. If the student fails to do either, it is considered an unexcused absence, and no credit will be given for work missed.

The next point is tardiness. An excused tardiness is one due to bus delay, power failure, or car trouble. If late to school, a student must check in with the attendance office, obtain approval, then proceed to class. If the student is considered an unexcused tardiness, the student is sent to room 14 (detention room) until the end of the period. Tardiness, in excess of five minutes, to class is considered a cut. If the teacherpermits, the student may remain in class. If not, the student must go to detention for the rest of the period. If the student cuts class, he receives no credit for work missed and cannot participate in after school activities. Missing 20 percent of the classes, due to unexcused absence, results in receiving no credit for the course. For early dismissal, a student must give the attendance clerk a written request. These points sum up the new attendance policy.

According to a survey given in classes 8 through 12, 76 percent would like to have the policy terminated. Seven percent would like to keep the policy and 17 do not have an opinion at all. A majority of the students object to the fact that they should be penalized for being sick. They find that it's inconvenient to obtain a note from their parents and to have their parents call in. Others believe that being late five minutes to a class is not enough time to be considered a cut. They also dislike the fact that being late should keep a person from playing a sport.

The policy, despite the complaints, seems to be effective. Students feel they should make greater effort to get to school on time. The teachers and attendance clerk feel that the policy has caused students to be aware of the importance of getting to school on time. We hope that the new policy has helped. Although some of us find it unreasonable, we must get accustomed to it, for it will be here all year.

Apology

By Lisa Morse and Pip Gilmour

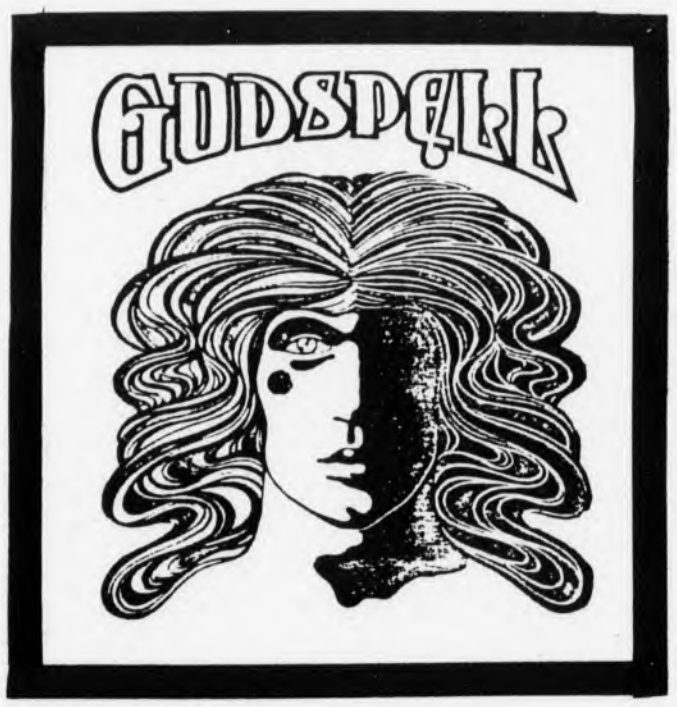
We, as editors of the "Lamplight," would like to apologize for a caption which appeared in our last issue. The picture was of four sophomore girls, for those who spotted it. The caption being, "The Bunnies." We are sorry to say that we were misinformed and hope that our apology is accepted.

We Want to Mention Something...

By Pip Gilmour and Lisa Morse

This is the second issue of C.H.S. Lamplight and before the snow falls we'd wish to make a few points about this year's newspaper. Because we are published in the Mariner, we produce C.H.S. Lamplight on the third Thursday of every month. We must consistently give C.H.S. and the town interesting and informative news. Our staff therefore welcomes students willing to share their ideas — even better, write articles.

In each issue we try to incorporate an opinion article based on facts. After reading it, you may feel your opinion also needs voicing. Great! Please follow through by contacting either Lamplight editor, indicating what you'd like to write about.



Also this year we will be trying to find out what each grade is in the process of doing. For our senior readers, you'll be able to remember the pain or the enjoyment that you've been through; for the rest of us, it may be the buried and forgotten past, or the endurance test you're living through now, or even the dark and unknown future.

We want C.H.S. Lamplight to be a school newspaper, not a specific class paper. So if you have a gripe, a greeting, a goodie or a groan, see us and send it in!

"All Creatures Great and Small"

By Lisa Brown

To find scientific laws and cures for human diseases, researchers falsely claim that animal abuse is almost always justified and necessary. Too many times, in fact, such cruel treatment can be avoided. Overcrowding research animals, especially rodents, can obviously be prevented by providing more space. Also species used in research become victims, which are forced to linger in unnecessary pain. Even if these helpless creatures survive, they usually receive more unjust treatment. Clearly, supporters of animal abuse in experimental research are neglecting to tell the truth.

As a result of this lie, rodents suffer consequences by being overcrowded in small cages. On the bottom half of such cages, for example, rats or mice easily suffocate before a lab person has finished cramming in all the other experimental rodents. Although reseachers say that they lack sufficient funds to provide more room, they could decrease the number of animals tested (since a significent amount of them die from being crowded together). Even if they avert suffocation, the survivors usually accomplish this by killing the others. Cramming too many animals into one cage, therefore creates more porblems instead of aiding science.

Another unjustified abuse causes lab animals to suffer too much and too long. If their limbs break, for instance, some researchers proceed to examine the injured creatures. As the victims suffer with weak limbs, scientists do not meet the hopes of saving money and time, but only receive a lack of cooperation. More importantly, unwanted dogs and cats would be better off dying quickly in a pound than being taken away for research. For example, on an "ABC Nightline" report several scenes of ill-looking and bloody experimental pound animals were disclosed. Because these animals' aid to discoveries is limited, the report vividly proves that they must face unnecessary and cruel pain. Additionally, most members of the monkey family, which are used for experiments, are hooked up to electrodes connected to their brains; lab examiners state that this must be done to find out more important facts about the human brain. These electrodes, however, have the potential to destroy much of the monkey's brain. Unless researchers proceed more cautiously, they contribute to this species' risk of extinction and suffering in confusion. In any case, living creatures become victims that must endure unnecessary anguish.

Among the few animals that survive or are cured, many of them are still mistreated. The living cats and dogs are returned to the pound, where little effort to find homes for them exist. (Who wants a pet after being probed and probably injured?) Another way the lab persons use the remaining animals is retesting them too often before they have a chance to recover. These animals are being deprived of rights that they deserve.

All of the overcrowding, unnecessary suffering, and the survivors' cruel destiny simply means that animals used in the laboratory inevitably must accept unjustifiable abuse. Unfortunately, the solution depends upon the passing of bills through political "red tape." Until politicians solve this problem, too many animals from the simple rodents to the sophisticated monkey are over-abused.

Mrs. Green

¿Que Tal?

By Christine Moore

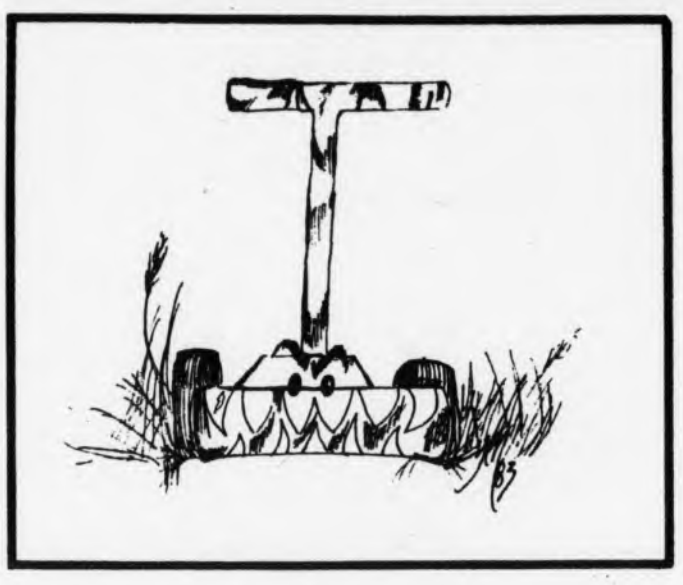
This year Cohasset High School welcomes a new member to the faculty. Mrs. Green, a Scituate native, teaches five Spanish classes: Spanish 7, two Spanish 8 classes, Spanish II Honors, and Spanish IV-V. Mrs. Green attended Boston University where she majored in Spanish, and traveled to Spain four times. She enjoys travel, and has also been to England, France and most of the United States.

Her first teaching experience was in Los Angeles, California, where she taught in an inner city school. Next, she taught in the town of Millis, Maryland, a very small school system. After teaching in Millis, she went on to teach in Marshfield, Mass. Finding Marshfield school system large and impersonal, she applied for the job at C.H.S.

Because she was replacing Ms. Cecsarini, a well-liked teacher (Ms. Cecsarini now teaches at Boston College), Mrs. Green was nervous about taking over. However, she says she has had an easy time adjusting, and is impressed with the school, especially the active AFS Club. She finds the students pleasant and courteous. Mrs. Green likes the fact that in C.H.S. she can get to know the students as individuals because of the small size of the school.

The C.H.S. Lamplight welcomes you, Mrs. Green, and hopes that you enjoy Cohasset and C.H.S.

C.H.S. Presents...



By Kathy Corbett and Vicki Spooner

On December 4, 8, 9 and 10, Cohasset High School's second annual all-school musical, Godspell will hit the auditorium stage. With opening night only a short time away, the cast is working very hard together, rehearsing up to 10 hours a week. The 13 lead roles include talented members of every class from eighth grade through 12th grade. Seniors Linton Young, Kurt Hochkeppel, Tom Jones, Lilly Carbone, Tove Osterling, Nancy Walls, Sarah Muir, Richele Sargent and Nancy Donahue all work together with underclassmen Shawna McCarthy, Andrew Glasfeld, Glen Hochkeppel and Michelle Meagher to form a united group of performers who will undoubtedly put on an impressive production of Godspell

This unity, so important to this musical in particular, is also evident within the 30-member chorus which completes the cast. Under the direction of producer Bryan Marks, the chorus of students from every grade puts in many hours of practice as do the members of the instrumental accompaniment. Director Ron Emmons and choreographer Andrea Polardi are doing a terrific job coordinating the acting and dancing.

As opposed to last year's Grease the performers in Godspell have much more treedon with their individual lines and parts; through more improvisation they develop original characters. Each of the leads devotes a great deal of time to developing individual talents which contribute to the united overall effect of this year's musical. Cohasset High School looks forward to another enthusiastic production and anticipates a large turnout. Tickets are on sale for $3 and all seats are reserved, so contact any member of the cast or Mr. Emmons to buy your tickets now — Don't wait until the shows are all sold out!

Lawn Mowing, the dread of Teenagers

By Jim Martin

Although winter is a dread for many because of its frigid weather and miles of slosh and snowbanks, to me, it is a reprieve from the hard, tedious, insane job of mowing the lawn. You know, mowing the lawn, with the sweet smell of freshly cut grass and the scorching sun that melts your tired body into a state of blank unwillingness.

Maybe my hatred for mowing the lawn comes from the fact that I never have an excuse to avoid mowing the lawn in the summer. During the school year I can always hand my mother the famous line, "I'm busy," or better yet, "I have too much homework, Mom, and you wouldn't want me falling behind in my studies, now would you?" In the summer, however, the credibility of the excuse, "Mom, I have to go down to the beach, it's very important!" seems to fall apart. Thus, I am imprisoned at home and condemned to the horrible fate of running around the house with a huge, noisy mechanical contraption. But wait, there is still hope: rain. This delay can be stretched anywhere from one to three days depending upon how long it takes for the grass to dry. After this abatement, it again looks as if there is no escape from the infernal task. Sometimes I am lucky enough to have a friend whom I haven't seen in months visit me. After arguing my point to my mother that it would be impolite to ask my friend to leave or to wait for me, I can again delay my chore to spend the day with my welcome (especially welcome at lawn mowing time) guest.

Other unexpected appointments can be included to escape the wretchedness of lawn mowing. I can successfully work in dentist appointments and town functions to get away from the lawn mower. Inevitably, however, my luck runs dry and I am forced to cut the grass. First, Mom gives me a long lecture about responsibility. She then throws in the routine that she has a strong and able son who does nothing around the house, which really starts the guilt trip going. She then suggests that the day I mow the lawn should be declared a national holiday, and that gets me started.

I slip into my room and come out properly attired: old sweatshirt, grubby jeans and a pair of old sneakers. I then journey into the depths of our garage and retrieve gas can, garbage pail and lawn mower bag. The lawn mower comes next. This step is fiercely trying for certain skills of excavation are required. You see, months before, when I had last mowed the lawn, I had neatly placed the mower in the corner of the garage. At this point, however, it has become entirely buried by junk. Trying unsuccessfully to dig out the mower, I become frustrated and begin throwing old relics out of the garage to get this big machine out. When little sister's bicycle, grandmother's watering can, father's tool box, and other such articles have been viciously discarded, I am able to rescue the lawn mower.

After stretching out and taking deep breaths to prepare myself for the event, I try to start the big red monster with the word "Jacobson" on the side. Nothing happens — no gas. I fill the tank , not before I do a thorough job, however, of getting my hands and clothes full of gas. I then try the engine again and it starts. The two of us then join forces to do battle with the enemy. The fighting becomes fierce, culminating in a final struggle with the foot-high weeds in the back yard. It is always a bitter and exhausting experience, but usually every time the mower and I are able to arise victorious over our foes. Aided by the grass-catcher bag and the garbage pail, we are able to drive the invaders deep into the woods. What is left is a beautiful green sea, marred with strips left from the battle and left as a reminder of the terrible experience.

I then retire my equipment and sit back with iced tea. I wipe the sweat from my forehead and sigh a breath of relief. Pleased with myself, I smile and think about the toad whose life I saved or the rock that I spotted before my mower choked on it. I retire my sneakers, green with battle scars, and put my feet up on the coffee table. Hopefully, if I have timed it right, there will be a football game on for me to watch. Hopefully, if I time it right, I will not have to mow the lawn for a long, long time to follow.

Expect the Unexpected

By Robert Corkery

As we approach Thanksgiving, we anticipate the beginning of the winter season. There is excitement as we move indoors for the next few months. The dark, cold days are warmed by interscholastic activities of winter.

A perfect example is the ice hockey team. This year's team will be a major contender in Division 2. They will have to make up for the loss of last year's state-quarter finalist team members: the O'Neill brothers, Rich Evans, Mark Brown and Troy Chatterton, to name a few. But with solid players like Lee Wilson, David Ormiston, Joe Hoffman, John Drago and Kevin Quilty they could match the feats of the '82-'83 team.

At this time, though, there is a question as to whether Tom Burnell, head coach, will be returning this year because of an illness in the family. He will be missed by everyone. There is a great deal of unity on this team because most of the members skate together year-round. These year-round leagues give the players the valuable opportunity to practice and improve their skills. The players have already gone to their own expense to pay for ice time to hold practice.

The basketball team has great expectations with their season. After settling the coaching controversy, the team must work harder under Coach Minelli. The players all have great respect for Mr. Minelli, which is a key factor in their future.

Helping the team will be the returning lettermen because of the experience they've had playing together. People to watch this season: Antony Bogarty, Peter Caruso, James Creed and David Barcomb. Many of these athletes have been playing over the summer. This team may well be the best Cohasset has seen in a few years.

The girls basketball team, under the coaching of Bill Fallon, should have a successful season. The team, though it may be young, has talent and determination. Janet DiGirolamo will be a key contributor.

The "Matsmen," as the wrestling team is referred to, must work hard for the tough schedule ahead. Captain Lee Reed will set the pace.

Ninth Grade Humanities Update

By Dawn Johnston and Cynthia Conklin

Having just finished the Bible unit, the ninth graders are happy to be into something else. After long and tedious work, summarizing chapters of Genesis and mapping out Abraham's journey, they're finally finished. To make this study complete, the ninth grade recently visited the Jewish Temple of Rabbi Yellin. Many ninth graders enjoyed the field trip. Says one ninth grader, "Humanities has been an enlightening experience, starting with the creation of man, all the way to visiting Rabbi Yellin." Another ninth grader said of the trip, "I thought the best part of the trip would be McDonald's, but I found Rabbi Yellin fascinating." Mrs. Burbank has said of this year's class, "It's like any other class, except we're making them think more instead of giving them the information straight out."

The Humanities program began in 1974, when the Social Studies teachers got together with the English Department to combine the learning of man. Humanities is "the study of man through the study of his creations and his accomplishments: classical literature, history, art and music." The ninth graders are now entering the classical unit. The major emphasis is on the Greek and the Romans. Many famous Greek works such as The Iliad, The Odyssey, and Oedipus Rex are going to be read. And, of course, the story of Julius Caesar will be studied. (The "Big J.C." as Mr. Bouchard says!) The C.H.S. Lamplight wishes all ninth graders the best of luck with Humanities this year.

"The Deal" is no big deal

By John Kuntz

I went to see the Deal of the Century Chevy Chase's new movie, last weekend. If you happened to catch it, well, that's too bad. I'm not going to say that "Deal of the Century" was a very bad movie; it just wasn't a good movie. First of all, don't go into Deal expecting something like Vacation That was National Lampoon. This is some guy named Friedkin. It's no wonder that "Deal" isn't very funny , after being directed by the guy that did The Exorcist Sure, it's comical when Chevy tries to sell a bazooka like it was a vacuum cleaner, but that goes stale after a while. The rest of the movie is just shock humor: cars are torched, people are shot in funny places, walkmans are really laser guns, and ground traffic controllers are hit by missiles.

Deal of the Century satirizes the arms race. Chase, playing Eddie Muntz, top arms dealer, is wilder than ever. His presence alone saves the film from being a complete flop. The plot involves Muntz's selling of some pilotless fighter planes (called with obvious irony, the Peacemakers) to a Latin dictator. Helping Ed is assistant Ray (Gregory Hines), who, throughout the picture, is burdened by a religious question. Sigourney Weaver plays a bimbo who's in it for the bucks. The film crumbles as it gets more complicated, vague and meaningless. Disco dancing around missiles? Come on. and how does Ray connect his religious re-birth with the total destruction? Deal is just another November turkey. See it only if you're a rabid Chevy Chase fan. Deal of the Century 2 stars.

Dr. Neill dispels myths about chiropractors

By Melanie Mars

Dr. Kevin Neill

A chiropractor? Isn't that in the same league as voodoo? They don't really do anything for you, do they? Why not simply go to a medical doctor?

They have more education, don't they?

These are some of the misconceptions about the profession of chiropractors. However, because of medical research supporting what chiropractors have been saying for years, attitudes are changing.

Dr. Kevin Neill, who practices in Cohasset, shared his thoughts on the profession.

Neill was born in Philadelphia, grew up in Smithtown, New York and while stationed at Ft. Devens in Ayer "took a shining" to the Boston area.

In the service, Neill was a dental assistant. His life ambition was to become a dentist. However a freak accident changed all that.

Back in Smithtown as an undergraduate at New York City College (NYCC) Neill and a friend were on the last leg of a bicycling trip. They stopped for their final rest and discussed which route to take back to Neill's home.

"Sometimes I get these feelings, he wanted to go one way but I felt we should take a back road," Neill said. "Finally after arguing awhile I gave in."

Neill was hit head on by a car.

"While the doctors kept doing tests to see if I had a hidden internal injury, I kept telling them my shoulder hurt," Neill said.

"Finally a friend who was going to NYCC to be a chiropractor took a look at my shoulder on the beach. He told me more with his fingertips than three medical doctors, including an orthopedic surgeon," he said.

Neill has suffered a permanently separated shoulder. His ambitions changed and he began to study to become a chiropractor.

At first, Neill's family was not thrilled he had changed his career plans.

"But now several family members have been to see chiropractors. After being educated as to what a chiropractor does, their attitudes have changed," he said.

A chiropractor's education is as extensive as a medical doctor's. They both study the same basic science but branch off into their respective fields of study.

While a medical doctor takes the chemical aspect, a chiropractor studies the structural aspects of the human body.

"A chiropractor likes to think of himself as a 'wellness' doctor," Neill said. "We deal with functional problems, we try to help those with a lessened vitality or a continuous pain."

"Most spinal surgery could be avoided if peple did not wait to seek help until the problem becomes chronic," he said.

Neill believes everyone should monitor their health.

"People should try to be as well as they can and not wait until they're in sad shape to find out what can be done to help them," said Neill.

When a patient comes to see Neill, he begins by asking them what is wrong, he then asks abut their past medical history, their lifestyle and then gives them an examination. If he perceives the problem to be medical, he refers them to a medical doctor.

"I would refer a patient out without hesitation," said Neill. 'If I can not help them, I would send them to somebody who could."

Medical doctors have begun referring patients to chiropractors also. "But because of human nature and politics, chiropractors are not members of the AMA, the relationship is not as close as it should be," Neill said.

Neill had been discouraged from opening his practice in the Boston area. Friends felt that the area was more inclined to seek out medical doctors.

"But the people here have an awareness about them. They keep their eyes open and are willing to investigate things for themselves," he said.

"More and more people are going back to basics," Neill added, "and that is what a chiroprator stresses."

Neill said that exercise and nutrition are very important to keeping a person in 100 percent health.

However, exercise should be "tailored to the individual."

"A person who has a history of chronic lower back pain should not do sit-ups," he said. "The very exercise that is supposed to help us may aggravate the problem."

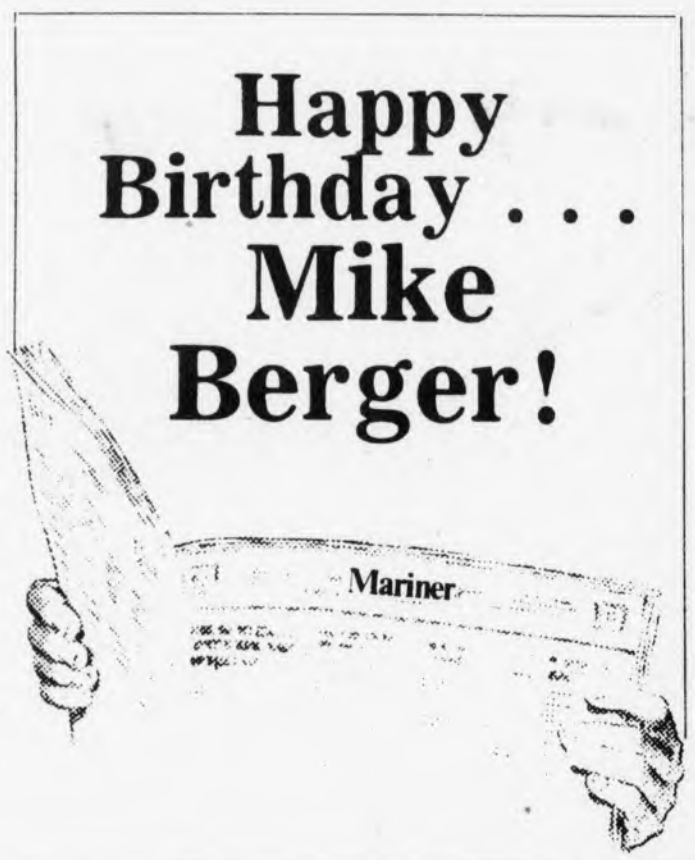
Neill said the same could be said for jogging. If a person is straining themselves running, they should try walking instead.

"People are dynamic creatures, they need to be active," he added.

As for nutrition, Neill said people do not vary their diet enough.

"We have our favorite foods and we tend to stick wtih those, but not every food has all the different nutrients our bodies need," Neill said.

Another important factor in determining health is stress and how we cope with it.



"A person who has a very stressful job and is having trouble dealing with that stress should seriously consider another job," Neill said.

Built up stress and anxieties can have real consequences for people.

"However, there are some people who can not or simply refuse to adapt to another lifestyle," said Neill.

Neill bicycles and jogs. "I am just plain happier when I am active," he said.

Neill, who lives in Marshfield, is engaged to Flora Otterman, a Quincy native, who is his receptionist.

S.S. Art Center launches business membership drive

The focus of the South Shore Arts business membership drive will provide an opportunity for businesses to offer to employees the benefits of a resource center for the visual arts.

In launching its charter business membership drive, "In Partnership With the Arts," the South Shore Art Center at 103 Ripley Road hopes to attract businesses, both small and large, to use the facilities as a cultural and educational center for the arts.

"This very significant step," according to Peter Chapman, chairman of the business membership drive, "is further evidence of our commitment to promote the cultural alliance between business and the arts."

The alliance between business and the arts allows for a continuous exchange of ideas between the two sectors and for each to benefit from the resources of the other. Too many cultural organizations use "business memberships solely as fundraisers," Sheldon Ripley, president of the South Shore Art Center, stressed. He added an organization like the Center "deserves support only when it recognizes its own obligation to serve the community — whether civic, private or corporate."

The Center's business membership drive offers various categories of membership each offering a number of benefits.

Depending on the membership category, the benefits include use of the Center's facilities for a business or social event, classes offered to employees at Art Center members' reduced rate, an opportunity to lease works of art at a discount for display at the member's place of business, a limited number of free tickets to lecture series or special programs at the Center and the opportunity to participate in the sponsorship of an art center exhibition or program.

The classes offer the employees an opportunity to enroll in a variety of courses geared to all levels of artistic and non-artistic ability.

The selections include courses in painting, drawing, landscape and interior design, crafts, photography, art history, children's art and other areas. Special workshops such as the Center's recent Intro to Video Production are current and reflect the Center's commitment to encourage the use of new art forms.

The monthly exhibits in the invitational gallery give a glimpse of the quality of work being accomplished by Boston and area artists. The Center has also put together major exhibits at the Boston City Hall, the Prudential Center, the Federal Reserve building and the JFK Library.

The art leasing benefit will allow business members to bring works of art to their business environment for the enjoyment of employees, clients and customers. This exposure can enhance a person's appreciation of various types of art as well as creating a more pleasant work environment.

The South Shore Art Center is a member of the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and is affiliated with the Massachusetts College of Art, Continuing Education. Through this affiliation, the Center is able to offer some of its courses for credit given by the Massachusetts College of Art.

For those participating by subscribing to one of the membership categories, their names will be placed on a special plaque for permanent display at the Center and will be listed in Center programs. Business members will also receive a plaque for display at their place of business.

All businesses are welcome to participate in the South Shore Art Center's business membership drive. For those wishing further information, contact Margaret Dillon, executive director of the Center, at 383-9548.

Godspell Musical Director Bryan Marks reads off a list of changes to be made in the show production.

A Child of good taste in comedy and chow

By Lois Martin

We all have our tastes in comedy. One of my favorite resources for a good laugh is Julia Child's show. Thus far I have written down not one recipe. My need for a basic bourginonne is after all, limited. I've made note of gourmet flashes from Julia's pans but I've been more absorbed by the demonstrator than by the demonstration.

Julia appears hale and hearty and forever hungry on 'Bon Appetite.' Her Girl Scout blouse has rolled up sleeves. Her apron is used for utilitarian purposes for hands that are never quite free from ingredients.

And in her common approach to uptown cuisine, Julia has a Tom Sawyer appeal. Once, just once, I'd like to give a cooking demonstration. I, too, am of the hurl and casual mix school of cooking.

PATCHES

What wins me over entirely is Julia's full lipped slurping from her stirring spoon. When she tastes something, and that's a prerequisite, she has a generous sample and then returns the spoon to the company pot.

Now there's your down to earth cook.

I tuned in on her last weekend briefly. I missed the scooping out of the tomatoes but I caught her lemon butter sauce for broccoli.

Why there is not flour on her right cheek I don't know. She brings melodrama to the kitchen. The appealing irony of her situation is that she creates lofty dishes in the most natural setting imaginable.

Cooks who've been around a while know they too make elite sauces if they would only apply a high falutin' name to their gravies and white sauces and add a dash of lemon, nutmeg or wine to insure it as a specialty.

Anyway, I want to play. Give me that little assortment of dishes with premeasured ingredients. Skip the measuring if you want since I gave that up long ago.

I haven't sifted flour since I lost my sifter in a move in '65. I measure salt on the back of my hand if the palm is wet. And I measure spices visually. I add them as needed by smell. And things are done when I say so, have to leave on an errand or finish a phone conversation.

I don't own a souffle dish or even a decent bundt pan. When I do quiche it's still in the pie plate and I'm not above making a pie in a brownie tin if that's more convenient.

My menus aren't prepared. They happen or they don't happen depending on what's in the refrigerator, or the defrost time of a primary ingredient.

I like to cook easy. That is, I create on the premise that most dishes are never-fail. Approach with confidence. Ignore defeat.

Julia's guest last weekend was a tiny chef. He made an orange souffle with elan (that is style, not an ingredient).

Julia joined him when his souffle was garnished and powdered with confectionary sugar. What a pair. Truly show biz.

I suspect James Beard is a fun person. I have regard for chefs whom I can't understand when they describe their elegant looking dishes.

But I want to do just one demonstration like Julia, the gladsome concocting of supper onstage. I suppose I'll have to do something about my stove. The burners don't always go on automatically. Consequently there's that danger of being gassed to death before my meringue peaks. On camera that would be tacky but preferable to an explosion.

But Julia has created such flam(e)boyant style that my stove might be seen as extra flambe.

The ultimate match for a one-shot show would be Julia Child and Hazel Bradbury, my alter ego who has entered Marshfield Fair baking contests on my behalf.

That would be an hilarious (for me) combination of uptown cuisine and downhome cooking.

Julia, call me anytime on this. I can always put my pie on simmer as we plan the menu.

Fullback Bob Durkin could be running star next year

By Cindi Bondi

The Cohasset football team lost 22-0 to Duxbury on Thanksgiving but discovered new talent in freshman fullback Bob Durkin.

Durkin made his debut on varsity the last game of the year.

"He was the leading ground gainer," said Head Coach John Leone, "He will be a strong runner for Cohasset next year."

Cohasset will also need to find many new linemen as the team will be losing 20 seniors this year. Many seniors were first year players which contributed to a tough year on the field for Cohasset.

"The game of football is just too much to try and absorb in one year. It is unfortunate that some of the first year players had not come out for the team before," said Leone.

First year players were: Perry Harris, Bill Oliver, Doug Mantz, Evan Pounder and Chris Kuhn.

Kuhn led the team in interceptions for Cohasset. "He is a very coachable player. He was a pleasant surprise this year who played safety on defense," said Leone.

Two other standouts, defensive end Peter Caruso and tight end John O'Connell were named to the All South Shore League all star team.

Tackle Jim Lydon is the biggest player on the team at 6 feet 2 inches and 245 pounds. "He played well offensively and defensively all season," said Leone.

Jerry Reed made a successful move to linebacker from half back this season. Rodney Best played well at half back.

Captain Lee Wilson did not see much playing time because he was injured. "He was as dedicated as any other player. He made it to every game and helped out wherever he could," said Leone.

Linebacker captain Brett Wetzell was consistent all season long. Guard Chris Coburn had a slow start on the season after transferring from a Connecticut High School. "Coburn played a great Thanksgiving game," said Leone.

Tackle Nick White was taken out for most of the season by a shoulder injury. "It would have been a different ball game from the start of the season if Nick was there," said Leone.

Steve McMahon and John O'Connell saw a lot of playing time.

Once again another Thanksgiving game marks the end of the season and the end of a high school football career for these seniors.

Register Dec. 3 for Spring Soccer

The last chance to register for Spring Soccer will be Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the entrance of the Congregational Church next to the Cohasset Town Hall.

Registrations must be made by Saturday to be eligible to play in the Coastal Youth Soccer League spring season. The cost is $20 per player for all age groups except the 19 and under group which costs $25 per player. Payment must be made at the time of registration.

Indoor Soccer Season has started

One hundred and four soccer teams in 16 age divisions recently opened at the 1983 Massachusetts Indoor Soccer Season at the South Shore Sports Center's new Astro-turf facility in Hingham.

Many eastern towns are represented in the seven and eight game schedules. Cohasset and Hingham have entered nine teams each. Perennial power Duxbury, has three entries while Wellesley, Newton, Plymouth and Scituate are represented in the Under 12, Under 14 and adult divisions, too.

Company sponsored teams include: Rockland - Burger King; Papa Gino's; Godfather's Pizza; Whitman Cheshire; O'Connell Gardens - Quincy.

First season champions, Cape Cod Fog, Acton Madmen and Hingham Over 30's returned to defend their titles.

Other soccer programs include an Adult Christmas Tournament sponsored by Budweiser, Youth Holiday Tournaments Dec. 26-31, weekly "Mini-Clinics" for four to seven year olds and Soccer 2000 instructional sessions for women and eight to 14 year old players.

The newest additions include volleyball and a jogging track, adding to existing aerobics and fitness sessions. The club also has a complete tennis program including professional instruction, women's leagues, youth clinics, round robins and social events with open court time available.

Indoor soccer, tennis, volleyball, aerobics, jogging and fitness programs are offered. Clinics, leagues, camps and practice time are available. The Sports Center is located off Route 3, at 100 Recreation Park Drive, Hingham.

GODSPELL AT DEER HILL SCHOOL

By Neely Hemassi

"We're all one big, happy family," said one performer in the production 'Godspell.' There are 13 performers, two of whom have a made-up part. Some of the high school lead characters in 'Godspell' came to the Deer Hill School to perform a few scenes to give the kids a preview.

Robin Haynes, a sixth grader at Deer Hill said, "I enjoyed it and I'm looking forward to seeing the musical with my family and friends." The students really seemed to enjoy the preview. They've worked very hard on this and hope it will draw a lot of tickets. The performances will be held Dec. 8, 9, 10 and 13 at Cohasset High School.

CONTINENTAL MATH LEAGUE FINISHERS

Grade 8 top nine finishers:

4/6 tie: Craig Martin, Peter Kasperowicz, Charles Sturdy; 3/6 tie: Peter Buckley, Steven Ford, Michele Migliaccio, Ray Rosano, Sarah Hamilton and Kerri Kirkendall.

MUSIC DISTINCTION FOR HEATHER DAVENPORT

Heather Davenport was chosen by audition for the Southeast District Music Festival. Students from 45 schools auditioned Oct. 25 at Rockland High School. Heather will play first chair, second clarinet in the concert Jan. 14. Heather was recommended for the All State group also, and will audition for that on Feb. 4.

Senior Chorus students making the District Festival are Jean Bailey, Nancy Donahue, John Pereira, Linton Young and Tom Jones. In addition, Nancy Donahue received an All-State recommendation.

LAW CLASS GUEST

Richard Bugley, corporate counsel for Apollo Computer Corporation of Chelmsford, was guest speaker at Edward Sheehan's law class Tuesday, Nov. 22. The University of Massachusetts and Franklin Pierce Law School graduate lives with his family at 82 Pleasant St.

During the 40 minute class, Bugley fielded questions on law school, the Massachusetts Bar Exam, as well as on the duties and challenges of corporation law. When asked by one of the seniors about what a corporation lawyer does, Bugley said, "I advise people in my corporation who come to see me with corporation-related legal matters." He also said that as corporation counsel he often "manages outside counsels if and when our corporation is sued in another state."

Because he works for Apollo Computer Corporation, one of the emerging hi-tech companies, he said he personally enjoys the legal challenges of this new industry. "Most of my work involves torts or cases involving my corporation or other persons or corporations," he said.

Other legally-related topics that came up during the question and answer session included: injunctions, video cassette lawsuits, computers and softwear, affirmative action programs in industry and preventative law.

JUNIOR-SENIOR DANCE

A Sadie Hawkins Dance, the first annual Snow Ball sponsored by the juniors and seniors, will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m., Friday, Dec. 16 at St. Stephen's Church. Tickets will be available from class officers at $10 per couple; they will not be sold at the door.

"Lisa Lips" will D.J. the semi-formal affair. Refreshments will be on sale.

COMBINED CHEMISTRY—MATH TEST

The Math Dept., in conjunction with the Science Dept., constructed an arithmetic skills test for junior, sophomore and ninth grade honors chemistry students. Concepts involved in the testing were scientific notation, ratio and proportion and literal equations. Weaknesses were noted and supplementary practice sheets were inserted into the curriculum.

Teachers participating in the interdisciplinary concept were Joe Nunn (chemistry), Charles Davis (Chairman Math Dept.), and Maureen LaLumiere (math).

MATH DEPT. NOTES

The high school computer room closes every afternoon at 2:45 p.m., but there is need for student use until 4 p.m. Adult volunteers are needed to supervise student use of the facility to allow students more time on the machines. Volunteers needn't be computer literate. Contact Charles Davis if you can help.

Cohasset students share thoughts on Temple visit

Students in Ginny Burbank's ninth grade English classes will send 120 thank you letters to Rabbi Richard Yellin from Temple MishkanTelfish, Chestnut Hill for Chanukah in gratitude for an informative day November 3.

The students' trip added a new perspective to the education of each child.

Excerpts from some of the letters follow.

"Coming from a small, relatively secluded town like Cohasset, it is hard for one to appreciate beliefs that are different from his own. Yet, I found your discussion quite interesting and informative. I now know many things about the Jewish religion that used to be great mysteries to me . . . I can become a person who can comprehend and appreciate people who have different beliefs from myself." —Philip Mahoney.

"Even though we come from different walks of faith, seeing religion from your perspective helped me to understand my own better. The intensity with which you believe in your religion was inspiring. Today it is very rare to find someone who believes in anything so strongly. Your synagogue was very impressive. The fact that you had comfortable chairs in place of hard pews shows that you have the good health of the people at heart. Many churches contain boxes in which each family is to sit. These boxes are like barriers shutting off one family from another.

"Your synagogue contained no barriers and I did not feel like I was being closed in. I feel I benefited by seeing things through your eyes. I wish that we did not make such clear distinctions between religions. I feel each walk of faith has something to say that is worthwhile to hear." —Lisa Shumaker.

"I call you Rabbi because you did teach me something. I not only learned about the Jewish faith, but also about my own Christian-Protestant faith." —Cindy Bell.

"I was surprised by the warmth and comfort of the synagogue, because all churches I've ever been in have been cold and impersonal. Your knowledge of the Bible and of other religions really impressed me, and your lecturing in other churches showed the respect for others you spoke of." —Susan Riley

"The part in which Judaism is a religion of life was fascinating. Anyone who would insult the Jewish religion would have to be ignorant, for it is definitely a religion based on love, faith and the celebration of life. I would also like to add one more thing. I agree with you on the women Rabbi issue. Judaism is a religion based on tradition and should not be changed." —Lisa Gallagher

"I found that Judaism was similar in some respects to the Catholic faith. You drew an interesting parallel between removing your hat in a church and putting on a yarmulke in a synagogue. The phylactery you showed us were similar to Catholic rosary beads . . The presence of "decoy" Torahs in the synagogue was a shock to me because I really hadn't thought about the effects of anti-Semitism." —Eric Maki

"Not having an altar in front of the synagogue is very symbolic. I had never related the altars in churches to the altars used in sacrifice before. I think it is very interesting the way all of the synagogues in the world face Jerusalem. I hope that in two years you will still be doing this so that my sister may go visit your synagogue. Maybe when her class goes they can eat at the restaurant (deli) you spoke of and try some kosher foods." —Nancy Lincoln.

"Though you had many good points, I strongly disagreed with your opinion on women rabbis. Without change, we would not have telephones or television. Why not try it out?" —Amy Harding.

"The Jewish religion isn't what I thought it was. All those laws! I don't think I could follow them in a million years. I have great respect for anyone who has such great will power to abide by these laws." —Bob Durkin.

"I was much struck with the fact that you have trouble sleeping at night because you feel you did not do enough. On that Thursday night, sir, I hope you got an excellent night's sleep because you certainly taught all of us a lot about the Jewish faith.

"My grandparents and father were forced out of Germany during the Holocaust but still have not learned that much about the Jews.

"By the end of your talk I felt that the Jews have a very good form of worship and if I were to belong to any religion it would probably be Judaism. One question which I had written down is one which I have been very curious about. With all the scientific proof denying it, do you still believe in the Bible theory of the creating of earth and man?

"You said in your speech that you were always interested in other forms of religion. Considering that, I was wondering if you would like to come to our all-school production of the musical "Godspell" (The Gospel according to St. Matthew.) Thank you very much for all the knowledge you have given me." — Andrew Glasfeld.

Cohasset residents were pleased with the recent program delivered by Henry Dormitzer at the First Parish Church Parish House. (Rose Cundari photo)

Garden Club house tours

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will present a house tour reflecting the Spirit of Christmas Dec. 15 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

On tour are eight homes dressed for the holidays. Complimentary "palate pleasers" will be served from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lothrop House.

Tickets are $9 sold in advance only. For tickets call Mrs. Paul Wessling, 749-2598, Mrs. Brewster Davis, 749-4720, and Mrs. Thomas Brady, 749-1262.

HOUSE 1

This beautiful 1770's example of early American Federal architecture was originally the home of Job Turner, shipbuilder. Stroll through this home and admire the English flavor of old Williamsburg.

HOUSE 2

This lovely turn of the century villa has a definite European flavor and is decorated with an eclectic flair.

Throughout the house are treasures collected from around the world. Special interest is the kitchen which has been turned into a little French bistro.

HOUSE 3

This delightful country farmhouse is a joyful mix of country and classic antiques.

Particular delight is the master bath which is dedicated to Queen Victoria.

HOUSE 4

This exquisite example of Federal architecture was built in 1820 for a sea captain.

Color and light have been used with a flair to set off traditional furnishings of this family home.

HOUSE 5

This home was built in 1812 for Captain Nathaniel Treat. The house boasts a ships stair, a new kitchen and a special cherry fireplace in the dining room.

HOUSE 6

This home has a commanding view of Little Harbor and the sea beyond. There are many unique architectural details reminiscent of life on a ship — windows that open at the turn of a ship's wheel, and a ship's staircase.

HOUSE 7

This spacious white colonial home was built by two Cohasset ladies.

Particular interest are the plant-filled solarium, sun room, new kitchen wing and beautiful British gardens which surround the house.

HOUSE 8

Enjoy our "palate pleasers" from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the beautiful home of Cohasset's Historical Society.

Pack No. 38 scouting news report . . .

By Linda Farrag

PAST NEWS

The scouts participated in another successful Bowl-a-rama the past two weekends. the money collected is distributed to the Council and Pack #38 of Cohasset, so the boys had a chance to have a good time while earning money for the Pack. We thank the many people who sponsored the boys. The scouts will receive a "thank you" gift which they are able to choose from a list taken from the Scouting handbook. Thank you also to the many parents and den leaders who helped out.

FUTURE NEWS

Dec. 2—We are looking into the possibility of the scouts caroling through the Village during the Christmas Stroll. We will notify the boys if it develops at individual den meetings.

Dec. 3—Village Fair Day. The dens can bake or make something for our Cub Scout table. The proceeds are distributed to the churches in town.

Dec. 11—Committee meeting at the Parish House, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. We would like to have a representative from every den.

Dec. 7—Newsletter and badge information to Pat Curtin.

Dec. 14—Christmas Party Pack Meeting, 7 p.m. at Deer Hill School.

Dec. 17—South Weymouth Naval Air Base from 10 a.m. to noon. The boys can purchase lunch at the Base for 75 cents (adults $1.50). We have been limited by the Air Base to 35 boys, so the scouts should let their leaders know as soon as possible.

Dec. 14, the cubs can bring an ornament (handmade or otherwise) and help decorate a Christmas tree for one of the local nursing homes.

We will also be collecting canned food donations for a Christmas basket to be given to a local deserving family.

DEN NEWS

Den 1

The boys have been working on fixing up their den. They have made a flag holder, dues box, "goodies" box and individual name banners. They also have learned the Cub Magic Code "Mirror Magic." Bobcat awards have been earned by: Danny Baird, Michael Equi, Billy Jordan, Greg Pyle, Michael Russell and Doug Schultz.

Den 2

In October the Cubs of Den 2 went on a nature walk to Wheelwright Park. They learned to identify a variety of leaves, nuts, moss, lichen and fungi. The highlight of the trip, of course, was scrambling atop Balancing Rock. Jeff Thomas, Eric Drysdale, Alexander Vanderweil and Marc Mercurio earned their Bobcat badges in October.

Wodworking projects were started in November. Several of the boys participated in the Bowl-a-rama and enjoyed the ice skating at Winter Gardens.

Den 3

All six scouts of Den 3 received their Bobcat badges in October: Paul Bilodeau, Brian Buckley, Peter Collins, John Kinchla, Justin Littlehale and Jason Pearsall.

Constructing, decorating and racing three different paper airplanes (the "Arrow," the "Dart" and the "Glider") proved to be an enjoyable November den meeting.

The last November den meeting also had to do with working with paper. The cubs made stand-up turkeys out of paper bags, newspaper and construction paper.

Den 4

The scouts in Den 4 had an enjoyable trip to the Norwell Science Center.

They made bird feeders which they brought to the Ripley Road Nursing Home. This gave them credit toward their Bear badges.

Several of the boys enjoyed the Bowl-a-rama and the ice skating trip to the Winter Gardens.

Den 4 has been fortunate in a new addition to their group. Michael Lelacas of the Boy Scout Troop #28 has become their Den Chief, which in turn helps him earn one of his badges.

Den 5

The boys in Den 5 also had an enjoyable visit to the Norwell Science Center and then made suet log bird feeders and the boys enjoyed a trip to the Winter Gardens ice skating party.

The Denners for November are Brian Conant and Kevin Bishop.

Webelos

The boys have had three den meetings so far to work on activity badges and first aid. Athlete badges have been earned by: Linc Marsac, Mark Batts, Billy Baird, Doug Drysdale, Jon Mitchell and Steve Almeida.

Forester badges were earned by: Linc Marsac, Mark Batts, Peter Smith, Jay Gaston, Ricky Morrison, Billy Baird, Steve Almeida and Doug Drysdale.

Oct. 29, an overnight camping trip was cancelled due to cold weather and high winds but a three hour hike in Wheelwright Park was substituted. The boys learned some basics regarding compasses, learned how to identify trees and shrubs (especially sassafras), and met the challenge of the "Lemon Squeezer."

Helping run games at the Halloween Pack Meeting, ice skating and raising money via the Bowl-a-rama were additional aspects of the scouting progrm for the Webelos.

Dramatic Club to present 'A Christmas Carol'

The Cohasset Dramatic Club's future presentation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" in a stage adaptation by British playwright Brian Way marks a return to the Cohasset Town Hall stage for this classic.

Dickens' Christmas tale has been a favorite with audiences on both sides of the Atlantic from its first appearance during the 1840s.

Written as one of a series of Christmas stories appearing over several years time, "Christmas Carol" was adapted to stage performance almost immediately.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club first presented a stage version at the Town Hall Friday and Saturday, Dec. 16 and Dec. 17, 1949, in an original adaptation by Club member Isobel Grassie, who also directed the production.

For that 1949 presentation a cast of over 60 Cohasset Club members brought Dickens' colorful characters to life on stage, with 35 more members forming the backstage production crew.

Featured between the scenes was a chorus of carol singers drawn from the town's church choirs, directed by Cohasset schools music director Earl Chamberlain.

Just 24 years later, the Town Hall stage will see another able cast portray the same well-known and beloved characters in "A Christmas Carol's" 19th century London setting.

In the Brian Way adaptation, carol singing is part of a London street scene which opens the play, and Joan Appel is the music director.

Directing the play is Julia Wood Jordan, whose Cohasset stage appearances recently have included Club productions of "A Man For All Seasons," "Strange Bedfellows" and "Scenes From American Life."

This popular adaptation by playwright Brian Way was written in 1946 and premiered in that year at the Victoria Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, England. Performance schedules for the Cohasset Dramatic Club's presentation are: Friday and Saturday evenings, Dec. 9 and Dec. 10, Sunday afternoon Dec. 11, Friday evening Dec. 16, and Saturday afternoon Dec. 17. evening shows begin at 8 p.m., afternoon matinees at 2 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults, $2 for children 12 years and under, available at the door before each performance.

Senior Citizens are invited to attend the final dress rehearsal at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6, with no admission charge.

Christmas bazaar

St. Paul's School PTO will hold the annual Christmas bazaar at the school, 18 Fearing Road, Hingham, on Friday, Dec. 2 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 3 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

Featured items will include a white elephant table, books, homemade candy and fudge, knitting goods, handmade decorations and gifts, houseplants, greens and poinsettias and a Santa photo booth. Coffee, doughnuts and a luncheon will be available during the day.

Christmas trees will be sold in the parking lot outside the school and a raffle table will include Waterford crystal, two New York Air passes, bride dolls, handmade full-sized baby quilts and numerous other items.

The Christmas Bazaar Committee includes Jeanne Park of Scituate, Susan Harrington of Cohasset, Debbie Bowman of Norwell and Chris Kirk of Hingham.

Christmas concert, Dec. 3

The Choral Art Society's Christmas concert, directed by William Sano, will be held Saturday, Dec. 3, at 8 p.m., at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Scituate, Rte. 3A and First Parish Road.

The program will include Saint-Saens' "Oratorio de Noel," Henry Purcell's "Christmas Anthem," Buxtehude's "Das neugeborne Kindelein," Berlioz' "Farewell of the Shepherds to the Holy Family," and Mendelssohn's "Behold a Star from Jacob Shining." Dorothy Bales, the Society's concertmaster, will be the violin soloist in Vivaldi's "Winter" concerto from "The Four Seasons." The chamber orchestra will include strings, bassoon, harp, and organ.

Cohasset members of the chorus who are soloists in the Saint-Saens are Sara deLima, Marilynn Humphreys, Diana Rousseau, and Lincoln Bloomfield. Other Cohasset singers include M. Rita Burke, Tamsyn Elliott, Linda Henderson, Carl Hurtig, Leigh Knapp, Millard MacNeill, Edwina Migliaccio, Peter Tolman, Nancy White, and Richard deLima.

Other members of the Society who are soloists in the concert are Andonea Guilbault of Norwell; Bradley Stark and Carol Miles of Scituate; Constance Benzaquin, Paula Clough, and Carol Nickerson of Marshfield; Judith Reiman of Duxbury; and Benjamin Spence of Bridgewater.

Tickets are $5, students and seniors $3.50, and are available from members of the chorus or at the door. As there is always a full house for this Christmas concert, the audience is urged to arrive promptly.

This program is supported in part by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery and administered by the Scituate Arts Council.

Music Circus certificates

Christmas gift certificates valid for the 1984 season at South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset are available by mail, phone and at the theatre's business office.

Available in any amount starting at $10, gift certificates may be used in the spring to purchase tickets to any attraction of the summer season. Full season subscriptions are also available for gifts.

Music Circus producer Ron Rawson said, "Our gift certificate program grows in popularity each year. Our patrons find certificates to be the perfect stocking stuffer for everyone on their holiday gift list. They're also great for business associates."

Patrons may charge their gift certificate order with a major credit card by calling the Music Circus at 383-9850 any week day between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Patrons may also mail a check in the amount of their choice, adding $1 handling fee for the total order, to Gift Certificates, Box 325, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Lighthouse fundraiser

The Lighthouse Quilt, a fundraiser for the Flying Santa Project is sponsored by the Hull Livesaving Museum. Edward Rowe Snow started the tradition of dropping Christmas presents to the lighthouses of New England as a thank you to the many lighthouse keepers who guide the sailors to their destination.

The Museum is dedicated to keeping this tradition alive and will be exhibiting the beautiful quilt which depicts the twenty-two lighthouses of New England, for raffles, at the following places. Hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Dec. 3, Hull High School; Dec. 10, Scituate-Hatherly School Fair; Dec. 17, American Legion Hall, Marshfield; Dec. 4, Weymouth, Harborlight Mall; Dec. 11, Braintree Armory; Dec. 18, Quintree Mall.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

It began as a trickle in late August, to develop into a deluge for days on end, but how our name became a household word for catalogue firms all over the nation is a mystery. It wouldn't be Chirstmas here without an order to L. L. Beans, but that's it as far as ordering gifts by mail. But it is fun to riffle through the catalogues to find that eight ounces of chocolate truffles go for $20, 10 gift-packaged pears may be yours for $15.95 and an apple pan dowdy to serve 16 is $24.95; a little much to my way of thinking. Packed in a gold-embossed box, their cheesecakes serve 12, but at $19.95 it almost seems as if you're paying more for the box than the dessert. Since 1975, when I first served this Polish cheesecake to my family, it has been a favorite, one that certainly doesn't cost more than three or four dollars to make, besides which it serves 14! Reanne Rosenhahn gave me the recipe and like so many of our reader's contributions, it bears repeating. So, for the second time around, here is Reanne's

POLISH CHEESECAKE

Graham cracker crust:
1¼ c. crumbs
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 c. margarine
Melt margarine and mix with sugar and crumbs. Line a 13" x 9" sheet pan with this crust.
First filling:
1 lb. cream cheese
1/2 c. sugar
3 eggs
3/4 tsp. vanilla
Combine in mixer. Pour over crumbs. Bake in 370 degree oven for 20 min.
Second filling:
1 pt. sour cream
1/4 c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
Pour on first mixture when cool. Sprinkle with nuts and cherries. Refrigerate 24 hours ahead.

Joanne Lawrence writes: "Surprise! I have finally come across that elusive recipe for Thymed Butternut Squash, and after your help in trying to locate it, I just have to share it with you." So, here is Joanne's

THYMED BUTTERNUT SQUASH

1 large butternut squash
1 T butter
1 tsp. honey
1 T milk
Dash cinnamon or nutmeg
1 T. fresh thyme leaves, or 1 tsp. dried thyme
Cook squash and mash well. Beat in remaining ingredients and whip until fluffy. Serves four.

Over the years I've done my Christmas shopping in gift shoppes in far away places, searched for a parking space at a nearby crowded mall and joined department store lines to wait to have a present wrapped for a pretty stiff fee. Now, at last, I've found the ideal way to shop is to sally forth armed with my precious list of gift ideas and browse in one of many charming stores we have right here on the South Shore. As a rule the proprietor is solicitous, the shop is stocked with unusual items, gift wrapping is offered free of charge, and assurances given that if Aunt Minnie isn't pleased, exchanging her gift is no problem. Shopping has been fun! There's your car waiting at the curb and you look forward to a return visit. The other day I was in Cohasset and stopped in at Fleming's, just opposite the Bread Shop on Elm St. It's been there for 51 years and has now been taken over by a new proprietor, Frank Smith. Tucked away amongst the woodcarvings, Quimper ware, vases, collectibles and nutcrackers from Germany, is a little gourmet corner. Marble rolling pins, whisks of all sizes, decorative molds, pineapple cutting boards and aprons are but a few of the unusual kitchenware. Frank is even ordering special bread cutting knives at the request of Sine Pounder of the bread shop. Another shop I enjoy is the Hingham Grain and Spice Shop where you can find the makings for this

SIMPLE CORN BREAD

2 c. corn meal
1 c. brown rice flour
1/2 c. whole wheat flour
1 tsp. sea salt
1 T corn oil
2 to 2½ c. hot water

Mix flours and salt in large mixing bowl. Add oil and mix, first with a spoon and then by rubbing mixture between hands until lumps are gone. Add hot water a little at a time and mix. For a drier and more grainy-tasting bread use about 2 c. water, or 2½ c. water to make a wetter loaf. Place in an oiled 9x9x2" baking pan and bake at 375 for 50 to 60 min.

Fire Dept. plan calls for firefighter cuts

By Mike Berger

Fire Chief Martin Dooley is setting a precedent for area fire chiefs with his latest manpower report for fiscal year 1984-85.

While other chiefs are calling for more firefighters, Dooley is calling for a decrease of up to six full-time firefighters through a hiring freeze, attrition or layoff.

In a management plan delivered to the advisory board and selectmen, Dooley said Cohasset has more than the nationally recommended number of firefighters for a town its size.

While decreasing the 24-member force to 18, Dooley is calling for a greater responsibility on the call force and a upgrading of fire equipment.

Dooley claims the town could save more than $100,000 by depending more on the call force.

This report was first publicly discussed at an advisory board meeting last week.

However, town officials are reluctant to talk about the report because ofcollective bargaining discussions.

The firefighters' contract is due to be negotiated soon.

Dooley feels there is less firefighting but more ambulance calls and he feels the job can be accomplished with fewer men.

Firefighter Union President hasn't read the report yet but challenged Dooley's claim the department is overstaffed.

He said firefighters protect double the property value and more than any other town in the area.

The Fire Dept.'s annual budget is nearly $450,000.

Related to this report is the recommendation of the Ambulance Study Committee.

The committee is scheduled within the next few months to determine if the town should pay a company to provide ambulance service.

Dooley said he is keeping an open mind toward the committee's recommendation.

Dooley is declining further public comment until he is invited to discuss the report with the advisory committee. Selectmen must also review and comment on the plan before submitting it to town meeting.

CONSULTANT

Several advisory committee members including chairman Jim Lagrotteria do not support the selectmen proposal to pay between $10,000 and $18,000 for an outside consultant to solve Fire Dept. manpower problems.

Lagrotteria said the committee has not yet been asked to comment formally on the town meeting article.

But he feels selectmen who have asked for more management control of the Fire Dept. in recent years can and should solve the problems themselves.

Chamber of Commerce is reality

By Bill Hayward

As of Jan. 1, 1984, Cohasset will officially have a Chamber of Commerce.

About 70 people from Cohasset's business community gathered at Hugo's on Nov. 30 to discuss the purpose and goals of the chamber.

The Chamber of Commerce's official purpose is "To promote the commercial, civic and economic betterment of the town of Cohasset."

John Hagerty, director of public relations for the chamber, said, "We are here not only to benefit the business community, but the town at large."

Chamber president Dan Leahy said if the Chamber of Commerce concerned itself only with the business community, "We would just become a very small, self-serving little organization."

Several small, exclusive business groups have been formed in Cohasset in the past, but they were not successful.

The Chamber of Commerce will be "non-exclusive" and community oriented.

The chamber hopes to hold civic events which will benefit the town's youth and elderly.

To help local businesses, the chamber will "run workshops and seminars on running a family owned business, tax problems, financial planning, time management and speed reading."

The chamber will also offer low cost medical insurance, provide government liason service and compile local economic profiles.

The articles of organization for the chamber will be drawn up. Once members have approved the articles, final incorporation actions will be filed and the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, Inc. will be official.

Cohasset merchants, non-profit organizations and retired business people are welcome to join.

The chamber's next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 11, 1984 at 6 p.m. at Cohasset by the Sea.

Officers of the chamber are: Dan Leahy, president; Joseph Quinn, Exec. vice president; Ed Goff, first vice president; Jim Kearney, second vice president; Wayne Sawchuck, community development; Brian Noble, business development; John Hagerty, public relations; Linda Peters, membership; John Slater III, legal council.

Board of Directors are Mandy Burgoon, Frank Smith, Norma Kravette, Fred Wood, Sally Wood, Sue Straley, Dick Straley, Robert Davenport, John Clark, Charlie Humphreys, Bob Mullin, Mrs. Roy Forrest King and Andrea Merril.

Drinking practices forum stresses home

By Cyndee Moore

Talking about alcohol abuse is not enough.

Cohasset parents plan to take some definite action and that action will begin at home.

Over 40 parents discussed the sobering facts about teenage drinking practices in Cohasset Dec. 1 at the junior-senior high.

The meeting, led by health education coordinator Michael Gill, was a follow-up to last spring's forum on teen drinking practices.

How to deal with the drinking practices identified in an April 1983 survey of junior high students was the topic of the meeting.

Alcohol is "the center of social functions," said several newcomers to the community. "There is more emphasis on drinking here," said a new resident from the Midwest.

The town has developed a reputation as a "drinking town" among high school students from other towns, Gill said.

Eighty percent of Cohasset's youth have experienced with alcohol by the time they finish the ninth grade, according to the findings in the survey. Seventy-four percent of those students continued to drink after their initial experimentation.

Gill said he knew of alcohol use among students as early as the sixth grade. A small percentage of the survey respondents said they began alcohol use under eight years old.

Additional findings showed 44 percent of the seventh graders and 67 percent of the eighth graders have experimented with alcohol.

Cohasset is "no safer (from teen drinking) than anywhere else . . . people just think that it is safe and open," Gill said. "The survey corresponds almost to a T to national statistics."

Currently, the school system is educating students about alcohol use. All seventh graders must take one semester of alcohol education as part of their health education curriculum. The curriculum includes addictive and abusive properties of alcohol, decision making and values clarification skills.

Alcohol education has its real beginning in the third grade and continues at the high school as an elective course.

"I do not teach that alcohol is a bad thing," Gill

Bottle Bill review has mixed comments

By Theresa Sullivan

Most of the eight package store operators, polled in Cohasset and Scituate, have mixed feelings about the Bottle Bill. Drawbacks, they said, include inconvenience, dirtiness and the amount of space and time handling returned bottles requires.

While many of those interviewed said they have noticed less bottles and cans in the streets, some said there are still MacDonald's and Burger King wrappers on the side of the roads.

Ed Donovan, assistant manager of Tedeschi's Package Store, Front St., said his store is one of the largest redeeming centers in Scituate. "It's a mess. It's unsanitary," he said. "Most people like to return them in plastic bags."

Joe Cotter, a clerk at Tedeschi's, said viruses grow in the bottles and the plastic bags because "99 percent of our customers do not rinse them (bottles and cans) out." Germs multiply in the moist environment of a sealed plastic bag.

Peter Logan, owner and manager of Bottled Liquors, Rte. 3A, Cohasset, said he solved the problem of festering germs by requiring his customers to return

Cohasset's week . . .

Food sanitation seminar

During the first week of November, the Board of Health sponsored a food sanitation seminar with guest speaker Ron Herzberg, Senior Food Specialist for the Federal Food and Drug Administration. Herzberg discussed the most commonly evidenced violations of food service regulations. His talk and slide show was informative to the standing room only crowd of 47 participants. Attending were restaurant owners, retail food store owners, and food service workers.

Insurance board appointment

High School false alarm

School administrators fear a group of students caused a rash of junior-senior high school false alarms last week. School Supt. Eugene Crowell said these students, although not caught, are suspected and were disciplined on other related offenses. Crowell said if the students are caught, they will be prosecuted. Responding to the rash of alarms caused misunderstood orders in the Fire Dept.

Originally Fire Chief Martin Dooley ordered no apparatus would be sent to the high school. The chief or the officer on duty would be notified and school administrators would check the building to see if further equipment was needed.

Dooley, after meeting with Crowell and Police Chief Joseph Kealey determined one engine would respond to the alarms.

Dooley said he made the first order because he feels someone "just likes to see apparatus coming to the school." He added it is a common practice in other communities to send only one engine.

Fire Capt. Mark Trask first suggested to the chief fire apparatus should stand by near the school.

Administrative dispute

Fire Dept. Captain Mark Trask and Fire Chief Martin Dooley are disputing a letter which has been put into Trask's personnel file which criticizes Trask for releasing call firefighter information to the Ambulance Study Committee.

In a letter to selectmen Trask said the Study Committtee discussed the use of call firefighters as a method of delivering ambulance service.

Trask was assigned to research call firefighter turnout and response time. Trask received a letter from Chief Dooley which said Trask had passed on the information to the committee in an unauthorized manner.

Trask said he finds no correlation to how his position as a member of the Study Committee relates to his personnel file for the Fire Dept. He wants the letter removed from his file.

Dooley said the information given to the committee has no bearing on the operation of the ambulance. He set a policy directive which says, "no records or written information from this department will be submitted to the Ambulance Study Committee or any other committee, organization or individual without my initials or approval."

Dooley said Trask did not discuss the problem with him and added there is a step in the grievance procedure to handle the matter.

Ward Engineering sewer forum set for Monday

There will be a public meeting of the Cohasset Sewer Commission to present preliminary findings of Ward Engineering Associates, who have been investigating alternatives to the Metcalf and Eddy plan for waste water treatment for Cohasset Dec. 12.

The range of alternatives which are being investigated include upgrading on-site systems, bringing the present plant on Elm St. into compliance with permit requirements, expanding the area in town currently on public sewerage, and connecting Cohasset to the Hull treatment plant.

Ward Engineering has completed approximately two-thirds of its planned 200 on-site inspections and has received over 600 returns of the questionnaire on sewage disposal sent a month ago to all Cohasset residents. The firm discussed with Hull town officials the possibility of Cohasset using the Hull plant, and is helping the sewer commissioners identify a simple, inexpensive and effective modification to the operation of the present Elm St. plant to correct its discharge permit violation.

The recently appointed Citizens Advisory Committee has been studying these proposals and has had the opportunity to question both the Sewer Commissioners and Ward Engineering to the plants feasibility and effectivenss.

Cohasset residents are urged to attend the Dec. 12 meeting so the widest possible audience may hear the results of the work done to date by Ward. Residents may question the results, may suggest future areas for study, and give guidance to those charged with presenting an acceptable plan for waste water treatment to the townspeople.

The Sewer Commission meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall.

The Citizens Advisory Committee also urges all citizens who have not yet returned their questionnaire to return them immediately. Extra copies are available from the Sewer Department Office in the Bates Building on Elm St.

A full disclosure to Ward Engineering of how residents are currently handling sewage disposal needs will not only greatly facilitate their study and allow for greater accuracy in their recommendations to the Sewer Commission but may also improve our chances for receiving state and federal grants for whatever proposal is finally accepted by the town.

Track littering bothers selectmen

Residents are still telling selectmen about the littering and dumping on the railroad beds.

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said, "There is a fine of $100 for dumping on the railroad beds. We absolutely are not going to put up with the dumping of anything namely tires."

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said, "There are only 100 tires left. Many have been removed. About 755 had accumulated over the years. Selectmen suggested posting signs downtown which warn about littering and dumping.

Peter Kulturides of River Road said, "I don't think that posting signs downtown will stop people from littering way over at the tracks."

McArthur said, "If we put the signs up and catch one person, the word will get around."

Fire Dept. Capt. Mark Trask added, "Hazardous waste is a problem especially if it becomes known that hazardous waste can be dumped in a particular place."

Landfill supervisor disputes fill material amount

By Bill Hayward

Cohasset landfill supervisor Joseph Laugelle attended the health board meeting Monday night, Dec. 5, to discuss the alleged overuse of fill material, which has caused an estimated 16,000 dollar deficit in the health board budget.

Engineer Fred DeFeo estimated that cubic yards of fill per month should be more than adequate to cover the refuse. This year the landfill has used an average of 1500 cubic yards per month.

Laugelle disagreed with DeFeo and said, he is using only the necessary amount of fill for the job and no more.

However, Laugelle told the health board the area of the landfill operation which may be contributing to the problem. Pickup trucks and trailers bring their refuse to the rear of the landfill and the equipment tends to dump over a large area.

The board ordered Laugelle to allow trucks and trailers to use the rear area only on weekends. They also told Laugelle to restrict the dumping area to 30 feet in length.

The board also asked Laugelle to appear before the next town meeting to explain why so much fill has been used.

Board member Dr. Charles Bliss said, "I think it is your responsibility to explain to the townspeople." "I'll give it my best shot," said Laugelle.

Three members of the advisory board also attended the meeting to discuss the health board budget deficit.

Advisory committee members agreed with the health board's contention that the budget allotment has been too low in the first place, considering increased fill material costs and increased amounts of refuse.

Advisory Committee Chairman James Lagrotteria asked, "Did we underestimate the amount of refuse going to the dump?"

When health board members replied they were not certain, Lagrotteria said, "I think you should get some feel for numbers or tonnage or amount of refuse."

He added, "You can't keep yelling that you are using too much fill unless you have some idea of the amount of refuse being dumped."

Health board members said they have begun to collect data on amounts of refuse being dumped but added, "It is going to take a while.'

Lagrotteria said, in the meantime, "I will bring this up to the full advisory board and try to get a commitment of funds."

Liquor license fees draws criticism

Peter Kulturides, owner of the Log and Line restaurant on Ripley Road, was the only owner to attend the selectmen's meeting and criticize the recent liquor license increase.

Kulturidies said, "Although I do not see any other representatives from other businesses here I do not believe that the other gentlemen in town can comply with such an increase." Kulturides said his license jumped from $250 to $600.

Two other restaurant representatives responded to the increase in letters to the selectmen.

Daniel Leahy, General Manager of Hugo's, on Border Street, said, "Although as citizens we are generally protected by the infamous 'no taxation with representation,' we in the business community rely on the assumption that taxes of this nature would compel some type of forewarning from the local board."

Selectmen received a letter from John Muncey, owner of Muncey Liquors, on South Main Street. Muncey said, "As a taxpayer in the Town of Cohasset as well as a businessman we can see no justification in this fee. Cohasset is a small town and should not be compared to other towns."

Kulturides said he has repeat clientele and not a lot of people who travel through Cohasset. "I'll be charging John Doe, who comes in three times a day for that license," he said.

Selectman still said the price increases will remain the same.

Bottle Bill review has mixed comments . . .

bottles and cans in either paper bags or cardboard boxes, where liquid can evaporate.

"It was a lot of bother when it first started," Logan said. "It's one thing to take their returnables; it's another to take their rubbish.

"We won't take them unless they are clean. Now that they have them clean, you really don't mind at all."

A frequent complaint of package store owners was while the streets are cleaner (free of bottles) there is still a litter problem. "Look at the parking lot. Look at the junk out there,' said John Turner, owner of Turner's Package Store, front St., Scituate. "They should enforce the littering bill."

The retailer has financed the Bottle Bill, Turner said. "The handling charge is not worth it," he said. "We've always had recycling in this town."

Ramona Scott, manager of Scott Liquors, South Main St., Cohasset, said the 2¢ per bottle that a store makes on returnables "is not going to make us rich."

"If you could set up some kind of redemption center at the dump, that would mean money for the town." She said on a large scale, a redemption center is profit-making.

Carl Burney, owner and manager of Greenbush Package Store, Country Way, Scituate, said the Bottle Bill puts a strain on small businesses. He said a redemption center would take the pressure off some of the smaller stores.

"We've got more room than all the other (Scituate) package stores put together," Burney said. He has one room set aside for returnables.

"I think it's a nuisance, but I've had a change of heart. We've learned to live with it. The handling fee helps off-set our problems," he said.

Jay George, manager of Cohasset Central Market, South Main St., Cohasset, said his customers bring their bottles and cans back clean. "I feel that it's working out really well," George said.

He has hired someone to work one hour a day to straighten out the room where he keeps the returned bottles and cans. He said he has an exterminator come in regularly.

When asked how he feels as a consumer, George said, "I throw them away. I can't be bothered." He said if he had the chance to vote again, he'd vote against the Bottle Bill, "because it's a nuisance."

Most of the managers/owners mentioned the added cost to the consumer as one of the drawbacks. Jeffrey Cohen, manager of Country Package Store Liquors, Gannett Rd., North Scituate, said a case of beer has increased $3 since the Bottle Bill was passed.

The consumer pays $1.20 as a deposit and $1.80 as a service charge, he said. If the customer returns the bottles, he gets 5 cents each.

Those interviewed acknowledged the streets are cleaner. Many said children do bring in bottles they find along the road.

"We have people who don't drink liquor at all and still go to the ball parks and pick up (bottles and cans)," said Mark Bailey, owner of Scituate Package Store, Front. St.

Bailey and others said the Bottle Bill created an industry because of the need for redemption centers. He suggested "It should be regionalized. It's cheaper to buy beer in New Hampshire." Therefore, those stores near the New Hampshire/Massachusetts line lose business, he said.

During the busy summer months, customers would have to wait while a store clerk waited on a customer returning bottles, Bailey said. Bottles have to be sorted and counted. Most merchants said people wait to return them until they have bags and/or boxes of them.

"When they put the Bottle Bill in, they should have specified hours; so you could have extra people on" to handle the returnables, Bailey said.

Drinking practices forum stresses home . . .

explained. "We live in a drug culture."

So "what are we going to do about drinking as parents of these children?", a parent asked the group.

Parent and school committee chairman Dick Conley said, "Let's forget pointing at the police officers, school or dances, (let's) look at ourselves."

"I haven't heard of a party in town yet where the parent is at home," a concerned mother said.

The survey supports her statement's implications. Fifty-seven percent of the seventh graders, 44 percent of the eighth graders, and 46 percent of the ninth graders reported beginning to drink at home.

A party that "blossoms", said a parent, one weekend night at a house when the parents are away provides the typical scenario for teenage drinking in Cohasset.

Teenage drinking practices are not only the concern of parents who have children who drink. "All students may not be drinking, but they all know someone who is," Gill said.

"There are non-drinkers. They have to be stronger kids. They are in the minority. They become strong by the parents talking to them," said a mother of a high school age daughter.

Most parents at the meeting, however, agreed talking about alcohol or drug abuse was not enough.

An enthused father said he would like to see guidelines set community-wide for curfews, parties, dances and discipline. He would like to see these guidelines "blown up on a 6 x 8 foot poster and for all parents to sign it, and post it in the school."

"After all," another father said, "children tend to play us (parents) off one against the other."

If curfews and other rules were adopted community-wide, the restrictive parent would not be in the minority. "We need to start acting as parents," a parent proposed. "Make that the "in" thing . . . (say) this is how it is going to be."

Under that social climate, the non-drinking student would almost be relieved, suggested another parent. "Then you could say, 'I don't have to do this.' "

The suggested covenant to be shared by all parents was to allow no alcohol or drugs when their children's friends visited. A parent would not allow his or her child to attend a social function which was not supervised.

The majority of the parents supported this community approach to parenting. Some even felt that parenting workshops would be beneficial. Others expressed willingness to chaperone PSO (Parent School Organization) or school dances and to plan more social functions for students.

In an effort to support this parent-networking, Gill volunteered to submit proposed parent-teen guidelines to the school committee and the PSO for approval and possible enactment.

CHS cast gives new meaning to 'Godspell'

By Corinne A. Kutish

There's a kind of innocence that is required by cast members to make a performance of "Godspell" work. That is perhaps why Cohasset High School's production last Sunday was such a moving experience and a success.

Playing this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the high school's auditorium, "Godspell" is a jubilant celebration of the Gospel as told by St. Matthew.

The cast, a talented group of 13 high school students, cavort on-stage in brightly-colored costumes and enact the sayings, stories and parables of the Gospel. Their charm is their exuberance and the open simplicity of their young age.

Linton Young stars as the production's hero, Jesus, dressed in orange and white striped pants, orange-tasseled tennis shoes, yellow suspenders and "Superman" shirt, complete with large "S." He has a strong, clear voice and an easy-going manner that carries the show.

With the 12 other members of the cast, symbolic of the 12 apostles, Young is called upon to use many theatrical devices. You see puppetry, pantomime, children's games, charades, vaudeville antics, and tap and soft shoe dancing. The music and songs of "Godspell" are also varied, from folk, pop and ballads to rock, dramatic and light musical comedy.

Tom Jones opens the performance as John the Baptist, dressed in mock tuxedo, with bright red bow tie, cumberbund and knee pads. He signs a strong rendition of "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," symbolically baptising both cast and audience with water from a sponge and bucket.

Then, on come the remainder of the cast, dressed in exaggerated clown-like outfits representing something of each member's own personality. There is a peacenik, punk rocker, tomboy, sexpot, and other brightly-colored variations, played by Lilly Carbone, Nancy Donahue, Andrew Glasfeld, Glen and Kurt Hochkeppel, Shawna McCarthy, Michelle Meagher, Sarah Muir, Tove Osterling, Richele Sargent and Nancy Walls.

At break-neck speed, the cast moves from enacting the parable of the prodigal son to the story of hungry Lazarus, who was carried away by the angels, while the rich man who refused to give food to Lazarus, died to an eternity of torment.

They also act out such sayings as "If the right eye offends you, then tear it out. For it is better to lose one part of one's body than to have the whole of it cast into hell."

What makes Cohasset's production specially endearing is its liberal incorporation of experiences associated with growing up. Take the parable of the sinner about to be stoned by the righteous crowd.

"Let he who has not also sinned cast the first stone," says Linton Stone as Jesus.

One by one the cast drop their stones, saying: "So, I burned my report card!"

"All right, I beat up and stole the lunch money of that girl in seventh grade . . . and in eighth grade . . . and in ninth grade . . . "

"Well, there were those cheerleaders in Norwell . . . "

Several members of the cast gave especially fine performances, such as Shawna McCarthy, the brazen sexpot of the group in her red can-can dress with "Flashdance" t-shirt and legwarmers. She sang a clever bump-and-grind routine, entitled "Turn Back, O Man" (Forswear thy foolish ways).

Michelle Meagher sang a lovely clear-voiced ballad, "Day by Day," in which she declares, "Oh, dear Lord, three things I pray. To see Thee more clearly, love Thee more dearly, follow Thee more nearly . . . Day by Day." While she sang, Richele Sargent signed the words in sign language.

Nancy Donahue showed good stage presence, especially when she sang "Learn Your Lessons Well," a song designed to encourage the learning of the scriptures. "You better pay attention, build your comprehension. There's gonna be a quiz at your ascension. Not to mention any threat of hell, but if you're smart, you'll learn your lessons well," she sings.

Director Ron Emmons, choreographer Andrea Palardy and musical director Bryan Marks should be congratulated on a very professional performance. Their kids obviously have talent, but without all the work on the part of these adults, there would surely have been no showcase for that talent.

This is the fourth production of "Godspell" at Cohasset High School. According to Emmons, people asked him if he wasn't bored with it by now.

"No two productions are ever the same," he explained. "Therein lies one of the primary reasons that I can come back to the show again and again. Its music is infectious; its script open to improvisation; its spirit of renewal joyous."

Accompanying the cast and large chorus was an excellent band, comprising of musicians Chris Crowley, Ruth Dalbeck, Jon Durant, Guy Martin and Skip Urmson.

You can make this uplifting show a part of your holiday experience by attending one of the three remaining performances this Thursday, Friday and Saturday night, 8 p.m., at Cohasset High School. Tickets are $3 and may be reserved by calling Barbara Donahue at 383-0132.

Proceeds will benefit the school's newly-formed Performance Arts Scholarship Program, providing money for future school musicals and scholarships to deserving seniors who have shown outstanding ability in the performing arts.

Tickets to "Godspell" were sold at the Town Fair held on the Common last weekend.

☐Area youth earning achievement medals for the Plymouth County 4-H Club were: Cathy Donahue, Scituate, and James Ash, Cohasset, pets; Larry Ash, Cohasset, bicycle; Larry Ash, dairy goats, and Deborah and Cathy Donahue, Scituate, for recreation and dog achievements.

Anyone interested in joining 4-H or interested in leading a new club should call the Plymouth County Extension Service, 4-H Department, P.O. Box 658, High Street, Hanson, 02341; 293-3541.

☐Marilyn Adams of the Cohasset office Gallery 360, the Gallery of Homes, has completed Course I of the 1983 Realtors Institute of Massachusetts held recently in Mansfield.

Upon successful completion of three 30 hour courses, Adams will earn the nationally recognized GRI (Graduate, Realtors Institute) designation.

A newcomer to real estate, Adams formerly operated her own pinata shop at Quincy Market in Boston and had a career as a researcher in investment and finance in New York City before moving to Massachusetts. She is a graduate of two Gallery of Homes training programs: Successful Practices and Advanced Listing.

Adams is a member of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors and the Cohasset Tennis Club. She teaches courses in the Mexican art of pinata making at the Cohasset Community Center.

☐Stuart Tolman of 28 Black Horse Lane, just returned from a trip with a Japanese fishing vessel working for the Foreign Fisheries Observer program. Stuart was away for two months, a long time to be at sea! He is a student at the University of Idaho, and did manage to make it home in time for a Thanksgiving feast.

☐Judy Bronstein and Diane Santini have been busy lately. They recently completed a volunteer parent aide training program which was sponsored by the Coastal Community Counseling Center. The certificates they received enables them to work with South Shore families who are going through some stressful times.

☐Heather Dilbeck of Jerusalem Road received her Masters Degree from Northeastern University recently. The ceremony was held at Northeastern's Matthews Arena.

☐Susan Douglas, a freshman at Colby College, performed in "The Insect Comedy," a fantasy play in which Susan played two roles. One was the part of Mrs. Cricket, the other was the part of an aunt.

☐Ann Pompeo had a scare last week which turned into a story with a happy ending. Her new puppy, Bruno, "escaped" and was among the missing for several hours. Ann called everyone she could recruit, then called the police station, hoping for information. After considerable time had elapsed, and hope was waning rapidly, the police came with Bruno. It seems a man on Lambert's Lane found Bruno and brought him to the station. Ann didn't get his name, but would like to thank him for his time, efforts and the return of their much-loved Bruno. A nice story to start the Christmas season.

☐The fairs held around town were a huge success. The crowds were massive, with everyone leaving after finding their treasures. Throughout the town there were children with painted faces, munching a goodie or two, with big smiles on their faces. There was hay on the streets, all of the shop windows looked festive. Anyone not in the spirit before the day started, soon found themselves responding with delight as the day went on. A giant pat on the backs of all of the people who made the day possible.

☐Ruth Bornstein did a fabulous job with the portrait of the former Governor Ed King. Eight months certainly is a long time to work on anything, but the results were worth all of her efforts. The unveiling was held at the Colonnade Hotel, with 100 guests attending.

☐Be sure to include the Garden Club's House Tour Dec. 15.

☐Be sure to call or write with your news. It's the time of year where there should be plenty. Please be reminded that all news has to be in by Monday mornings at 9 a.m., so that it makes that week's edition.

Bunch of thieves to visit Town Hall

Cohasset's Town Hall stage is about to be visited by the largest collection of pickpockets, thieves, grave-robbers, street urchins, ghosts, and just plain interesting characters ever assembled within the town's boundaries.

Charles Dickens' beloved "Christmas Carol" opens Friday evening and will be performed by the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

The stage at the old Town Hall has been transformed into a London street of 1840, and the "street people" of the city will come to life in five performances beginning Friday at 8 p.m.

More performances of Dickens' classic will follow at 8 p.m. Saturday, a matinee Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m, Friday, Dec. 16 at 8 p.m., and a final matinee on Saturday at 2 p.m.

In this Brian Way adaptation of the original Christmas tale, Ben Duffy plays Scrooge, Harry Heineman plays Jacob Marley's ghost, Gerald McNabb plays the young Scrooge and Carl Slotnick will portray the young Marley.

Derek Holmes is the clerk Bob Cratchit, Mrs. Cratchit is Andrea Dassori, and Kate de Lima is Tiny Tim.

Also, Scrooge's nephew Fred will be played by Ron Massa, and the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future wil be Molly Hochkeppel, Bob Julian and Stephanie Holmes.

Carter Hill plays the inimitable Old Fezziwig. A cast of nearly 70 Cohasset and area residents will put on the top hats and bonnets, the old-fashioned suits and gowns, and in some cases the threadbare rags of Victorian London as it was in Dickens' time.

Directing the show is Julia Wood Jordan, stage manager is Ellen Kelly, and lighting effects are by Arthur Paquette.

Tickets, available at the door, are $4 for adults and $2 for children 12 years-old and under.

Be sure to reserve one performance night or afternoon for the whole family to see the Cohasset Dramatic Club's portrayal of Dickens' favorite story.

Tickets are available at a limited quantity at Fleming Hardware, Cohasset Village.

Supt. Crowell will be evaluated

Members of the School Committee disagreed Monday night about how and when the superintendent should be evaluated by the committee.

Committee member Martha Gjesteby requested the committee discuss Supt. Eugene Crowell's performance in open session.

Committee member Dr. Joe Nedro made a motion to give Crowell a 6 percent raise and renew his contract for one year after he praised Crowell's performance.

The motion was seconded by committee member Diana Kornet.

During the discussion period which followed, Gjesteby said, "I feel that the superintendent does communicate with the staff on a regular basis.

"I think he has been a positive influence in the arts. He also works well with groups. He shows an interest in sports.

"I wanted to do more in policy work. I suggested a field trip policy...That never came up," Gjesteby said.

Nedro said she was speaking for herself and issues had to be handled by the whole committee. "You can't hold him accountable for things that individuals want," Nedro said.

"These were agenda items I asked for" to be discussed by the committee, Gjesteby said.

Committee member Jack Langmaid said, "I think what Martha wants is to devote at least one meeting annually to discuss this. This is the frustration Martha has; that has not gone on since Gene came."

Crowell was hired in fall of 1980. His contract stipulates that he will be evaluated by the committee annually, Langmaid said.

"I think that's why Martha is a little frustrated.She'd like to go by the contract. It's considered good school committee-superintendent relations," Langmaid said.

Conley said since it had not been done in three weeks, he did not see the need to do it that night. Nedro agreed.

"We've kind of changed the system as the signals have changed," Nedro said.

Langmaid said the five committee members and the superintendent are a group. Crowell is the group's chief executive and he is responsible to the committee as the committee is responsible to him, Langmaid said.

Crowell said each year he presents his goals and objectives to the committee. "I assumed that these were your priorities as well as mine," he said. He made no other comment during the discussion.

The superintendent's salary should have been set June 4, Langmaid said.

Nedro withdrew his request and the committee went into executive session to negotiate Crowell's contract. They will vote in open session on the contract at the next committee meeting.

Appointments

Coastal Zone manager Burk Ketcham, Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos and Francis Aronovici will serve on the Straits Pond Committee.

Selectmen appointed members to an additional Cable T.V. Council.

This council will advise selectmen about cable T.V. programming.

New members will be: James Gallagher, Arnold Nickerson, Richard Hayes, John Packard, David Chittim, Joseph McCool, Ann O'Malley, Donald McAllister and Karin Bartow.

A different twist

Question: What three town committees in the next two months will have, on occasion, standing room audiences?

Prediction: Ambulance Study Committee, selectmen and Advisory Committee.

The Fire Dept. saga continues on and a new twist was released last week as the Advisory Committee discussed a major manpower usage plan for the Fire Dept.

Some may say this is just a continuation of Fire Chief Martin Dooley's anti-union stance.

But when selectmen signed off on the dotted line of Dooley's contract, one stipulation read Dooley must be a planner.

There's been some talk selectmen are upset with the advisory committee for releasing the report last week, coinciding with Fire Dept. morale problems.

We feel when the report is released it is irrelevant. This report has to be discussed and the sooner, the better.

In fact selectmen, Dooley and the advisory board should meet together in open session and as the saying goes, "let the chips fall where they may."

Residents should not take the stance the Fire Dept. problems don't affect them. If you are a homeowner, consider if you are paying for fire insurance.

We predict the major fight at the January and or April town meeting will be the Fire Dept. budget. The two main questions to be answered are: Is less full-time men and more call firefighters the answer? Do the residents support Dooley's management policies.?

There are members of the Advisory Committee who support Dooley's plan. Selectmen haven't said anything yet. This could be interesting.

But one thing is sure: Anyone who is planning to run for selectmen in April must have a stance on the Fire Dept and that includes Chief Dooley and the budget.

Physical Education budget

Physical Education Dept. Chairman Marilyn Watson gave a summary of her department at Monday night's School Committee meeting.

The department is currently working to make the most of its programs, despite large class sizes, Watson said.

She said the department has lost 25 percent of its teaching staff. Class sizes average between 30 and 35 students, she said.

The ideal class size is 18 to 21 students, Watson said. As class sizes get larger, "we end up finding that a teacher becomes less of an instructor and more of a disciplinarian."

Class sizes vary because students' schedules dictate when they may take gym. "It's a scheduling problem that we're going to have to live with," Watson said.

Some of the activities students participate in include aerobics, basketball, field hockey, football, frisbee, gymnastics, softball, tennis, wrestling and weight training.

Watson said students are also taught nutrition as part of a total fitness approach the phys. ed. department tries to instill in students.

Watson said she was requesting the same $2,530 the physical education dept. was budgeted last year. If she had requested the same items she requested four years ago, the budget request would be $8,000.

Dad may have to move

By Claire McDonough

"I understand the Planning Board's sponsoring a Town Meeting article to control unnecessary noises in the town," I told my family.

Skipper looked up. "Does that mean Daddy has to move to Marshfield?"

Larry shook his head. "Not far enough. He'd better go at least to Duxbury to be on the safe side."

"Listen," the Dargon roared, "I am far from the noisiest member of this family. As a matter of fact," he looked at me accusingly, "two of your sons have had the amplifiers on their guitars up loud enough to attract the attention of Police Departments three counties away; you have a cat who makes more noise than Mick Jagger, and your daughter has one of those radios which shatters the sound barrier when it's on low."

I nodded. "They're taking all that into consideration. One of the members is bringing in his son's "box" radio to a Planning Board meeting. They're going to keep turning it up until it's unbearable and then they'll make anything with more decibels illegal."

The Dragon sighed. "That's all we need. An entire town board driven mad by sound. Does the Planning Board have any idea what kind of music they'll get on that radio? I mean, we're not talking Lawrence Welk or even the Beach Boys."

"Probably not. Anyway, they're not just talking about music. Those 'Honk If You Love' bumper stickers will probably be outlawed, too. And noisy neighborhood gatherings."

Breida turned away from her computer. "Well, I hope they do something about those mocking birds outside my window. They wake me up at 5 a.m. every summer morning."

"Right," Skipper agreed. "And there was a flock of Canada geese just last week that disturbed me at an unreasonable hour. Can the Planning Board do anything about that?"

"I don't think so," I told him. "I do recall though, that the late Wally Cox, although he was an avid bird watcher, said he refused to watch any bird that got up before 10 a.m. Maybe that kind of pressure would work."

Patrick closed his biology book. "There may be some merit to this idea. Stores that sell Cabbage Patch Dolls seem to generate undue noise and confusion. Maybe they could be outlawed."

"What I still want to know," Larry interjected, "is whether Daddy has to move to Marshfield or Duxbury."

"Neither," the Dragon replied complacently.

"The Planning Board will be so busy trying to quiet down the noise at the selectmen's meetings they'll never get around to me."

Wheelwright Park problems unresolved

(This is a copy of a letter sent to selectmen. Ed.)

Gentlemen:

On September 8, 1982, I appeared before you and read a letter concerning the public health hazard created in Wheelwright Park by the Cohasset Riding Club. My letter to you has never been acknowledged, and the problems continue to exist.

Since the Cohasset Riding Club was first permitted to use the park for its own purposes in 1978, abutters have been exposed to a variety of health hazards and annoyances, including the following:

Stagnant water accumulation — The constant pounding of horses' hooves in the 180 by 80 foot area has destroyed the grass cover and topsoil that once enabled the ground to absorb water. The holes subsequently caused by the horses fill with water whenever it rains, or whenever club members hose down the dust. Because the land does not drain naturally any more, the water remains there and stagnates. In addition, automobile tires, while not allowed in the town dump, can be found in abundance in Wheelwright Park. Although used by the club for other purposes, they, too, provide an ideal breeding ground for mosquitoes and other undesirable insects.

Dust — Because the horses have long since destroyed the grass cover that controlled the dust prior to 1978, clouds of dust accompany their every move during the spring and summer. In addition to the breathing difficulties this presents and the related health hazards, the dust settles on windows, automobiles, and everything else, leaving an annoying film.

Noise - In addition to the bullhorns, whistles and shouting, there are the crowd noises associated with large groups of people. We have counted more than 60 horses in the park on one of the hottest days of the year. As you can imagine, a crowd like that tends to spread out, and there is no escaping the noise.

Mess — Some of the members make an effort to clean up the area when they are through, others don't. Even the most conscientious, however, don't bother to remove the manure, and it lingers for days as a fragrant reminder, within 40 feet of our bedroom window.

Attempts to solve the foregoing problems have all been unsuccessful. July 28, 1979, concerned residents petitioned the selectmen not to apply waste oil as a solution to the dust problem.

Despite the petition, oil was applied, with unsatisfactory results. Calcium choloride has also been applied, again with negative results. Mulch has been dumped in the park in an effort to compensate for the damage done by the horses.

All that did was to change the contours without helping the drainage problem.

In fact, when the town installed a drain, in yet another futile attempt to compensate for the damage done by the horses, the water would have had to run uphill in

Murray's memos

Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

NEW RULES IN THE HOUSE

For several weeks reform of legislative rules have been the focus of House sessions. Now, some much needed changes in the practices and procedures have been enacted and are now in operation.

While no reforms have yet occurred in the Senate, House members have called for a meeting with the Senate leaders to discuss Joint Rules — rules affecting both branches.

And the Initiative Petition sponsored by a coalition of organizations is expected to be filed with well in excess of the required 60,000 signatures. A number of the reforms in that petition were adopted by the House in recent debate, but others are needed.

MORE RULES CHANGES EXPECTED

The recent action in the House does not signal the end of rules reforms. Because of motions made by Republican members on the Rules Committee, the special committee assigned to study the rules of the House will continue to meet on a regular basis.

Among the items they will continue to discuss will be some changes rejected in recent House sessions.

These include the controversial issue of ratification of leadership and chairmen by secret ballot. Constructive debate in the House revealed that some believe firmly that voting in a deliberative body should never be done in secret. Others believe that a secret ballot would "de-politicize" the process, keeping personalities and the possibility of retribution out of the picture.

Further proposals that the House committees will continue to discuss are the creation of a Steering and Policy Committee to nominate members for committee appointments and the election of members to serve on the Ethics Committee. Currently, members are assigned to committees, including Ethics, by the Speaker.

It should be noted that all of these are already the practice of the Republican Caucus, adopted first in 1979 and reaffirmed in 1981 and 1983.

LOOKING TOWARD '84

In 1984, the House sessions will be covered, gavel-to-gavel, by public television. For the first time people will be able to observe closely one part of their government in action. It will be a terrific opportunity for all of us to see how the rules changes affect the daily work of the House.

It should be noted that all of these are already the practice of the Republican Caucus, adopted first in 1979 and reaffirmed in 1981 and 1983. (However, Rep. Murray has always announced her Secret Ballot vote in Caucus, as do several other members.)

ACTION ON LEGISLATION

As the legislature nears the end of the 1983 session, a number of interesting bills are nearer to becoming law.

One of these is a measure to give probate courts an alternative child custody option in divorce cases. The shared legal custody bill which passed in the House by a vote of 137-6.

Joint legal custody means that while physical custody may rest with one parent, both will be involved in decisions on important matters affecting a child's upbringing such as education, medical care and religious and moral direction.

Under the terms of the legislation, divorcing parents will develop a written plan outlining those matters over which the decisions will be shared.

Also nearing final passage are bond authorizations totaling $1.3 billion; a $630 million capital outlay budget, a $520 million transportation bond issue and a $196 million bond for low and moderate income housing.

Already signed into law is a bill establishing minimum statewide standards for condominium conversions. The measure requires one-year notice of conversions to all tenants with lengthier notice to elderly, handicapped and low-income renters. Landlords would also be required to pay up to $1,000 in relocation expenses to those evicted and only limited rent increases would be allowed during the conversion period. Communities seeking more stringent regulations could impose them after a two-thirds vote of the local governing body.

HOLIDAY SHOPPING

An unfortunate fact of life is that shoplifting and theft of purses and wallets rise at this time of year. Please be careful when you shop so that your holidays will be safe and happy.

Attend Monday night's sewer meeting

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners cordially solicits the presence of all residents to attend a presentation by Ward Engineering on the scope of their waste water disposal plan for Cohasset.

Joe Ward and Chuck Dauchy will explain what alternatives to expensive central sewering they are evaluating for us. Joe Ward will also define the extent of our problem based on their field analysis to date.

The Sewer Commissioners wish to stress that the plan we are now developing must be one that is accepted by the vast majority of us. It is our town; it is our money to be spent; it is our future.

Help us make the correct choices for our community. Become informed, contribute your concerns and ideas. Help us make this plan truly a "Cohasset Plan."

Our presentation will be at the Town Hall Monday, Dec. 12. We will begin promptly at 8 p.m. and we promise to have everyone on his way home by 9:30 p.m. We will begin with a 40 minute presentation followed by your questions.

We look forward to seeing you at the Town Hall.

Thank you.

Charles DeSantis, Chairman
Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners

Wheelwright Park . . .

order to drain the affected area.

In the meantime, the situation has been intolerable for the abutters. We have been placed in an adversarial position against members of the Cohasset Riding Club. Every possible accommodation has been made for the Riding Club, while no attention has been paid to the rights of the abutters. Our protests have been ignored, or met with insults.

We never objected to horseback riding on the trails of the park, which seems to be a natural and desirable use. And we are not opposed to the Cohasset Riding Club itself, only to its almost daily use of the park for giving lessons, presenting shows, etc.

Although it is listed as a non-profit organization, money is being paid and received for the lessons and shows, and it appears that those activities are being subsidized by the taxpayers of the town of Cohasset.

We feel that six years is too long to have to endure the health hazards caused by the Cohasset Riding Club. We also feel that futher expenditures of taxpayers' money to solve these problems would be unjustified. It is worth noting that in 1978, when the Riding Club first began to use the park, more than half of the interest earned by the Wheelwright Trust was retained in the trust and allowed to compound.

In 1982, however, every cent of the interest had to be withdrawn from the trust. Obviously, the upkeep of the park has become considerably more costly during that period, even while other town services were being cut back.

As trustees of Wheelwright Park, donated to the town of Cohasset by the Wheelwright family, you —the selectmen — are responsible for maintaining its status as a public park. The activities of the Cohasset Riding Club have made it all but impossible for most of the citizens of the town to use it in the way in which it was intended to be used.

It appears that the club has attained some kind of "special privilege" status, despite the fact that many of those enjoying those privileges are not even town residents. Meanwhile, the rest of the citizens have been relegated to second-class, and even, in the case of the abutters, third-class status.

It must be obvious that the area in question — 180 feet by 80 feet — is too small to accommodate 60 horses. Surely, there must be other places more suited for such activity, even if they aren't subsidized by the taxpayers of Cohasset.

We realize that most of the members of the board were not in office when this problem arose back in 1979.

We ask now, however, that you do your duty as trustees of Wheelwright Park and representatives of the taxpayers of the town — that you set politics aside and return the park to the use for which it was intended — a public park.

I hope that you will see fit to respond to my letter this time, and that the board will act swiftly and expeditiously to remedy this long-standing problem.

I would prefer not to take this matter out of Cohasset, but I am determined to pursue whatever avenues are necessary to see that the park is used as it was intended to be used, and the rights of the abutters are no long er ignored.

St. Anthony's Parish

Dec. 11 will be the last week for C.C.D. classes before the Christmas vacation. Classes resume the week of Jan. 8.

"A Christmas Pageant" will be presented by second grade classes Sunday, Dec. 18 at 5 p.m. Children from all classes are welcome to participate. Rehearsals will be held Wednesdays at 3:30 p.m. at church.

A baked goods sale sponsored by Mrs. Caffrey's sixth grade class will be held Tuesday, Dec. 13, at Stop & Shop, from 3 to 5 p.m. The children are hoping to raise enough money to provide a "Christmas Wish" for a child less fortunate. Donations will be welcome. For further information, call Elaine Caffrey at 383-9170.

SOCIABLES

Some reservations are still available for the ski trip Jan. 27, Jan. 28 and Jan. 29. All are invited. For information, call Ray and Pat Buckley at 383-0304 or see us at the rectory Sunday.

Christmas concert tickets

Tickets are now on sale at the church office at $3 for the First Parish Church benefit Christmas concert. This year's concert will feature Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity" with woodwind chamber orchestra and the Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers, directed by Margo Euler.

Proceeds from the concert again help the DOVE shelter for batterred women in Quincy. There is still time to become a patron of the concert by making a contribution of $25. Patrons will receive two complimentary tickets.

Once again we are looking for donors to provide Christmas poinsettias to decorate our chancel table Christmas Sunday, Christmas Eve and Sunday, Jan. 1. Please call the church office 383-1100 or Gail Bell, 383-9837.

Circle Dinners will take place this year. We are scheduled to have two dinners, the first for January, February, the second for April, May. These dinners are a good way to meet and become better acquainted with First Parish members. Please call Shelley Weier at 383-1590.

Sunday, Dec. 18, is a very special day at First Parish. The traditional Christmas service will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the Meeting House. Older children may want to attend this service.

Our annual Christmas Pageant featuring children in grades Kindergarten and Grade 1 will begin at 4 p.m. in the Meeting House. The mitten tree will be there, along with Christmas lights and spirit.

Following the pageant we will all return to the Parish House for the Pageant party. Ornament making, tree decorating, cookies and cocoa will be waiting. Carols will be sung around the tree as each child contributes their own creation. It is shaping up to be a beautiful afternoon!

Second Congregational

Our church's tenth Messiah Sing, attended by more people than ever before, inaugurated the Advent season with the words of Isaiah: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord." Our special thanks to the soloists, the orchestra, music committee members Louise Flint, Dorothy Myers, and Susan Parker, and to Ellen Fryling for this prayerful and magnificent musical event.

"The Christmas Story Is for Grownups."

This is a brief introduction to the surprising facets of the familiar nativity stories in the gospels, which will lead into a discussion of what Christmas means to us as adults. Led by Rev. John Benbow, the session will be held from 6:30 until 8 p.m. Dec. 11, 22 Red Gate Lane.

We have some adorable brother and sister Christmas outfits in Infants and Toddlers — all at discount prices.

Do come and browse.

Residents comments on Bottle Bill are favorable

Twenty-five Scituate and Cohasset residents were polled last week and asked how they felt about the Bottle Bill, almost 11 months after the bill became law.

Seventeen people said they thought it was working well; five said they didn't like it; and three people said they had mixed feelings about it.

Most people said they noticed a marked difference in the streets and parking lots. Those who supported it said they didn't mind the inconvenience.

Those people who didn't like the Bottle Bill said they didn't like having to save and clean their bottles and cans. A few said they didn't bother returning them; they just threw them away.

"I think it's great," was the most frequently used comment.

Claire Cody, 46, of Humarock, was one of the people who answered that way.

"I live down on the beach," she said. "The kids used to leave all their beer cans around. I think it's much cleaner. (People) pick up the beer cans. It was a mess before the Bottle Bill."

Most of those who liked the Bottle Bill said they did not mind the work involved. Judy Ward, 36, of Beechwood St., Cohasset, said, "I don't mind washing my bottles. I know that the town dump is full. It's better than filling the town dump."

Joyce Sturdy, 50, had mixed feelings.

"I voted for it and I regret it," the Jerusalem Rd. resident said. It creates a mess in homes, she said. She went on to say, "I think it's a worthwhile thing. I think any conservation measure is worthwhile. I think, overall, I don't mind."

Susan Chaput, 18, of Scituate, responded the way most people who didn't like the Bottle Bill commented. "It's a pain," Chaput said. "I throw them out. I don't bring them back."

Paul Rockwood, 34, of Fifth Ave., Scituate, said he doesn't like the Bottle Bill "because I don't like taking the bottles back. It's not worth the aggravation," he said, referring to the cleaner streets. "I do take them back—after they pile up."

Many of those interviewed had comments similar to Dick Fessler, 52, of Forest Ave., Cohasset. "It appears to me it gives the kids an opportunity to make some money.

"I do notice that young adults really don't recognize the purpose of the Bottle Bill," he added. "High school and college kids leave bottles and cans at the beach," Fessler said. "It seems more effective with parents."

Kirk Sweeney, 17, of Cherry Lane, Scituate, also said, "It's great. I used to live off it in the summer." He said he collected bottles and cans from his relatives' homes and turned them in.

Rich Grassie, 31, of Pond Street, Cohasset, said he sees people of all ages picking up bottles. Grassie, a Cohasset police officer, said, "I think it's done a great job.

"I'm sure it's a pain in the neck to the store owners. But people are more conscious about picking the stuff up. There still are the few who don't bother.

"The ones that shouldn't have it (beer) are more likely to get rid of the evidence," he said.

A few people said they didn't think the current way of handling returnables was fair to the merchant and/or the consumer.

Bill Gleason, 24, of Tenth Ave., Scituate, said, "I think a lot more could be done to correct the system. All the merchants don't really appreciate it.

"I think it's working as far as pollution on the side of the street."

Paula Bechtold of Marshall Ave., Scituate, said, "People make $100 a week returning bottles they find." She didn't think this was a proper way for people to make money.

"We're supposed to bring up our youngsters honestly," the elderly woman said. She said money should be made on what is in the bottle and not the bottle itself.

Scott Fischer, 32, of South Main St., Cohasset, said he lived in a state where the Bottle Bill was successful.

"I think it's an improvement," Fischer said. "One thing, I guess some people do litter. But now it gets picked up."

Jean Pirina, 36, of Hillside Dr., Cohasset said she voted for the Bottle Bill. "I like it because you see less litter at the beach. You don't find trash barrels at the beach overflowing." She said people take returnables out of the trash barrels.

Lillian Ayers, 77, of Allen St., Scituate echoed the response of many people: "I think it's wonderful. I think our streets and highways are much better."

Betty Madden of Cohasset listens to teacher Marion Bush as she explains the art of wreathmaking at the Art Center, Wednesday. (Cundari photo)

School Business Dept. urges computer purchase

Doris Lahage, Business Dept. chairman, told the School Committee Monday night the department is trying to "get caught up to the 20th Century."

Staff members are taking computer courses and computers are being integrated into the program, Lahage said.

"I would like to have a computer in the typing room," she said. "It would be a team effort to have those students exposed to computers."

She said she is also looking at an automated approach to teaching accounting.

Lahage is recommending the department purchase an inexpensive computer with a letter quality printer. This kind of printer produces copy which looks more like it came from a typesetting machine than a computer.

The current computers are highly used and this is increasing rapidly, Lahage said. Last year, she said, she changed the ribbons in the printers once a month. At the beginning of the school year, she was changing the ribbons once every two weeks. She currently changes the ribbon once a week.

She told the committee her department has become involved with a shadowing program, where a student follows someone in the business world around for a day.

Lahage requested a $9,000 increase in the 1984-85 budget from last year's budget. "I want to build a program," she said. Four hundred dollars would be used to purchase additional software, she said.

The department "needs two new texts, but I'm only asking for one," Lahage said.

Supt. Eugene Crowell said he supports Lahage's attempt to update the department. "I have committed the Title 4 money to her program," Crowell said.

Committee member Jack Langmaid praised Lahage for the thoroughness of her report. The committee did not comment on what would be budgeted.

Casoni named teacher

The South Shore Vo-Tech School Committee hired Richard Casoni of Plymouth to teach Marine Technology at Vo-Tech high school.

Superintendent-Director Dr. Cliff Easton recommended Casoni, saying he spent five years as a marine technologist on the ocean. Casoni served as captain of a vessel, Easton said.

He replaces Charles Bassett who resigned.

Holocaust speaker

Harvard University Professor Eric Goldhaggen will speak on the Holocaust at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main St., Hingham, Sunday, Dec. 11 at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Goldhaggen, who is currently affiliated with the Russian Research Institute at Harvard, has taught courses on the Holocaust and has published numerous articles on the subject. Goldhaggen will appear at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom as part of the Social Concerns Committee's ongoing Speaker Series. All lectures in this series are free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served following the lecture.

Selectmen unhappy with railroad bed filling

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur told developer John Lanata that selectmen were not happy with his decision to fill the South Main Street area railroad beds without permission.

Lanata siad, "There have been no major objections by abutters for me to raise the grade of the fill. The abutters did not take the time to go to the public hearings held."

He added that the maximum fill is only one or two feet off of his property.

Lanata raised the grade abutting his property at the railroad beds so he could install a water line to his South Main St. property.

Lanata said, "I have the required permits from the Board of Health, the Conservation Commission and the Building Inspector. The Board of Health agent asked me if I could install a water line to the sanitary landfill. I indicated that I would allow them to tie into my water line if they wanted to pay for it."

Engineer Neil Murphy said, "There are a number of citizens who have filled on town property. Mr. Lanata just needs time granted to move the one and a half foot wall and the time for a variance which will take six months to one and a half years."

Murphy added, "Mr. Lanata has not damaged town property."

Selectman Rocco Laugelle responded, "We don't know what we will need to build there. We may want to build, put in utilities or a bike path."

Lanata received a letter after the meeting which said selectmen did not approve his request. He must remove the filled wall which extends onto the railroad tracks.

Lanata plans to appeal the decision.

Obituaries

Lula Mae Maddison

Lula Mae Maddison of Cohasset died Nov. 13.

She was a former resident of Dover, New Jersey.

She was the wife of the late Charles W. Maddison; mother of Robert J. Maddison of New Jersey, Jean Hoyler of Cohasset, and Madge Budenbender of Lincoln, New Jersey.

Mrs. Maddison also leaves six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A graveside service was held at Sparta Presbyterian Cemetery Association, Sparta, N.J., Nov. 19.

In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to the First Presbyterian Church of Sparta, 32 Main St., Sparta, N.J.

Harold Gordon Dean

Harold Gordon Dean, 83, died Nov. 30 in a Stamford, Conn. hospital.

He was born July 17, 1900 in Brockton and graduated Bradford Durfee Textile Institute in 1924.

He was former chairman of the Board of Glen Raven Mills, Inc. of New York City.

Before joining Glen Raven, he was with Paul Whitin Manufacturing Company, of Northbridge, a leading synthetic mill.

Earlier he was associated with the Thompson Company, a manufacturer of men's slacks.

In the 1964-65 edition of Britannia Publishing Limited, Mr. Gordon was mentioned as one of the "Leading Men in the U.S."

Mr. Gordon was a 50-year member of the Grand Lodge of Free Accepted Masons of Worthington, Ohio and a member of the Tokeneke Club of Darien, Connecticut.

He leaves his wife, Doris Hathaway Dean; two sons, Connecticut Superior Court Judge Harold Dean of Darien, Conn. and James S. Dean of Cohasset, vice president of Glen Raven Mills, Inc., and four grandchildren.

around town

☐ Earning Second Honors at Archbishop Williams High School was junior Laura Pompeo of Cohasset.

☐Christopher Williams, a 1980 graduate of CHS and a senior at Yale, has been keeping busy during the past year. In February, he was one of four Yale representatives in the first annual All-New England Intercollegiate Band, which met for a weekend conference at the University of New Hampshire. The select group was conducted by H. Robert Reynolds of the University of Michigan, one of the world's finest wind conductors.

In March, Williams travelled with the Yale Concert Band to Bermuda, where the band played to commemorate the tri-centennial of the Island's founding. The trip involved four concerts in six days at Hamilton, St. George, and the U.S. Naval Air Station in Warwick.

Williams will return to Bermuda next March with the Yale Jazz Ensemble, directed by Mike Paulsen.

The performance, conducted by the orchestra's music director, Murrat Sidlin, will be broadcast December 13 over Connecticut public radio.

Seahawks report . . .

The Bantam A team coached by Phil Thomas won in Randolph 4-3. Goals were scored by Todd Fitzpatrick (2), Jeff Hartwell, and Paul Ahern against King Philip.

The Bantam C team was crushed, 9-2, by an offensively minded Whitman-Hanson team. The only bright spots in the game for the Seahawks were goals by Gilbert Rebello and John Murphy.

SEAHAWKS FALL SHORT IN PLYMOUTH

The Seahawks Peewee "A's" started strong but failed to make the finals at the Ocean Spray Mayflower invitational tournament held in Plymouth last weekend. The Hawks easily defeated Plymouth 7-3 in the opener and then destroyed Mansfield 10-4 before falling to Melrose 6-1.

In the Plymouth game, the scoring was evenly distributed with Paul Norton scoring two goals and single tallies added by Billy Hingston, Bill Lincoln, Brian Pompeo, Mike Richardson, and John Zimmer.

Assists were also divided between Pat Glennon, Paul Norton, and John Zimmer (each with three goals) and Damon Sparrow and Brian Pompeo.

In the second game, a 10-4 shootout, goals were credited to Paul Norton (two,) Pat Glennon, Billy Lincoln, Brian Pompeo, Damon Sparrow, Chris Sullivan, Erik Steverman, Jeff White and John Zimmer.

Billy Lincoln and John Zimmer each had three assists followed by two from Pat Glennon, Paul Norton, and Mike Richardson. To complete the scoring, single assists were added by Bill Hingston and Brian Pompeo.

In the final game, John Zimmer was the only Seahawk who succeeded in beating the Melrose goalie as the Hawks were unable to generate a substantial offense.

In other Peewee action this weekend, the "B" team, coached by Tom Hingston, was defeated by Braintree 9-4. The Seahawk attack was led by Bobby Divito who had a pair of goals.

MITES

Frank Greenberg's Mite C team played to a 2-2 tie with Braintree. Zachary Rogers and Matthew Graves scored for the "Hawks."

Krissie Ralff earns Colby tennis honors

Krissie Ralff of Cohasset, a freshman at Colby College, (Waterville, Maine,) topped off a successful season for the 7-3 Colby tennis team by earning a state championship in doubles.

Playing in the third doubles flight at the Maine state championship, Ralff teamed with fellow freshman Erin Borgeson to win the state crown for their flight.

Ralff and Borgeson downed their Bates College opponents 6-3, 7-5 and then edged Bowdoin College, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1 to take top honors.

Colby tennis coach Laura Carson attributed the duo's victory to their compatibility and quickness.

"Both like to rally from the baseline and they can also play well at the net," said Carson.

Ralff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Ralff of Lantern Lane. She is a graduate of Cohasset High School.

O'Brien selected for fitness testing

Erin M. O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. O'Brien of 34 Pond St., and a Health-Fitness major at Springfield College, has been selected to complete an internship at FITCORP in Boston.

O'Brien, a senior at the 98-year old private college, is responsible for fitness testing and exercise prescription at FITCORP.

A graduate of Cohasset High, Ms. O'Brien was a member of the college's Women's Varsity Swim Team and was chosen All New England Swimmer during her junior year.

She was also active on the women's soccer and track teams and is a member of the Health/Fitness Club.

Duncombe earns soccer letter

Bill Duncombe of Cohasset, a freshman at Colby College, (Waterville, Maine) earned a varsity letter with the men's soccer team.

A forward, Duncombe saw plenty of action as the White Mules recorded an 8-5-2 mark and qualified for the first NESCAC (New England Small College Athletic Conference) soccer tournament. Duncombe scored two goals and one assist while playing aggressive soccer for Colby.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Duncombe of Sheldon Road. Duncombe is a graduate of Tabor Academy in Marion.

That's Dr. D, the coach who's talking with Julie Atkinson after the match against Norwell last week.

Ekberg chosen for gymnastics team

Karen Ekberg of Cohasset and Tracy Vietze of Scituate are members of the 1982-83 Brown University women's gymnastics team. The Bruins open their season on the road, against the University of Rhode Island, Thursday, Dec. 8, at 7 p.m.

Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ekberg of Cohasset, and is a graduate of Cohasset High School where she earned four letters each in gymnastics and track. Karen captained the gymnastics team in her sophomore, junior and senior years, under Coach Andrea Pelardy, and was second All-Around in the league in 1979, third in 1980, and first in 1981. She plans to major in math at Brown and to pursue a career in business management.

Tracy is the daughter of David and Dorothy Vietze of 24 Eisenhower Lane in Scituate, and is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High where she lettered in gymnastics.

A two-time letterwinner at Brown, Tracy will co-captain the team this season. In 1981-83, her last full year of competition, she was Brown's top performer with scores of 8.40 in vaulting, 8.80 in uneven bars, 8.60 in balance beam, 8.70 in floor exercise, and 34.10 all-around. She picked up six first places, 15 second places, and four third places, and went on to compete in the Eastern regionals.

OSGOOD SCHOOL

DECEMBER KINDERGARTEN STUDIES

Mrs. Price's class began December with a discussion of the Jewish holiday, Chanukah. Children made a paper Menorah for the Festival of Lights. The seven-branch Menorah is the symbol of the state of Israel.The Hanukah Menorah has eight candles. The large center candle (shammash) is lit each night and then used to light one more candle each night. In Israel, Menorahs are lit everywhere. Tel Aviv is called the "City of Lights" at this time.

Mrs. Collins' class is studying "Christmas in Mexico" including the preparation of tortillas and guacamole, making a large pinata and stories, songs and books. During the week of Dec. 19-23, they will celebrate Christmas, Mexican style, with a "Fiesta."

DEER HILL

MUSICIANS OF THE MONTH

Since the fifth and sixth graders are busy preparing for their holiday concert on Dec. 15, the musicians of the month were chosen from the fourth grades. The following are some of the top students who have shown great progress in their first three months of lessons: Laurie Bronstein, Danny DeMichele, flute; Amy Crafts, Kelly Chase, Corrina Minnor, clarinet; J. Brian Conant, trumpet and Kathleen Conroy, trombone. Congratulations to all.

CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR PEN PALS

Mrs. McDonald's fifth grade class invited the residents of Harborview Apartments to a Christmas Party Monday, Dec. 19 at 1 p.m. at the school. The students have been corresponding with their "adoptive grandparents" for several months.

was held Dec. 1 for grade 7 students and some eighth graders, all of whom are enrolled in health education. Oncologist Albert Sullivan, M.D., was guest speaker. There was also a film entitled the "Feminine Mistake," American Cancer Society's excellent film on the health risks of smoking.

THE 59 FUND

Station WEEI in Boston is a strong advocate of the well known "59 Fund"—which raises money to set up temporary shelters for an estimated 10,000 homeless men, women and children in Massachusetts.

Christmas is a time for giving, to provide warm shelter for the "least of us"—winter's here!

Please put a check or cash in an envelope (make check out to "59 Fund") in Ed Sheehan's mailbox. Sheehan will process the money, Mrs. Bates will keep it, and a week before Christmas a check will be sent as a gift to 'The 59 Fund" from "Those who care at Cohasset High School."

"Thank your for reading this and responding to a worthy cause," Ed Sheehan.

YARN AND FABRIC PAINTING

A new display of Yarn and Fabric Paintings done by junior high art students is on display outside the art room. Also being shown is a group of experimental oil paintings done on paper.

The current exhibit of Mexican art and crafts of Oaxaca will continue to be displayed for the next few weeks. This exhibit is in the display case outside the front office.

YOUTH SYMPHONY CONCERT

On Thursday, Dec. 1,15 Cohasset High School students attended the first of two youth concerts performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

A pre-concert address by Mark Mandel, B.S.O. program director, focused on the genre of the overture. He provided an overview of the five program selections, one of which was Rossini's Overture to William Tell. Attention was drawn to specific themes in each piece. The students were treated to a rousing rendition of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, enhanced by the voice of the Wayland High School Chorus.

As a post-concert activity, the Cohasset students participated in a question and answer session with conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and Joyce Kulhawick, who provided commentary during the concert.

Senior Jean Bailey summarized the musical event by saying, "It was great! I loved it."

P.E. NOTES

Volleyball intramurals have started from 2 to 2:30 p.m. every Monday in the Sullivan Gymnasium for any interested student in grades 7-12. Come and play.

An aerobics club has started after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2 to 2:30 p.m. in the Sullivan Gym for any girls in grades 7-12. All are welcome to join.

On Mondays and Wednesdays, Nancy Kealey has started an aerobic exercise class from 3 to 3:45 p.m. for anyone connected with the school department. All personnel are urged to join to help increase and maintain a good fitness level. You'll feel better.

The upstairs gym is open Monday through Thursday from 2 to 2:30 p.m. for students wishing to play basketball. This will be for small games or free shooting.

An intramural basketball tournament is being organized for junior high girls and boys. Students are to sign up in teams of eight to 10 players. Games will be played daily from 2 to 2:30. Hopefully, there will be a girls' tournament and a boys' tournament. Teams should be submitted to your physical education instructor as soon as possible.

Plimoth Plantation visits Osgood school

Costumed 17th century interpreters from Plimoth Plantation visited students at the John Osgood School Dec. 5 to share the life and culture of 1627 Plymouth.

Visiting the second grade were Hester Cooke and Mate Coppin portrayed by Rose Lyons and Ted Curtin. They are staff members at Plimoth Plantation, the outdoor living history museum of 17th century Plymouth.

When visiting classrooms, Old Colony residents carried a basketful of tools, household items, slides, and boy and girl costumes for students to wear.

An added element to the program included a visit to the Pilgrim Village where students reinforced classroom learning by hands-on experiences of splitting wood, baking in the hearth and more.

Plimoth Plantation is open to the public April 1 through November 30. Its exhibits include Mayflower II and the 1627 Pilgrim Village.

VoTech Cohasset assessment projected for increase

By Theresa Sullivan

South Shore Vocational Technical High School Supt. Cliff Easton proposed a $2,618,447 budget to the school committee last week. The budget suggests an 11 percent increase over last year's budget.

The average assessment to the eight member towns has increased 25.9 percent. Cohasset's assessment rose 67.1 percent—the second highest percentage increase of all the towns.

Hanover's assessment rose 20.9 percent. Norwell's assessment rose .1 percent. Scituate's assessment declined 6.6 percent.

The assessments are based on the number of students from each town attending Vo-Tech.

The total assessment charged to the member towns is $1,351,060. Each town contributes the following: Abington, $226,573; Cohasset, $25,142; Hanover, $153,899; Hanson, $156,608; Norwell, $95,156; Rockland, $315,900; Scituate, $114,849; and Whitman, $262,933.

The local assessments are off-set by fees to out-of-district students and by federal and state aid.

There are 459 students attending Vo-Tech, including: Abington, 81 students; Cohasset, nine; Hanover, 55; Hanson, 47; Norwell, 34; Rockland, 113; Scituate, 41; and Whitman, 79.

Salaries and wages make up 73.26 percent of the proposed budget. Easton proposed $1,918,277 be spent on salaries. Last year's salaries comprised $1,627,734 of the total $2,349,609 budget.

There are 45 instructors at Vo-Tech; the sum of their proposed salaries is $1,370,575. The staff of eight clerical workers and four teachers' aides has a combined salary proposal of $170,955. The administrators' salaries total a proposed $117,678.

General expenses are up 7.45 percent from last year. They constitute $338,420 of the total budget. This is $23,470 more than last year's expenditures under general expenses.

Utility costs are down to $104,000 from last year's $125,000. The school's computer is programmed to monitor the heat, turning it down when the school day is over.

School Committee Executive Secretary Robert Kelley said the average cost per student within the region is $2,943. Out of district students are charged $3,146. These students must provide their own transportation, unlike the in-district students.

Hanson representative to the committee Joe Downing said, "I'm looking for a line item breakdown of the budget, department by department." Scituate representative Joan Schurmier concurred with Downing.

"If we have to make some hard decisions as to where we're going to cut, we need to know where we can cut," Schurmier said.

She said she wanted to know how many teachers and students are involved in each program. Easton proposed adding five teachers to the staff. Schurmier said while other schools are cutting personnel, member towns may not be willing to approve a budget which shows personnel increases.

Easton said some of the programs, such as painting and decorating, need a second teacher in order to be revenue producing. He said it is ideal to have one teacher to supervise work-related experience and one to work in the classroom.

A proposed $92,000 is budgeted for shop supplies. Kelley said their goal is to have students in each program produce enough revenue to help offset operating expenses. "Some day there should be no shop supplies (listed as an expenditure)," Kelley said.

Currently, some of the programs are revenue-producing, Easton said.

Easton said that after the school committee approves a budget, the legislature could vote to change it. "The budget tonight makes an assumption that we will receive no additional aid," he said. "We do not know what the legislature is going to do."

Therefore, local assessments are up, he said. Any aid will off-set assessments, he said.

Studds concerned about U.S. policy in Lebanon

By Claire McDonough

Nearly 50 residents from Scituate and Cohasset spent Sunday afternoon questioning Congressman Gerry Studds at Scituate's Gates School.

Almost to a man (or woman) they were friendly toward Studds, but their comments and questions indicated deep concerns, largely because of recent international developments.

For an hour and a half the Congressman answered questioned posed by his constituents. Only once was a speaker cut short.

Louise Landy, who had presented Studds with a plate of Scituate mussels, was asked by others in attendance not to give a seven minute anti-nuclear presentation.

Here are Studds comments on many international developments:

Lebanon

"I am concerned regarding the sudden change in the President's definition of what we're doing there. When Congress was first told of the mission of the Marines, it was totally different from what the President says now. At first we went in to help the PLO members that had been trapped leave. We did that, and our forces left.

"Following the massacre in the Palestinian refuge camp we joined a multi-national Peace Keeping presence. Congress approved. I didn't think it would work, but I supported the President because I thought it was worth a try.

"Now, however, the President has stopped talking about peacekeeping and has started talking about a conflict between East and West, a Soviet-American confrontation. He sasd the preservation of the present Lebanese government is vital to our national security.

"Actually, the problems in the Mideast have gone on for millennia. If there is one place in the world that is not susceptible to a simplistic solution, it is the Mideast.

"I would like to see us work with the British, the French, and the Italians and find a way to get our Marines out. If, in fact, and at this time I fail to see that it is, it is necessary for our security to preserve the status quo, the President should explain why this is so to the Congress and the country. Then a massive military presence should be authorized. Otherwise, if we just send in a small force, there will be further incidents.

"This will lead to retaliation, which in turn will lead to further incidents. It's our Marines who will suffer."

Central America

"The President is painting himself and the nation into a rhetorical corner. I am worried. I have no idea what the Administration plans but I have deep concern. I was in Nicaragua in January of '81 with two other members of Congress.

"We asked the Sandanistas why they had so many arms. We told them they didn't need them, and they were upsetting their neighbors and the United States.

"They told us, 'We have only one reason for building up our weaponry. We anticipate an attack by the United States.' They are certain we are going to invade them. They really believe it. We told them they were paranoid.

"Prior to last month, President Reagan had said that Grenada was a threat to our national security, that they were building up an unjustifiably large force. The Grenadians said that they needed their armed forces because they feared an attack by the United States. We laughed at them and told them they were paranoid. I myself thought it was silly for Grenada to be worried.

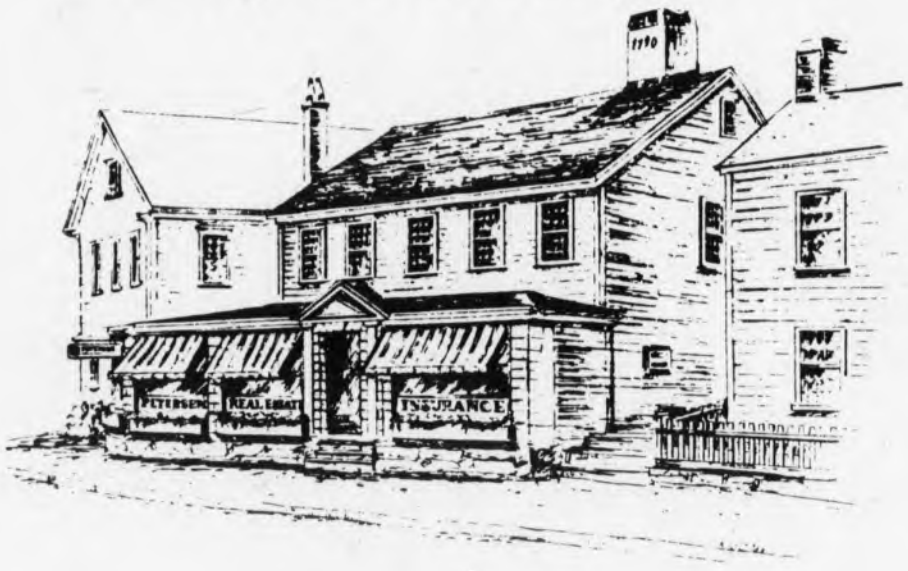
"Now I am reluctant to tell the Nicaraguans they're silly to fear an invasion. The Contras—in violation of both international and United States law—are being illegally armed, trained, and financed by the United States.

"Reagan sees the Russians and Cubans as the bad guys and us as the good guys. But he makes it harder and harder to differentiate between us.

"Look at Honduras. The people there are desperately poor. So what do we send them? Military aid. The last thing in the world these people need is a war. The Russians and Cubans aren't causing the revolution against oppressive government, though, predictably they take advantage of revolution when and where it occurs.

"The role being played by our country is unworthy of what our constitution stands for. If most people really thought about what is happening they would march in Washington with muskets on their shoulders.

"We support oppressive, dictatorial, brutal governments in the name of anti-communism. Yet not only is it wrong, there is no policy more likely to lead to a takeover by the extreme left than Reagan's policy.



"Castro tells people that we support the wealthy and those who brutally surpress their own people, that we have forgotten our own revolutionary heritage. And our own actions bear him out."

Relations with Cuba

I think it's unlikely. Castro says he is willing. If he's bluffing, I think it's a bluff that should be called. There is a difference between what the United States stands for and what Russia stands for. I am infuriated when our own government continually blurs these lines."

Superfund for Hazardous Waste Cleanup

"The first 400 national sites included New Bedford Harbor. We now have a second site in Dartmouth, and another at Sullivan's Ledge in New Bedford. Now we have one at Plymouth Harbor. This is an overwhelming problem and we are learning daily how inadequate the money is."

The Peace Academy

"This has been debated for some time, but I have no hope that this President or this Congress will create a Peace Academy. The theory behind it is that we have so many military academies, we should have one that deals with how to stop wars rather than how to conduct them.

"However, if it ever does come to the floor of Congress, we can expect many amendments such as the one you mention (the placing of six military men on the academy's board). Maybe we could get even and insist on putting poets and sociologists on the boards at West Point and Annapolis."

Budget Deficit

"The only way to decrease the deficit is to raise taxes or reduce spending. The Congress will not only not consider even a modest tax increase, the President will not defer stage three in his tax cut. And so far as cutting spending goes, the President wants a great deal more for you-know-what and a lot less for you-know-what. We are looking at even larger deficits."

The National Will

A constituent said that the population has overwhelmingly said that the arms race must come to an end, and asked why there has been so little political impact in a place that is supposed to pay attention to the voters.

"Politically, it is still perceived as politically dangerous to say anything against a request by the Department of Defense. Congressmen fear being accused of trying to weaken the United States. You must realize that the people of the country were five years ahead of the government in wanting to end the involvement in Viet Nam.

"It's true that a great many people died during that five years. But how many more would have died if the American people didn't keep up the pressure on their government. Patience in the face of irresponsible human behavior may be the only rational course."

High Frontier

"A constituent suggested considering the aggressive nature of the Soviet Union, missiles in space should be developed that would fire non-nuclear pellets, destroying Soviet missiles before they could reach their destination.

"Congress is looking into this at present, and the President wants it. I find the concept shear lunacy. We don't know how much it would cost, if it would work. If the Soviet Union is aware that we're working on a system that would, in 10 years (and that's what it would take) make their nuclear weapons useless, would they not be terribly tempted to use them first? Even if they didn't, they would have to develop the same capacity, and we would have to go to a whole new generation of new defensive methods.

I would far rather stop the race than accelerate it. Further, are we sure we can conduct a major nuclear war in outer space without affecting the earth?

"It's difficult, but try to put yourself in the place of someone who is neither Soviet nor American. Say someone from a Third World country. Look objectively at the actions of the Soviet Union and the United States. I would like everyone in the world to be able to say 'The United States stands for certain principals. They support their principals in their speech, and they live by them in their actions. I don't think we should be like the Soviet Union. I want us to be better."

If you could have anything in the world, what would it be?

"You mean if I had a magic wand? I'd remove every nuclear weapon from the face of the earth."

Auto insurance laws change for 1984

By Melanie Mars

There's some new important changes and cost increases in the auto insurance laws for 1984.

All drivers within a household must be registered or they may be denied coverage in an accident.

"If an experienced driver is not registered on the insurance policy for the parent's car, even if he has his own and has an accident in the parent's car, the insurance company must decline coverage under the new 1984 laws," said Charles Drea, an insurance agent for Jack Conway Insurance Company in Cohasset.

Drea said the most significant change in the '84 insurance laws is that all drivers within a household must be registered on the policy.

"Not complying with the law could have serious results should an accident occur," he added.

Also the deductible amount has been raised from $200 to $300 for both collision and fire and theft.

"However, drivers can eventually buy the amount deductible back to $100," Drea said.

While hearings for the 1984 insurance rates are continuing, Insurance Commissioner Peter Hiam has released the listing for next year's territories. Cohasset's rating has gone from a five to a six.

"Based on the 1983 rates that would mean a $20 to $25 increase for residents," said Drea.

For example, a driver with no major traffic violations and who owns a 1982 Chevrolet Capri in a territory rated 6 would pay $648 a year. In a territory with a rating of 7 the same driver and car would pay $668.

Roughly 105 communities in Massachusetts moved up one territory while 131 stayed the same.

Another outcome has been the new Massachusetts Safe Driver Plan unveiled in early November. Premium credits will no longer be the same for safe drivers, according to The Standard, an insurance weekly.

Premium credits will be calculated as a percentage of the driver's property damage liability premium. This means the higher one's premium, the higher the potential SDIP credit.

The new plan also calls for a point system for those drivers involved in traffic accidents. For example, a driver involved in a minor speeding violation would receive two points while driving under the influence would entitle the driver to four points.

Commissioner Hiam will attach dollar values to the unsafe driver points after the 1984 hearings have concluded.

The dollar values may vary according to the number of points but not according to class or territory.

"It would be unfair to comment on the new plan yet," said Drea.

While the plan is a new concept for Massachusetts drivers, the point-system is used in over 30 states.

Sen. McKinnon to lead support for Coastline bill

State Sen. Allan R. McKinnon recently said the Senate Committee on Ways and Means has favorably reported a bill to protect the Massachusetts coastline and provide support to coastal communities to rehabilitate waterfront facilities.

Senator McKinnon, a Ways and Means Committee member, will lead discussion on the bill during debate in the Senate.

The bill includes provisions to establish a Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management Program, allow greater input in the issuance of tidelands licenses and make certain necessary changes in the structure of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

A key portion of the bill creates a "Coastal Facilities Improvement Act," which will assist coastal cities and towns in the rehabilitation and construction of shorefront facilities, particularly piers.

Senator McKinnon credited Representative Frank Hynes (D-Marshfield) with obtaining widespread support and House passage of the bill.

"If it were not for Representative Hynes' tireless efforts to secure support among members of the House of Representatives, this vital bill may not have reached the Senate this year," said McKinnon.

McKinnon also noted the work of Hynes' predecessor, former Rep. Phil Johnston, who was the original sponsor of the legislation several years ago and who now serves as Governor Dukakis' Director of Human Resources.

McKinnon said he expects the bill to be considered by the full Senate this week where he will be the bill's primary advocate.

Rodney Joseph plans to run for Congress

By Judy Gilman

Rodney Randy Joseph is running for Congress, and he's doing so without the backing of either major political party.

"Neither the Democrats nor Republicans have done well," the 30 year-old Plymouth resident said in an interview Tuesday. "They're not addressing the needs of children, of the elderly, the real problems. They don't have programs that work."

Though Joseph will be running for the seat currently held by Gerry Studds, he doesn t want to make the Studds' affair 10 years ago with a male House page and his subsequent censure an issue.

"Everyone asks me that. I want to run a clean campaign. There are many areas that Studds is weak on."

Those areas, he said, include the problems of pollution, particularly the acidification of ponds and lakes on the South Shore and the Cape. Children's rights are another one he's concerned with. He has proposed a bill to the State Legislature that would bring retired persons back to the school systems, particularly to aid gifted children. And he wants training programs for the unemployed that will lead to real employment.

An artist and a film-maker, who has also been active in the area of civil rights and legislation for years, Joseph says he sees the vast surplus stores of this country as a resource to be used to help people. That includes not only food but machinery and appliances, as well. With each revelation that some government employees are selling such items for their own gain, he is more convinced that those stores could be used to help the average citizen.

"I want the little person to have a voice in government again," he said. "The grass roots is what it's all about."

Riding Club to hold annual banquet Dec. 9

The Cohasset Riding club will hold its Annual Banquet (Potluck Supper) Friday, Dec. 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House on North Main St.

After dinner the film "Fountambleau '80" will be shown.

The film will stress U.S. riders who participated in the alternate Olympics hosted by the French in 1980. The film covers all three phases including dressage, cross country, and show jumping. For more information and reservations, please call 383-0234.

Cure the January blues by enrolling in a South Shore Art Center mid-term workshop or participate in an art adventure to Bermuda.

Two mid-term workshops will be offered from Jan. 9 through Jan. 13 at the Center, 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

There is still time to register for the "Paint Bermuda" with artist Virginia Avery trip scheduled for Jan. 17 through Jan. 23.

The two weeklong workshops are "Seeing Selectively" taught by Judeth Van Hamm Weirs and "Portrait Basics" taught by Harriet Zabusky-Zand.

Weirs' workshop which will meet daily from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. will focus on a different step in the selection process of painting, including subject matter, viewpoint, form, value, color and texture. Slides of artists works will be shown and the course is designed for all skill levels.

Weirs who holds an MA from the University of Pennsylvania is a visiting lecturer at the Boston Architectural Center and exhibits widely in one-person and juried exhibits.

Zand's "Portrait Basics" is designed to provide the student with basic painting techniques used in doing portraits. Emphasis will be on understanding the structure of the head and upper torso as well as composition. The class which will meet daily from 1 to 4 p.m. will work from a live model. Basic painting and drawing skills are a prerequisite.

Currently a candidate for her MA from Boston University, Zand received her BA from the same school and also holds a diploma from the Museum of Fine Arts School, Boston. She instructs at the ICA and the Sherborn Art Center.

The Virginia Avery "Paint Bermuda" combines a chance to rest and relax in the Bermuda sun with the opportunity to improve upon a skill. There is still space available for this trip and the price is $574 for a triple and $625 for a double. Arrangements will be made through Cohasset Travel Service.

The group will stay at Bermuda's beach resort, the Reefs. Mornings will be spent with painting instruction and demonstrations and afternoons will be spent painting at preselected sites. One day will be left for selecting your own site to capture on canvas.

Open to all level artists and non-artists, the trip will allow participants to improve their artistic skills while enjoying the beauty of this island.

Advanced registration is required for the workshops. For further information please call the Center at 383-9548.

Marian Bush teaches wreath making at the South Shore Art Center. She will also instruct 'Portrait Demonstrations' Dec. 14. (Cundari photo)

Gift certificates

Give a gift of class!

For the holiday season, the South Shore Art Center offers gift certificates for its classes, special workshops, a piece of art or a membership.

The gift certificates are a unique way of giving someone an opportunity to enroll in a course or workshop or purchase a work of art.

The Center at 103 Ripley Rd., has a complete schedule of courses in painting, drawing, landscape or interior design, crafts, photography or children's art.

The courses, taught by professionals in the fields, are geared for all levels of artistic ability.

Course sessions are available summer, fall, winter and spring. Interspersed among the regular classes are special weeklong workshops or one- and two-day seminars dealing with specific topics.

A gift certificate may be used for a member in the Center which would entitle someone to all the benefits of belonging to the Art Center.

Some of the benefits include advanced information on classes, trips and special workshops; invitations to openings, reduced rates for classes and workshops; discounts on artist supplies and other amenities.

Give a gift by giving someone an opportunity to participate in one of the many South Shore Art Center activities.

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping... the flower-strewn meadows... and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000

Our hearts go out to those poor souls whose little girls are caught up in the current craze for Cabbage Patch dolls. Let's hope no one on your Christmas list expects one to be delivered by Santa! Thousands of shoppers are being mauled, trampled and braving the cold to stand in line outside department stores that lure them to malls as early as four in the morning for the "privilege" of paying as much as $50 for the 18" homely plastic doll that only a mother could love. First created in 1977, Cabbage Patch dolls then sold for $125 in Georgia where Xavier Roberts made them originally by hand. Now, Coleco of Conn. has shipped two million of the plastic version to stores all over the nation. One store manager in Pennsylvania armed himself with a baseball bat and took up his station behind the counter when a thousand customers stormed in when the doors opened at 8 a.m. Poor man — I hope his wife had a piping hot bowl ready at night of Jane Todd's

CORN AND VEGETABLE CHOWDER

2 slices bacon
1 small onion, minced
2 c. diced potatoes
1 c. string beans, cut diagonally
1½ c. water
1½ tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 c. carrots, cut Julienne style
1 c. thinly sliced celery
1 qt. rich milk, heated
2 T thinly sliced green onion tops
1 32 oz. can cream style corn
2 T flour

Fry bacon until crisp and remove. Cook minced onion in the fat until yellow and tender. Add potatoes, beans and water and simmer for 15 min., or until potatoes are almost tender. Add salt, pepper, carrots and celery and simmer 5 min. longer. Add hot milk, corn and onion tops. Thicken with flour mixed to a paste with cold water. Add more seasoning if desired and sprinkle the crumbled, cooked bacon over top. Serves 4 to 6.

CAJUN STYLE FISH CHOWDER

1/2 c. each green onions, celery, bell pepper, chopped
4 large fish fillets, skinned (trout, red snapper, or other white fish)
1/2 tsp. each thyme and red pepper, salt to taste
1 10 oz. can tomatoes
1 large potato, thinly sliced
Fish bones and tails
1½ qts. water

In an oiled, heavy enameled saucepot sprinkle onions, celery and pepper. Arrange fillets on top of vegetables. Sprinkle with thyme, salt and red pepper. Cover with tomatoes and potato. Sprinkle with more salt. Cover fish bones and tails with water and boil until reduced to 1 qt. of liquid. Strain broth and add to first mixture. Cover pot and simmer one hour. Correct seasonings and serve in bowls with crusty French bread. Serves four.

Choral Art Society concert was filled to capacity

By Kevin MacIsaac

The Choral Art Society presented its annual Christmas concert Dec. 3 at St. Luke's Church in Scituate. This Christmas concert has apparently become a happy tradition in Scituate, and the church was filled to capacity for the event.

The program consisted of a variety of serious pieces, ranging from Baroque to Romantic in style and period. Composers as diverse as Purcell and Saint-Saens were included in the evening's presentation.

The chorus responded well to the challenge of the music. The group of singers ably filled the church with their rich sound. At their best they communicated the joy and passion that one should associate with the Christmas season.

The small instrumental ensemble also performed impressively. Especially worthy of note was the group's rendition of the Vivaldi concerto, "Winter." In this piece, various aspects of winter weather are evoked. The spirited violin playing effectively suggested the storms and winds of winter. Violin soloist Dorothy Bales handled an especially demanding and lengthy solo. The audience responded enthusiastically to a job well done.

The singing of the soloists was somewhat uneven in quality. Some of the singers, Richard Slade in particular, sang with control and authority. Others, however, were not able to muster quite the strength or polish that the music demanded. But this was a problem mainly in the lengthy Saint-Saens oratorio, which needed strong solo and small ensemble singing to sustain it. Still, the soloists should all be commended for their efforts, as so much of the music requires both vocal range and dexterity.

The two-hour concert ended with an exhuberant, celebratory rendition of Felix Mendelssohn's "Behold, a Star From Jacob Shining." To this well-chosen closing selection, the audience gave the singers, instrumentalists, and director William Sano a well-deserved, hearty ovation.

After the concert, refreshments were served in the church hall and members of the audience had the opportunity to congratulate the musicians and to thank them for an enjoyable concert.

The Choral Art Society will present another concert in May. Honeggan's "King David" is the scheduled work.

Singers of all vocal ranges are welcomed by the society; men are in special demand. Rehearsals, which generally take place on Monday nights, begin January 9 for "King David." One need not audition to be in the chorus. Any one interested in becoming a member can contact either James McLeod-Warrick at 545-3538 or Judith Whittemore at 545-1359.

Groups like the Choral Art Society are important. They give us suburbanites the chance to hear serious music "at our backdoors" without our having to trek into Boston or some other urban center. The society also gives amateur singers the chance to be involved in an artistic experience that is both significant and demanding. Continued success to the Chorus Art Society. We on the South Shore can look forward to more fine evenings of their music.

FOUR SEASONS GREENHOUSES

We're always the last to know

By Lois Martin

Happens to the best of us. Try as we will to raise them right, there's no guarantee the young 'uns will mind the cautions they've been given.

Lilly's resting comfortably now. I just called the vet and was told she came through her surgery beautifully. She's a healthy young dog, robust, still jumping up on people for a shot at licking them to death.

It has certainly been a month of surprises. I was like the fellow who walked home the same way every night by the same tree. One night he walked into the tree and said, "I always knew that tree was there but I just didn't realize it."

PATCHES

I knew Lilly, being a girl dog who has been with me as a pup, would grow up to bear some of what she'd been. I just didn't realize it.

Not until about a month ago on a Sunday morning when I glanced out the window to see a large black Lab & Whatever loitering near Lilly as she was tied on her run.

It would seem that as I in my gladsome way rushed through the weeks, Lilly grew up. And, again without my knowing it, she obviously had sent out invitations for a gathering of sorts with a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply. Because two men dogs came to call. One was the Lab who has, because of my belated but effective action, escaped a paternity suit. The other was an excessively short heavyset basset hound who expected refreshments from my door to go along with Lilly's secret party.

In retrospect it hardly seems fair. Lill's been highly protected, sheltered really, getting cloistered rides in the car and infrequent walks in the woods with friends of her gender.

In fact her only freedom has been after breakfast when she's secured on her outdoor run while I dash to the shower. It would seem the time on her invitation was conceived to coincide with my shower.

I had seen the two dogs who didn't ring a bell on my Baloney. Last week I, senses primed, noted physiolatent chimes. Their appearance should have signaled Lilly's maturity. It did not at first. Instead I, naively, spoke politely to the dogs. Lilly, from inside the sliding door, smiled demurely. All seemed proper, controlled.

Oh what a fool I've been.

That Sunday morning dawn broke over my head bringing awareness of pending plight. I rushed out the back door in my nightgown, flailing the mop which was dripping itself dry from use (I'd like it on the record that the floor was washed this year). Dressed in nightgown I charged the two animalse, emitting threats against the male one, and slipped on wet leaves.

Apparently my attack caught both unaware and sent them into a frenzy because they were entangled in the long chain on the run. Embarrassing and awkward, but a situation that resolved itself when the black visitor broke free to escape the crazy woman who lived with charming Lilly.

Within the next week other indicators made themselves known to me. Still I viewed Lilly not as a wanton woman who'd been caught but as an innocent, entrapped by circumstance.

logical changes and called the vet. "You girls always panic," he said. "False pregnancies are common. Wait a week or two."

I probably would have, had I not started counting weeks previous on my fingers and the alternatives that faced me. According to calculations it had been four weeks since Lill's lawn party. Dogs need only a couple months, give or take, to produce. I envisioned myself running home each noon to the dog nursery where 12 little black pups bounded over their weary mother. I featured Lill getting the flu if not post-partum depression, leaving me the sole nourishers of 12 grandpuppies. In the future they, all females, would be on the run . . . and multiplying by 12's.

I called the vet's office Monday, saying I had decided the goal was not to learn if Lill were with pup but to insure she was not.

Yesterday I ran home from work, gave her the good leftovers from a roast, threw the stick six extra times out back, and loaded her in the car for the trip to the hospital.

She was tickled to death with the fun time.

I was riddled with guilt. We did downtown errands briefly. Lilly loves downtown. And then when darkness had set as it is wont to do too firmly by five these days, we took backroads to the vet's.

She can come home tomorrow. Perhaps then I can explain everything more articulately than I have in the past. Selectivity, as counseled, failed. She is destined never to whelp nor I to yelp in response.

All for the best. But I bet the next time I give her the good leftover meat instead of eating it myself, she snarls.

Caring for a dog during cold New England winters

It is the time of year for us to think about the care of our family dog during our normally cold New England winters. So many people have a family dog and are not aware of their needs in cold weather to be happy and healthy.

It is important to know that not all dogs are capable of withstanding the outdoor weather. None of the small house dogs such as poodles, lhaso apso, shih tzu, and most terriers should be tied out in weather under 50 degrees. A lot of dogs can be tied out in weather down to 32 degrees such as hounds, most working dogs such as German shepherds, dobermans, old English sheepdogs and collies. The only dogs which can remain tied out in the coldest of weather (but not the hottest) are the northern breeds such as Siberian huskies, malemutes, and some cross breeds of this lineage. It is important to remember that if you expect a dog to remain outside in cold weather there are two important factors which must be watched closely. No dog can be expected to keep himself warm in cold weather if he is either sick or injured or if he is not being properly fed. Dogs must be fed an extra ration of food in cold weather including a small amount of fat in each meal to sustain himself in good condition. He must have shelter to get in out of the weather, especially rain and freezing rain. Most huskies prefer to stay out in all cold weather, except rain. They revel in snow storms and will sleep rolled up in a ball during the worst blizzards. But rain will penetrate their coat and most will prefer shelter from it. A three sided leanto with a top is really not sufficient as rain can get in. A proper dog house with a blanket, mat or straw is preferred.

In trying to decide if your dog can remain outside in cold weather, look at his coat. Does he have a thick undercoat so that when you part it with your fingers you really have to look hard to see his skin? How does he act in the house? If he pants a lot and prefers to be outside perhaps he knows what's best. But don't neglect him because he's out tied up. Remember to feed him at least once a day if he's adult, more if a puppy. He needs to be watered twice a day as his dish will freeze quickly in cold weather, and he still needs exercise whether you want to walk him or not.

Any dog which has recently whelped puppies should not be expected to care for her brood properly outdoors in severely cold weather. It is very important to get puppies their distemper shots early as distemper can be caused by a puppy getting a chill. If one gets it, chances are they all will.

If you have a house dog which is not tied out there are some things you should remember, too. If you walk your dog on a leash on the street in winter you should be careful to rinse his feet and dry them when you return if you feel you have walked him through any area which may have been salted such as the street or your front walk. The salt will have a tendancy to burn the pads of his feet or if he licks it off it could make him sick. If your dog gets loose and runs at large you should clean his feet when he comes in, too.

Remember, now is the time to decide on the care of your dog. If you feel you cannot bring him in the house and he is not the type of dog to live outdoors in winter, now is the time to find him a new home where he can be properly taken care of. Don't let him suffer through this cold winter. If you can't find a home for him, call your local animal control officer at the MSPCA. They will help.

Elder Services head returns from 'think tank'

Warren Dahlin, Executive Director of South Shore Elder Services of Cohasset recently returned from Florida, where he participated in a "think tank," "The Maturing System," sponsored by the Ross Health Administration Forum.

William Watson can't believe "Dog Doe" (name unknown) just ate his taco on the stairs of the Unitarian Parish House at the Cohasset Village Fair Saturday.

Dahlin was one of 44 aging and health care experts selected to contemplate changes in the current health care system as it meets the needs of older people.

By the year 2000, 28 percent of the total population will be over 65 years old and currently seniors consume three times more health care than the average person.

There is, and will continue to be, a growing gap between the ability to pay and individual needs.

Participants discussed ethical issues including the question of whether health care is a right or a privilege; how much expensive care do we provide for a person in his/her later years; and should children be expected to pay for the care of their parents.

During the conference, the current health care system for the elderly was referred to as "America's last cottage industry," since there is no unified national health plan or policy.

Conferees agreed that health care for the elderly should not be limited to medical care, since issues such as transportation, nutrition, housing, and home care all dramatically affect the health of older people.

Although children should have the responsibility for providing support and care, the federal government would be remiss in neglecting its financial responsibility to provide assistance for people with limited family resources.

There was universal agreement the American public must accept responsibility and increased costs for whatever changes will occur in the future.

Findings will be published within the next four months and will be disseminated nationally. Anyone interested in more information regarding the Forum, may call South Shore Elder Services at 383-9790.

Above average winter snowfall predicted

Weather Watch

By Warren Waitkus

The glorious days of Indian Summer have vanished like morning mist at noon. Soon, the frigid breath of Old Man Winter will chill the bleak and stormy months ahead. For statistical purposes, December, January and February are considered to be the meteorological winter. The astronomical winter begins with the Winter Solstice at 5:30 a.m. on December 22, and ends at 5:25 a.m., March 20, at the time of the Vernal Equinox.

Winter days are short and the nights long, with cyclonic activity at its maximum. Storms of major proportions are usually born along the Atlantic polar front off the coast of Virginia and the Carolinas and in the area east of the southern Appalachian Mountains. These storms often develop into notorious Northeasters as they track up the coast. As they increase in intensity they may become dangerous blizzards, battering southern New England, before moving seaward to decay over the icy North Atlantic waters in the vicinity of the Icelandic Low.

There are many terms that meteorologists use when forecasting winter weather. I think you will find the following definitions useful. You might cut this article out and tape it on your refrigerator for future reference. Better yet, hang it in the kid's room. Maybe they won't haunt you every five minutes about whether there will be school in the morning.

Snow flurries are defined as snow falling for short durations at intermittent periods. Accumulations from snow flurries are generally light.

Snow squalls are brief, intense falls of snow and are accompanied by gusty surface winds.

Blowing snow is defined as snow lifted from the surface by the wind and blown about, restricting horizontal visibility.

Drifting snow indicates that strong winds will blow falling snow or loose snow on the ground into significant drifts.

Travelers' advisories are issued to indicate that falling, blowing or drifting snow, freezing rain or drizzle, sleet or strong winds all make driving hazardous.

Heavy snow warnings are issued when a fall of four inches or more is expected in a 12-hour period, or a fall of six inches or more is expected in a 24-hour period.

Blizzards are the most dramatic and perilous of all winter storms, characterized by strong winds bearing large amounts of snow. Most of the snow is in the form of fine, powdery particles which are whipped in such great quantities that at times visibility is only a few yards.

Blizzard warnings are issued when winds with speeds of at least 35 miles per hour are accompanied by considerable falling or blowing snow and visibility is dangerously restricted making it very easy to become lost or stranded.

Severe blizzard warnings are issued when blizzards of extreme proportions are expected and indicate wind with speeds of at least 45 miles per hour plus a great density of falling snow and a temperature of 10 degrees F or lower. (Awesome! Definitely no school kids!)

November Summary

During November the South Shore was drenched with torrential downpours accompanied by gale force winds. Rainfall records were shattered throughout Massachusetts, with Boston recording the wettest November since 1878. The heavy, soaking rains resulted in the flooding of roadways, poor drainage areas, and basements.

During the southeast storm on November 11, the 50-foot fishing vessel "Angela M." was driven ashore near Gurnet Light. Fortunately her crew of three survived. The best way to describe November's weather is just plain soggy. Bob Skilling of Hingham recorded a total rainfall of 10.03 inches with 3.66 inches falling on the 24th and 25th. In Pembroke, Ed Maree reported a monthly total of 9.48 inches, with 2.51 inches on the 24th and 25th. During that same storm, Norwell received 3.20 inches. The immediate coast south of Cohasset, and Cape Cod, escaped major amounts of precipitation on the 24th and 25th, with one to two inches generally being recorded. There was a more even distribution of rain during the gale of November 11, with most areas reporting 24-hour amounts between two and three inches.

Total precipitation for November, at my station in Marshfield, was 7.82 inches, 2.95 inches above normal. The maximum 24-hour rainfall was 2.30 inches on the 16th. Rain, .01 inch or more, occurred on 12 days with a trace on two days. The total precipitation this year has been 59.76 inches, 15.52 inches above normal. The mean temperature in November was 41.7 degrees, 3.1 degrees below normal. The average daily maximum reading was 51 degrees, while the average daily minimum was 32.4 degrees. The low temperature for the month was 19 degrees on the 14th, with a high of 66 degrees on the 9th.

There were nine clear days, eight partly cloudy days, and 13 cloudy days. There was a trace of snow on the 25th, the average wind speed was 12.85 mph; normal is 12.9 mph. The highest gust was 56 mph on the 25th.

The normal heating season is from September 1 to May 23. Some 78 percent of the heating year remains.

Long Range Forecasting

The spring of 1621 brought a ray of hope to the Pilgrims. That first fatal winter had swept off one-half of their number and never was the returning spring sun more welcome. Now, out of the snows of winter, the terrors of disease and the climate faded, and the spirits of the survivors revived with the season.

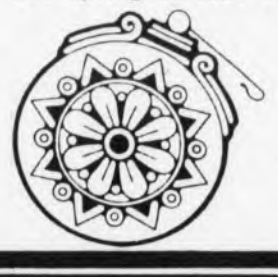
In the decades that followed, settlement expanded. Still, the bitter blasts of Massachusetts weather drove sleet and snow through the cracks of the thin board houses where men and women moaned out their lives.

Science was in its infancy and the early settlers had to rely on weather lore, derived from Aboriginal Americans and the Old World. They even turned to Biblical sayings in an attempt to foretell the weather, their very lives often depending upon it.

I collect old almanacs, diaries, and other weather related documents, and have always been fascinated by our forefathers' keen understanding of natural phenomena. I employ their methods, and my own personal observations, to arrive at a long range outlook and probable forecast.

My prognostications are not unfalable, and undoubtably scorned by the contemporary scientific community. Predicting long range weather conditions is exhausting, frustrating, exciting and challenging. But it's also fun to return to a by-gone era, when the workings of the atmosphere was shrouded in mystery.

The National Weather Service issues long range outlooks and extended forecasts. But bear in mind, they have 243 offices, 52 national forecast stations, thousands of employees and multi-million dollar computer systems. I am just an obscure writer operating on a crabs and icewater budget. Here is my forecast of probable weather for the winter.



Winter Outlook

The meteorological winter, 1983/84, will have above normal temperature in Massachusetts with near normal precipitation. The snowfall should be below average. December will be mild with above average precipitation. January will have average or slightly below average precipitation and near normal temperature. February will be unsettled with considerable cloudiness, and rapidly changing weather patterns. The last week should see a storm of major proportions.

December Forecast

The period of December 7 through the 19th will be basically stormy with at least two major weather events. The most significant precipitation is likely to occur between the 15th and 17th. This storm could be all snow or one of mixed precipitation. From the 19th to

Wompatuck meeting marked by raccoon

By Melanie Mars

No one could accuse the Wompatuck State Park Advisory Council of not welcoming representatives from every segment with an interest in the park.

Recently, a resident of the park was on hand to give his opinions to the advisory committee. A chubby, gray-and-black-furred raccoon wobbled in to join the proceedings.

After meeting and greeting each individual, the raccoon settled down under the table to listen to what the council had to say.

Recently, bids were taken on the last half of 40 wood lots earmarked by the Department of Environmental Management (DEM) to be cut down since last spring.

"We (the advisory council) have no authority over the cutting," said Samuel Tilden, the Scituate representative.

John Richardson of Hingham, who has been studying the vegetation and wildlife in the park, said, "Without any coordination in wood cutting, the beauty of the park could be destroyed."

He added, "Perhaps an alternate map can be drawn up. Many lots could be cut but some should not."

He reminded the council that 75 years ago the state park was just fields and only now are they beginning to regain their woodland beauty.

Lendrum Lee, assistant regional supervisor of the DEM said on behalf of the DEM, "Not letting the advisory council know about cutting was sincerely an oversight and unintentional on the part of the DEM."

During the tree-cutting discussion, the raccoon became quite vocal. One got the distinct impression he did not want any trees to be cut down.

Lee informed the council that the U.S. Army property on the edge of the state park is being released by the Federal General Services Administration (GSA) as surplus property by the end of November. DEM plans to apply for the land at that time.

When the GSA declares the property surplus, it will decide if the property will go for the fair market price or at a 100 percent discount (without charge.)

"It looks promising," Lee added. "Surplus army land in New Hampshire, Rhode Island and New Jersey was given to the state at a 100 percent discount."

However, Lee encouraged the board to write letters to their representatives encouraging passage of a bill that is currently before the state legislature that will allot $1.5-million to the DEM for trhe purchase and rehabilitation of the land. As it stands now there are 62 structures on the land that are in various stages of disrepair.

The council passed a motion, seconded by the raccoon as well as members of the board, giving Hingham member and chairman Robert W. Garvin, the power to write letters to the various representatives on behalf of the advisory board in support of the measures discussed.

Weather watch . . .

26th an unstable weather pattern will persist. There will be frequent showers or snow flurry activity, with the possibility of a storm on a cold front off the coast. Christmas Eve may see the passage of a cold front with its attendent snow activity. The end of the month should contain a significant snowstorm.

Weather Q and A

Q. Are there weather proverbs in the Bible?

A. Yes, there are many. One of the more interesting appears in the New Testament, Luke, Chapter 12, Verses 54-55: "And he said also to the people, when ye see a cloud rise out of the west, straightway ye say, there cometh a shower; and so it is. And when ye see the south wind blow, ye say, there will be heat; and it cometh to pass." During a quiet period on Christmas Day you might read: Matthew 16, Job 37 and Proverbs 25, Verse 23.

Have a good day and a nice forever.

MBTA plans area bus study

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority will be conducting a study of South Shore bus service to re-evaluate routing with an eye toward the Southeast Expressway reconstruction and the completion of the Quincy Adams Red Line Station.

Communities with MBTA bus service as well as service by private carriers which will be affected by the study include: Cohasset and Scituate.

The MBTA is inviting the public to attend a meeting which will be held to gather public input regarding the Southeast Corridor Bus Transit Improvement Study.

The meeting will be Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m., in the Barnes Auditorium in the Hingham Town Office Building (7 East St., Hingham).

Individuals who would like further information on the meetings or the bus service study should contact Karla Karash, Deputy Director of Operations for Passenger Service and Service Planning at 722-5184.

Morgan Memorial needs toy donations

Just think about how many toys and games children don't play with anymore and how many needy children would love to have them this Christmas.

Rather than let these toys and games collect dust, why not bring them to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries and get a tax receipt to boot!

Residents of Cohasset and Scituate should bring toys, games, dolls and any other small items to the Morgan Memorial attended donation trailer at the Hanover Mall, Rtes. 53 and 3.

The trailer is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Booster Club meets Monday

The next meeting of the Cohasset Boosters Inc. will be held Monday, Dec. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Ruth Nedrow, 21 Fairoaks Lane.

Those people who have an interest in supporting interscholastic sports programs at CHS and are willing to donate some of your time on an occasional basis should join the Boosters Dec. 12.

Those popular genuine Cohasset v-neck sweaters and polo shirts are still available and make great gifts for family and friends.

Call Robin Suhrbier, 383-0349, to order a sweater and the order will also benefit the Boosters' efforts as well.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 52086
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of EDWARD FRIEBE late of Cohasset, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the sixty-first to sixty fourth and final accounts of State Street Bank and Trust Company as Trustee (the fiduciary) under Residuary Clause of the will of said deceased for the benefit of James A. Tobey has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the twenty-first day of December, 1983, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said accounts. If you desire to object to any item of said accounts, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twenty-second day of November, 1983.

NEW OFFICE CONDOS

OFFER OPTIONS

Marshfield, MA. Nov. 19,1982 - Beak Realty announced today that reservations for office space are now available in their two-story office condominium and executive center located at 462 Plain Street (Route 139) in Marshfield.

A total of 12,600 square feet is available for purchase or for lease according to Beak Realty Trust which is offering an office design option at the business complex situated 1.7 miles from Route 3 and 1.5 miles from the center of Marshfield.

Dr. James G. Judge of Marshfield, trustee of Beak Realty, said, "Prospective tenants and owners will be able to create an office to suit their needs, whether it's in 600 square feet or 2500 square feet. Furthermore, the executive center will make available for rent a number of smaller offices." Mr. Gerard Lambert of Beak Realty Trust is coordinating leasing and sales arrangements. He noted that an executive center at the high traffic location would be perfect for a number of professionals who would share a reception area as well as a secretary pool, conference room, central switch board and a possible data processing room. "We feel an executive center is ideal for this area, and we intend to accomodate any feasible arrangement," he said.

The business complex, which is scheduled for occupancy in January 1, 1984, features contemporary design with a high efficieny wood frame consturction set against a beautifully landscaped. Each suite will have individual heating and air conditioning systems. An automatic sprinkler system is used and many extra design features are evident.

A mix of alternative sewer plans may be the answer

By Bill Hayward

About 60 residents attended the first public meeting held to discuss possible solutions to Cohasset's sewer problems Monday night.

The sewer commissioners, the waste water advisory committee and Ward Engineering Co. presented the information to the public.

Several possible options available to the town were discussed and it is likely the final decision will be a combination of two or more of these options.

One possiblity is the connection of a sewer system to the sewerage treatment plant in Hull. The Hull plant currently processes 100 million gallons of sewerage per day, but it is designed to handle 300 million gallons per day.

An agreement with Hull in terms of payment and maintenance must be ironed out.

Another option is the modification of the existing treatment plant in Cohasset to correct discharge permit violations.

The treatment plant could also be modified to provide additional capacity to expand its service area.

If additional capacity was available, then some sewer trouble spots could be connected to the system.

However, this is unlikely because the state would probably require an additional outflow from the plan. The existing outflow is already overloaded.

The use of "alternative collector sewer technologies" may be studied. These collectors are pressure operated separation chambers which increase the efficiency of a sewer system.

A possibility of state and federal aid funds was discussed.

The town may receive some funds for any action it takes, because the state has made an example of Cohasset and could not very well claim the town does not need to improve its sewerage treatment.

The option which received the most attention at the meeting is correcting individual sewerage problems on-site.

It is possible individuals could receive up to 94 percent of the cost of repairing their on-site septic systems.

Individual on-site septic systems were the focus of a quetionnaire sent out to Cohasset residents by Ward Engineering Co.

Six hundred ninteen of the questionnaires were returned to Ward and 95 of the respondents said they had either current or seasonal problems with their septic systems.

Ward Engineering has conducted 142 on-site inspections in town. Charles Dauchy of Ward Engineering said "We have a good feeling for the range and types of problems and systems" in town.

Dauchy added "Septic systems, properly constructed and maintained, are not second class alternatives."

Dauchy added, "This is a very preliminary stage in our study."

Although it would be premature to choose one option over another at this time, evidence points to the repair of on-site septic systems as the most reasonable alternative.

Most of Cohasset's septic systems do not meet Title 5 (State sanitation code for on-site septic systems).

But the cost of repairing and upgrading these on-site

People still confused about Fire Dept.

Last weekend 22 randomly chosen Cohasset residents were asked for their opinions concerning the conflict between firefighters and Chief Martin Dooley.

Nine of the people questioned said they did not know enough about the situation to state an opinion.

One young woman said, "I've read a little about it. It sounds like a lot of bickering, but I don't know. I really don't know."

However, even those people who had not formed an opinion were distressed by the situation. "I think it is very unfortunate, but I don't know enough about it to form an opinion," said one man.

Four of the 13 people who had opinions, backed Chief Dooley. A girl said, "I think he is just making them work a little for a change and they don't like it."

A young man said, "I back the chief. I don't think they should be doing things on their own time while being paid, like washing their cars out back."

An elderly woman said, "I think we spend a great deal of time choosing a fire chief and one of the difficulties is that we don't allow him to do what he wants to do."

A young father, holding his little girl's hand, said, "If I had to take a stand, I would take the chief's side. I think maybe he is being railroaded a little."

Five of those interviewed opposed Dooley's management practices.

A young man said, "The men are not happy with him. So I think they should get rid of him."

Another man said, "I do feel that if all those men are against him there must be a reason."

Grievances crowd selectmen's agenda

By Cindi Bondi

The saga of the Fire Department grievances continues on.

For two meetings, Wednesday, Dec. 7 and a special Saturday morning Dec. 10 meeting, five grievances and other personnel problems were the main order of business.

Selectmen accepted and rejected two grievances and did not make a decision on a fifth.

Selectmen accepted the firefighters grievances for: a letter of reprimand against Captain Roger Lincoln and for pay of a firefighter emergency medical technician.

Selectmen also rejected charges filed against Fire Chief Martin Dooley for using probationary firefighters for an E.M.T. detail at athletic events, using probationary firefighter E.M.T.'s to cover a ladder truck and using on duty personnel and the ambulance to cover an E.M.T. detail at Milliken Field (Cohasset High School.).

In another major development, selectmen told Chief Dooley to stop sending new firefighters to the Boston Firefighting Academy for training. This, they said, should help alleviate the department overtime cost.

Letter of Reprimand

Selectmen accepted a grievance about a letter of reprimand from Chief Martin Dooley to Captain Lincoln.

The letter, written by Dooley, charged Lincoln with poor judgement on his orders to cover an accident on Milliken Field, Oct. 4, at 4:01 p.m.

Lincoln complied with standard proceedures by calling for an ambulance with two emergency medical technicians.

Chief Dooley said, "To reduce the response of more men than are necessary and to distribute the work load evenly the man in charge should use discretion."

Lincoln said, "The injured person had the possibility of having broken ribs. If the ambulance responded alone than we would have waited for additional help so that three men could assist."

Selectman John DeBassio added, "The captain did not have the latitude to make a judgemental call. He was responding to the chief's policy."

Selectmen questioned whether policy should be followed at all times or if Lincoln should have interjected his own judgement of how many men to leave back at the station.

Selectman Clifford Mitman said, "If with the policy that is in effect a normal kind of call jeopardizes the department by not leaving enough men at the station than it is up to the chief to change the policy. But, this is going about it the wrong way."

Wheelchair ramp brings new meaning

By Mike Berger

It was a different kind of Christening at First Parish Church Sunday.

A wheelchair ramp was tested by parishioner Deborah Richards and the successful results mean the church is now wheelchair accessible.

"Two regular steps for a person in a wheelchair is like Mt. Everest," said the Rev. Edward Atkinson.

"This was something the congregation felt it was not compelled to do. But something we felt we wanted to do.

"We wanted our building to be accessible to all people and we encourage other people in town to make thier buildings accessible," said Atkinson.

The ramp will not affect a great number of parishioners. Atkinson suggested maybe two or three people will regularly use it.

But its greatest impact will be for those people attending weddings and memorial services.

"This ramp has been a long standing thought. People have been talking about this for several years," said Rev. Atkinson.

Finally church members budgeted about $7,000 to build the ramp and combine the project with an interior improvement of the "Tower" entry wing.

Four pews were removed so the entry would not be crowded. "There is space inside now so people in wheelchairs could sit with dignity," said Rev.

Dumping fee due

Cohasset business owners are reminded to pay a $50 annual dumping fee or receive a receipt of exemption. This exemption can be purchased by providing evidence that a private hauler disposes of the business trash. Business owners should inquire at the Board of Health office, 383-1664, for further details. Dumping cannot be permitted until the proper fees are paid or exemptions are obtained.

No Mariner Dec. 28

A reminder: the Mariner will not publish the week of Dec. 28. People who want advertisements or news releases that pertain to that week should have them at the Mariner office by Monday, Dec. 19 to be published in the Dec. 22 issue.

After a week's vacation for the staff, the newspaper is on the record Jan. 5.

Correction

In last week's Mariner an auto insurance story reported "If an experienced driver is not registered on the insurance policy for the parent's car, even if he has his own and has an accident in the parent's car, the insurance company must decline coverage under the new 1984 laws." It should have read "If an inexperienced driver..."

In addition, the report said Cohasset's rating went from a five to a six. It went from Territory 6 to 7.

Late report cards

School Supt. Eugene Crowell reported to the school board last week report cards for junior and senior high schools were issued Monday because School Dept. personnel were unfamiliar with the new computer.

The School Dept. had planned to do the work on its own computers to save money but the staff had problems entering the data.

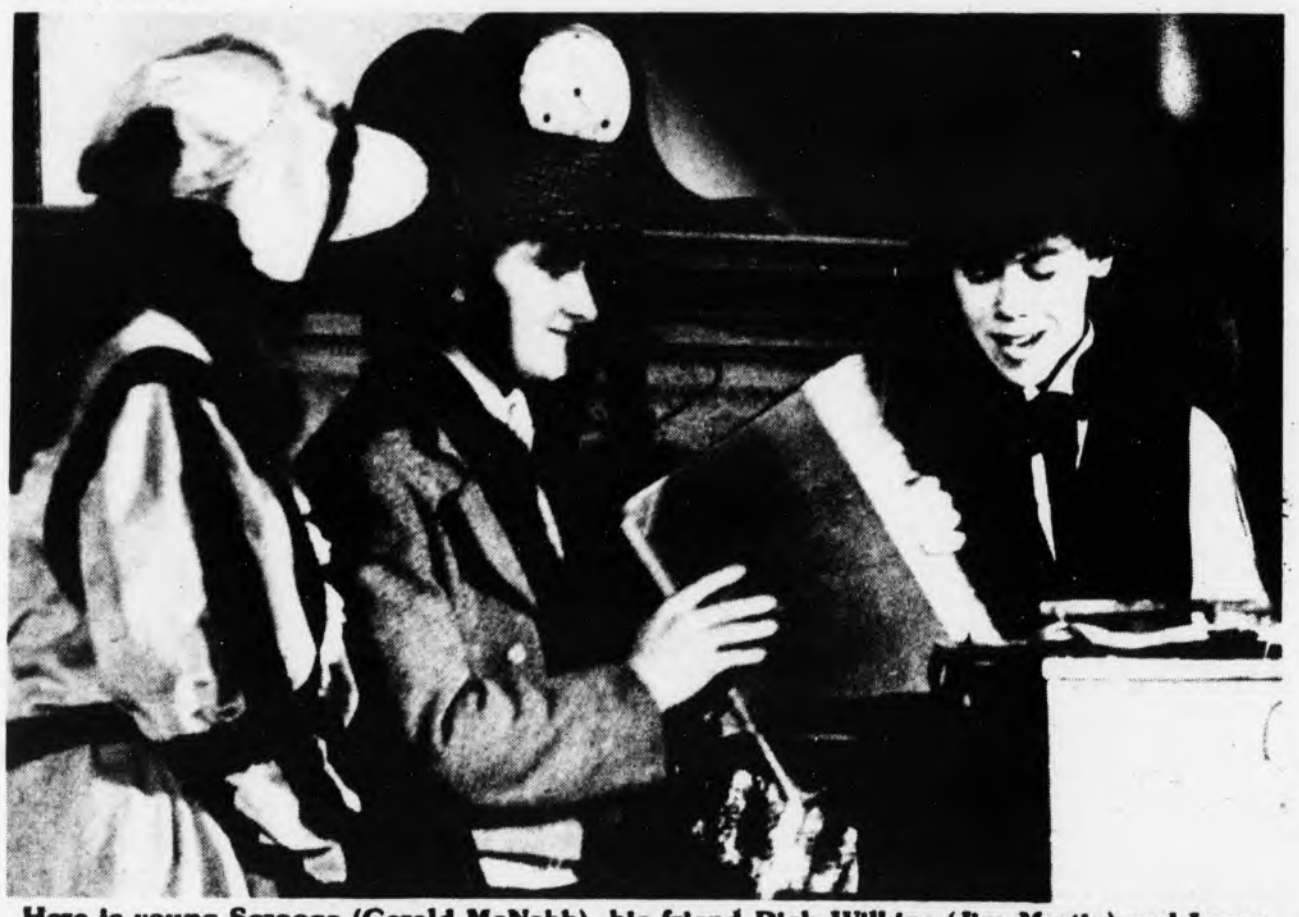
Personnel from Data National came to Cohasset to train them and as a result report cards went out Monday, two weeks late. Crowell said Tuesday the Honor Roll names were put on computer and doesn't expect any furthur problems.

The real problem was for high school seniors who need the grades to complete college applications.

Riding Club support

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza told selectmen, the selectmen's office is continuing to receive complaints, from Jacqueline Wirth of 14 Red Gate Lane regarding dust, drainage problems and chemicals stored in barrels at WheelwrightPark.

Lanza asked Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos if there has ever been a health hazard at the park. She inspected the park and found no health or environmental problem.



Tree and Park Superintendent Peter Laugelle said, "We have never had any other complaints about the park except from this woman."

Several abutters spoke favorably about public use of the park, especially horseback riders.

One abutter said, "The only noise that has come from that park are occassional mini-bikes. The more horseback riders the less I see mini-bikers."

Sally Davenport, of the Cohasset Riding Club said, "The largest crowd we have ever had is 60 people and that includes the riders. There is no possible way that we disturb Mrs. Wirth. Horse shows by nature are a quiet event."

She concluded, "In fact Mrs. Wirth and her husband have often harassed us."

Here is young Scrooge (Gerald McNabb), his friend Dick Wilkins (Jim Martin) and Laura, played by Laura Doherty. These actors will perform "The Christmas Carol" again this weekend. (Greg Derr photo)

Early release day

Thursday, Dec. 15 will be an early release day for the elementary schools only. There will be no afternoon Kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

Buses will depart Deer Hill at 12:45 p.m. and Joseph Osgood School at 12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in both of these schools. This early release day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee. The release time at the elementary schools will be devoted to Parent Conferences.

Lanata appeals decision

Developer John Lanata appealed the selectmen's decision which demanded he remove his fill which extended to the South Main Street side of the railroad bed, now town owned.

Lanata said, "I explained before that I purchased the property with an approved plan which indicated that area of the railroad bed."

Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said, "You were never given permission by the selectmen."

Abutter Jim Leonard of South Main Street said, "One-third of my back yard is under water. I went to the railroad tracks and I see a block in the stream that looks like a dam."

Selectmen will allow Lanata to apply for a variance with the Board of Health in January or February.

Correction

The cutline underneath Richard Dabrowski's Cohasset illustration in last week's Mariner should have read "Above is the site of Cohasset Salt Works, circa 1840."

Bates Building repairs

The Advisory Board agreed to support a Special Town Meeting warrant article for $2,000 to stain and sandblast the Bates Building.

"That building is in bad shape," Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur told the advisory board. "In the long run, it's more cost-effective to do it now." She suggested the money should be spent for staining rather than painting because staining will last some seven to 10 years, while painting will last about five years.

Fire Dept. consultant study draws mixed comments

The Advisory Board last week decided to postpone its decision on whether or not to recommend spending $10,000 to $18,000 to pay a professional consultant to evaluate the Fire Dept.

Members said they wanted to hear more from the Fire Dept. personnel before deciding.

Selectmen requested the item be placed on the Special Town Meeting warrent. Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur and Selectman Cliff Mitman attended the advisory board meeting Dec. 8 to discuss the request for a consultant.

Advisory Board Chairman Jim Lagrotteria said the board felt the problems within the Fire Dept. should be worked out by the selectmen.

"There's both right and wrong on both sides," he said. "It seems to us, if a child is bad, you either give him a boot or a slap."

"I think it's not as simple as sitting around responding to grievances," Mitman said. "That kind of stuff is never going to go away."

Mitman added the board does not have the firefighting expertise necessary to handle some of the complaints fairly. If the situation continues as it is, there will be "more and more polarization," he said.

Advisory board member Jackie Dormitzer said, "It seems to me that you do have some expertise on your board."

Selectman John DeBassio, former police chief, has been working as a mediator between the fire chief and the Fire Dept. union.

Mitman said the board feels someone with firefighting expertise is necessary. "The objective is to get a more objective view of some of these things."

Lagrotteria said the board is getting the impression the selectmen are expecting a consultant to solve the Fire Dept.'s problems.

Board member Paul Neelon said other towns have hired a consultant, received a report, discussed it, and filed it. The department is still going to have problems, he said.

Fire Capt. Mark Trask suggested the board consult the Kimball Report issued in 1974.

The report which cost the town $2,000 covered training, prevention, call firefighters, officers and expenditures Trask said.

"We have no objections to someone coming in. "I think the solution is a lot simpler than this, he said.

Neelon responded, "There are two solutions; both involve getting rid of half the problem."

Grievances crowd selectmen's agenda . . .

EMT Pay

Firefighters Paul Bilodeau and Eric Wenzlow argued they should receive pay as E.M.T.'s for Fiscal Year 1983 which began July 1.

Selectmen approved this grievance despite the firefighter's contract which says E.M.T.'s have to be employed at the beginning of the fiscal year in order to receive firefighter-E.M.T. pay.

Firefighter Randy Rosano said, "They have been doing their jobs as firefighter-E.M.T.'s over the past year."

Firefighter Mark Trask added, "They are applying for payment from Jan. 1 through June 1983. They do not expect compensation before they began in 1983."

Athletic details

Selectmen rejected the firefighter's grievance which said Chief Martin Dooley went against past practice of assigning EMTs' on a detail assignment to athletic events by assigning on-duty firefighters.

Firefighters listed the dates: Sept. 5, 22, 26, 28, 29 and Oct. 4 for athletic events they thought should be covered by an EMT detail.

Their letter to selectmen said, "In prior years EMTs' covered school events and the School Dept. paid. They did not receive overtime from the Fire Dept. in the past."

Chief Dooley said, "Superintendent Eugene Crowell said there was an unforeseen expense to the School. Dept. for many events which they did not have in the budget."

This year the South Shore League voted to have E.M.T.'s cover soccer games as well as football.

Dooley added, "I told the superintendent that I had two E.M.T.'s working straight days so I could help him cover the games."

Firefighter Bob Silvia said, "Chief Dooley said that the men on duty were back in time for their shift to end. That is a false statement. We were paid for two hours of overtime. We were supposed to be back at 4 p.m. and we came back at 5:30 p.m."

Firefighter Randy Rosano said, "I want to know why the job went to trainee EMTs' Chief Dooley told us the School Dept. refinished a desk and a chair and did printing work for him because he helped them."

Atty. Philip Boyle, representing Chief Dooley, said, "This is an overtime question. The chief's duty is to try to minimize overtime and he did that."

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said, "I checked with the Tree and Park Superintendent (Peter Laugelle) who scheduled the games. There were no documented games Sept. 26 or Sept. 29. It is within the chief's management right to decide if the E.M.T.'s will be on detail or duty."

Probationary firefighter

Lanza said labor counsel does not believe the 'use of probationary firefighter E.M.T. to cover ladder truck' should be handled by the grievance proceedure.

The grievance procedure is reserved for violations of the labor contract.

On-duty coverage

Selectmen denied the grievance of using an on duty personnel to cover an EMT detail at Milliken Field by virtue of a 3-1 vote.

Chief Dooley said, "When I sent the ambulance to Milliken Field I took a calculated risk. I assigned personnel as I saw fit and I saw no need for (additional) EMTs'"

Atty. Boyle said, "Yes, the chief did take a risk but he staffed the department in a way that he chose. Again, this is an overtime question and the chief found a way to save overtime pay."

Selectman DeBassio said, "Something I see reocurring in the grievances is overtime and past practices. The firefighters tend to be confused becuase the chief exercises a management right."

He added, "There is to be no confusion when it comes to public safety in this community." The town hall audience of approximately 60 people applauded.

DeBassio voted against upholding the grievance.

He said, "We indicated before that we were not using proper practice. There had been a past practice since 1975 to assign EMTs' on detail rather than put them on overtime from a shift."

The other selectmen said that the chief acted in accordance with his administrative perogative.

Capt. Mark Trask

In an unrelated development, Capt. Mark Trask asked selectmen to remove from his personal file a

Grievances crowd selectmen's agenda . . .

EMT Pay

Firefighters Paul Bilodeau and Eric Wenzlow argued they should receive pay as E.M.T.'s for Fiscal Year 1983 which began July 1.

Selectmen approved this grievance despite the firefighter's contract which says E.M.T.'s have to be employed at the beginning of the fiscal year in order to receive firefighter-E.M.T. pay.

Firefighter Randy Rosano said, "They have been doing their jobs as firefighter-E.M.T.'s over the past year."

Firefighter Mark Trask added, "They are applying for payment from Jan. 1 through June 1983. They do not expect compensation before they began in 1983."

Athletic details

Selectmen rejected the firefighter's grievance which said Chief Martin Dooley went against past practice of assigning EMTs' on a detail assignment to athletic events by assigning on-duty firefighters.

Firefighters listed the dates: Sept. 5, 22, 26, 28, 29 and Oct. 4 for athletic events they thought should be covered by an EMT detail.

Their letter to selectmen said, "In prior years EMTs' covered school events and the School Dept. paid. They did not receive overtime from the Fire Dept. in the past."

Chief Dooley said, "Superintendent Eugene Crowell said there was an unforeseen expense to the School. Dept. for many events which they did not have in the budget."

This year the South Shore League voted to have E.M.T.'s cover soccer games as well as football.

Dooley added, "I told the superintendent that I had two E.M.T.'s working straight days so I could help him cover the games."

Firefighter Bob Silvia said, "Chief Dooley said that the men on duty were back in time for their shift to end. That is a false statement. We were paid for two hours of overtime. We were supposed to be back at 4 p.m. and we came back at 5:30 p.m."

Firefighter Randy Rosano said, "I want to know why the job went to trainee EMTs' Chief Dooley told us the School Dept. refinished a desk and a chair and did printing work for him because he helped them."

Atty. Philip Boyle, representing Chief Dooley, said, "This is an overtime question. The chief's duty is to try to minimize overtime and he did that."

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said, "I checked with the Tree and Park Superintendent (Peter Laugelle) who scheduled the games. There were no documented games Sept. 26 or Sept. 29. It is within the chief's management right to decide if the E.M.T.'s will be on detail or duty."

Probationary firefighter

Lanza said labor counsel does not believe the 'use of probationary firefighter E.M.T. to cover ladder truck' should be handled by the grievance proceedure.

The grievance procedure is reserved for violations of the labor contract.

On-duty coverage

Selectmen denied the grievance of using an on duty personnel to cover an EMT detail at Milliken Field by virtue of a 3-1 vote.

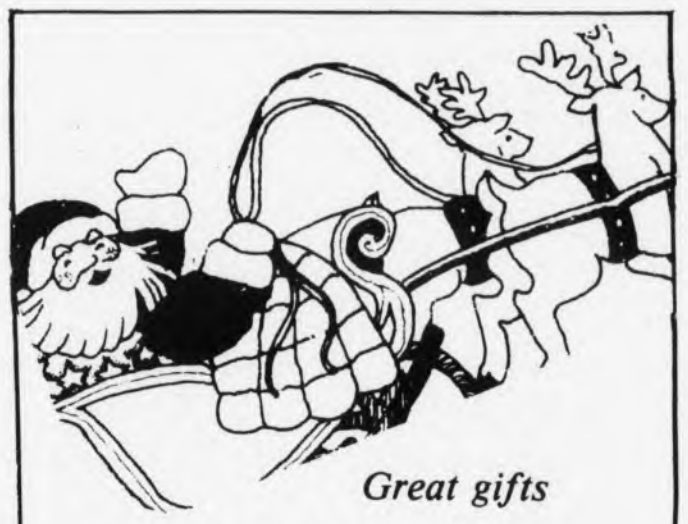
Chief Dooley said, "When I sent the ambulance to Milliken Field I took a calculated risk. I assigned personnel as I saw fit and I saw no need for (additional) EMTs'"

Atty. Boyle said, "Yes, the chief did take a risk but he staffed the department in a way that he chose. Again, this is an overtime question and the chief found a way to save overtime pay."

Selectman DeBassio said, "Something I see reocurring in the grievances is overtime and past practices. The firefighters tend to be confused becuase the chief exercises a management right."

He added, "There is to be no confusion when it comes to public safety in this community." The town hall audience of approximately 60 people applauded.

DeBassio voted against upholding the grievance.



He said, "We indicated before that we were not using proper practice. There had been a past practice since 1975 to assign EMTs' on detail rather than put them on overtime from a shift."

The other selectmen said that the chief acted in accordance with his administrative perogative.

letter written by Chief Dooley.

This request was not considered a grievance.

Dooley had criticized Trask for submitting call firefighter information to the Ambulance Study Committee without his approval.

Trask said, "After much deliberation I draw no correlation to how his position as a member of the Study Committee relates to his personnel file for the Fire Dept.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle asked, "Was Trask not appointed by selectmen to do a job on the Ambulance Study Committee? He has a job to do. Don't you think the files should be open?"

He added, "Anything pertaining to the town should be open to the public."

Dooley said, "If the man just asked me to remove the letter from his file I would."

Trask, who was sitting right next to Dooley asked the chief to remove the letter.

"So be it," said Dooley.

Training course rejected

Selectmen decided not to continue the firefighter's training course.

The selectman earlier approved the course as a four week program. The course is now in its eighth week and other firefighters put in overtime while Peter Trask and Robert Protulis, the department's new firefighters, attended school.

Selectmen also said the course did not appear to be structured sufficiently.

DeBassio said he was led to believe the program was to be only four weeks and would not cost the town any overtime money.

He said the overtime cost has accumulated to over $7,700.

DeBassio asked Dooley which skills the four week program was supposed to be devoted to. "They must have some sort of schedule."

Dooley did not tell selectmen a schedule.

Selectmen resolved to withdraw firefighters from the Boston school in one week.

Atkinson.

Richards of Cohasset seemed to be the impetus for the project.

She regularly comes to the Parish House for physical exercise.

Rev. Atkinson then toured the Mass. Hospital School for Severely Handicapped people and saw how much they cherished the ramps, "to have access on their own."

Before the ramp, ushers had to lift the chair and Atkinson said this was difficult but not impossible.

The Tower doorway was found to be 13 inches away from ground level and the closest entryway to the ground.

The soil was then built up and the grass was restored. The building sills were molded in concrete.

There is now an asphalt walkway, and no elevated ramp or railings.

This project was endorsed by the Cohasset Common History District Commission and Selectmen because any alterations to the building must be approved by town officials.

Rev. Atkinson believes First Parish may be the first Cohasset Church to be accessible but acknowledges society needs to see the consciousness of handicapped awareness raised.

Funds approved for landfill impact report

The Advisory Board voted to support a Special Town Meeting warrant requesting $35,000 to determine the impact of a commercial sanitary landfill operation on the town's water supply.

The Water Commissioners said they were concerned with the proximity of Cohasset Heights to Lily Pond. The commissioners want to hire a consultant to conduct a thorough investigation.

Board Chairman Jim Lagrotteria said it is unclear where the money to pay the consultant will come from. He said taxation might not be the most appropriate because some of Cohasset's residents do not get their water from the town. Their water is supplied by the Hingham Water Dept.

In a related matter, the board recommended the water commissioners withdraw a petition for nearly $10,000 to be spent for legal counsel.

The commissioners requested counsel to advise them on matters relating to Cohasset Heights LTD.

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said the water commission should come to the selectmen with requests for legal counsel. That is why the town obtains the services of Town Counsel, she said.

"Town Counsel is too busy," said Water Commissioner Bill Montouri.

The advisory board said the commissioners should go through the selectmen to seek legal cousel.

based their opinions on Dooley's efforts to decrease the number of men on the force.

A middle aged woman said, "I think it has gone a little too far. I don't think they should cut back on the number of firefighters."

Another woman said, "I don't think they should cut back, especially after those little children died (the Nardo fire). So I certianly don't think we need any less people on the force."

A middle aged man said, "It seems to be a personality clash. But if the officer who is being chastised now (John Boswell) has a good record, then I think the chief is being unreasonable."

The remaining four people interviewed said both the chief and the men are at fault.

One man said, "My initial reaction is that management (chief) should have the prerogative.On the other hand, perhaps the management is not being handled properly. I think there is probably weakness on both sides."

An elderly woman said, "I think the chief should be in charge but I would like to see him give fair treatment to the men."

The citizens interviewed were equally divided on the question of whether the town should hire an outside consultant ($10,000 to $18,000) to try and resolve the conflict in the Fire Department.

One man said, "We have tried everything else. We had a selectman attempt to mediate and that failed. So maybe a consultant would come up with a solution."

Another man said, "It's their own thing to iron out, really. I don't think consultants are necessary. If they get their heads together, they can solve these problems."

School libraries need more books

Cohasset school librarians told the School Committee recently there is an urgent need for books in all school libraries.

The committee heard the report as board members prepare the Fiscal Year 1984-85 School Dept. budget. Committee members acknowledged the need but did not specifically comment on the report.

Library staff members showed the committee battered books with threadbare bindings. " 'Mark Twain' looks like he got run over by a truck," said Elizabeth Glasfeld, high school and school-wide librarian.

Last year, Osgood School's book budget was $200. Ninety dollars of that was spent on periodicals; $20 was spent on an atlas, Glasfeld said. The remaining $90 could buy about nine books, she said.

Glasfeld presented a chart showing in the school year 1981-82, $3,000 bought 600 books. In the school year 1984-85, the same $3,000 will buy 250 books, she said. While books in 1981-82 were about $5 each, books currently cost some $12 each.

Committee member Diana Kornet asked if the periodicals were used and Glasfeld said some children, intimidated by books, will read magazines.

Glasfeld also said the department had not bought any reference materials in awhile.

Although she did not specify "awhile" in terms of years, Deer Hill library aide Marjorie Murphy said the school library has a book on American Presidents. The last president in the book is Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Murphy said her $200 book budget was spent toward the purchase of World Book Encyclopedia. The school's latest edition was a 1973 edition, she said.

Students ask about space and electronics for school projects, Murphy said. Regarding space exploration, "we have a biography on Neil Armstrong. That's it," she said.

Murphy said 14-member volunteer staff volunteers helps stretch the budget. "These mothers that come in, you absolutely could not live without them," she said.

She also told the committee about taping educational TV programs as a means of supplementing their resources.

School Committee Chairman Dick Conley thanked the library staff for it's diligence. "We have a fine and caring and dedicated staff. We have a million dollar staff that doesn't cost us anywhere near that," Conley said.

Parent School Organization President Sue MacNamara echoed Conley's comments. "The parents are just overwhelmingly appreciative of the creativity you've shown."

☐ A Cohasset skater has won a silver medal for her team in a ISIA Competition held in Billerica. Leslie O'Grady skated well in Free Style 3 event placing second and in Figures won a Bronze Medal. Leslie skates for the Cohasset Winter Gardens ISIA team. ISIA (Ice Skating Institute of America) offers recreational skating international programs.

Learn-To-Skate, Intermediate and Advanced classes are offered weekly at Cohasset Winter Gardens. Classes are open to children and adults of all ages. Leslie has been participating on her team for approximately two years and is looking forward to the team traveling to various competitions this year.

☐The Cohasset Gridiron Club held their break-up dinner for the football team Sunday night at the Bridgwaye Inn. Although the weather was awful, the turnout was great! Chris Colburn, Peter Caruso, Jay Contis, Dan Curran, Jim Lyden, and Chris Kuhn were awarded honors for jobs well done, with coaches and administration praising the coaches and the team for their efforts.

☐Arthur and Eunice Clark certainly had reason to celebrate last week. It was their 50th wedding anniversary! They foiled some well-laid plans by taking off to New Hampshire for the occasion, where I'm sure they had a wonderful time (snow and all).

☐The talk at the High School is revolving around the Junior-Senior Dance which will be held Dec. 16 at St. Stephen's Church. It is a Sadie Hawkins Dance, the first held in many years, with the girls inviting the boys. The dress, however, is semi-formal, not like "the old days" when the gang dressed in the style of Lil Abner and Daisy May!

☐Congratulations to Heather Davenport, who was chosen for the Southeast District Music Festival. Heather had to audition for her role in the concert and is also going to try out for the All State group, as is Nancy Donahue for chorus. Good luck to these two talented gals.

☐The Stoughton family (Pleasant St.) and the Quigley family (Forest Ave.) are looking forward to Christmas more than ever this year. Drew and Jean (Stoughton) Quigley are coming from Plano, Texas for the holidays. They will be bringing their 1½ year old daughter Caitlin to share in the festivities, which is sure to double their pleasures! They will be staying with the Stoughtons, and are looking forward to the visit. Both Drew and Jean are CHS grads.

☐Abby Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams of Cohasset, was the recent recipient of a South East Hunter Association Year End Award. Abby and her horse Porcelain Doll, competed in the hunter and equitation divisions this year.

Abby trains under the instruction of Carl Catani at River Wind Farm in Pembroke. She plans to continue her riding in 1984 with her new mount Waltzing Wave in the advanced hunter and equitation classes.

☐After a near-tragedy in our house last week, thought I'd pass on this reminder. Now that cold weather is here to stay, be sure to give your hood a knock before starting your engine. Cats seek the warmth of the engine by climbing in, and there's no way of seeing them until the fur flies, a horrible experience for both cat and driver!

☐It is true that Terry Mulcahy has become an expert in the pie-making department, but it is false to think she is thinking of going into the business. With three hungry boys who love pies, that surely keeps her busy enough!

☐Frankie Spellman, son of Frank Spellman of Hingham, is doing nicely after recent surgery at Children's Hospital. Frank is a member at Cohasset Golf Club, and will be at Children's for another week.

☐Pamela J. Maynard, the super gymnast who lived in Cohasset for a while, is now a student at William Allen High School where she made the honor roll. Pamela is back into gymnastics with a vengeance, watch for her as a future Olympic star.

☐As this is the time of the "mad rush" for Christmas shopping, it's hard for you to remember to report news for "Around Town." To do so though will make those mentioned in the column while they are home happy. Call me at 383-0560.

Mrs. Palimeri asks ZBA to close junk car firm

Katherine Palimeri of 347 North Main St. recently asked the Zoning Board of Appeals to close Ross Rosano's junk car business, located at 325 North Main St.

Mrs. Palimeri and her lawyer, Charles Humphreys, told the board Rosano's business causes noise and fumes which annoy Mrs. Palimeri and make it impossible for her to enjoy her back yard.

They also said junk cars which are stored on land considered a flood plain, could pollute the bird sanctuary next door.

Humphreys argued the business had been "abandoned" at the time of Rosano's father's death in 1978. He said Ross had no right to start it up again.

Humphreys said Rosano does not have an "auto graveyard" license, and could not meet the requirements to meet the license.

Rosano told the board his father had been in business on that property since the 1940's, and the business had never been abandoned.

Rosano produced business records and photographs for the board.

Rosano said he replaced the mufflers on all his heavy equipment to keep the noise down, and added he has begun clearing the junk cars away from the flood plain areas of his property.

However, he said when he hired equipment to haul the junk away, Mrs. Palimeri complained about the noise.

Rosano added previously the Fire Department used his junk yard to train their men in extrication, but stopped when Mrs. Palimeri complained.

Cohasset resident Peter Kulterides told the board that "He (Ross Rosano) is the hardest working kid I have ever met."

He added, "I think what you have to take into consideration is that here is a kid trying to rebuild the business that his father broke his back to build. And a little inconvenience won't hurt anyone," he said.

CEDAR LEDGE VILLAGE

In another issue brought before the board, Eleanor Cooney Smith appealed a decision made by the former Building Inspector (James Litchfield) to allow construction at Cedar Ledge Village. Part of the property lies in a flood plain.

Mrs. Smith is concerned the septic systems at Cedar Ledge could pollute ground water in the event of flooding.

She would like the board to issue an order to halt construction, although the septic systems have already been installed.

Mrs. Smith's lawyer argued she had already made an appeal to the board but the board did not act on this appeal within the mandatory 75 day limit.

Therefore the lawyer said Mrs. Smith should win the decision by default. However, the exact date of Mrs. Smith's first appeal is not clear.

The issue was further complicated by an error on a topographical map of the Cedar Ledge development.

Perkins Engineering, who prepared the map, showed the location of the septic systems at the 60 foot level. It was later discovered the actual elevation of the septic systems was 50 feet, which is below the flood plain.

Both of these applications were taken under advisement by the board.

More in-house training

The Fire Dept. grievance saga continues as we predicted.

In a new twist this week, a management decision by Fire Chief Martin Dooley to send the two new firefighters to the Boston Fire Academy was reversed by selectmen Saturday.

And we agree with it.

Overtime, Overtime and Overtime. That along with litigation costs are eating up the taxpayers' money.

Secondly, if the manpower plan to cut six firefighter positions is accepted by the town, the plan calls for the position reduction by attrition through retirement, resignation or layoff.

As in the business world, "the last hired means the first fired." If this manpower plan is accepted, will these two firefighters sent to Quincy for training be laid off?

There's another reason. We agree with Chief Dooley that Cohasset may not have all the facilities to train new firefighters but there's enough experience and expertise between the four captains and the chief (who was a training officer in Connecticut) to sufficiently train the new firefighters.

A combination of the in-house training and perhaps outside training sites where needed is the best solution.

Cultural praise

The holiday season was duly opened up in the right fashion with the recent performances of Cohasset High School's "Godspell" and the Cohasset Dramatic Club's production of "The Christmas Carol."

In addition, the quality of the Village Fair combined with these theatrical performances produces good thoughts, and a warm heart for the season.

Bravo to all those involved with the events. A job well done.

Sewer plans . . .

systems will probably be far less than laying sewer pipes.

Even if a public sewer system were put in, there will still be a large number of on-site systems used. Dauchy said, "It is very clear that whatever the ultimate scenario, there will be major areas of the town which will remain unsewered."

The waste water advisory committee reported "We feel that we should be representatives of the community. We are looking for the best solution not only for each one of us as individuals, but for the town as a whole."

Sewer commission chairman Charles DeSantis said, "Whatever this town does to solve its waste water problems, it will have to be bought by 85 percent of the people."

The next public meeting will be held in late January or early February. The final public meeting is scheduled for April, when Ward Engineering will complete a report and make final recommendations.

"...Pay attention now...here's the plan...we get decked out like those Cabbage Patch Kid dolls and maybe someone comes along and adopts us..."

Are we all from the Cabbage Patch?

By Claire McDonough

Flora and Fauna helped themselves to the contents of the Mr. Coffee on my counter and Flora moaned.

"I can't possibly get my shopping done this Christmas," she complained. "Less than two weeks left and I haven't even been in a store yet."

"I don't understand," I said. "Every time I called your house this week your daughter Fern said you were Christmas shopping."

"That's all she knows," Flora sniffed. "Sure, I've gone out every night, but I haven't been able to get inside a store. The lines of people trying to buy Cabbage Patch dolls have been so long and so violent, I haven't stood a chance.

"One night I almost made it to Child World, but a sweet little old lady skewered me with her umbrella and I had to go to South Shore Hospital for 12 stitches. By the time I got back the stores were all closed and the lines were forming for the next day. It was 3:30 in the morning."

Fauna stirred her coffee thoughtfully. "I really don't understand the Cabbage Patch phenomenon. I mean, the dolls are cute, but I've seen prettier. Do you think the adoption papers and the annual birthday card from Coleco have anything to do with it? I can't imagine why rational adults are going bananas over a bunch of dumb dolls."

I nodded. "Neither can I."

We both looked at Flora.

Flora bit her lip and stared out the window. When she turned back to us, her eyes had glazed over and her hands were trembling.

She seized Fauna by the shoulders; their faces were inches apart.

"I've got to get my hands on one of those dolls!" she shouted.

"I'll do whatever it takes, but I am going to get a Cabbage Patch doll."

"Take it easy," we told her, prying her fingers from Fauna's shoulders. "What's so important about getting a Cabbage Patch?"

Flora looked embarrassed. "I'm sorry. I guess I got carried away.

"I'm probably being silly," she added, "but I really want to get one and see if it grows."

We looked at her and at each other.

"No, listen," she continued. "Remember how when we grew up our parents had trouble telling us where babies came from?"

We nodded.

"Mine told me the stork brought me," Fauna mused.

"Right," Flora said. "That's what the mothers in our neighborhood used to say, too. Then some smart alec kid figured out that the stork didn't have a broad enough wing-span to carry a five to 10 pound load, and they all went crazy thinking up other stories.

"About half of them opted for the 'the doctor brought you in his black bag' version, but my mother grew up on a farm and she had a different ploy."

Flora frowned. "At least, I think it was a ploy."

We gasped. "You mean?"

"Right," Flora nodded. "My mother told me she found me in a cabbage patch.

Resident responds to Wirth letter

To the Editor:

It was with great interest that I read Mrs. Wirth's letter to the selectmen concerning horse related issues in Wheelwright Park. I am not a horse owner nor do I have any particular interest in them. In fact, I am rather afraid of them.

However, I must confess at the outset that I have a daughter who is very involved with these animals and who is a member of the Cohasset Riding Club. (She paid the $10 with her own money.)

I further confess to the fact that there is a horse on our property (not ours). Why? Let's chalk it up to love.

Personally I'm into walking and vegetable gardening. I enjoy nature, particularly during my frequent walks in Wheelwright Park. Moreover, on occasion I attend (at a safe distance) those loud, congested, damaging and hazardous to one's health riding shows to which Mrs. Wirth refers.

I would also like to mention that I commute to Boston every working day on the P&B bus, which gives me the opportunity to observe Wheelwright Park with its riding ring in full view.

Letters

I mention all of this because I am somewhat confused concerning the description of the riding ring, which if I were to believe Mrs. Wirth's description, borders on being a dusty swamp.

[redacted] letter in search of substantive facts. Unfortunately, I found very few.

In an attempt to put her on the right track, I went to the Paul Pratt Library to gather some facts on my own. Several sources state clearly that a mosquito needs at least eight days (given proper climate) to lay its eggs, hatch and grow to adulthood.

Actually this varies slightly with the hundreds of varieties of the insect. I will leave it to Mrs. Wirth to share with us how many consecutive eight day periods during the breeding season she sees stagnant water in the riding ring.

Resident responds to Wirth letter . . .

As to the tires in the ring, I really don't think five used tires constitutes a health hazard. Perhaps she will also send to the state a sample of the "annoying film" she refers to.

May I respectfully suggest that a great deal of it may be salt! As for breathing difficulties, I note that she neglected to share with your readers which abutters are medically suffering as a result of the presence of the riding ring.

Mrs. Wirth's sensitivity to noise struck a familiar chord with me. We who live on Gammons Road consider ourselves quite familiar with this subject, based on a past controversy surrounding a certain tennis court. Being on more familiar territory, may I inquire how many days a year large groups of people congregate at the ring (with bullhorns)? At what time of day?

Now as to mess. I agree. Horses are messy. I yield. However, it is with tongue in cheek that I suggest an appealing plan for all Cohasset gardeners. Mrs. Wirth suggests to us that we have a serious horse pollution problem relative to the riding ring. Why not collect the droppings after each show for pick-up by interested local gardeners? Yes, kids, you do the work.

As stated earlier, I happen to be a passionate vegetable gardener. Without going into descriptive detail I should explain that I had to move my beloved garden to a less appealing spot since the old space now serves as part of a paddock area. Your readers will appreciate what a back breaking effort this was in good old New England.

I did it not only for love of my kids and others but in the hopes of finding further enjoyment and therapy next growing season. I am doubtful, however, that I have good light exposure.

I assume Mrs. Wirth can relate to these feelings since she tends a very large garden within the confines of Wheelwright Park itself! On this issue I would like to know (to quote Mrs. Wirth's letter) whether her garden enables the "citizens of the town to use (the park) in the way in which it was intended to be used." If it doesn't where do I sign up. Let's face it, I'm jealous.

Actually I would like to think our selectmen are paying attention tomore weighty matters of our community. In the meantime, perhaps Mrs. Wirth will pursue one or more of the following sugestions: get some facts, see an analyst or both of the above.

Club members refute the charges

To the Editor:

In last week's issue of the Cohasset Mariner you published in its entirety a complaint letter from a Mrs. Robert H. Wirth, which was nothing more than a diatribe against the use of a portion of Wheelwright Park by the Cohasset Riding Club.

We frankly are very surprised that your newspaper would publish such a letter containing so many damaging accusations without first contacting some responsible party to see whether any of them were true.

Mrs. Wirth's letter in substance complained about alleged dust, mess, noise and stagnant water accumulations in the area of the riding ring. The precise conditions have been examined and inspected carefully by town officials from the Board of Selectmen, Park Department, and Board of Health.

It has been determined that efforts by the Riding Club have been entirely satisfactory.

Mrs. Wirth also stated that there have been as many as sixty horses at the site. This statement represents a complete misrepresentation as the largest number of horses which have ever been at the riding ring and the gravel pit across the street is twenty-one. This high number occurred at this year's fall show.

The letter also implied that the Town was in some way supporting or subsidizing the Cohasset Riding Club. The Riding Club is supported totally by its membership, a membership which is open to all. Over the last few years the Club has expended almost $2,500 and its taxpayers do not provide any financial assistance whatsoever to the Cohasset Riding Club.

Lastly, we would point out that we are deeply concerned over Mrs. Wirth's continued attacks on the activities of the Cohasset Riding Club.

All of us who freely give of our time and efforts to this activity feel it is extremely beneficial to all its present and potential participants and provides a healthful and appropriate activity for the inhabitants of Cohasset.

Our view is shared by many citizens, neighbors and town officials. Something other than the facts as they exist must give rise to these complaints.

In the meantime we would greatly appreciate your publication focusing on the extraordinarily positive aspects of the Cohasset Riding Club.

Very truly yours,
Nancy Ripley

Safety museum proposed by McArthur

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur has asked selectmen and firefighters about their opinion of turning the IndependenceGown Museum into a Cohasset Center museum for fire and police memorabilia.

The Cohasset Historical Society owns the two antique fire engines which might be stored inside the building.

The "Konahasset" is stored in a Cohasset barn while the "Independence" is weatherbeaten in a Hingham field.

The Historical Society closed the gown museum this fall because the gowns were damaged and the building needed much repair. The town owns the building and leased it to the society.

The building served as the town's firehouse until 1912 when it became Cohasset's first police station. In 1962 the police station was replaced by the town's public safety building on Elm Street.

The town purchased the Independence in 1848 and the Konahasset was owned by a volunteer fire brigade in the 1800s.

☐Thomas S. Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Ryan of 17 Hillside Drive, has reason to be extremely proud of his efforts. Thomas is a pre-med student in his sophomore year at University of Mass., Amherst, and earned the esteemed honor of making the Dean's List for the Spring Semester, 1983, with a 3.9 cumulative average. Fifteen of the University students meet the high standards required to attain Dean's List status.

☐Had a nice chat with Dottie Remick last week, and she filled me in on some of the social events Cohasset residents have been attending recently. Dec. 7 the Wang Center was dedicated, with the Boston Ballet performing the Nutcracker as the opening performance. The Wang family donated $4 million dollars to the center and Donald Sutherland was there to introduce them and present them a Christmas gift. Among the local residents who were invited to attend (these same people have made donations to the center to keep it going in the past) were Ray and Dorothy Remick, Mauren Pearce, Eleanor Blakey and her daughter Gail (who were reported to have looked "smashing), Sally and Fred Wood, and Shirley Neer with her daughter, Susie. After the performance, champagne and goodies were served. Dottie reported it was so crowded that there was much champagne being spilled on the fur coats. Well, if something has to spill on a fur coat, it might as well be champagne, right?

☐Dr. Lincoln Bloomfield of 36 Beach St. had the honor of introducting the Ambassador of Rumania at the Country Club in Brookline recently. Members of the "Diplomats off the Record" were impressed with the Ambassador's speech, and were pleased with the reception that was held afterwards.

Carol Cody's sixth grade class will have a Jesse Tree decorating party Dec. 15 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at her home at 253 Clapp Road, Scituate.

Our second grade classes will present their Christmas Pageant on Sunday, Dec. 18 at 5 p.m. A rehearsal is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 17 from 2 to 4 p.m. at church.

There will be a Mass for the seventh and eighth grade classes Dec. 21 at 7 p.m. Each student has been asked by teachers Marjorie Murphy and Daniel Duffy to please bring a gift for an elderly person.

The first grade birthday party for Jesus will be held Dec. 22 at 3:30 in the church conference room.

Classes are open to all CCD teachers who are interested in a theological update through the Archdiocesan Office of Religious Education. Please contact Jean Lennon at the CCD Office. Classes begin in mid-January.

First Parish House

Dec. 18, the Senior Choir will perform Cantata 140, "Wachet Auf, ruft uns die Stimme," by J.S. Bach, with soloists from our choir and orchestra. This is a big step up from our efforts of last year and promises to be a beautiful service.

Youth choir attracted a crowd of enthusiastic shoppers at Lord and Taylor last Sunday despite rotten weather! Many thanks to Carol Martin, Joanne Chittick, the Rousseaus and Ed, who transported both kids and equipment through the rain, and to Felecia Bartow and Jennifer Martin, who played flutes.

The next event for the Youth Choir is the pageant on Dec. 18 when they will sing two anthems.

Second Congregational

Our church family can help the homeless in two important ways this year. The first is to learn more about the homeless and the agencies which serve them. This Sunday, Carol Sandblom will tell us about Pine Street Inn, a temporary home for many of Boston's homeless people.

The second thing we can do is to bring warm clothing to the church Sunday, Dec. 18. The clothing may be for men, women or children; it may include shoes, boots and thermal underwear as well as coats, shirts, sweaters — almost anything, in fact. The clothing must be clean and wearable.

As part of our Clothing for the Homeless Drive, you are also invited to contribute a new item of clothing such as mittens, white socks, hats or scarves. The new items need not be wrapped; there will be a clothesline and clothespins in Bates Hall. If you wish to contribute money to help the homeless at Christmas, make checks payable to the church, but clearly marked "for the homeless."

The church school is having a Christmas Pageant Sunday, Dec. 18. For the children who would like to take part in it, there will be a rehearsal at 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17.

Twenty-four children had perfect attendance in November — congratulations, and to you parents, too, for getting them here.

VILLAGE FAIR

Thanks to all who worked and all who attended.The Village Fair was "bigger and better than ever" last week. Special thanks to the following persons who led our church's participation: Carol Sandblom, Marilyn Fessler and Marsha Silvia.

Sha'aray Shalom

Rabbi Stephen Karol of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main Street, Hingham, will lead the Shabbat Service starting at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16. The subject of Rabbi Karol's sermon will be "The Man Who Wouldn't Let Hebrew Die." Rivka Isachar Benjamin will serve as cantor. An oneg shabbat (refreshments) will follow the service.

Town Stabilization fund

The Advisory Board voted to add some $60,000 to $85,000 to the town stabilization fund. This sum is the remainder of the $184,000 set aside for the Jan. 17 Special Town Meeting.

The $184,000 was generated by revenue from motor vehicle excise and license fees and a $84,000 reimbursement from the MBTA.

'Miserly old codger' brings new Christmas spirit

By Corinne A. Kutish

As the Christmas spirit begins to take hold, now is the perfect time to pack the kids in the car and drive to the Cohasset Town Hall to see an utterly charming performance of Dickens' "The Christmas Carol," performed by the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

The show opens with a London street scene. Carolers stroll among the audience, dressed in bonnets, bustles, top hats and tails. Sooty-faced children run among the crowd, peddlars hawk their wares, while the strains of "Silent Night," "Joy to the World," and "Good Christian Men Rejoice" set the Dicksonian mood.

Then down the center aisle strides in the big grump himself, Ebeneezer Scrooge, grumbling and grousing and "Bah, Humbug"-ing. So begins the beloved Christmas tale of a miserly old codger who learns the true meaning of Christmas when three spirits visit him on Christmas eve.

Playing the lead is Ben Duffy, who has done a magnificent job of bringing the tight-fisted Scrooge to life. During the last 10 years with the Cohasset Dramatic Club, Duffy has appeared as Sir Thomas Moore in "Man for All Seasons," Foxwell J. Sly in "Sly Fox," and others. Now, he is a delightful Scrooge.

"What reasons have you for a merry Christmas? You're poor enough," Scrooge queries his nephew with a crackling voice.

"What reasons have you to be so morose? You're rich enough," rejoins his affable relative, played jovially by Ron Massa.

Derek Holmes plays Scrooge's poor, yet contented, employee, Bob Cratchit. Holmes was a professional actor in England and has appeared with Hingham's Elizabethan Companie of Waites and Players, as well as in several productions with the Cohasset players. His characterization of Cratchit is open and endearing.

Tenaciously, Cratchit sits at his ledger, recording sums, while Scrooge lectures him for spending an extra shilling for unauthorized candles and coal.

"Use daylight," Scrooge admonishes him. "It's cheaper."

The mood changes rapidly when Scrooge returns to his home that evening and is visited by the ghost of his long-dead business associate, Jacob Marley. Here, a note in praise of the set must be interjected.

On a very small stage, Scott Ketcham, set designer and club president, not only evoked the mood of the streets of London, complete with rooftops and aging buildings, but also Scrooge's counting house, stairs leading to Scrooge's home on a platform, and small area below where the visions Christmas Past, Present and Yet To Be, appear and disappear.

With a shift of the lighting, designed by Arthur Paquette, the scenes change.

Dragging his chains behind him, Jacob Marley, played eerilly by Harry Heineman, mounts the steps to Scrooge's quarters and confronts him.

Disbelieving at first, Scrooge declares, "You might be the result of indigestion—a piece of undigested beef, a blob of mustard or a half-cooked potato."

Once convinced, Scrooge is implored by Marley to change his ways so that he might escape the fate that has befallen Marley. Whereupon, the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Yet to Be make their entrance, played by Molly Hochkeppel, Bob Julian and Stephanie Holmes, respectively

A cast of seemingly thousands then appear, as Christmas scene after scene transpire. We see Ebeneezer Scrooge's happy youth, with his sister, Fan, played by Joan Appel; his friend, Dick Wilkins, played by Jim Martin; and his first employer, Old Fezziwig, played with great zest by Carter Hill.

Gerald McNabb played Young Scrooge, credibly changing his character from a wide-eyed youth to a hard-bitten miser, giving up his fiance, Belle, played by Sarah Lualdi, so not to be distracted from his money-making.

Carl Slotnick appeared as Young Marley, equally obsessed with the pursuit of money, while his ghost hovers behind him, repeating every word.

During Christmas Present, we see the Cratchit family, happy in their poverty because of their family love. Andrea Dassori played Mrs. Cratchit, and Susannah Carr, Caroline Struzik and Matthew Kuhn play the Cratchit children. Special mention should go to Kate DeLima for her charming portrayal of Tiny Tim, the Cratchit's loving, crippled son.

A delightful scene takes place during one of the Christmases Yet to Be. Two charwomen, played with impeccable accent and cackling laughs by Alice Duffy and Judy Holmes, enter a pawn shop with the treasures they have stolen from Scrooge's home after his death.

One of them has not only stolen the bed curtains from his deathbed, but also the nightshirt he was about to be buried in.

In the end, however, Scrooge sees the light and reforms his miserly ways, learning to rejoice in life and "keep Christmas well." The play ends with the return of the carolers leading the audience in a round of Christmas songs.

"The Christmas Carol" continues this weekend at Cohasset's Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave. Performances are Friday, Dec. 16 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 17 at 2 p.m. Call 383-9107 for tickets, and bring the kids. They'll love it.

'Scrooge' comes to life at Cohasset Town Hall

Fezziwig, Carter Hill, reacts to his family and friends played by Tamsyn Ellliott, Scott Ketchum, Durfee Betts, Debbie Dormer, Chuck Hoffman, Veronic De Vos, Pat Donovan and Jim Martin.

Scrooge's past comes to life in this Christmas party scene.

Molly Hochkeppel and Ben Duffy (above) playing the Christmas Spirit and Scrooge respectively, look over a Christmas past and actors Fran (Joan Appel) and Young Scrooge (Gerald McNabb).

Derek Holmes, playing Bob Cratchet, and Ben Duffy as Scrooge examine the fiscal books.

Graduating from the Seahawks Youth Hockey instructional last weekend were these enthusiastic players. A full list of players will be published next week. (Bob Marchioni photo)

☐Pat McCarthy and his family are "preening like a bunch of peacocks" over the success of Dave Silk as a Boston Bruin. Dave lived with the McCarthy's this past summer while he awaited the outcome of his hockey career . . . something that they will always remember fondly.

☐From all reports, Godspell was a true work of art, and congratulations are in order for the fine efforts put forth by the cast and crew.

☐Congratulations go to Karen Ekberg, who is a member of the Brown University gymnastics team. Karen was outstanding as a member of the CHS squad and is sure to continue her good work as a member of the Brown team.

☐Dottie McDonald, fifth grade teacher at Deer Hill School, always has nifty ideas! This year's brainstorm of her class corresponding with "adoptive grandparents" at 60 Elm is appreciated by all.

☐As this report is written, Walter Sweeney is embarking for their cross-country trip, this time to stay. Walt and his wife Nanci have decided to make Cohasset their home.

What to do if your phone rolls over and plays dead.

With the Bell System breaking up on January 1, a lot of people have become concerned about how they'll get telephone repair service.

Not to worry. New England Telephone will still be your local phone company. And we'll still maintain and repair phone lines. Just as we always have.

However, New England Telephone will no longer provide home telephone equipment. So we can no longer repair telephones.

Therefore telephone repair service is now being divided into two parts: phones and phone lines.

Understanding the new policy will save you time and money. And give you the service you need when you need it.

How to get your phones fixed.

Just think of your phones the way you think of any other appliance. The company that sells you the appliance generally provides repair service.

So, if you buy phones—whether from AT&T or any of the many companies that now sell phones—check into their repair policies. And make sure you get a good service warranty.

If you bought your phone from New England Telephone, it will be serviced by AT&T after January 1.

If you decide to lease your phones, simply keep the ones we've provided. After January 1, you'll automatically be leasing from AT&T. And they'll maintain them.

The new number to call for phone repair is 1 800 555-8111.

What if the problem is in the line?

After the break-up, New England Telephone will continue to maintain and repair phone lines so you'll continue to get the good service you've always been able to count on.

If your problem is not with your phone, but with your phone line, call us. We'll come out and fix it right away. Free. As we always have.

The number to call for line repair is 1 555-1611.

How can you tell whether it's the phone or the line?

If you're not sure whether the problem is in the phone or in the line, here are some suggestions.

The problem is probably in the phone if the phone is obviously damaged.

Or if you have more than one phone and only one is not working, chances are the problem's in the phone.

But if none of your phones work, the problem is probably in the line.

You can test your phone by unplugging it and trying it at a neighbor's house. Or, if your phone's from AT&T, you can test it at an AT&T PhoneCenter.

It's important to determine whether it's the phone or the line that needs repair. Because, after January 1, if New England Telephone sends a repair person out to fix the line and it turns out the phone is broken, we can't fix it. And we have to charge you for a service call.

It's not as easy as it was. Nor as difficult as you feared.

After the break-up, New England Telephone will maintain and repair phone lines. Whoever provides your phones will be responsible for their repair.

It's that simple.

But if you have any specific questions about the kind of repairs you need or who should provide them, call us at 1 555-1611.

If you have general questions about the changes outlined here, call our toll-free "Let's Talk" number. It's 1 800 555-5000. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Or watch for more detailed information with your bill.

Keeping you informed about all the changes that are taking place is part of our commitment to giving you the best phone service we possibly can.

The Bell System is breaking up, but New England Telephone's got it all together.

The giver and the recipient are the same

By Lois Martin

It is for many, too many really, an annual hassle, not an annual holiday. And for those it lasts too long, costs too much money and evokes more pain than pleasure.

That is the antithesis of emotion behind the theme, the beginning of Christmas. In the birth of the Christ Child and in our emulation of that sacred event, we are to find fresh fulfillment of the value of our own being.

None of us is fooled by the game we play each year. We pick up on the tinsel, we spread it ourselves, we buy beyond our means and we allow the steamroller of the December timetable to intimidate and diminish us.

Yet when I say we aren't fooled by it, I believe it. There is not an adult who does not in brief measure or broad, ask himself or herself to slow down, breathe the crisp air of the season's raison d'etre. We simply seldom do that.

PATCHES

There are essentially two reasons people may not get from Christmas that which they know is their due. For one thing, it's the insipid schedule we adopt and manifest through weariness and overspending.

The more disheartening disappointment annually falls to those who feel no joy in life. Thereby somehow they feel less when the season imposes itself like a gladhearted clown at a wake.

They cast about now and then through that month that moves in a drum roll to Dec. 25 for energy within themselves, some sign of renewed courage for undertaking a joyous participation in a hope they cannot and do not feel.

And the pain of having searched the vacuum again in the year and failing to find once more that hope, that true and pure gift of Christmas, is heartbreaking.

No one delivers it. It's never in today's mail. Obligations to buy for others, to cook for the church fair, to decorate in the spirit of things, they don't bring it.

Unfortunately, it shall always be true that no one is given the gift of the season. It is available in the person alone. It is inside and sometimes buried seemingly beyond retrieval.

I have believed, and I have founded faith on it, that each of us brings nothing more special to this world than ourselves. And a sense of hopelessness in Christmas is paralleled by the sense of valuelessness in oneself.

Such as we are, we are the best, the ones for whom the Child was born. We ought not forget that. We routinely feel inadequate, inferior, unworthy compared to other beings. So then to say that we are special to higher ones seems unimaginable.

There is a song which has a phrase about God's wanting and loving..."even me." The notion that God should be so desperate in his resources as to remember, never mind choose, those of us who feel as wanted and important as a smashed ornament is startling.

It is also the beginning. Anyone who believes in a higher power is likely to say that power loves the people whom He created. Even you. Even me.

I mention this now, a week early by the unwritten calendar for newspapers' Christmas messages, to give us that time, those who are too hurried and those who are too unhappy, to find the true love of the season.

There is nothing more important in Christmas than for you to have appreciation of yourself, and thereby to have hope.

Our failings are easily catalogued. If we don't do that others will rush to assist. Yet most of the time when we think of other people, we think not of their nothing faults but of their strengths.

And that's the least we can do for ourselves...especially for the holidays. The birth of the Christ Child affirmed not only his life but the value of even ours.

Getting to know AT & T

After the Jan. 1 breakup of the Bell System, AT&T Information Systems assumes ownership of all leased Bell System telephone equipment, and will sell and service new and reconditioned equipment to both residence and business customers nationwide.

Residence customers wanting to order telephones, make repair arrangements or ask questions about equipment bills should call toll-free 1-800-555-8111.

Responsibility for home telephones, as well as business phones, transfers to AT&T from New England Telephone on Jan. 1, 1984, when AT&T divests itself of the 22 Bell telephone companies.

Customers who lease equipment for either homes or businesses will have three options after AT&T assumes responsibility for it next year:

They may continue leasing their equipment from AT&T, purchase the equipment they presently lease or purchase new equipment. Customers do not have to take any action now, however, even though responsibility for the phones shifts to AT&T on Jan. 1.

Business customers with leased equipment also have new toll-free numbers to call.

Business customers in the Boston metropolitan area can call 847-1100 for service and sales information. Those in the Arlington local calling area should call 641-2600.

Throughout the remainder of the 617 area code the toll-free numbers to call are:

1-800-233-5001 - Northeastern Massachusetts from the perimeter of Boston to the New Hampshire border;

1-800-233-5006 - Worcester, Fitchburg, Marlboro;

1-800-233-5003 - Southeastern Massachusetts, including Cape Cod.

These numbers will connect customers to the new AT&T Business Service and Sales Centers that will serve business customers throughout Eastern Massachusetts, helping them with leasing, installing, and moving their new and old Bell equipment.

The centers are among 79 Business Service and Sales Centers nationwide. They will be staffed by experienced customer service representatives transferred from New England Telephone.

AT&T says every effort is being made to transfer responsibility for customer service with as little disruption to home and business customers as possible. The move will be integrated into what AT&T terms its "Circle of Service" structure, which links the new service and sales organization with a network of skilled service professionals.

All business and residential customers will receive a brochure in the mail explaining how to do business with AT&T.

Customer bills for leased phones will be issued by New England Telephone until AT&T begins direct billing itself in March, 1985. Bills issued by New England Telephone will list the equipment charges separately from other telephone company charges.

Obituaries

Peter Flynn Jr.

Peter L. Flynn, Jr., 62, of Cohasset, retired owner and operator of a women's clothing store in Boston, died at home Friday after suffering from multiple sclerosis for 30 years.

Born in Everett, he graduated from Belmont High and Holy Cross College in 1942.

In 1965 he took over his father's Tremont Street clothing business, the Peter L. Flynn Company, operating it until it closed in the 1970s.

He was a director of Central Cooperative Bank of Boston for 35 years.

A World War II veteran, he was a lieutenant in the Navy Supply Corps and served on a Naval hospital ship in the Aleutian Islands.

He leaves his wife, Dorothy M. (Quilty) Flynn; a daughter, Doreen Trahon of West Hartford, Conn.; a son, Peter L. Flynn III of Boston; his mother, Gertrude Flynn of Belmont; two sisters, Dorothy Hurley of Hyannis, and Helen Donohue of Belmont; and one grandchild.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, Heart Fund or Cancer Research.

Mary Kelakos-Haberstroh

Mary Eleanor Kelakos-Haberstroh, 62, formerly of Cohasset, died Thursday at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after a brief illness.

Born in Richmond, Va., she had lived in Cohasset for almost 20 years before moving to Scituate four years ago.

She was a graduate of St. Catherine's School and Sweet Briar College, both in Virginia.

She was a member of the Cohasset Garden Club, a former Cub Scout den mother, and an active member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Cohasset.

She leaves three sons, Frederick Haberstroh of Bedford, N.H.; Charles W.K. Haberstroh of Short Hills, N.J. and George M.K. Haberstroh of Cohasset, and five grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was held Dec. 11 in St. Stephen's Church, Cohasset. Burial will be conducted at a later date in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va.

Fortunato 'Charles' Caristi

Fortunato "Charles" F. Caristi, 79, of Scituate, a retired hardware dealer, died Friday at South Shore Hospital.

Born in South Boston, he was the former owner of a hardware store in Boston.

He leaves his wife, Julia (Welch) Caristi; a son, Robert F. Caristi of Wakefield; and six grandchildren. He was also the father of the late Dr. Richard J. Caristi of Cohasset.

A memorial service will be conducted at 1 p.m. Saturday in First Parish Church.

Donations may be made to First Parish Church, 23 North Main St., Scituate.

Democratic delegate conference planned

A workshop to inform party members and others about the delegate selection process for the 1984 Democratic National Convention is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 17 at 1:30 p.m. at Plymouth-Carver High School, Obery St., Plymouth.

The workshop has been organized by the Affirmative Action and Outreach Committee of the Democratic State Committee and will be chaired by Democratic State Committeewoman Mary Anne Grafton-Rogers of Osterville.

Also participating on the panel will be: Stephen Ford of Congressman Gerry E. Studds' staff and Richard C. Driscoll, Chairman of the Democratic Party's Judicial Council.

State Committee members Margaret D. Xifaras, Richard Kendall, Sylvester Sylvia, Norma Fenochietti and Dorothy O'Donnell are also expected to attend to answer questions.

The workshop is designed to explain the delegate selection process and how party members can be involved with a particular emphasis on affirmative action and outreach. Other party activities will also be discussed briefly.

The workshop is free. Any questions may be directed to the State Committee offices at 367-4760.

Jim Hassan traverses Appalachian trail

By Cindi Bondi

When Cohasset's Jim Hassan decided to hike the Appalachian Trail of 2,138 miles for Project Bread he didn't anticipate a complete change of lifestyle when he returned.

First and foremost Jim was determined "To create a world conducive to health at home. I used to sit at a desk all day, as a purchasing agent. After being outdoors for five months I could not stay inside all the time."

Jim started carpentry work, for the first time two days after he finished the trail, Sept. 28.

He is an outdoorsman at heart. "My friends took me climbing with them to New Hampshire to climb three years ago and I went to the mountains every weekend since."

The peaceful mountain atmosphere gave Jim time for personal growth. He wanted to conquer the Appalachian Trail to achieve a personal goal but "working for other people made my trip more than a personal thing."

Jim found financial pledges for Project Bread for every mile he hiked. He accumulated $2,000 in pledges for Project Bread and has received $800 to date.

Jim said, "The world today can be depressing with a deteriorating global ecology and peace for global society not close at hand. Walking to decrease world hunger helped satisfy my feeling about the state of the world."

Supporting Project Bread may have personally motivated Jim but he was not the only one who recognized his accomplishment.

He was honored by Governor Michael Dukakis at the State House with a state proclamation to praise his outstanding achievement.

Jim's motivation of walking to raise money for hungry people is shared by his friend Eric Watkins, also of Cohasset.

"There were no second thoughts for Eric. I mentioned to him that I had contacted Project Bread and was going to do the walk. He spontaneously answered that he was going to come." said Jim.

Originally Eric inspired Jim to hike and climb mountains. They had mountaineered together before but never such a challenging distance.

"I'm glad Eric was there to offer support. You are bound to be tired and sore when you are walking 20 miles a day," said Jim.

Jim and Eric began at Springer Mountain in Georgia, April 20 and completed the trail at Katahdin, Sept. 28.

Katahdin means great mountain in Indian so it would be improper to add mountain before or after the name, Jim said.

Although they enjoyed the peace and tranquility of the mountains they were not lonely. One thousand people start on the trail every year yet only 10 per cent finish.

There was a communication system along the trail.

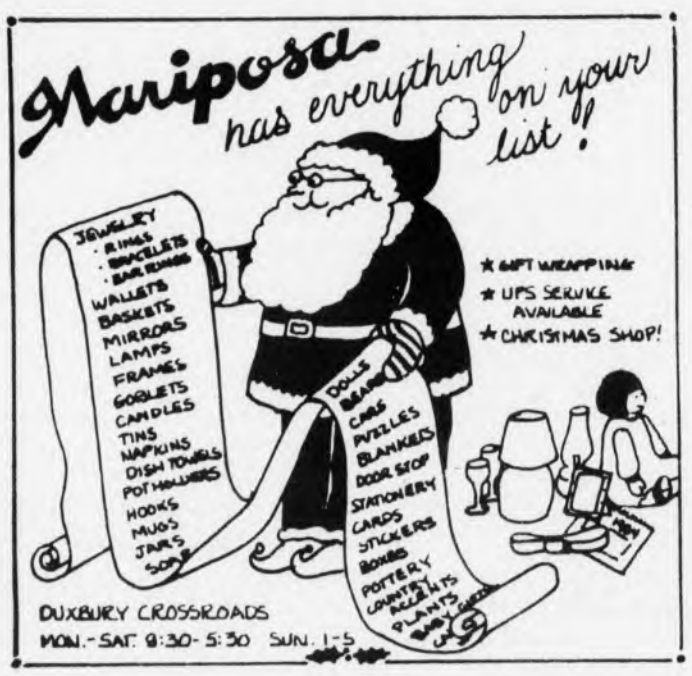
Jim explained, sometimes the same people that catch up to you later pass you and then you may later pass them. Hikers pass a shelter at least once a day and record in a register their thoughts or tips about upcoming towns off the trail.

The trail is set up so hikers reach a crossing which leads them to a town on a weekly basis. Sometimes Jim and Eric would buy food in town but they had to contend with a limited budget.

Their best planning strategy was to mail packages of instant oatmeal, granola, canned fish and packaged noodles to different post offices.

Jim Hassan

The rest of their survival skills came from common sense. "I started with a back pack of 65 pounds. After a few days of 90 degree heat and swollen achilles tendons I mailed my camera home and dropped some unnecessary things," said Jim.



The Project Bread pacers were on a schedule to cover 20 miles per day. "Otherwise the gates of Katahdin would be closed if we got there after the end of Sept. We were not ready to quit after we had gone 2,100 miles," said Jim.

After completing an exhausting endurance test, usually a person is not anxious to do it again.

Jim said he would like to hit the trail again but the next time he would spend more time in what he calls his favorite spots. He would leave at a time of year which would allow him plenty of time to hike and to relax.

Currently Jim planned to go to Florida to teach Kung Fu, a Chinese martial art. He started practicing Kung Fu 11 years ago because he was not interested in team sports.

After he travels to Florida, Jim isn't sure what he will do but for now he is reading while he awaits his recent broken leg injury to heal. He sustained the injury while working on a carpentry project.

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping... the flower-strewn meadows... and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000

Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street one mile to our entrance on the left. Call (617) 740-1500.

CHS sports report for the week . . .

By Carla Lucas and Tracy Fitzpatrick

WRESTLING

This year's wrestling team will be headed by Coach Torin Sweeney. Although new to the Cohasset coaching staff, he has had past coaching experience in teaching through a summer recreational wrestling program.

This program along with five years of wrestling during high school has given him respect and has developed a good relationship with the athletes. Torin feels that this is very important.

Although the wrestling team didn't win a match last year, Torin believes that this season looks very promising.

He is thankful for no injuries, and feels he has a lot of talent and depth in the middle weights which should help in accomplishing a .500 record.

Coach Sweeney also is very proud of captains Lee Reed and Ricky Rourke who should do very well this year and help Cohasset out tremendously.

Since this year's team is young and inexperienced, most of his players are in the learning stages.

Compared to other towns Cohasset is small and with not much depth, but Torin feels that Cohasset should be very competitive.

December 28 CHS will have their first match in the Christmas Tournament at Norwell which will include other towns from the South Shore.

Along with captains Lee Reed and Ricky Rourke, (who are both expected to do very well in the tournament) are captain Billy Seargent, John, Glen, Paul, and Chris Froio, Chris Laugelle, Kevin Keller, Chris Barrett, Brian Leary, Jim Staunton.

HOCKEY

The Cohasset hockey team for the past two years has had super teams. But after losing 20 seniors within those two years their power has diminished a little.

Yet Jackie Bowen, this year's new coach, still remains cautiously optimistic.

With basically a young team, Coach Bowen is hopeful, but he acknowledged the competition will be tough.

Coach Bowen helped out the team last year and has coached most of the players for many years when they were younger. This has helped him to know the players and what their capabilities are.

He believes his weakest point is in goal where the inexperience shows through.

Yet, coach Bowen feels his strongest point is in the defense with seniors Tim Curan and David Ormiston and sophomore Kevin Quilty.

On the front line are senior Lee Wilson (who missed last year because of knee injury), senior John Drago (who also missed last year due to a dislocated knee) and senior Joe Hoggman. These will be key players in the Skippers offense.

Other important factors of this year's team are Alex Ghetto (a transfer from Taber), Perry Harris, and Kevin Leary, all who will play on the second line.

Danny Curan (who broke his wrist in football), Troy Chatterton (injured in football), and Jeff O'Neil (transfer) will be missed.

Yet, in spite of these absences the slack will be taken up by the rest of the Skipper's team in hopes of a winning season.

GYMNASTICS

After doing very well last year, the gymnastics team is looking for a .500 record this year. Last year, they came in second in their league with a 7-1 record, losing only to Hanover.

Like Bibles and dictionaries, a cookbook never cracks the best-seller lists the way a new novel does. However, our church and women's groups are finding out that publishing their own collection of recipes can prove a gold mine that never runs out of gold. Some cookbooks, like the Marshfield Newcomer's "Delectable Collectibles" and "Cohasset Entertains" by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset, are in their second printing. One that is certain to endure is the new cookbook entitled "St. Andrew's Cooperative Cook Book," containing favorites of the members and friends of the Hanover church. There are 206 pages between the plastic covers which features a sketch of the imposing old church which dominates Hanover Four Corners and sprinkled throughout is Dawn Howard's art work. Myrna Mackie, the minister's wife, did all the typing before proofreaders, collators and printers took over the work that began this spring, to end in a big flurry before the book made its deput at the annual church fair. When you see the results, I'm sure you'll agree they have their own little gold mine. Consider Helena Alexander's

ENGLISH CHRISTMAS CAKE

3/4 lb. butter
1 lb. each brown sugar and dates
2 lb. each currants and raisins
10 eggs
1/4 lb. each walnuts and almonds
1/2 c. molasses
1/2 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. each allspice, mace and mixed spice
1 tsp. vanilla
3/4 tsp. soda
5 c. flour
3/4 to 1 c. Brandy

Brandy may be mixed with other ingredients, or poured over cake when baked. Bake in very slow oven3 or 4 hours.

As always, when asked to review a new effort, I'm faced with the dilemma of choosing from an impressive array of New England cooking habits, a few that I find outstanding. For instance, where else would you find Lynne Lindblom's "Sardine Bouillabaise," Barbara Keene's "Baked Beans with Brandy," Alfred Woodside's "Low Cholesterol Baked Beans," Nellie Mitchell's "Seven Seas Casserole," Claire Howard's "Cheeseburger Pie," John Damon's "Spaghetti Pie?" Also, great for the holidays would be Louise Muzrall's "Mince Bars," Karen Diauto's "Cranberry Ring" and Isabel Titus'

EGG NOG PIE

Soak: 1 T gelatin in 1/4 c. cold water
Cook in top of double boiler:
4 egg yolks
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. hot water.

Mix in gelatin that has been soaked in water. Let cool and then add 3 T of rum. take beaten egg whites, add 1/2 c. of sugar and add to cooled first mixture. Pour in cooked pie shell and refrigerate.

Ever since Julia Child dropped her first pot on television, men and women alike have taken to cooking with gusto. In this new book, a number of men contributed recipes, including the minister, the Rev. Bob Mackie, who writes of his chicken dish: "Nearly 20 years ago...I happened to call on a family named Goodfellow. Turns out that the mother, Barbara, was so good a cook that at the request of friends and family, she'd single-handedly put together three volumes of recipes, entitled "Make It Now — Bake It Later." The following recipe of Mrs. Goodfellow's always makes me smile nostalgically: remember the days when chipped beef was sold in bulk at the butcher's?" Here is the recipe of which he speaks and called simply

PARTY CHICKEN

4 good-sized chicken breasts, boned, skinned and halved
8 slices bacon
8 oz. (or so) chipped beef (packaged, not jarred, is best, we find)
1 can undiluted cream of mushroom soup
1/2 pint sour cream

Roll each flattened chicken breast and wrap slices of bacon around each. Cover bottom of greased baking dish (about 8" x 12") with chipped beef. Arrange rolled, wrapped breasts on chipped beef. Mix soup and sour cream well and pour over all. Refrigerate until ready to bake, or place right away in 275 degree oven for 3 hours, uncovered. "Serves 8 polite people, 4 who don't care who knows!"

So, there you are with what I think is a welcome addition to your Christmas gift list, or a little present to put under the tree for yourself. Call the church office in Hanover for your copy.

With holiday parties and sumptuous foods tempting us this month, we should declare a moratorium on calorie counting. A prominent New York couple has a pleasant custom of inviting friends in for dessert and coffee during each holiday season and their guests prepare well in advance by boycotting desserts once the invitations arrive to store up a backlog of calories to be used up at the party. Along with coffee and champagne they know they will be faced with a feast of such delights as lemon roulade, bourbon and brown sugar cake, chocolate mousse cake and Barbara Thomas's

OATMEAL COOKIE CAKE

1/2 c. water
1 c. oatmeal
1/2 c. shortening
1 c. brown sugar
2 eggs
1 c. granulated sugar
1½ c. flour
1/2 tsp. each nutmeg and salt
3/4 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. each baking soda and vanilla
1 c. raisins

1. Bring water to a boil and add oatmeal. Set aside to cool.
2. Cream shortening with brown sugar. Add next six ingredients.
3. Stir baking soda into cooled oatmeal and add to batter. Stir in raisins and vanilla.
4. Bake at 350 degrees in greased 9x13" pan for 30 min. Pour frosting over warm cake.

The frosting:
3/4 stick of butter
2 T milk
1½ c. brown sugar
1 c. coconut

1. Melt butter. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boil, stirring constantly.
2. Pour over warm cake and place under broiler until bubbly, two to three min. Cake may be frozen. Defrost to serve. Yield: 35 1½" squares.

Bell settlement urged by board

The Advisory Board voted to recommend Special Town Meeting approve a settlement of $47,430 to Lowry Bell Jr. and Diana Bell so the civil rights lawsuit against the town will be dropped.

Bell, of Gammons Road, filed a $500,000 federal suit in 1981 charging town officials had unfairly refused to issue him a permit to build a tennis court. The settlement was reached in November by Bell and town attorneys.

Bell received a building permit to build a tennis court in 1980. He later applied to build a fence and enlarge the playing area.

The building inspector refused to amend the permit. The issue centered around whether a fence was considered a building. If it was considered a building, it would require a setback from the property line. If the fence was considered a structure, it would require no setback.

The Zoning Board of Appeals rejected Bell's application. He then went to Norfolk Superior Court where a judge ruled a fenced court could be built under the zoning bylaw. The state appeals court upheld the lower court ruling.

Littering bylaw amendments suggested

The Advisory Board suggested recently selectmen modify a proposed amendment to the town bylaws concerning fines for littering.

The board suggested fines for littering should be the same, whether the littering is done on town-owned or private property. Board members also said the selectmen's proposed penalty of $300 was too high.

Board member Jackie Dormitzer said she didn't think a fine of $300 was a fair penalty for dropping a candy wrapper on the ground. "You're going to have trouble enforcing it," she said.

The advisory board also recommended selectmen ask special town meeting to appropriate $500 for signs. The board and McArthur agreed that littering laws are not enforced.

"I just don't see enforcement of the beach, (area)" board member Paul Neelon said. "I still see the broken bottles all over the place."

"The key here is implementation," board member Tom Burke added.

Members also said there weren't enough trash cans around town.

McArthur said the board will discuss the article and return to the advisory board.

Coach Andrea Palardy said, "This year should be interesting."

Losing one girl to graduation, two to other schools, and two others who have competed in the past but will not this year, the team is composed of mainly beginners.

"They are a good group of kids," says Coach Palardy, "and they are going to need a lot of training."

"One girl to watch this year will be Suzy McManon, who should help the team tremendously," said Coach Palardy.

Members of this year's team are: Katee Duffy, Suzy McManon, Marybeth McNamera, Marlisa Clapp, Colleen Geary, Cindy Dormer, Amy Hobbs, Jenny Long, Holly Ludlow, Celia Mullen, Julie Bowdoin, Julie Nusdorffer, Erica Ford, Heather Doherty, Becky McCarthy, and Jill Bradley.

Boys and girls basketball will be previewed next week.

Dog complaint

Dog Officer Richard Yocum and selectmen told Helen Madge that if she did not keep her dog tied up, the dog would be taken him out of town.

Yocum said he saw the dog wandering off of the Madge property after the complaint was filed.

Selectman Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said the town has very explicit by-laws which say dogs cannot wander off the owner's property."

Important auto insurance alterations for 1983

This is a follow-up to last week's story of important auto insurance changes for 1984. This report was written by the Independent Insurance Agents of Massachusetts.

The enclosed report outlines a number of important changes in automobile insurance that go into effect on all policies written on or after Jan. 1.

These changes (key among them an increase of the standard deductible to $300 and the institution of a Safe Driver Insurance Plan) are the most significant to take place in car insurance in nearly a decade.

The Commonwealth's estimated four million motorists will be directly affected by the provisions of this new law.

Although auto insurance policies are now staggered (renewed throughout the year), the majority of auto insurance renewals are still issued in January. This is a carryover from previous years when all auto policies used to be written to expire Dec. 31.

Effective Jan. 1, 1984, all members of a household who drive your automobile must be listed as operators on your policy.

Failure to list inexperienced drivers or drivers who would subject the policy to increased premiums under the Safe Driver Insurance will result in a denial of payment for a collision claim if that person is operating the car at the time of an accident.

Availability of Coverage

An insurance company has the authority to refuse to offer fire and theft and comprehensive coverages to any individual who has had two or more total fire or theft claims within the most recent three year period; collision coverage to any individual who has been determined to be more than 50 percent at falut in four or more accidents within the most recent three (3) year period; collision, fire and theft and comprehensive coverages to any individual who has been convicted of vehicular homicide, insurance related fraud or automobile theft, or who has made an intentional and material misrepresentation in making a claim under these coverages within the most recent five (5) year period.

Cancellation

An insurance company can cancel the collision, fire and theft or comprehensive portions of a policy at any time during the policy term, based on the conditions outlined.

Deductible

The standard deductible is increased to $300 (up from $200). Lower deductibles of $100 and $200 are available at the discretion of the insurance company. After the payment of a total fire or theft claim, however, an insurance company may impose a higher comprehensive deductible. This new deductible could equal 10 percent of the actual cash value of a replacement vehicle (but not less than $300), or the company could instead require that you install an approved anti-theft device in your car.

Suspension of Fire and Theft Coverage

After a total fire or theft loss of an automobile, an insurance company can suspend fire and theft coverage on any replacement vehicle if you do not make this replacement vehicle available for inspection by 5 p.m. of the second Registry business day after acquiring this replacement vehicle.

Safe Driver Insurance Plan

The merit rating system has been repealed and is replaced by a Safe Driver Insurance Plan (SDIP). The SDIP is a mechanism whereby drivers with bad driving records will pay higher insurance premiums. Drivers with good driving records will earn a premium credit.

You are eligible for a safe driver premium credit on your policy if you meet all of the following conditions:

No operator listed on your policy has received unsafe driver points within the past three years from the effective date of the policy;

Principal operator has more than three years of driving experience;

One operator listed on your policy has a valid Massachusetts driver's license.

Unsafe Driver Points

Unsafe Driver Points will be assigned for at fault accidents and convictions of moving traffic violations that have occurred within the past three years from the effective date of the policy.

Comprehensive Unsafe Driver Points will also be assigned, based on excessive insurance claims filed within the past three years from the effective date of the policy. Comprehensive claims paid prior to January 1, 1984 will not be included in determining Comprehensive Unsafe Driver Points.

How the SDIP Works

Each Unsafe Driver Point will be assigned a dollar value by the Insurance Commissioner. The exact number of points for each offense will vary according to the nature and seriousness of the incident. In most cases, these points will be reduced over a period of one to three years, provided that licensed operators do not receive additional points within this time.

Minor at fault accidents (involving a $200-$500 claim payment above your deductible for collision or property damage) —two points.

Major at fault accidents (involving a claim payment for more than $500 above your deductible for collision or property damage) —three points.

Major traffic violations (driving under the influence, driving to endanger, vehicular homicide) —four points.

Minor traffic violations (such as speeding tickets, etc.) —one point.

Consumer news issued by Board of Health

The Division of Food and Drug of the Department of Public Health has printed their first issue of "Food and Drug Reporter." The newsletter provides technical information and updates on food-related issues which may be of interest to consumers.

The Board of Health will pass on this information as we receive it (Four times per year).

Following is information received regarding low-temperature dishwashers, reuse and re-service of foods, and PCB's in bluefish.

For any further questions, please do not hesitate to call the Board of Health at 383-1664.

Low-Temp Dishwashers

The Division of Food and Drugs receives many inquiries regarding the use of low-temperature, automatic sanitizer injector dishwashing machines.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts regulations allow for alaternative methods of sanitizing utensils other than hot water at 180 degrees F. in spray-type dishwashing machines, provided that effective sanitation takes place. The only types of dishwashers accepted for chemical sanitization are National Sanitation Foundation (NSF) approved retrofit machines and NSF approved new units.

Several operational parameters must be adhered to during use of the machines. While dishwasher manufacturers may state that the washing cycle can operate at 120 degrees F., it is the Department's policy to require the current 140 degree F. washing temperature. Chlorine is the only acceptable chemical sanitizer and it must be automaticallay injected or dispensed into the sanitizer rinse solution. The minimum concentration is 50 ppm and the temperature can not be less than 75 degrees F.

The utensils and equipment must be exposed to the final chlorine sanitizing rinse in accordance with the manufacturer's specifications for time. To insure bactericidal action by the chlorine, the pH of the sanitizing solution must be kept at 8 or less. A test kit or other device that accurately measures the parts per million concentration of the chlorine solution must be available and used.

Proper dishwashing is of little or no value if dishes and utensils are not handled and stored in a sanitary manner after the washing process. All too often, the dishwasher operator has other tasks to perform, such as the scraping of plates, garbage and refuse disposal and raw material container handling. The performance of any such tasks by the operator requires that she/he properly wash their hands before handling any clean equipment or tableware. This is an important area for sanitarians to investigate.

REUSE AND RE-SERVICE OF FOODS

The Food and Drug Division receives many complaints and inquiries concerning the reuse and re-service of food returned from customer tables in food service establishments.

The reuse or re-servicing of any food is a key public health issue. This practice is considered a critical violation by the Division of Food and Drugs, Massachusetts Department of Public Health and by the FDA's Food Protection Branch.

Massachusetts Department of Public Health Regulations says that individual portions of food once served to the customer shall not be served again; provided, that wrapped food which has not been unwrapped and which is wholesome may be re-served. The FDA 1976 Food Service Sanitation Manual entitled "Re-service," in similar language states that once served to a customer, portions of leftover food shall not be re-served again except that packaged food, other than potentially hazardous food, that is still packaged and is still in sound condition, may be re-served.

The public health rationale for the non re-service and non-reuse of exposed foods lies in the contention they are susceptible to innoculation by coughing, sneezing, handling and cross contamination. Any compromise in sanitary procedures during this phase of food handling and serving negates all other efforts towards providing quality products that are both aesthetically pleasing and safe for human consumption.

Reuse of unwrapped, table served foods as ingredients for other products or for cooking purposes is also not an allowable practice. The two food items that are most frequently violated in this practice are breads and rolls either being re-served or converted into bread crumbs, and butter either being re-served or saved for cooking purposes.

Butter is definitely a potentially hazardous food and several food outbreaks on a national level have been attributed to it. Detailed investigations by health officials have indicated many of the outbreaks resulted from contamination, poor handling and poor temperature practices in food service settings. Staphylococcal enterotoxin was the prevalent cause of these butter associated illnesses. The heat resistance of staph enterotoxin has been well documented.

Ordinary cooking, spray drying and pasteurization will not inactivate the enterotoxin. This characteristic indicates the continuing need for ongoing education and surveillance in propery handling, in preparation and in temperature controlled storage of potentially hazardous foods.

PCB's IN BLUEFISH

Recent media attention has raised public concern and confusion about polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB's) in the edible portions of bluefish and striped bass. Members of the public have made many calls to state and federal Food and Drug offices, and to local Boards of Health, to express their concern and to seek information.

PCB's are odorless, nearly inert, moderately toxic compounds which were widely used for a variety of industrial purposes until their use was banned by EPA because of environmental contamination. PCB's are extremely soluble in fat; this is the reason they are found at relatively high levels in fatty fish, such as striped bass and bluefish.

Levels are elevated in alewives as well, another fatty fish, which is rarely used for human food. Low fat fish such as cod, haddock, hake, pollock and flat fish have almost no PCB's in edible tissues.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health and Division of Marine Fisheries have been concerned about and researching levels of PCB's in Massachusetts-caught fish for a number of years. During 1977-1979 forty-nine bluefish caught in Massachusetts waters were analyzed. All but one of the blues tested had a PCB content below 5 ppm, the official FDA tolerance level.

The average PCB content of Massachusetts bluefish was 1.35 ppm, median 0.7 ppm. Thirty-four striped bass were analyzed at the same time, their average PCB content was 0.56 ppm, (median 0.4 ppm).

The original tolerance set by FDA for PCB content in food was 5 ppm. In 1979, due to new evidence of reproductive toxicity and carcinogenic potential, FDA promulgated a lowered tolerance of 2 ppm. Though FDA staff continue to believe 2 ppm is the appropriate tolerance level, the lowered standard has been prevented from taking effect by industry appeals.

Since the average PCB content of Massachusetts-caught bluefish and striped bass in the 1977-79 study was less than the 2 ppm tolerance proposed by FDA, Massachusetts has not issued the sort of health advisories regarding consumption as were issued in New Jersey and New York.

The following cooking guidelines will lessen PCB exposure from eating bluefish. Remove the skin and cut out fatty parts before cooking. In the case of the bluefish, the fatty parts are the dark meat, skin, and bellyflap. Broiling or grilling allows the fat to drip out of the meat.

During September and October the Massachusetts Division of Food and Drugs, State Laboratory Institute and Division of Marine Fisheries collaborated to analyze approximately 50 bluefish caught in Massachusetts waters to determine PCB content. Source areas were selected to be representative of coastal conditions. Decisions on health advisories relative to limiting bluefish consumption will be made after all testing is completed.

CHRISTMAS VACATION PROGRAMS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer a structured, supervised recreation program at the Deer Hill School gym Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Dec. 27, 28, and Dec. 29.

The programs will meet at the following times for the following grades: 9 to 11 a.m., Grades K-1; 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Grades 2-3, and 1 to 3 p.m., Grades 4-6.

Supervision and organization will be provided by two Recreation Department staff members. The programs will consist of low-organized games, group activities and team sports.

All children must wear sneakers, and be dropped-off and picked-up at the appropriate times. The programs are free and limited to Cohasset residents only.

PATS' PEAK SKI TRIP

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer, because of the great success of the first trip, another Ski Trip to Pats' Peak, N.H., Monday, Jan. 16, 1984 (the Martin Luther King holiday).

Registrations for this trip will be held at the Town Hall Thursday, Jan. 5, from 2 to 4 p.m., and from 6 to 7:30 p.m., that evening only. There will be no other opportunity to sign-up for this trip.

The fee will be $21 per person, payable by check to the Town of Cohasset. The fee includes motor coach transportation, and an all-day lift ticket. The bus will leave from the Town Hall at 6:30 a.m. and return at 6:30 p.m.

For those people who need rentals, the cost will be $9.50 payable at Pats' Peak in cash. Those who are interested in taking a ski lesson should pay the $4.50 in cash at Pats' Peak.

MITES

Mark Salvador's Mite A team registered a shutout against Pembroke Thursday night. Goals were scored by Scott Peacock, unassisted, and Allison Salvador scored assisted by Joey Andrade. An outstanding job was played by the entire defense as a whole.

The Mite A's scored another victory this weekend against Whitman-Hanson-Kingston. Joey Andrade (two), Scott Peacock and Jason Zimmer scored while Mike Balista (two), Scott Peacock and Allison Salvador were credited with assists. A fine performance was turned in by goalie Guy Scarpeci who made a number of key saves throughout the game to aid the team to a 4-1 win.

JUROR VISITS LAW CLASS

Erla Esposito of Hull Street, shared her experiences as a juror during a highly publicized murder trial with members of Edward Sheehan's law elective course Dec. 5. Esposito, whose daughter Gina is a member of the class, served on the Prendergast murder trial during the summer of 1980.

During her informal talk, students asked her questions about the trial and about the happenings during the month-long period that she sat on the much publicized panel. She said she volunteered for jury duty and that it was the "duty of citizens to serve on juries." She went

MICHAEL BIRMANN PRAISED

"The purpose of this letter is to congratulate you on your fine school and to extend my gratitude to you, your faculty and your staff for giving us such a well educated student as Michael," said Vice Admiral C. Russell Bryan in a letter to Cohasset High School Principal Richard Streeter.

Admiral (Retired) Bryan is president of Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in Glen Cove, New York. He was referring to Michael Birmann, a recent gradute of Cohasset High School. Mike is presently attending Webb Institute.

The tuition-free institution has been listed by one study as "among the top 10 in the country in selectivity of academic quality of entrants."

Admiral Bryan said he knew "The quality of any young person is the combination of many factors." He also said, "However, the secondary school contribution is vital."

In the closing paragraph of his letter, he congratulated Principal Streeter on "your fine school and extend my gratitude to you, your faculty and your staff, for giving us such a well-educated student as Michael."

Highly pleased with Birmann's performance at his school, Bryan added, "If you have any more (students) of that caliber I would be delighted to ask Michael to come back (to Cohasset) and tell them what it is like to learn the art and science of ship design at Webb."

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The physical education major program is as strong as ever this year with 22 students selected as student leaders in physical education classes. Each student is enrolled in his/her physical education class, is assigned another class as student leader, and is responsible for an after-school leadership role as athlete, manager or intramural official. Each student assists with officiating, coaching and equipment management in class and assumes a leadership role.

—Marilyn Watson

A fall reflection is shown through the eyes of these Osgood School students as they cheered for their teammates on "Snappy Sneaker Day."

Nichols College will recruit at CHS

Nichols College admissions counselor William F. Cunning will be recruiting students at Cohasset High School Tuesday, Jan. 24, 1984. Students and parents interested in meeting Cunning should make appointments through their school guidance office.

Nichols, a four-year independent college with about 1,000 students, stresses business and public administration.

Located in Dudley in south central Massachusetts, Nichols fields nine men's and three women's varsity athletic teams which compete in the NCAA Division III and the Massachusetts Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

MICHAEL BIRMANN PRAISED

"The purpose of this letter is to congratulate you on your fine school and to extend my gratitude to you, your faculty and your staff for giving us such a well educated student as Michael," said Vice Admiral C. Russell Bryan in a letter to Cohasset High School Principal Richard Streeter.

Admiral (Retired) Bryan is president of Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in Glen Cove, New York. He was referring to Michael Birmann, a recent gradute of Cohasset High School. Mike is presently attending Webb Institute.

The tuition-free institution has been listed by one study as "among the top 10 in the country in selectivity of academic quality of entrants."

Admiral Bryan said he knew "The quality of any young person is the combination of many factors." He also said, "However, the secondary school contribution is vital."

In the closing paragraph of his letter, he congratulated Principal Streeter on "your fine school and extend my gratitude to you, your faculty and your staff, for giving us such a well-educated student as Michael."

Highly pleased with Birmann's performance at his school, Bryan added, "If you have any more (students) of that caliber I would be delighted to ask Michael to come back (to Cohasset) and tell them what it is like to learn the art and science of ship design at Webb."

—Ed Sheehan

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The physical education major program is as strong as ever this year with 22 students selected as student leaders in physical education classes. Each student is enrolled in his/her physical education class, is assigned another class as student leader, and is responsible for an after-school leadership role as athlete, manager or intramural official. Each student assists with officiating, coaching and equipment management in class and assumes a leadership role.

—Marilyn Watson

A fall reflection is shown through the eyes of these Osgood School students as they cheered for their teammates on "Snappy Sneaker Day."

Nichols College will recruit at CHS

Nichols College admissions counselor William F. Cunning will be recruiting students at Cohasset High School Tuesday, Jan. 24, 1984. Students and parents interested in meeting Cunning should make appointments through their school guidance office.

Nichols, a four-year independent college with about 1,000 students, stresses business and public administration.

Located in Dudley in south central Massachusetts, Nichols fields nine men's and three women's varsity athletic teams which compete in the NCAA Division III and the Massachusetts Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

Cohasset Mariner

vol. VI, no. 11 thursday, december 22, 1983 30 cents

Cohasset's week . . .

Resignation withdrawn

Richard Silva of Beachwood Street has withdrawn his resignation from the Town Government Structure Committee. He will continue on that committee until the expiration of his current term.

Mariner on vacation

This is the final Mariner for 1983.

The staff takes a break next week and will return to publish a Jan. 5, 1984 issue.

This message would be incomplete without this addendum: To all our residents, our fellow businesses, our readers far and wide and as close as next door, Merry Christmas and bountiful blessings in the New Year.

Fire damages home

Fire heavily damaged the home of Jack Golden of 2 Mill Brook Lane Monday afternoon.

No one was hurt as 20 firefighters battled heavy smoke and flames for 3½ hours.

A mailman noticed smoke was coming out of the house and called in the fire. One wing of the house suffered extensive damage.

Fire Chief Martin Dooley estimated the damage at over $30,000. He said a number of antiques in the house were destroyed.

Hull and the Scituate Fire Depts. assisted. Five shift firefighters and six callmen responded.

Dooley said the cause of the fire could be electrical.

The main portion of the living quarters, said Dooley, is "liveable." The Golden family stayed with neighbors Monday night.

Pay increase granted

The School Committee voted 4-1 to approve School Supt Eugene Crowell a six percent pay increase and to extend his contract for a year.

Board member Martha Gjesteby was the lone member to vote against the increase. She said she didn't want the contract extended because she wanted a full evaluation of his performance as well as a meeting which would set goals for the supertintendent.

She wanted the session in open public session and said the session should be a "two-way street and a give and take session" for the superintendent.

The only announcement by the committee concerning the contract Monday night was the contract was in line with the rate of pay increases given to other administrators.

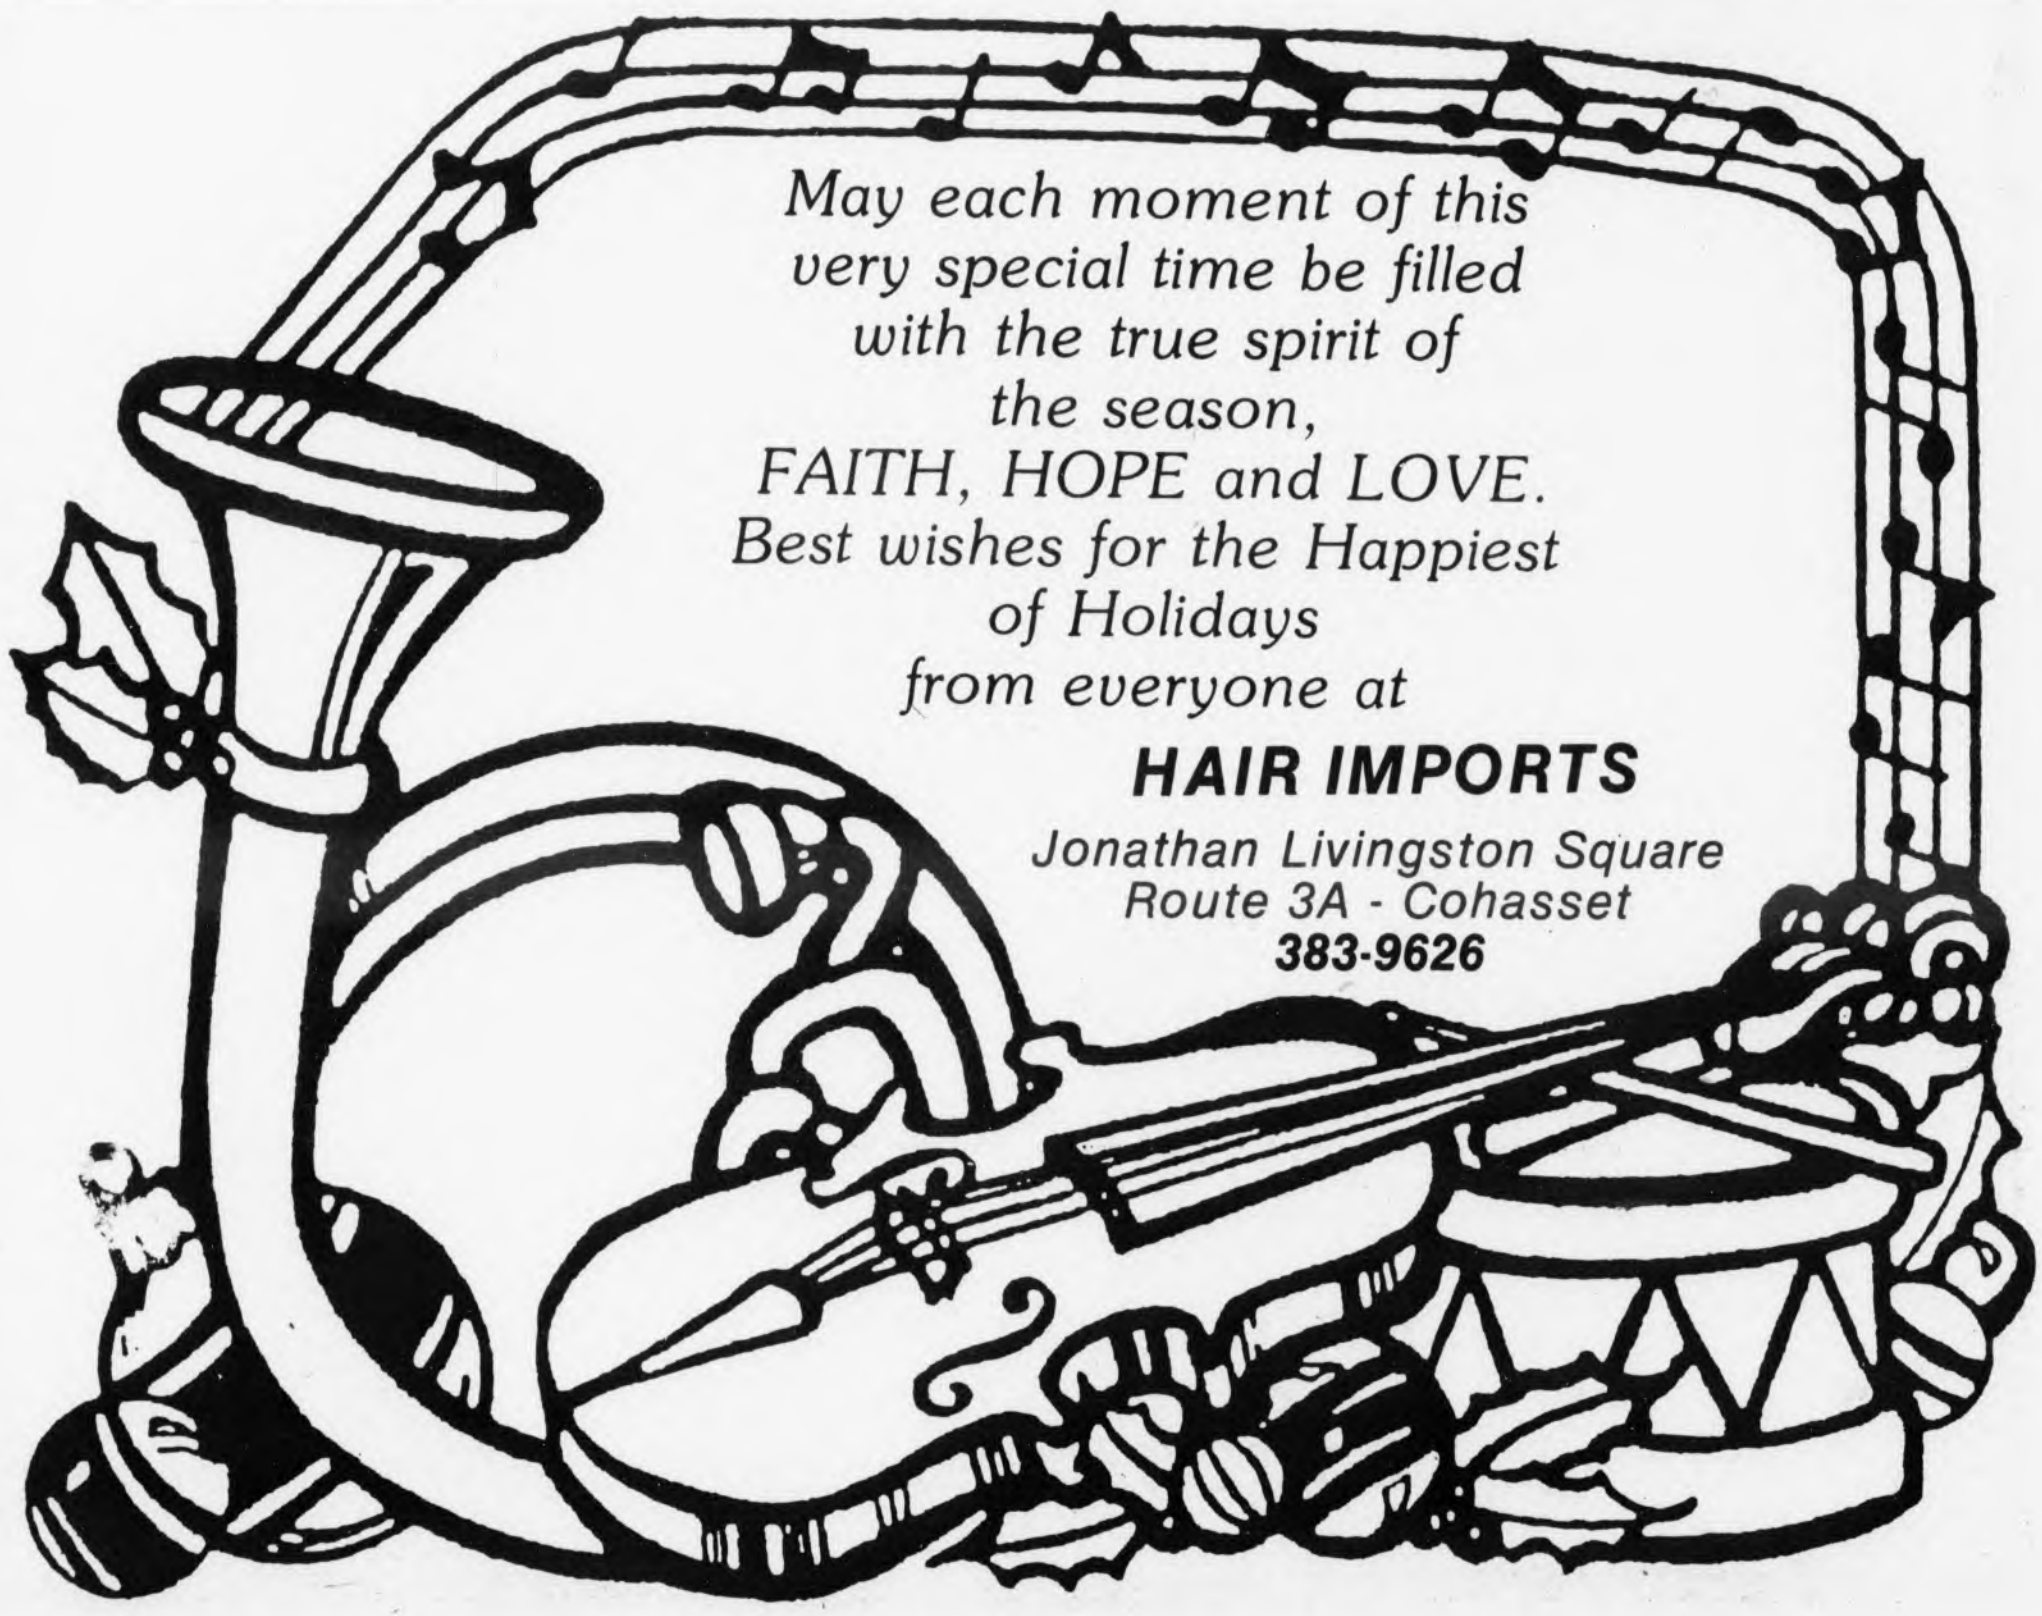
For the year ending Dec. 31, 1982, Supt. Crowell was paid $41, 776.

On the cover . . .

Anybody you know in this photo? Maybe not, but we found them among the charming residents in Cohasset this week who deserved to be featured prominently. Actually, they already have a front spot in the Cohasset Hardware Store. Cindi Bondi spotted them and "shot" them in appreciation of their appeal.

Cable office planned

American Cablesystems have executed a lease on the building at 1 Stagecoach Way adjacent to the drug store. This building will be renovated to accommodate a studio and control/edit rooms in addition to a business office.



A preliminary blueprint has been prepared by their architect. Renovations are scheduled to begin in early January and to be completed in mid-February.

The construction of the "headend" receiving facility in Scituate is essentially complete. Power will be extended to the site with testing and activation beginning in the West end of Scituate.

The Cohasset Cable Advisory Committee hopes to have a draft of the final license ready by late December for Town Counsel Richard Henderson to review. If he approves, the committee hopes to have the license ready for signing by selectmen in mid-January.

Fire Prevention winners

By Capt. Mark Trask
Fire Prevention Officer

During Fire Prevention Week the Cohasset Fire Department conducted a poster/essay contest in the schools and the following awards have been made:

U.S. Savings Bonds: Nicky Terry, Grade 2; Kate Barrett, Grade 3; Peter Sheppard, Grade 4; Jay Gaston, Grade 5; Kerri Anglin, Grade 6, and a special award was made to Colin Knox and Jacob Powell for their effort entitled "Be Careful On Halloween."

Smoke Detectors: Nicole Peterson, Kindergarten; Megan Rhodes, Grade 2, and Ned Thompson, Grade 6..

All entrants should be proud of the fine work they have done on the theme "What Fire Prevention Means to Me." A special thank you to Jack Creamer, Ken Ekberg, and Mike Gill for their organizational efforts.

Donations of the awards were made by Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, ABC Equipment Company, Rockland Trust Company, Emergency Equipment Company, Cohasset Savings Bank, MediMart of Cohasset, South Shore Bank, Cohasset Firefighters Local 2804, Quincy Co-op Bank.

Through this and other efforts throughout the year it is hoped Cohasset residents will become more aware of the ever-present hazards of fire and take steps toward prevention. Have a safe Holiday Season!

Basketball team wins

When Cohasset upset Duxbury 73-72 they chalked up their biggest win since 1979, said coach Ed Minelli.

"Duxbury shot from the floor 62 percent of the time. That is usually not expected from a high school team," said Minelli.

Leadership and action is expected from sophomore guard Tony Bogarty and senior forward David Barcomb.

Barcomb shot a career high of 32 points for a Duxbury game. He made the last two free throws in the last seven seconds of the game to seal the victory.

Sophomore guard Tony Bogarty was rated as one of the best high school basketball players in the United States, as a freshman. He was also named a Boston Globe player of the week.

Three other starting players will return from the varsity last year.

Sophomore James Creed, at 6-5, scored nine points, had 16 rebounds and blocked four shots against Duxbury.

Junior shooting guard David MacDonald "had excellent rebounds and helped control the flow of the game," said Minelli.

Senior guard Peter Caruso "has a good all around game. His role will be mainly defense and rebounding."

Sewer litigation suspended

Selectmen and Sewer Commissioners, in a joint release, said the town and the state have agreed to suspend all pending litigation for six months to allow Ward Engineering Associates to complete a study.

Ward Engineering is scheduled to complete its study in April of 1984.

This means the determination of a decision to fine Cohasset $2,000 a day for failure to build a central sewer plant is also postponed six months.

The agreement was negotiated by Atty. Allan Van Gestel, representing the sewer commission and Anne Rogers, state assistant attorney general.

TO SUE OR NOT TO SUE

THAT IS THE QUESTION

- I didn't show up to the debate. I was afraid!
- I didn't answer or refute any of Somerville Engineering's letters stating that my report was "full of gross inaccuracies, unwarranted assumptions, misinterpretations, half-truths, unsubstantiated charges and is a shoddy document."
- If I don't sue, I must answer Somerville Engineering!
- I can't answer because my report "has a continual problem with selectively taking excerpts out of context from interviews to support preconceived notions."
- If I don't sue or don't answer, I must resign!
- If I take a chance and sue, I know my report is "totally inaccurate", I will lose the suit, then I must resign.

"OH, WHAT A DILEMMA"

- Commissioner Geary stated, "The Inspector General's report is analytically deficient. This deficiency is exacerbated when conclusions are drawn from this faulty analysis and are applied wholesale."
- Cosmo Capobianco stated, "The office of the Inspector General carries with it great power and great responsibility, and if that power is abused, as you have abused it, individual and professional reputations can be ruined beyond repair. If you, Mr. Barresi, continue to stand in silence behind an error-filled report, you are committing an abuse of power just as great as the abuses you were hired to uncover."

Senior pen pals enjoy their Deer Hill friends

By Karen Brown

Dorothy McDonald's fifth grade class at the Deer Hill School finally met their pen pals from the Harborview Apartments at a Christmas party Monday afternoon..

The fifth graders and their pen pals have been corresponding since September.

Students first wrote letters which Mrs. McDonald then corrected and mailed to the senior citizens.

"It has just taken off like you wouldn't believe," said Mrs. McDonald about the success of the idea.

She appreciates the help of Miss Conte, Mary Muncey and Barbara Klain for their help in organizing the party.

Her classroom, decorated "like a dining room at home" hummed with busy fifth graders meeting their pen pals, showing them to their tables and exchanging presents.

Fifth grader Gregory Lennon greeted the guests at the door asking: "Have you found your pen pal?"

"I don't have a pen pal," said one woman, "I thought somebody was left I could sit them them. I made these mittens."

"Now I forget, which one of you has a garden?" asked Karla Kristianson to the guests at her table.

"We have a rock garden," replied a pen pal sitting next to Karla.

"See the Christmas tree?" Ben Dean asked Mary Robinson at another table.

"We didn't know who you were, did we?" Mrs. Weisenfluh said to Richard Morrison at the table in front of the tree.

Doug Drysdale held his present to his ear and shook it.

"It's rattling around in a box," he said.

"Only the people who are in this class are at the party," explained Gregory Lennon. "We're going to sing songs and play the piano. Anything else you'd like to know?" he added.

This is the first year for the pen pal program at the Deer Hill School.

Academics aside, Mrs. McDonald hopes the children learn "caring about other people is important."

"Christmas time," she said, "is the best time to express this caring and sharing."

Students and senior citizens talked about their correspondence in the last four months.

J.P. Figueiredo, in his letters, "described what I looked like" to his pen pal, Alice Kulturides.

"I told her what I liked and she'd make a story about it," he said.

J.P. mentioned in his letter he liked soccer so Mrs. Kulturides wrote a story about a Greek soccer player.

Kristin Martin has two pen pals.

"The teacher thought I was so happy with one that she'd give me another," she said. One of the pen pals, Mrs. Florence Goldberg, attended the party.

"She's very nice," smiled Kristin.

How did Mrs. Goldberg feel?

". . . love her, love her," she said.

Nicole Greco asked her pen pal "what she looked like, how her holidays were . . . if she had any grandchildren."

However, both her pen pals were unable to attend the party "cause they were sick."

Presents opened around the room.

Paul Ford looked over his new Space Shuttle Challenger model kit.

Sara Deveny showed one of her classmates the Christmas bell she received from Mrs. Doyle.

Mary Conway, who sat next to Mrs. Doyle, beamed over her present from Bart Weisenfluh -a red Calligraphic pen.

"I've been waiting to get one," she said, "you know . . . to underline things."

Bart then popped up next to her.

"I'm sorry I took so long," he apologized to Mary Conway, "I had to kiss my grandmother for a picture in the Mariner."

The fifth graders supplied the refreshments, tablecloths, five wreaths and a miniature Christmas tree for the party.

Underneath the tree were letters from the students' pen pals.

Jean Lennon, the "room mother" for Mrs. McDonald's class, helped serve refreshments.

Before the party ended, students gave "a surprise concert" directed by Mr. Maginnis.

"Beautiful, don't they sound lovely? They sound like they belong to a glee club," said Mrs. Kulturides.

For the finale students and pen pals formed a circle around the classroom and sang "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

"I have only one wish," said Mrs. McDonald to the whole group, "that you will go on and become friends with the children for many years to come."

The guests then collected their presents and said their goodbyes.

"I'm happy I met you, though," said Karla Kristianson to her pen pal Priscilla E. Thompson.

"Where'd she go?" asked Doug Drysdale looking for his pen pal Lillian Lincoln.

He introduced Mrs. Lincoln to his mother.

"He talks so much about you," said Mrs. Drysdale.

"I shall enjoy my pen very much," Mary Conway told Bart Weisenfluh.

"Well . . . Bye!" Bart said hugging his pen pal.

Earlier this month Bart wrote in his letter: "Everyone in my class loves to hear from their pen pals including me. I hope you are going to have fun at the party."

Ambulance Committee issues first report

By Bill Hayward

The ambulance study committee has issued their interim report to selectmen.

The report tells what the committee has studied to date and what they plan to do before passing in their final report Feb. 15.

The committee had several specialists speak to them, including John Fields of Cape and Island E.M.S. Inc. (a regionalized service) and Bob Kellie from New England Telephone.

The committe has also received input from four physicians regarding current ambulance service.

The committee has been analyzing data from the various Fire Dept. logs since October.

In their report, the committee asked selectmen for the services of Town Counsel Richard Henderson to review their request for quotes from private ambulance services.

They also requested an opinion from Henderson "regarding the town's liability in dealing with and utilizing a private service contracted with the town."

The committee would like to send letters to area towns and hospitals to determine if they have an interest in regionalized service.

Since the committee does not have a budget, the committee asked selectmen to fund the expense of the mailing which will not exceed fifty dollars.

The committee plans to hold a public meeting. Residents will be invited to report or write to the committee "their ideas on a private service on a contractual basis, an outside private service coordinating with the town, or keeping the current service as it or with suggested changes."

In the last sentence of the report, the committee said "In our review of the above, the committee is ever mindful of optimum methods of response, cost factors, impact on town employees and current and future statutes."

TUESDAY NIGHT

At the committee's Tuesday night meeting the ambulance study committee spoke with Capt. Gurry of the Cohasset Fire Dept. Capt. Gurry is in charge of the ambulance and E.M.T. training.

Capt. Gurry answered many questions regarding E.M.T. training procedures.

When asked what he thought the Fire Dept. needed more than anything, Capt. Gurry replied, "a new ambulance."

He also told the committee "I would like 911 (emergency telephone) service." He added, "I would recommend that highly."

As he was leaving Capt. Gurry said, "In my ten years on the Fire Dept. I've never had one complaint about first aid service."

He then gave the committee a large folder stuffed with thank you notes from people who had been helped by the Fire Dept.

The committee also drafted a letter which will be sent out to 27 south eastern Massachusetts towns and cities and seven area hospitals.

The letter asks if the town or hospital is interested in forming a committee or conference to study the possibility of a regionalized ambulance service.

There are a few more openings for the five week lessons and reservations will be accepted by calling the Recreation Department office at 383-6791. The cost is $41 per person and includes five, 1¾ hour lessons. Equipment rental cost is $6 per time payable at Blue Hills.

The Pats' Peak ski trip will be held Monday, Jan. 16 (Martin Luther King holiday). Registrations will be held Thursday, Jan. 5, at the Recreation office, from 2 to 4 p.m., and 6 to 7:30 p.m. only. The cost is $21 per person. Equipment rental for day is $9.50; lessons are $4.50.

For aerobics classes, call Recreation office to register for lessons: Tuesday evenings, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.; Wednesday mornings, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., and Thursday evenings, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Any one class will cost $15, any two classes, $25, and all three classes will cost $38. Mothers may bring children to Wednesday morning class.

YOUTH BASKETBALL

Currently there are approximately 300 youngsters Grades 2-9 participating in the Youth Basketball League. Basketball will not meet Saturday, Dec. 24 or Dec. 31. Play will resume Saturday, Jan. 7.

OPEN GYM PROGRAMS

The Recreation Dept. appreciates the efforts of Edward Minelli and William Fallon for their supervision of the fall open gym programs at CHS.

BASKETBALL CLINICS

Tom Higgins has just completed a five week Basketball Clinic program, held at the Deer Hill School. Approximately 25 fourth, fifth and sixth graders were given the opportunity to learn and practice fundamental basketball skills.

FRIDAY NIGHT SPECIAL

The Recreation Dept. will conduct another Special Friday Night program at the Town Hall Friday, Jan. 13, at 7 p.m. Details will be coming.

SKI TEAM

Anyone still interested in Downhill Racing should call the Recreation office as soon as possible. Racing will be at Blue Hills, supervised by professional skiers and racers. Details will be available upon registration.

☐David Chittim of 130 Linden Drive has been named president of the Presidents and South Clubs which are part of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

Pioneers, who are both active and retired employees of the telephone industry sponsor many philanthropic projects in southeastern Massachusetts. They gave yarn to the patients at the Parkwell Nursing Home, Hyde Park, who knit hats, scarves and mittens for retarded and blind children.

Pioneers also contributed to the Network of Caring which runs support groups for the terminally ill on Cape Cod, to veterans' homes, schools for retarded and handicapped children and to local hospitals.

They planted grass on Duxbury Beach, built and landscaped Pioneer Park at the Mayflower House Child Care Center, Plymouth, and constructed a ramp for a Pioneer with multiple sclerosis.

Pioneers also donated an electronic voice simulator to the Barnstable County Hospital speech therapy department and a glucometer for measuring blood sugar to the Plymouth Community Nurse Association.

☐John Ayer of Cohasset, a senior at Colby College (Waterville, Maine) has earned distinction as a Julius Seelye Bixler Scholar.

The Bixler scholarship was established by the Colby Parents Association in the honor of Dr. Bixler who retired as president of the college in 1960. It is given to top-ranking students in recognition of their academic achievements.

Ayer, a graduate of Cohasset High, is a government major with a concentration in public policy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Ayer of Bayberry Lane.

☐National Insurance Advisory Services, a privately-owned South Shore insurance consulting service that does not sell insurance, announced year-end results at the company's annual meeting Dec. 19.

President James B. Conant of Cohasset said since 1979, when NIAS was founded, clients have saved in excess of 1.7 million dollars in insurance premium costs without changing or reducing coverage.

Conant also noted that potential liability detected and corrected due to gaps, overlaps and double coverages amounted to an additional $543 million dollars.

"Soft market conditions precipitated by high interest rates have certainly helped," Conant said, "and this trend appears to be continuing in spite of adverse underwriting practices currently prevailing in the corporate, property and casualty marketplace.

Conant and his wife and three children live in Cohasset.

☐Heidi Hublitz, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Uve F. Hublitz of Cohasset, designed the stage set for the Thayer Academy production of "Out Of Our Fathers' House." The play, based on Eve Merriam's book "Growing Up Female in America: Ten Lives," was directed by Michael Walczak, drama department assisted by student director Nancy McLoud, Easton.

☐The two dances held last weekend were grand, according to all reports. While they had a super time dancing at the Linsley's home on Nichols Road, they were thinking of others. All of the proceeds that were realized from the dance went to the Boston Globe Santa's Fund, sure to make other children as happy as our Jr. High students were that night.

☐Ben Kennedy won't be home for Christmas dinner at 41 Stevens Lane this year. Instead, he'll be piloting Mike Fink's keelboat around Tom Sawyer's Island in Disneyworld, Florida. A sophomore at Northeastern University, Ben has been "working" in the Magic Kingdom since September as part of his school coop program.

☐Several Cohassetites are heading to Tennessee next week to cheer for Boston College. Hope that they have a grand trip and that B.C. does them proud. Sorry, Notre Dame fans, I'm biased!

☐Hope that you take the time to look at Cohasset Hardware Store's windows. Tina Watson's talents are plentiful, as can be seen by even a quick peek. Very festive indeed.

☐Finally, to end the 1983 year, would like to wish all readers health and happiness, speedy recoveries to all Mrs. Santa's, whose over-tired bodies will recoup!. Let's be thankful for all that we have: family, friends and love. May you reach your goals in 1984 and may the year be a happy, healthy one.

Cohasset's Inspector General issues public statement

Inspector General Joseph R. Barresi of Cohasset recently announced Attorney General Bellotti has filed suit on behalf of the state against Somerville Engineering, Inc. (SEI) for negligent design, deceit, breach of contract, breach of warranty, negligent misrepresentation and filing false claims with respect to their design of a bridge to replace the existing General Lawrence Bridge in Medford.

The suit seeks to recover at least $2.9 million in damages suffered by the Commonwealth.

In his report on the MDC, Inspector General Barresi had charged that SEI's early designs were so deficient that they would have caused the bridge to collapse within a relatively short time.

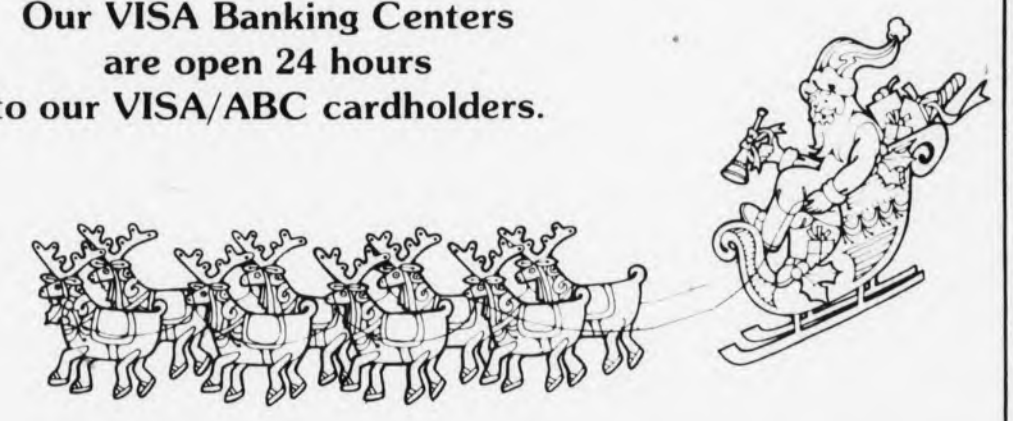
Specifically, the Inspector General's report indicated that the SEI design provided inadequate strength in the bridge foundation; provided for a thickness of concrete in the pile caps which was less than the requirements established by the American Concrete Institute; provided for only one-half the steel reinforcement necessary to support the bridge's superstructure; lacked moving joints at the roadway level necessary for preventing the road from buckling and cracking and miscalculated the soil strength on the embankments which could have resulted in the collapse of the roadway leading to the bridge.

The Attorney General's complaint reveals that the design defects described in the Inspector General's report existed in designs submitted by SEI as 90 percent complete. The complaint further reveals that SEI, under its contract with the MDC, only had 28 days to provide final construction drawings after the MDC returned the 90 percent complete designs.

The Inspector General's Report indicated that SEI only discovered its design defects after the staff designer responsible for the design errors left the company and was replaced by another engineer.

The Attorney General's complaint alleges that SEI never informed the MDC of the design errors and continued to bill the Commonwealth in 1981 and 1982 when SEI was correcting its own errors.

In fact, SEI billings show that SEI continued to bill the MDC for at least 13 months for structural analysis and drafting of bridge plans even after SEI had submitted its 90 percent complete plans which by contract were supposed to be within 28 days of completion.



Inspector General Barresi, noting that Cosmo Capobianco, President of Somerville Engineering, has been publicly critical of the Inspector General's report, concluded that "the bringing of the lawsuit will provide the proper forum for testing the charges made in the Inspector General's report against the defenses claimed by Capobianco."

Christmas wishes

It's time for the annual Mariner Christmas shopping list for town officials and notables who should be recognized for their civic contributions.

To Mary Jane McArthur: a new home, far away from the Fire Station and sewer treatment plant.

To Charlie DeSantis: A Batman-like Utility Belt to enable him to dig, bore or scale anything in order to get the pipe of his dreams.

To Fire Chief Dooley: a call from Mayor-elect Flynn to straighten out the firemen in Boston.

To Harold Litchfield: a new plow that enables his men to plow each street only once, with no potholes left behind, and no overtime to pay.

To Leo Fiori: an Arab from OPEC so that he can lower gas prices and make himself wealthy and his customers happier than ever.

To Brian Wilkin: a telephone that doesn't ring, so that he cannot hear complaints over the new assessments.

To the women at South Shore National Bank: Strings and strings of Christmas tree lights that work!

To Ed Mulvey: a new car that no one recognizes.

To Gene Peterson and Cohasset Country Club golfters: a dry spring.

To selectmen: a year free of grievances.

To Executive Secretary Mark Lanza: an endless supply of BIC pens and a new three-year contract.

To Rocco Laugelle: A relative who is a Fire Consultant.

To Jim Lagrotteria: A fat wallet, thus no more special Town Meetings.

To Bill Montouri: Courses to become legal counsel.

To Joe Kealy: Continued success in his harmony within his department.

To merchants at Cushing Plaza: Continued success in your ventures to make the Plaza a nice place to shop.

To Lowry and Diana Bell: Wishes from all townspeople that their case would be settled without costing the town thousands of dollars.

To Harry Ritter: Several new moorings.

To Richard Yocum: Leashed, barkless dogs.

To Sue McNamara: A costume for school committee meetings around St. Patrick's Day, Easter and E.T.'s birthday.

To Tanna Kasperowicz and Karin Bartow: a fluorescent sweatshirt which says, "I have nothing to do with the Mariner anymore. Don't call me."

To Town Counsel Rich Henderson: A day without Cohasset litigation problems.

To the Planning Board: An alarm clock for 7 a.m. public meetings.

And to all! Good will, good cheer and a prosperous New Year.

Report card update

School Supt. Eugene Crowell reported to the school board no senior high school student suffered because the report cards were late for two weeks.

He also said he will discuss with the Faculty Senate if teachers will be required to write some kind of comment, especially for elementary students.

Administrators also will discuss the possibility of putting the final exam grade before the semester grade.

A firefighter's community standing

Letters

To the Editor:

While going through some old memorabilia, I came across an article in a booklet put out for a Fireman's Ball. With all the present discussions going on regarding the Fire Dept., I found this article quite poignant and hopefully others my find this thought helpful in bringing the attitude of the town regarding the job of our firefighters back into perspective.

WHAT IS A FIREFIGHTER?

A firefighter is the man who lives in the house next door. His children play with your children, his wife goes to school meetings with your wife, his dog fights with your dog. He works odd hours, and doesn't have a lot of time for his family.

The hours he spends at the station are long and tedious and he has another job to try to make up the difference between his income and yours. When the fire horn blows, he must be ready and alert, prepared to save his neighbor's lives and property.

His is a thankless job. We resent him when he extinguishes the pile of burning leaves we worked all afternoon gathering up and hoped to dispose of in a few minutes. After all, "How much smoke can one small pile of leaves make? That's not breaking the law, only bending it a little!"

We resent him because we think he has nothing to do but "sit around the station all day." We ignore the times he stays up all night wetting down a stubborn woods fire or the hours he spends after a fire cleaning up and rolling hose. He has learned not to expect our appreciation.

He is very much aware of the danger he faces. He is accustomed to falling through floors and knows the day may come when a burning timber may trap him. Weighing the risks, he chose to be a firefighter, and in spite of all these things, he wouldn't be anything else.

Support for Ross Rosano

(Here is a letter sent to Katherine Palimeri from a Cohasset resident. Ed.)

Dear Mrs. Palimeri,

I can't believe how petty one can be, Ross Rosano is a fine young man. You should be proud to have him for a neighbor and a member of your community.

Life is not meant to be wonderful and perfect. You have to expect inconveniences. This world would be a boring place if everything was perfect.

Ross is trying to make a living for himself. And for someone as young as he, I think he is doing a damn good job. Why not try to be more constructive with your time.

Instead of complaining to the zoning board, why not volunteer some of your free time to help clean up his junk cars, or help at a commnunity center.

I hope this letter has annoyed you, Mrs. Palimeri, because you have annoyed me.

Happy holidays.

Murray fights for MBTA money

(Here is a letter written to selectmen.)

Dear Board Members:

Chapter 289 of the Acts of 1983, the budget for FY '84-'85 contains $93,261 for reimbursement for the MBTA assessment for Cohasset.

I can assure you that each year I shall continue to fight for MBTA reimbursements for Cohasset. You know how strongly I feel about MBTA assessments on communities who receive no direct MBTA services.

It is my understanding that the Governor and Administration and Finance are not including MBTA reimbursements in their 1985 budget. I will file for the Town of Cohasset for $96,712 for 1985 MBTA reimbursement.

I file legislation each year to rid the town of the MBTA assessment. We formed a caucus several years ago of members of the House whose communities receive no direct services from the MBTA. The money we have been receiving for MBTA reimbursement on the Cherry Street are a direct result of our activities through this caucus.

Mary Jeanette Murray
State Representative

Setting the record straight

To the Editor:

To set the record straight there are three garden clubs in Cohasset. The Amateur Garden Club, the Community Garden Club and the Cohasset Garden Club. All three have very active memberships and work hard on projects to benefit the community.

The Christmas House Tour last week was a perfectly beautiful event planned and put on by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset. This benefit enables their club to landscape the Lothrop House as one of their projects.

I want to congratulate them on this lovely tour as well as let the readers know which garden club deserves the credit.

A short story for Christmas

The last of the Million Dollar Babies

By John Benbow

This is the story of the last of the Million Dollar Babies, and how it was lost and found again — not in the "five and 10-cent store" of the old song, but in a very contemporary place called The World Department Store. The tale begins at noon on the day before Christmas, as the last two dozen of The World's Million Dollar Babies went on sale.

Of course you know about the Million Dollar Babies: the hot item of the Christmas season, with sales figures in the hundreds of thousands every week since Hallowe'en, the toy sensation of the year. Each of the Million Dollar Babies was a poorly-made rag doll, distinguishable from other poorly-made rag dolls only by its $20 price tag, which was highly visible, and by its serial number, which could not be seen until the Million Dollar Baby was taken out of it sealed plastic packaging. The serial numbers (which a news magazine cover story called "The Million Dollar Gimmick") were assigned at random by computer. Exactly one million dolls were manufactured, but no one knew which doll would be assigned which number, nor when the one doll with serial number 1,000,000 would be sold. But when it was sold, the lucky buyer who had found the lucky serial number could claim a $1,000,000 jackpot.

Somehow the mindless gimmick caught on, as other mindless gimmicks have done from time to time, and Million Dollar Babies sold like proverbial hotcakes. Rumors that the jackpot was claimed early in November, and rumors that the whole thing was rigged, failed to slow the new sales records set week by week. By the first week of December, the Million Dollar Babies had transcended the ordinary laws of economics, nearly reaching that ideal realm in which demand alone increases demand.

Of course the free publicity helped. It came from newspaper stories of customers waiting for hours, and trampling one another in the rush to buy a Million Dollar Baby; of other customers enraged because the limited stock had been sold; of stores which had to be protected by the National Guard when their orders of Million Dollar Babies failed to arrive.

The competitive instincts of customers and of reporters ensured that each report of the mania outoutraged the one before it: on Tuesday a store manager dismissed for buying a Baby before the customers were admitted; on Wednesday a customer hospitalized after a Baby battle; on Thursday ugly confrontations between customers barely controlled by riot police. And who could forget the wry comment of a network newscaster: "In short, the Million Dollar Baby is America at its best and worst, its obvious success based upon sentiment, novelty and greed?"

The World Department Store had sold more than its share of Million Dollar Babies, thanks to the foresight of a toy department manager who spotted the trend early, hedging her bets on video games with the caginess of a commodities trader. The same foresight lay behind the store's policy of putting only a limited number of the dolls on sale each day — some at opening time, the rest at noon.

The World Department Store was very scrupulous about all of this, unlike some stories in which Babies could only be bought when the customers' credit cards approached the melting point from other toy department purchases. Treating its dwindling supply of Million Dollar Babies as if they were on loan from Fort Knox, The World Department Store hired armed guards costumed as Wooden Soldiers to carry the Million Dollar Babies through the cordoned hordes of would-be customers. At 11:55 on the day before Christmas, the last two dozen of The World's Million Dollar Babies were brought from the vaults (a small ceremony, borrowed from Buckingham, preceded their advent) and placed on display where everyone could see them.

At the stroke of noon, the customers would be unleashed. One noisy man near the front of the crowd claimed to have waited 16 hours for his coveted spot. It was he, at 11:57, who noted that the Toy Soldiers had only placed 23 of the Million Dollar Babies on display before marching away. "Will you look at that?" he shouted. "There are only 23 of them! One of the Million Dollar Babies is missing!"

The word raced through the crowd of shoppers, some of whom were demanding justice and threatening lawsuits even before an alarm bell brought high noon and pandemonium. The toy department manager, who had more skills in planning than in crisis management, barely had time to count the Million Dollar Babies before the bell rang. The noisy man was right! One of the Babies was missing — and scores of disappointed customers were sure it was the one intended for each of them. When she heard the first shouts of "Where's the manager?" she barricaded herself in the office, grabbed the telephone, and dialed the Chief of Security, barricaded in his own office a few yards away.

Now the Chief of Security was a tough ex-cop who had worked in the store, in one job or another, for 25 years. His name was Santos, to the annual delight of his underlings in Security, who never failed to make a Christmas joke of it. "Nick?" the toy department manager said, "you blew it. One of the Million Dollar Babies is missing. Okay, okay, I know it's not your fault. It isn't my fault either. Somebody stole the stupid thing; but listen, Santos, your job and mine depend on finding it. Right? Listen, we know one thing: if that Baby leaves the store every alarm in the place will go off. Right. I personally attached electronic alarm tags to every one of them last night, and the tags are removed only when the Baby's bought and paid for. Right! Just like the coats in the Fur Salon. So that Million Dollar Baby is still somewhere in The World, Santos. Find it!"

Nick Santos resisted the urge to say, "Yessir, right away, sir." He growled, "Right," hung up the phone, and lifted his gaunt frame from the chair. Like any good detective, he knew that if you look long enough and hard enough, even needles in haystacks can be found. But time was short — as short as the tempers of those unhappy customers still demanding Million Dollar Babies in the toy department. He remembered one of the maxims of policemen: You want to find something fast, look in the right place first. But what was the right place?

Putting on his coat and scowling so that he looked like a customer, Santos left his office, skirted the toy department, and took a walk around the rest of the store. He walked through Sporting Goods and Kitchen Gadgets, up the escalator to Appliances and Sound Equipment, past Home Software, up again to Toddlers' Fashions. At every floor he stopped for a moment at the circular balcony which opened to the Rotunda, and from which all six floors of The World were visible. In the middle of the Rotunda, near the main entrance, was a display called "Christmas Around The World," where merchandise from every nation was surrounded by the usual Christmas decorations: reindeer, carolers, snowmen, a creche. From the third floor balcony, Santos observed the human traffic which circled the Rotunda as if it were a traffic rotary. There were few people in sight who were not in motion, as much in a hurry to buy gifts today as they would be to return them on the day after Christmas.

Besides himself, the only still point Santos could identify in the frenzied beehive of The World was a small child a floor below him, on the opposite side of the Historic railroad bed noted

Letters

(Here is a letter sent to Selectmen. Ed.)

Dear Madam Chairman and Gentlemen:

The Old Colony Railroad bed was constructed during the infancy of railroading in America, in 1848. It is a valuable town asset for both current and future use by the town and its citizens.

There is an adverse precedence being currently set by businesses using it for their exclusive parking, a contractor extensively filling and changing the grade level as well as it being used as an annex of the town dump.

This property as we understand it, is to be used for public recreation and other town uses and not for the convenience of private businesses and individuals.

Due to its historic aspects and potential benefits to the Town, we feel concerned that its use and continuity not be altered except by the Town of Cohasset.

Sincerely yours,
Noel Ripley, Chairman

The last of the Million Dollar Babies . . .

Rotunda. She was all alone, though she didn't have the familiar look of a lost child, and she was carrying a tattered baby blanket wrapped around a small object — an object, Santos quickly realized, of about the size of the missing Million Dollar Baby. Doubting that his search could end so easily, but lacking any other leads, Santos walked down the stairway to the second floor. Though the little girl was in his sight except for a few seconds, she had disappeared into Cosmetics and Accessories by the time he reached the place where she had been. He described her — blue coat, baby blanket, white stocking cap — but none of the clerks had seen her.

She reappeared in Housewares. He lost sight of her in Crystal Giftware. He spotted her again in the Fur Salon; she eluded him among Towels and Linens. The game continued for long enough that Santos concluded that she knew he was following her. But he had a problem: how do you unobtrusively arrest a thief less than three feet tall? He would be close enough to speak to her, and then a crowd of shoppers or a shelf of merchandise would be between them. Once he was near enough to hear her speak to the blanket-wrapped bundle: "Look, Baby," she said. "Look at all the nice things. Aren't they pretty?" She must have been four or five years-old, an innocent small child who had somehow managed to pick up one of the last of the Million Dollar Babies.

Through all of this, Nick Santos was trying to look as inconspicuous as possible. It was a skill he had perfected in 20 years of plainclothes work even before he began to work for the store, which made it all the more surprising when the object of his search stepped up behind him and tugged on his sleeve. "Excuse me, mister," she said. "Are you the police?"

"Well, yes," said Santos. "Can I help you?"

"Are you looking for the little lost doll?"

"The Million Dollar Baby," said Santos. "Do you know anything about it?" The little girl shook her head yes. "It's a nice little doll," Santos said, trying to look into the bundle she carried. "I'll bet you found the prettiest one of all. Can I see it?"

"Sure," said the little girl. But she didn't open the baby blanket bundle. She began to walk again, among the shelves of merchandise, up one aisle and down another. After a while she smiled up at Santos, and a few minutes later took his hand to lead him through the maze of the Trim-a-Tree department. She led him to the fifth floor balcony overlooking the Rotunda, from which they could see "Christmas Around The World" in all its glory. "There it is," she said.

"What?" Santos asked, still sure that she was carrying the Million Dollar Baby in her arms.

"The little lost doll. Right there. See?" She was pointing at the creche. With the skilled eyes of an old detective, Santos saw the Million Dollar Baby immediately. It was in the manger where the figure of the Christ Child should have been.

"How...What?" Santos mumbled, and the little girl answered him as if his questions made sense. "I put it there," she said. "I like playing Hide and Seek, and that was a perfect place. In plain sight, right in the middle of the store, and nobody even saw it."

She was right. Thousands of people must have passed within a few yards of the display, and the creche, and not one of them had noticed the hidden Million Dollar Baby — or the missing Christ Child. "But how? Where? Why?" Santos stammered.

The little girl answered him patiently, as if she were talking to an idiot. "I put it there so Mary and Joseph would have somebody to play with," she said, "while I went for a walk with Baby Jesus. He can't walk, of course, but I showed him the nice toys and Christmas trees and a lot of other stuff." She opened up the baby blanket bundle. "See?" she said. "This is Baby Jesus. Baby Jesus, this is the police. He's going to put you back in your manger now. He's a nice man, so don't be afraid."

Nick Santos looked down at the bundle she gave to him: a ragged baby blanket enclosing a painted papier-mache figure of the infant Christ. When he looked up again, the little girl had walked away, and there was no point in pursuing her. Santos realized that he must have looked a little ridiculous, a grown man apparently identifiable immediately as a plainclothes cop, holding a little baby blanket bundle carefully as he made his way down the four flights of stairs to the Rotunda.

Once or twice, as he approached the rediscovered Million Dollar Baby, he glanced at the figure he was carrying. The Baby Jesus, the infant Christ, having seen everything there was to see in the world and The World, seemed to wear an expression Santos had never seen before. It was if the holy Child were about to dissolve in tears, or break into hilarious laughter.

Christmas workers share their holiday thoughts

By Karen Brown

Ask some residents how they feel about working on Christmas and their reactions vary.

Many resign themselves to the fact. It "comes with the job," they say.

Others "do not mind" as much.

"It's like having two Christmases," said Ann Rosano, secretary to the administrator at Cohasset Knoll Facilicare.

"You get to open presents for the patients. I never minded it."

Rosano started working at Cohasset Knoll "as an aide."

Robin Colvin, activities director for the healthcare facility, said "I don't mind . . . It adds something . . . a familiar face for residents. I wish I could spend more time. A lot of the residents don't have families."

What did other staff members say?

Christine James, a nurse's aide, joined the staff two months ago.

This is not only her first Christmas working but her "first Christmas as a newlywed."

"I don't mind . . . it has to be done," she said.

"It's a different routine than any other," explained Shelly Townsend, another nurse's aide. "Even the moods are different. Some patients are a lot happier."

"We really volunteered," said a nurse, "We split our shifts."

"Unfortunately health care facilities run 24 hours a day, seven days a week," said Nurse Pat Bengarzone. "It would be nice if they could send everybody home . . .nice for the patients.

Gerry McMenamin, a nurse's aide, described working on Christmas Day as " . . . my gift to the patients . . . I love the looks on their faces when their families come . . . when they leave with their families."

At Ripley Road Nursing Home, Katherine Migliaccio, a nurse for 40 years, echoed her fellow professionals' sentiments: "This is our life . . . this is what we've given it up for."

Some town employees will work on Christmas Day but split shifts and "weekend hours."

When asked if he was working on the holiday, Harold Litchfield, highway surveyor, said: "I hope not. No one is working unless it snows."

Manny Salvador, sewer plant operator, even though he has been on vacation for the past two weeks, will work his regular weekend schedule on Christmas Day, filling out charts and checking machinery.

Police officer David Pomarico, also working on the holiday, talked about the "holiday routine;" when theft activity increases because many small businesses are closed.

Pomarico has worked six Christmases in the nine years he has been on the force.

Officer Cliff Jones has worked 12 Christmases in his 17 years on the force.

"Families are acclamated to it," Jones said. "You plan the day around it."

At the Cohasset Fire Dept., Group 1 will be on duty Christmas Day.

Bill Protulis will work 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"No one likes to do it," all the squad members agreed.

"It's the chance you take when you're hired," said Eric Wenzlow.

"You have to reschedule life a little," said Matthew Marr. "Open presents Christmas day or night. It comes with the territory, I guess."

Even Capt. Dick Conley, a 25 year veteran has only "been off six Christmases."

"It takes away from family enjoyment," Conley said. "But you knew that when you started."

"We realize somebody has to be here. Fires and emergencies don't take holidays off," said Protulis.

'Share-A-Classic' program at Pratt Library

Three "Share-A-Classic" programs will be held at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library during the Christmas school vacation week.

The programs are for school age children and will last about one hour in the children's room.

The Share—A-Classic concept encourages the reading of the best in literature to the older child and adults, an enriching experience in today's video culture.

Stories read to celebrate the holiday season will include "The Little Juggler," "The Fir Tree," "The legend of the Christmas Rose," "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," "The Gift of the Magi," and "The Velveteen Rabbit."

Share-A-Classic readers will be Linda Henderson Tuesday, Dec. 27 at 1:30, Weezie Welz on Thursday, Dec. 29 at 1:30 and Susan Schumaker Friday, Dec. 30 at 1:30.

Seahawks report . . .

In this week's league action, the Seahawk Pee Wee "A's" solidified their hold on first place with a 9-2 drubbing of King Phillip.

The Hawks' attack was led by the sharp shooting of Brian Pompeo who turned in a hat trick and Steve Boardman who added two goals.

Single goals were scored by Mike Richardson, John Zimmer, Keith O'Connell and Billy Lincoln. Mike Richardson and Erik Steverman had two goals each and Eric Meschino, John Zimmer, Paul Norton, Brian Pompeo, Chris Sullivan, Keith O'Connell and Damon Sparrow all had additional assists.

The Pee Wee "C's" ran into some stiff competition this weekend in Pembroke, 4-0 whitewash coming up on the short end.

The Squirt "A's," coached by Barry Resnick, fought gallantly but finally were defeated by King Phillip 7-6. Jon Mahoney led the attack with two goals and single tallies were added by Rogers, DiFiore and Cohen.

Billy Tibbetts and Greg Salmaine each had two assists and the scoring was completed by assists credited to Resnick, Mahoney and Cohen.

Here are recent graduates of the Seahawks Youth Hockey boys four to nine years old Instructional Team.

The program was held at the Cohasset Winter Gardens rink.

They are: Adam Alpert, 5, team, White; Jesse Anthony, 5, team, White; Jeffery Bowes, 6, team, White; Joel Cadoff, 6, team, Blue; Sean Campbell, 7, team, White; Sean Conneely, 8, team, Blue; Jonathan Crafts, 5, team, Blue; Geoffrey Downing, 8, team, Blue; Robert Freeman, 5, team, White; Scott Greenberg, 5, team, Blue; Angus MacDonald, 8, team, Blue; and Scott McClenaghan, 8, team, Blue.

Coaches for the White team were: Steve Alpert and Ed Kelly, and for the Blue team, Roger Crafts and John Mucci.

Nightly mooring fee

A proposal for boats to pay a $5 per night fee to be moored at the town pier or Lawrence Wharf was made by Chairman of the Harbor Study Committee Charlie Fink.

Fink said, "Cohasset is one of the few harbors in the state to give away an overnight privilege. Most harbors charge overnight fees. If the season fee is $500 than an overnight fee should be $5."

It would be more expensive to pay the per night fee than to buy a mooring license for the summer. Fink said the idea behind the license was to discourage free loaders who went from one mooring to the next.

Dick Conley, of Cohasset said, "Some people jump around from mooring to mooring and stay the summer. They get free electricity and free water. They should pay for their boats by the foot."

Selectmen took the proposal under advisement.

Cohasset's Free Spirit

By Jim Martin and Mason Sandell

Recently we had the privilege of interviewing John Sturman, a long time resident of Cohasset. This name may seem unfamiliar to many Cohaset students, but actually almost everyone has at one time talked to him or at least heard his nickname, "Foxy." In fact, some of us have even carried on long conversations with him without ever knowing his real name, John Foxhall Sturman III. We thought that by writing this article we could give everyone the opportunity to know more about him and unveil many of the mysteries that have long since surrounded this interesting man.

John was born in Honolulu, Hawaii prior to the onset of World War II. His father was in the army and was transferred often; thus, John saw and lived in many different areas of the world, especially the Far East. In fact, the first twelve years of his life were spent in such places as Kyoto and the Sakhalin islands in Japan, Thailand, the Philippines, Vietnam, Korea and before the war, Panama. It was during these dozen years that he learned to speak not only English, but Chinese and Japanese as well.

In 1941, John witnessed the attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbor where his father had been stationed before the war in the Pacific. When his father was transferred to Germany in 1945, John, already 12 years old, finally set foot in America, where he and his mother settled in with his grandparents in Summit, New Jersey. There he attended the prep school Lawrenceville Academy. Upon completing high school, he attended Princeton University for a year but decided to transfer because he felt that Princeton was "...too close to home for my liking." After all, he did live only 18 miles away from the university's campus. He then spent five years at the University of Virginia where he earned a graduate degree in Foreign Affairs. Already six years out of high school, John was not done yet. He then attended Georgetown University where he studied for three years and received another master's degree.

After college, he worked briefly for the State Department's diplomatic corps and then decided to teach social studies and languages after having been offered a job at the Rhode Island private school, St. Georges.

Some time later, John accepted a teaching position at Braintree's South Junior High School, where he taught social studies to the sixth graders. After this experience, he and his parents finally settled in Cohasset. Their coming to Cohasset was not a random selection however, as both John's mother and father had lived here briefly before, on 21 Gammons Rd, while John was readying himself for college.

John has lived in Cohasset ever since, and rightly so. He has many friends here and enjoys living near the sea. He also likes the other people in town, the "characters" as he calls them, who he hasn't really yet had the chance to become friends with. He considers himself a humanist "...in every sense of the word," and accordingly, he harbors great concern for the well-being of others. Many of these feelings, John believes, stem from the fact that he has seen all too much death, destruction and cruelty happen to fellow human beings during his life, especially during his early childhood, when he witnessed not only the attack on Pearl Harbor, but also the pre-World War II Japanese invasion of China. Since then, John has always been concerned for his fellow man and has always been hoping for the advent of a more humanistic society in America, one that depends on "people being nice to people."

John is also a non-conformist and will continue to be one "...at any cost." He is a firm believer in the saying, "March to the beat of your own drum," and he prides himself in having done just that throughout his life.

As far as his future is concerned, John has just had a new house built for himself on North Main Street and plans to spend the rest of his life here in Cohasset with all of his friends, old and new, talking sports, talking politics or talking about anything at all with the residents of the town he has grown to know and love. John Foxhall Sturman III is truly Cohasset's free spirit.

Cohasset High School Debate

Mr. Sheehan

By Robert Corkery

There is a club at Cohasset High School many people ignore. In ignorance, they consider this club unattractive, even undesirable. There is a need to clarify the situation; hence, this article.

The largely-ignored club is Debating. Uninformed people, knowing little about debate, are the same people making insulting remarks about the club. I only wish they would try debating—after all, participation is the crux of any extra-curricular activity.

The first step in joining Debate is to understand its structure. Debate is a formal argumentation of a proposition, sometimes called a "resolution." In the South Shore Debate League, this year's proposition is that "the United States should establish uniform rules governing the procedure of criminal courts in the nation." Though it may sound complex, the proposition is basically an opportunity to discuss, and possibly recommend improvements to US criminal court procedures.

In order to debate, there must be (at least) two viewpoints: "pro," in favor of the proposition, and "con," against the proposition. The affirmative team must support the proposition, presenting evidence, information and argument that will resolve the issue in favor of the proposition. The negative team must either suggest that the status quo (the present situation) is working, or present their own plan for change that avoids the recommendations of the proposition.

Formal debating contests are adjudicated on the basis of the evidence—quotes, charts, graphs, etc.,—presented either for or against the proposition. Teams have a specified time to present their case, and to defend it. At CHS, a debater is given eight minutes for the "constructive" (first speech), three minutes to answer questions from the opposition, and four minutes to summarize the argument.

The debate is decided by a judge—in most novice competitions, by a lay judge, usually a parent, teacher, or older student, who does not "flow" the debate. To "flow" a debate means to write down each argument presented and to determine the winner of each. In the senior division of the Debate League (for experienced debators), flow judges are vital to separate often closely argued propositions. Regardless of your ability, you will always be competing against speakers of equal ability.

Debating gives an individual an opportunity to exercise important and highly-valued skills—research, the organization of information, communication and presentation. Everyone who debates does not want to become an attorney. Sure, some do; but debate provides the foundation for other careers, too—teaching, broadcasting, politics, the priesthood, public relations, for example.

The rewards of debate don't end at the individual level. Debating is great for the national interest. We can improve our country by facing issues and providing solutions. Improvements can also help at state and lower levels; town meeting can generate changes for the better if we all debate the problems our town faces and plan solutions.

Cohasset High School debate team has its first competition in this year's program at the West Dartmouth High School on Wednesday, December 14. Exhilarating competition can be expected in the South Shore Debate League. If you would like to contribute, either by participating or helping to judge, contact Mr. Sheehan.

Drugs in Public Schools

By Michael Greiner

Although statistics say that the majority of drug users are between the ages of 18 and 30, drug use is a major problem in all public schools, including Cohasset. When interviewed, Mr. Gill, health education teacher at Cohasset High school, said that drugs are available in every school in the United States. He went on to say that anyone who wants drugs can get some very quickly. He further commented that even if the pushers are caught, the problem will continue since there is a "supply and demand situation." "There is such a market for drugs that someone is bound to take advantage of it."So obviously the real solution is to prevent people from starting at all.

According to Mr. Gill, there are several reasons why people may start to use drugs. There is the most obvious reason of all, peer pressure. The person takes the substance to avoid being made an object of fun, or to be made a member of the group. Another reason for beginning drug usage could be an inferiority complex; the person thinks that other people will look up to him if he becomes a drug user. Mr. Gill feels that the people with little self respect will care less about the fate of their bodies, thus they feel no regrets about using something as self-destructive as drugs. For some people, starting to take drugs may be a means of escape from their everyday problems. And, more often than not, they start because of curiosity. There is always so much talk about drugs. People are always saying that it feels good. This talk causes kids to be curious and to give it a try. Most of these situations result only in experimentation, or "recreational" use. However, even occasional use can result in physical damage or, in the worst circumstances, can result in dependancy. A cycle begins when the person feels depressed after usage and decides to feel good again with more drugs. This deadly circle continues until the person is deeply into the original depression.

There are many other dangers besides the psychological dependency, such as physical infections and liver diseases. The incredible cost of maintaining a dependency can push a dependent into theft or dealing in drugs. To continue his habit, he might run away from home to avoid his parent's eye. This flight can result in malnutrition, since the user cannot afford to maintain the drug habit and eat at the same time. Dependency is also a menace to others since one's driving ability is impaired by drugs. The most appalling shame, however, is the waste of a good mind on drugs.

Ms. Babaian, guidance counsellor at Cohasset High, takes a much more optimistic point of view. She told me in an interview that in the past eight years the amount of drug use during the school day at Cohasset High has greatly declined. If this is true, then it means that there might still be hope that we will someday conquer this complicated problem.

Future of Gymnastics

By Mike DeSantis

There seems to be some confusion as to whether or not there is a gymnastics team this year at Cohasset High School. Yes, there is a team, but if the sport doesn't receive more attention from the students, then there may be no team in the future years.

"Gymnastics," says long time coach Andrea Palardy, "is dying in this school." For the 1983-1984 season sixteen girls have made the team, ranging from the seventh to twelfth grade. Although this is not a bad turn-out, there are a few upper classmen that have contributed much to the team's past success that have chosen not to be members of the team this year.

By "past success" I mean that the team has captured the league championship for the last three years, something certainly to be proud of by all. It would be a shame to disrupt such a record of achievement because of lack of interest on the part of the students. Likewise, it would be a shame not to make use of Ms. Palardy's talent as an instructor.

I imagine that the school's equipment for gymnastics is extremely valuable - it includes uneven bars, parallel bars, high beam and low beam, a horse, numerous mats of all sizes and thicknesses, rings, etc. . . I was surprised to learn that neither the rings nor the parallel bars have been used in competition. When I asked Ms. Palardy why not, she told me that they are both boy's events. Personally, I am interested in learning exercises on the rings. But as the program stands now, there is no way a boy can be on the team. None of the other towns in the league of small schools have a boy's team either.

How far has Woman's Lib gone? I'm sure if enough boys showed interest in learning how to use the rings, the horse, or other equipment, then a team could be formed.

Ms. Palardy encourages more students to come and try out for the gymnastics team. Practices are held on week nights at the high school upstairs gym from either 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. or from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

With the end of Thanksgiving, a new gymnastics season begins. In the past this sport has been very successful at Cohasset High School, boasting a 10-0 record in 1982 and a 10-1 record in 1983. The team has kept the title of champions for the past two years and the outlook for the coming season is promising. Though the team has lost some important members, it has gained Suzy McMahon.

For the past four years her name has been appearing in newspapers during the winter sports season. She has been in many successful meets and her scores have contributed greatly to the team's victories. Yet many people fail to realize the difficult training involved in gymnastics.

Since the age of seven, Suzy has been developing the skills needed to compete. For eight years she has been training at various schools including Corrigans and Ellis which compete throughout New England. In addition to eight hours of training each week, she also must take a dance class to perfect the grace needed for Floor exercise and Balance beam. Suzy claims the very safe equipment at Ellis has been very helpful in learning new skills. Her hard work has paid off. In the past, she has placed in the top ten in the state for the vaulting event and has received many other awards.

Unfortunately, last year Suzy could not participate due to congenital back problems. Through therapy and exercises she had to overcome this problem and redevelop her strength for this season. Though she does not feel she is quite up to potential, she is optimistic about this season.

Recycling

By Lisa Brown

Approximately 20 cans = 11 pounds = 24 cents

Thanks to the Alternative School volunteers, each week a ten dollar profit will arise from the simple equation above, while also preserving the valuable commodity of aluminum. To obtain the money, they travel to Sugarman's Co., where the recycling process takes place.

It all seems simple enough, but the profit figure is a misleading one. In a nation accustomed to wasting things, with little thought, volunteers (and custodians) must gather and sort the cans themselves. The profit also helps to pay for the necessary transportation and gas.

Why take on this task? Alternative Volunteers help pay for sports equipment needed by both the Alt. School and C.H.S. itself. Every Alt. School volunteer receives ¼ credit for every four hours of work, and even the nation saves money.

Please note the convenient location of the boxes in the cafeteria, where both students and faculty members can put their cans.

We Need the Arts

By Lisa Morse

Although matters such as the threat of nuclear war, the marine placement in Lebanon, and various foreign affairs are important to each and every community, the schools need help also. In communities such as Cohasset, one major problem exists, which is frequently ignored. This problem is the lack of interest for the arts.

The arts are often forgotten even though they are such an asset to the kids of CHS. The PSO Arts Enrichment Committee, headed by Karin Bartow, is working to circulate ideas for many art programs. They ask teachers at CHS to "Consider ways in which a visiting artist or program may add something to a subject or curriculum..." Although lack of money for the arts is nothing new, much of the student population is unaware of the benefits which art, music and acting can provide.

Some of this unawareness comes from pure ignorance. Something special comes from being creative. Although both Art and Woodworking are required upon entrance into the Junior High, many kids feel this to be more a curse than a blessing. On the contrary, the arts give one a feeling of accomplishment. Being enraged at the fact that some students take art "just for the credit," I feel there should be a more positive attitude towards the learning of art. (But, that's my own personal view.)

The arts are not to be laughed at or ridiculed. Many colleges like to see that a student has taken some form of art; it shows them that the person is versatile. Think about that seniors!! In addition to colleges, many businesses like to see that the applicant took some form of art, whether it be in high school, college, or independent courses.

If the CHS Art Department doesn't fit into your academic schedule, independent courses are available at the South Shore Art Center (right here in Cohasset), and Saturday courses are available at Mass. College of Art (in Boston). Give it a try, fill in those study periods with some arts. Whether it be music, acting, photography, mechanical drawing, woodworking, or basic art, you'll never regret letting your creative mind go to work!!

Frogface

By J. Kuntz

I was a freshman in high school when I moved to Brentwood, MA. My first impression of the tiny New England town had been one of wealth. Brentwood consisted of a small village and about 100 large Victorian houses complete with lawns big enough to land a plane on. All the towns neighboring Brentwood didn't like it very much. I didn't know why until I went to school that September. Brentwood was a snobatorium. You could seriously make a horror movie about the kids there. They all walked around the halls like wind-up toys, wearing the same variety of clothes and looking very much like escapees from a clone factory.

There was only one kid in Brentwood who wasn't one of the crowd; a short-faced, hunched-over kid everyone teased cruelly. His nickname was frogface — because of his strange habit of wearing green all the time —and for the simple fact that the kid really did look like a frog. He had two large rolly-polly eyes, short blond hair and a very weak chin. In fact, his face just seemed to melt into his neck. He had the constant frown of someone who had never been treated kindly by anyone.

I surprised a lot of people one day by clapping frogface on the back, inroducing myself and asking him what classes he had that term.

At the time I told myself he was probably better than any of the slobs I had already met in Brentwood. Now I realize that I just used frogface to make a point.

His real name was Newton, I found out. (Maybe that's how it started. After all, a newt is sort of a frog, and Newt is short for Newton...Oh, sorry, I'm getting back into frogs.) Anyway, it turned out I made a lot of friends. Mostly kids who were tired of the click scene and thought that it was pretty brave for publicly making friends with a social out-cast.

BRENTWOOD HAD HOPES

I always felt a certain loyalty toward frog — I mean Newton. He had sort of a depressing personality. But then again, after being friendless and frogfaced for 15 years — what did I expect?

Newton was always in the public library, hunched over a book; his eyebrows knitted in thought. The books he read always caught me as weird, always about magic and witchcraft it seemed.

"You know," he said to me one day, putting down a book of voodoo, "if I didn't look the way I — If I looked like you — maybe I wouldn't be such a misfit."

It was the stupidest thing I had ever heard him say, and I told him so.

"Looks don't matter," I told him. "It's what's inside that counts."

"Do you really mean that?" Newton asked with a rubbery grin.

"Well, it's true," I said.

Newton's large, glistening eyes narrowed into slits.

"Not in Brentwood," he stated. He stared at me for a moment and then grunted. "Come to my house around 7:30 tonight," he gurgled.

I had never been to Newton's house, but his directions led me to a narrow path in the woods just along a small lake. "My house is at the end of the path," I remembered Newton saying, so I started down the mossy, treelined corridor. I noticed suddenly how quickly the sun set as the months dragged into winter. The path was long and meandering and many times I stumbled on the large rocks and tree-roots buried in the papery autumn leaves. The full moon, hidden behind a woven ceiling of branches, offered no light at all. As I neared the house, I became increasingly aware of the frenzied croakings of the pond frogs. It was loud and intense, as if they were angry or impatient about something...

Students' Rights and Responsibilities

The following material concerns our student newspaper. As published by the Massachusetts Department of Education, it reads:

"A Guide to Rights and Responsibilities for Massachusetts Students."

A. Freedom of Expression

The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution:

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

General Principles

The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects every student's freedom of expression in schools. You are free to express any ideas in any way you see fit, subject only to certain narrow restrictions on the content of what you say and on the time, place, and manner in which you say it. Content restrictions may include oscenity, defamation, and fighting words or incitement, if they are properly defined (see below). Time, place, and manner restrictions may include forbidding you from expressing yourself at those times or places or through those methods which substantially disrupt the educational process.

School officials may not prevent you from expressing an idea simply becausethey do not like or agree with the idea. Your school, for example, cannot stop you from publishing an article simply because it criticizes the administration.

(1) Obscenity. In many cases, speech or material is obscene if, taken as a whole (not just isolated parts of it), it meets all three of the following conditions:

•It appeals to the prurient interests of minors (in other words, arouses lust): and

•It describes nudity or sexual conduct in any way that most adults in the community think is clearly offensive for minors: and

•It lacks serious literary, artistic, political, scientific, or other value for minors.

Press

The First Amendment protects the rights of students to publish and/or distribute any form of literature, subject to the limitations on obscenity, defamation, fighting words, incitement, and disruption listed above. There are two varieties of student publications: those which are "official" and financed by the school, and those which are not sponsored or supported by the administration and are thus "unofficial" or "underground."

Official Student Publications. The content of a student publication may not be censored by the administration. Even if the school supports the paper financially or in other ways, it may not use this power to control the content of your paper. The paper's advisor is there only to advise. She or he cannot decide what is to be printed. Also, the paper's student staff must set fair submissions standards: if they allow a non-staff member to present his or her views, space must be made available for opposing viewpoints.

Distributing the Literature. Regardless of whether the material is an official publication or unofficial literature, the school administration cannot require you to submit a copy to them before you begin distribution. The school can require that you give them a copy at the time distribution begins. The school can prohibit distribution at those times or places which substantially disrupt the educational process. Rules in this area must be specific. For instance, the school can prohibit distribution "to students while they are in classes," but it cannot prohibit distribution "whenever classes are in session," since it is not necessarily disruptive to distribute literature to students who have free periods even though some classes are in session.

(2) Defamation. Defamation consists of libel (writing) and slander (speech). In many cases, writing or speech is defamatory if all three conditions are true:

•It damages the reputation of a person; and

•It is not true; and

•The person making the statement knew it was false or recklessly disregarded the issue of whether it was false.

(3) Fighting Words. In most cases, fighting words are those words which, when spoken directly to a reasonable person, are clearly and unavoidably likely to provoke violent retaliation. Whether words are "fighting words" depends upon the particular situation. They might include such things as racial, sexual, ethnic, or religious slurs.

(4) Incitement. In most cases, statements are "incitement" when both of the following are true:

•They are clearly and immediately likely to cause other people to violate laws or valid school rules: and

•They are intended to do so.

As with fighting words, "incitement" depends upon the particular situation in which the statement is made.

(5) Disruption. Unless the expression falls under one of the exceptions above, the content of what you say is protected, and the school cannot restrict the activities through which you say it, unless those activities substantially disrupt the functioning of the school. This is true even if some people think that what you say is "offensive" or "in poor taste." Unless you use fighting words or incitement, you cannot be restricted because other people become disruptive in response to your expression. The question is whether you yourself are disrupting the school. This depends on your actions — including the time, place and manner in which they occur — and not the content of what you say.

Your school must clearly specify what it means by "substantial disruption." Some examples of substantially disruptive behavior are: physically stopping other people from entering classrooms, distributing literature in the middle of a class, and holding a demonstration which is so noisy that it interferes with classes in session.

Cohasset Drama Club

By Jim Martin

The Cohasset Dramatic Club has come out with a show for the Christmas season. They are performing Charles Dickens' classic, A Christmas Carol.

The cast of 70 actors, adult and children, has been rehearsing the play since the beginning of October to give performances just in time for Christmas. The show is under the direction of Julia Jordan. The cast has just as many Cohasset students as townspeople involved, each part adding to the "Christmas spirit" conveyed by the play. The cast is headed by Ben Duffy as Scrooge, with many accomplished actors filling the ranks supporting him.

This full length performance is the largest undertaking by the club and has worked wonderfully. The characters light up the stage with vivid, old fashioned costumes. They appeal to the audience by creating warmth, love and Christmas spirit on the stage. The character of Scrooge makes the observer scorn him with disapproval. The pre-show extravagances include the audience in its activities, bringing them in direct contact with the characters. These warm scenes give joy and cheer to everyone watching. The show brings all emotions together to form a positive view of people and their goodness.

Abruptly, the path ended. Newton's house was little more than a shack with a large rickety porch. I climbed the four wooden stairs and rapped on the door.

"Come in," a voice wheezed. I shoved open the door, which screamed in protest. A peculiar damp stench struck me in the face. The one room hovel, lighted by a candle, smelled like a swamp.

"Newton?" I called, my voice a little shaky. The whole eerie night had shot my nerves. A figure shifted in a darkened corner and a voice answered, "I'm here." Only it wasn't a voice; it was a croack — a deep amphibian croak. My feet instantly stuck to the floor and my heart leaped into my throat. Suddenly I was in 4th grade again - nervous and stammering — reciting a poem in front of my English class. (the time has come the walrus said to speak of many things)

The figure moved into the light and —

GREEN MY GOD HIS FACE IS GREEN

"I have something for you," Newton gurgled. (of shoes and ships and sealing wax)

He held out his hand.

HIS HAND IS WEBBED

Sitting on Newton's palm was a frog.

"Look what I have, Tim, look at the frog," Newton said slowly. His cheeks suddenly puffed out and a deep croak emanated from his throat. (of cabbages and kings)

I started to laugh hysterically. It was all just so... (funny...)

I took a step backward, groping for the doorknob. Something grabbed me by the ankle and I fell to the floor. (of why the sea is boiling hot)

HIS TONGUE IS AROUND MY ANKLE

Still laughing, I watched as the frog leaped from Newton's hand...toward me.

I woke up on the floor the next morning. Hovering over me was Newton. Only it didn't look like Newton.

Not at all.

He looked just like me. It was like a reflection. But I knew it was Newton. Who else could it be?

He nodded at me, as if he were satisfied that I was allright. He opened the door and then turned back.

"Thank you," he said, and it was my voice. Then he just turned and left. His footsteps echoed as they descended the porch and disappeared into the forest.

I dragged myself off the floor, feeling weak and different. Hanging on one of the shack's walls was a shard of mirror. I walked over and stood in front of it. I stared at my reflection for a long, long time.

Somehow, Newton had changed bodies with me.

"Looks don't matter," I remembered saying...Now I looked at my ugly new face.

— The chinless face that looked like a frog.

"No!" I yelled, grabbing the mirror and throwing it on the floor.

(NO!)

Outside the frogs croaked happily.

One Act Plays

This month rehearsals begin at Cohasset High School for the annual one-act plays. The ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades each do a separate play. Four seniors act as directors for the plays and are assisted by Mr. Emmons. This year's directors are: Linton Young for the freshmen, Tom Jones for the sophomores, Kurt Hochkeppel for the juniors, and Nancy Walls for the seniors. This year's senior play is "Adaptations." The performance is set for January 21. May the best class win!

A couple of months ago, while in gym, Jennie Long, Kim Crawford, and Sarah Atkinson thought of the idea to start a girl's volleyball team. Taking their idea seriously, the girls went to talk to Mr. Chatterton and Mr. Fallon, who both supported the idea; Mr. Fallon even agreed to be the coach of this team if it gets started. Mr. Streeter also approves of a volleyball team. Because Cohasset High School has only a limited amount of girls' fall sports, a volleyball team would further extend the sports opportunities for girls. Jennie Long and Kim Crawford have started a petition with girls from grades 7 to 12 signing it. If they receive enough signatures, this idea will be brought to the school board in February. If you are interested in being a member of this 7 to 12 grade volleyball team, please contact Jennie Long or Kim Crawford.

CHS sports report for the week . . .

By Carla Lucas and Tracey Fitzpatrick

Hockey

The hockey team's first game against Don Bosco was a great letdown for the Skippers.

Although the score of the game was 10-0, it was not indicative of the Skipper's play.

Coach Jackie Bowen and the team played evenly with their opponent but found themselves quickly behind because of inexperience in the goal.

However, in the third period, Michael McNeil came in the net and played well for the Skippers.

Cohasset's second game against Abington was a lot closer, although the Skipper's still came up short.

The score was 3-2 with goals scored by Lee Wilson and John Drago. Cohasset outshot Abington in the first period 11-3, 11-4 in the second period. In the third period, both teams had eight shots on net. Cohasset outshot Abington 30-15.

Goalie Michael McNeil played well for the Skippers along with Alex Ghetto, a second line forward.

Coach Bowen feels the team should have won but hopes for a victory against Hingham, Dec. 24, and in the Lobster Pot Tournament, Dec. 26 and 27

Girls Varsity Basketball

The Cohasset Girls Varsity basketball team started the season off with a bang last Friday, beating Weston 52-45.

At the half Cohasset was on top by one point. In the third quarter they came out strong and after the first three minutes of the fourth quarter, Cohasset opened up to a ten point lead.

Carla Lucas played well scoring 19 points and collecting 12 rebounds, while teammate Tracy Fitzpatrick scored 9 points and 9 rebounds.

Coach Bill Fallon feels the team played fairly well.

Saturday the Skippers fought another battle and came out on top, beating Nantucket 57-33.

This was a much closer game then the score indicates. Cohasset was only leading by three points at half time. But the Skippers third quarter defense, led by Fitzpatrick's man to man coverage on their leading scorer (two points in the second half) blew open a three point game into a 12 point spread.

Fitzpatrick scored 16 points, and Lucas and Sarah Seavey each scored 15. All three had a strong game with Seavey making seven out of eight shots from the foul line.

Coach Fallon is pleased with his first two games and is very optimistic at this point.

Thursday night the Skippers will be at Abington and on December 27 and 28, they will be competing in the Scituate Christmas Tournament at Scituate.

Cohasset Wrestling

The Cohasset Wrestling team lost their first match last week 51-18 to Rockland.

The competition was very tough, yet Coach Sweeney was impressed by Glen Froio who pinned his man in his very first varsity wrestling match.

Teammate Liam Standford had a big upset, beating his four year, top notch opponent. As expected Lee Reed also won his match.

Coach Sweeney was very pleased with the way they looked yet admits that there is room for improvement.

Monday night the Cohasset Skippers came back with a win, overwhelming their opponents. Everyone won their matches. It was a great team effort.

'Single Living' available

Single Living is on the news stands. The January publication, the first, is in supermarkets, convenience stores in the area. It is also available by subscription and, of course, at the Mariner, 58 Main St.

The February issue will be published in mid-January. Deadline for copy and advertising is Jan. 11.

Obituaries

Gladys Royce

Gladys (Snell) Royce, 82, a longtime resident of Cohasset, died Dec. 13 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Born in Hingham, she had lived in Hull before moving to Cohasset, 45 years ago.

Wife of the late Raymond B. Royce, she leaves two daughters, Marguerite Stahl of Cohasset and Virginia Bibby of West Bridgewater; two sisters, Muriel Nickerson of Cohasset and Mrs. Edward O'Brien of Rockland; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday in St. Mary's Church, Hull. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations may be made to a favorite charity.

Louis Joseph Figueiredo

Louis Joseph Figueiredo, 85, of Scituate, a retired fisherman and boat builder, died Dec. 13 in Brockton Veterans Administration Hospital after a long illness.

Born and educated in Cohasset, he had lived there until moving to Scituate 40 years ago. He was a former member of the Atlantic Lobsterman's Association. He was a World War I Navy veteran and served with the Coast Guard auxiliary patrol during World War II. He was a former member of George H. Mealey American Legion Post in Cohasset.

Husband of the late Laura (Hall) Figueiredo, he leaves two sons, Donald L. Figueiredo of Scituate and Robert W. Figueiredo of Cohasset; a daughter, Mary E. Maree of Rembroke; two sisters, Julia A. Silveria of Mattapoisett and Mary C. DeRocha of Cohasset; 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Friday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Donations may be made to Alzheimer Disease Research, c/o Beth Israel Hospital, 330 Brookline Ave., Boston, 02215.

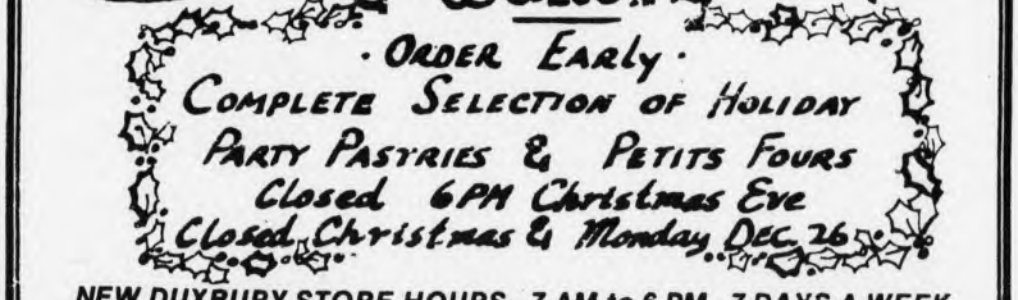
Christmas Day will include special music by the choir and guest musicians. Rev. Benbow will read a new Christmas story written especially for families, "The Kids Who Ran Away On Christmas." Everyone is welcome.

Share the warmth of Christmas with homeless and needy men, women and children. Bring your offering of clean, warm, wearable clothing of any kind or size, together with a new pair of mittens or gloves, white socks, or a hat, to the "clothes line" in Bates Hall. The clothing will be distributed to area shelters and other programs serving needy people, and may be brought to any service of worship.

Timberland

NOT EVERY STORE CARRIES TIMBERLAND BOOTS. HERE'S WHY WE DO.



Stores choose certain brands for different reasons. Some go for high fashion. Others for low price. At our store, we go for value. That's why we carry boots and shoes that carry the Timberland trademark. It assures you of the finest workmanship, the finest materials, and a fair price. And when you get what you pay for, we think that's an honest value.

Ebeneezer's THE BAKERY BUILT ON QUALITY

The first phase of The Meadows in Hingham is nearly sold out, so The Green Company has started the final group of two and three bedroom attached single family homes. Five of the six new buildings are on gracefully sloping land so most of these homes have large private decks, rather than courtyards, and walk-out basements with walls of glass which can easily be converted. Many offer lovely distant views across the open fields and woods. The clubhouse, swimming pool whirlpool, tennis courts and the beautifully furnished models are open, so plan a visit soon — any day between 9 and 5 — and see the landscaping . . . the flower-strewn meadows . . . and all the other reasons owners love their new condominium homes at The Meadows. Prices range from about $159,000 to $235,000

Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street one mile to our entrance on the left. Call (617) 740-1500.

KINDERGARTEN MUSICAL PARTY

Mrs. Price's Kindergarten class hosted a Musical and Party for parents and friends Wednesday, Dec. 21. They also plan to visit their 'instant' grandparents at the Ripley Road Nursing Home Thursday, Dec. 22.

EASTERN EDISON OFFICIAL VISIT OSGOOD

On November 30 and December 7 Mrs. Ransm came to the Osgood School from Eastern Edison Co. She came to talk about electricity to the third grades. The third grades learned about what would happen if we didn't have electricity and how to be safe around it.

Reported by Matthew Gromada, Grade 3.

5th-6th OPEN SPACE RAISES $33.33 FOR GLOBE SANTA

By Erin Chase

Altogether the fines collected for coming to class unprepared really paid off. The amount raised for Globe Santa was $33.33. I'm sure that this money is going to help a needy child have a more pleasant and happier Christmas.

A FEW "POINTERS" ON I.M.S.

By Neely Hemassi

"The skills will cure your ills," said Mrs. Mulhern, the Individual Mathematics Skills (I.M.S.) teacher at Deer Hill School. Every month there is a race to see which class in each grade has earned the most points in I.M.S. The class winners get a prize for their great accomplishment and have a party. This month's winners were 4th Grade, Mrs. Sullivan's class, 5th Grade, Mrs. McDonald's class, and 6th Grade, Mr. Deakin's class. Congratulations to the winners.

THANKS TO GODSPELL PATRONS

The Music Department and students at Cohasset High School wish to thank all "Godspell" patrons and advertisers who contributed to the Performing Arts Fund. All proceeds from "Godspell" benefit this fund, which provides "seed" money for future all-school musicals and awards for deserving seniors who have demonstrated talent and dedication in the performing arts.

The "Godspell" patron drives, organized by the PSO, succeeded in raising $455, which will be earmarked specifically for awards.

Interested seniors may apply through the Guidance Office at the high school. The Performing Arts Committee will announce its decisions in the spring. Presentations will be made at the Senior Class Awards Night May 31.

Contributions to this fund are welcome at any time. Donations are tax-deductible and payable to Cohasset High School.

BARBERSHOP CHORUS PERFORMS

The high school Barbership Chorus sang at area nursing homes Dec. 15. Members of the group who sang were: Peter Baker, Karl Becker, Andrew Glasfield, Bill Lean, Jim Reilly, John Kornet, John Pereira, Tom Jones, Rodney Best, Linton Young, Steve Fries, Joe Mazza, and Mike Walsh.

CABLE PRODUCTIONS

Plans for the first school cable productions were made at the last meeting of the Educational Television Council. One program will be a visit with fifth graders as they host "pen pals" from the Harborview Apartments. Another will be highlights of winter and spring sports.

A third might feature Cohasset school scholarships and college interviews. A fourth could be an introduction to the many ways that cable TV can aid our educational community.

All meetings of the Educational TV Council are open, and are one way those interested could share their ideas with the teachers, administrators, parents and students who are council members.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, Jan. 11 in the Home Economics room at the high school. The agenda will include approval of guidelines and policies for production and cablecasting and a review of the program on training teachers and students in the use of the cable television equipment.

If you would like to participate in any way, call Dr. Packard at 383-6100.

RUSSIA'S ERRORS CONTINUE TO SPREAD

Our Lady's Peace Plan from Heaven

The Miracle of the Sun

The Blessed Virgin Mary appeared to three humble children at FATIMA in Portugal on October 13, 1917. On this Our Lady's sixth appearance to the children, a miracle of great magnitude occurred, witnessed by over 70,000 people. The unrelenting rain, which had greated the pilgrims, ceased suddenly. The sun came out, began to "dance in the sky," and plunged toward earth. The terrified pilgrims began entreating God for mercy and the sun retreated to its former position in the sky.

Mary, the Queen of Heaven and Earth, brought messages of warning for the entire world at Fatima. Our Lady stated that wars are a punishment due to sin and that man must stop offending God.

WHAT MUST WE DO?

Our Lady requested that we pray daily for peace and for the conversion of sinners. The Blessed Virgin also asked for penance and reparation for the good of all mankind.

She explained that penance means that men must amend their lives, giving up their easy lives of sin; asking pardon for their sins; and making reparation to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary, so grieviously offended by the sins of men.

By reparation, Our Lady requested the offering of sacrifice to atone for our sins; fulfillment of our daily duties to the best of our abilities; acceptance of the responsibilities of our state in life; and obedience to the Commandments of God. She also asked Catholics to make the Communion of reparation on the First Saturdays.

THERE IS STILL TIME... BUT TIME IS RUNNING OUT!

OUR LADY OF FATIMA FURTHER REVEALED:

"More souls go to hell because of sins of the flesh than for any other reason."

"Certain fashions will be introduced that will offend Our Lord very much."

"Many marriages are not good; they do not please Our Lord and are not of God."

"Priests must be pure, very pure. They should not busy themselves with anything except what concerns the Church and souls. The disobedience of priests to their superiors and to the Holy Father is very displeasing to Our Lord."

"The Blessed Mother can no longer restrain the hand of Her Divine Son from striking the world with just punishment for its many crimes."

"If the government of a country leaves the Church in peace and gives liberty to our holy religion, it will be blessed by God."

"...God gives grace through the Immaculate Heart of May...ask graces from her, and...the Heart of Jesus wishes to be venerated together with the Immaculate Heart of Mary...plead for peace from the Immaculate Heart of Mary, for the Lord has confided the peace of the world to her."

IF HER REQUESTS ARE NOT ANSWERED...

The Blessed Virgin warned that "Russia will spread her errors throughout the world, promoting wars and persecution of the Church. The good will be martyred, the Holy Father will have much to suffer, and various nations will be annihilated. But in the end....

MY IMMACULATE HEART WILL TRIUMPH, RUSSIA WILL BE CONVERTED"

Major changes in auto insurance coming

By Judith Denzer Cooper

There will be major changes in Massachusetts automobile insurance beginning Jan. 1, 1984. After that date, insurance companies will refuse to pay damage claims for an inexperienced driver unless that person is specifically insured for every vehicle in a household.

The new State auto insurance law insists that a young driver (age 16-23) who lives at home must be listed on all vehicles and must pay rates based on the most expensive car at that address.

In the past parents often listed their children on only the older and less expensive of two cars owned by a family. Then if the inexperienced driver had an accident with the "new" car it was covered because he or she was only driving it that one time.

This change in the law could cost a policy holder thousands of dollars and the insurance companies are concerned that people have not become aware of the new rules. Written material is being sent to policy holders with the hope that they will correct the names of listed drivers as soon as possible.

A typical notice was sent by the Murphy/Carty Insurance Company of Scituate. It says, "All persons having a license and being a member of a household must be listed on each vehicle in order to provide collision coverage. If said person has an accident and is not listed in the auto insurance policy, Collision coverage will be refused by law. This condition of . . . listing is required even if the vehicle is driven only once a year."

A notice from the Clifton Marsh agency of Marshfield says, "Mass law requires that we withhold payment of a Collision loss if an auto . . . is being operated by a household member who is an inexperienced driver (under six years driving) and is not listed as an operator on your policy."

A second major change for 1984 will be that all deductible situations will increase from a standard $200 to $300. Individuals can buy policies with lower deductible rates but they will have to pay special charges for $100 or $200 deductible policies.

The Safe Driver Insurance Plan

The legislature has abolished the merit rating system and instituted a new safe driver insurance plan. Individuals with good driving records will have reduced policy costs and those with bad records will pay higher insurance rates.

One important change will allow insurance companies to refuse to grant optional coverage (Fire, Theft, Collision) to people with records of major auto conviction or who have four at-fault accidents within a three year period.

At one time Mass insurance companies could cancel policies at will. One accident could end years of coverage by a company, Several years ago the law was reversed and until this year companies could not refuse anyone coverage. They could not even create different rate scales for accident prone drivers.

The 1984 law brings the cancellation rules back to the middle of the road. Insurance companies cannot refuse or cancel insurance that is required by the State. But they can refuse or cancel optional collision, fire and theft coverage.

The required part of an insurance policy includes insurance for bodily injury to others, personal injury, uninsured auto coverage for bodily injury and damage to someone else's property.

Optional insurance includes increased amounts for the above items as well as collision (damage to your car) and fire and theft coverage. This part of the policy may also include such things as towing costs and car rental payments while your vehicle is under repair.

The safe driver system gives a driver negative points for such things as a speeding ticket (one point) to vehicular homicide (four points). Each point earned increases that driver's insurance costs and lowers his ability to buy optional coverage.

Auto Theft

"After a fire or theft loss your insurance company can now suspend coverage on your new vehicle if you do not make the replacement vehicle available for inspection within two days after it is registered," says a brochure from the Independent Insurance Agents of Mass.

This new restriction is aimed at reducing the temptation by some individuals to claim a total loss; collect for the entire amount and then rehabilitate the dama d car. This is another effort to try to cut back on Massachusetts' highest-in-the-nation car theft rate.

Craig Washa of the Marsh Agency says his company (which is one of approximately ten in Marshfield), deals with about 50 stolen car reports a year. The prime locations for stolen car complaints are large restaurant parking lots and major shopping plazas.

Another problem related to auto theft is that people leave their registration in the car. This is done because several members of a family may drive the car and it is difficult to remember to transfer the registration from person to person.

Unfortunately this gives the thief the car and its registration. The registration carries the vehicle identifi-

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Bell-ringing, school assemblies, parties, caroling, church services and concerts — no one can forget it is Christmas here on the South Shore. Filled planes, packed trains, overflowing buses speak eloquently of a single destination — home. One of the warmest holiday stories I've heard lately was told by one of our sons. An Army officer stationed at Ft. Devens, he told of how the men in his company were pleasantly surprised by a telephone invitation from a resident of a nearby town, saying how his family would like to welcome some of them to Thanksgiving dinner in their home. Young soldiers who were far from family and home on that day were eager to accept. Perhaps we should set an extra place at our Christmas table for someone who might be alone at Christmas. Thanks to Millie Carr, we have another of her recipes; this one large enough to serve 12 to 16 and called simply

CRANBERRY CHRISTMAS CAKE

2½ c. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
2 c. sugar
1 tsp. each baking powder and baking soda
1 c. each chopped walnuts and chopped dates
2 eggs, beaten
1 c. each buttermilk, orange juice, fresh cranberries
3/4 c. salad oil

Sift flour, salt, 1 c. sugar, baking powder and soda together. Stir in walnuts, dates and cranberries. Combine eggs, oil and buttermilk. Stir into flour mixture, mixing until fruits are coated and dry ingredients moistened. Pour into greased and floured 10" tube pan. Bake for 1 hour and 15 min. at 350 degrees. Remove to cooling rack placed on rimmed cookie sheet. Mix orange juice and remaining sugar. Baste warm cake with orange juice mixture. Let stand at room temperature overnight. Refrigerate for 24 hours before serving.

With Christmas coming on a Sunday this year and the following day a holiday, two-legged mice will be on the prowl for snacks and if friends stop by to see the tree, you may want to offer them a cup of coffee and a slice of Margaret Ward's

CHRISTMAS BREAD

1 c. milk
1/4 c. sugar
1 egg
4 T margarine
3¾ c. flour, sifted
1½ tsp. salt
1 yeast cake
1/4 c. warm water

Scald milk. Add margarine, sugar and salt. Pour into a large bowl to cool until lukewarm. Add yeast cake that has been dissolved in warm water. Add unbeaten egg and beat all in mixer at low speed. Add 1 c. flour and beat. Remove from mixer and add rest of flour gradually, mixing well. Place dough in greased bowl. Let rise to double in size. Roll out on floured board to 7x16" and brush with melted butter. Cover with filling. Roll lengthwise. Shape into a ring and seal edge. Place on greased baking sheet. With scissors, snip almost to center at 1" intervals. Pull sections apart and twist a bit, standing every other one up slightly. Let rise till double in size, 35 to 45 min. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees, 25 min. Drizzle with glaze and decorate with cherries and pecans.

FILLING FOR CHRISTMAS BREAD

Melt 2 T butter to spread on dough. Mix following for the filling: 1/2 c. raisins, 1/4 c. sugar, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 1/4 c. candied fruit.

* * *

One of our readers is sharing this very special recipe with us, asking only that we don't divulge her name. I'm sorry she is so modest, for I'm sure our readers would like to tell her personally how much they like her

CHRISTMAS CAKE

1 pinch of sparkle from your eye
1/2 c. of warmth from your smile
1½ c. of honest admiration
1½ c. of understanding
2 lbs. of strong determination
48 oz. of courage
1 large jar of intelligence and
2 cans of commitment to honesty and goodness

Mix gently but firmly and bake slowly. Wrap with the blue wonder of That Night and the gold of That Star that beckons us. Open early on that Beautiful Morn and share generously with all.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

cation number which is valuable to those who want to resell the car. However, it is also an important number for the victim.

It is the vehicle identification number that the police must have to trace a stolen car. License plates can be changed in minutes and the color of the car is also easily modified. Owners should carry the vehicle identification number or have it recorded somewhere safe.

The new safe driver insurance plan will save money for the majority of drivers. It will cause others to have increased rates. Literature from the State and the independent insurance agents of Mass reminds policy holders to examine the material that comes with this year's auto insurance bill with great care.

What's best about Christmas?

By Claire McDonough

Breida rearranged a strand of tinsel on the Christmas tree.

"It seems funny. This is the first year we won't be doing the Santa routine. With Tanya living in Weymouth we won't be leaving cookies and milk out, or carrots for the reindeer."

"Yeah," Skipper sighed. "But maybe it's just as well. Now that Dad has diabetes, we shouldn't leave cookies around to tempt him."

"Remember," Pat added, "how Dad used to eat the cookies, and Ma used to write a note from Santa and leave it on the empty plate?"

Larry nodded. "She always worked in a lot of commercials, like, "Remember whose birthday this is, and don't fight with your brothers and sisters," and "clean up your mess," and "do everything your wonderful mother tells you to do."

Pat grinned. "It kept us in line for about a half hour, anyway."

"Remember," Breida added, "the time Kevin got up early and substituted his own note? About how Rudolph choked on one of the carrots, so Santa was going to take away all our toys and never come back?"

"Right," Skipper laughed, "and I started to cry, because I really thought Rudolph was dead."

"How about the time Ma said Santa didn't leave Kevin the SX 90 automobile set he wanted because Flip barked and scared him away?"

"I couldn't help it," I said. "I looked in every store on the South Shore and I couldn't find an SX 90."

"But to blame a poor innocent little dog," Skipper reproached me.

"Look," I told him, "it's a dog eat dog world in the Christmas business. Just wait 'til you're a parent. You'll know what I mean.

"Your father and I used to start shopping some time in July. By the time Christmas came we would have used all the presents for birthday gifts, and if there were any left, you would all have changed your minds about what you wanted anyway. And after you opened your presents, you'd spend the rest of the day breaking the toys and playing with the boxes."

Pat nodded. "I remember one year you got me a Batmobile. It was terrific. It was the biggest box I ever had."

"Remember," Maureen said, placing a stack of gaily wrapped packages under the tree, "the year we set Ma and Dad's clock ahead three hours? We had them up watching us open our presents at 3 a.m."

"What do you really like best about Christmas?" I asked them curiously.

They were silent for a minute, then Breida began.

"The time on Christmas Eve when everything is wrapped and ready, and the tree is lit, and it's very quiet, and someone turns the radio on, and it's playing 'Away in a Manger.' "

"Saying 'Merry Christmas' to people you don't see all the time," Skipper said.

"I like the way everyone smiles," Larry contributed.

"I like the way people look happy when they open the presents I give them," Pat mused. "And Handel's Messiah."

"I like having my family around me," I admitted. "But when I saw Tanya this afternoon I asked her what she liked best, and do you know what she said?

"She said, 'I like the Baby.' "

In '84 there'll be a junk drawer

By Lois Martin

In 1984 I'm going to get organized. I shall inspire the envy of those who know me by plucking a necessary odd or end from a drawer when it's needed.

"A place for everything and everything in its place."

The impetus behind this resolve is the apparent inefficiency with minor belongings that has surfaced this month.

I bought a lot of brown wrapping paper a couple years ago for mailing. With it I stashed the professional mailing labels and the good fat tape. I just can't find the stash. So I ended up cutting grocery bags for Christmas mailings and left myself victim to looks of disdain from those who know where they left their paper.

PATCHES

And I know every household in town, including mine, has 12 rolls of Scotch Tape. I saw one in the bottom drawer of the dining room chest during the year. But it's gone. And when I was going to put up that fat patchwork wreath I couldn't find my tack.

It is entirely probable that I have invested in the full cardboard layout of tacks at sometime. But when I emptied a chest for Brian to take in 1980 I put all the contents in a basket somewhere.

In rigging the lights on the tree I discerned I'd need an extension cord. But to justify prominence in the kitchen closet something has to be needed more than twice a year, once when I hook up a radio in the bedroom for my mother and now, this time before Christmas.

I was fretting about that, thinking about checking the upstairs hall closet, when the weather forecaster said we might get a little snow. So I added to my list of missing necessities, the rock salt.

No go. But I found the fly swatter. It has been an unusual summer that the swatter emerges from its hiding place. I could invest in another, but I'd put that in a safe place too, meaning two or more were lost instead of one. It is more frugal to have lost one swatter than to lose two. And I'm good about money. It's what it'll buy that I'm weak on.

My sister, affirming a propensity for misplacement in our genes, has lost control of all her Christmas bulbs. She stored them in a trash bag and there's a good chance an orderly person hurled out the trash. I'd like to suggest they start making 'keeper' trash bags, pink ones, maybe, or bright blue, to signal there's stuff to save rather than to sling.

And there's no telling where the yardstick is. I needed that two weeks ago to measure from my waist to the floor for a dress length. I broke my stick a while back but I thought I'd been given a new one from the bounty of a hardware store man's heart in an unrelated purchase.

And I have written on my list to sweep out the back floor of the car as soon as I come across the whisk broom. It's annoying to keep whacking yourself in the head with the regular broom while doing that chore. And I know it's not in the string drawer because I looked there for an elastic and only found five keys that turn some mystery motors with three screws and the warranty form to be mailed in on my 12 year old washing machine.

Other discovered goods that I don't ever expect to look for is one die for a game, a picture of my niece in Maine when she was seven and instructions for assembly of a bird house.

In most homes of proper functioning, there is a universal junk drawer whose duty, though lowly, is an important one. It keeps all the stuff you don't want most of the time but causes frustration if you can't find it when you do.

Forward in '84. There shall be a junk drawer and holding locations for stuff I can't cram in it. No more general dispensation of my nail, my masking tape, my tape measure, in places that are secret to me.

First I'll fill the bird feeder with the bird seed I found by my one good glove near my wallpapering equipment down cellar.

A useful guide, a Dewey decimal type system, for these belongings will be published when I find it.

...Right after the Merry Christmas I wish you, all those whom you love and to those who wisely love you in return.

Oh, those Christmas Eve 'put-togethers'

By Judy Enright

"There's a piece missing," he moaned, as the Ghost of Christmas Past crept from the cardboard box.

How many times had I heard that one before? Didn't it start with the Big Wheels long ago when we lived on Grove Street? Or was it even earlier with other Christmas Eve put-togethers? His perennial question that night is "it doesn't have to be put together, does it?"

I remember all too well the Christmas Eve he spent blowing up (by mouth) an inflatable teepee for the tots. I also remember his face when he tried to move the teepee through the door, which was a tad smaller than the finished product. His comments, after he deflated the teepee and inflated it (once again my mouth) in the room with the Christmas tree, don't bear repeating. Neither does his comment when the kids punctured it first thing Christmas morning with the sharp point from a plastic Batman.

Then there was the gas grille which he assembled after three days of bits and pieces lying around the living room. "Come in here," he said proudly, as he picked up the handle to push the grille out the door. His face fell when he looked down and discovered that he had put the wheels under the handle so the grille couldn't be pushed. "No problem," he said, as he set out to change the base around and found that he had to break down the whole grille and start again.

It would probably be unkind to point out that I asked for the easiest grille to assemble when making the purchase.

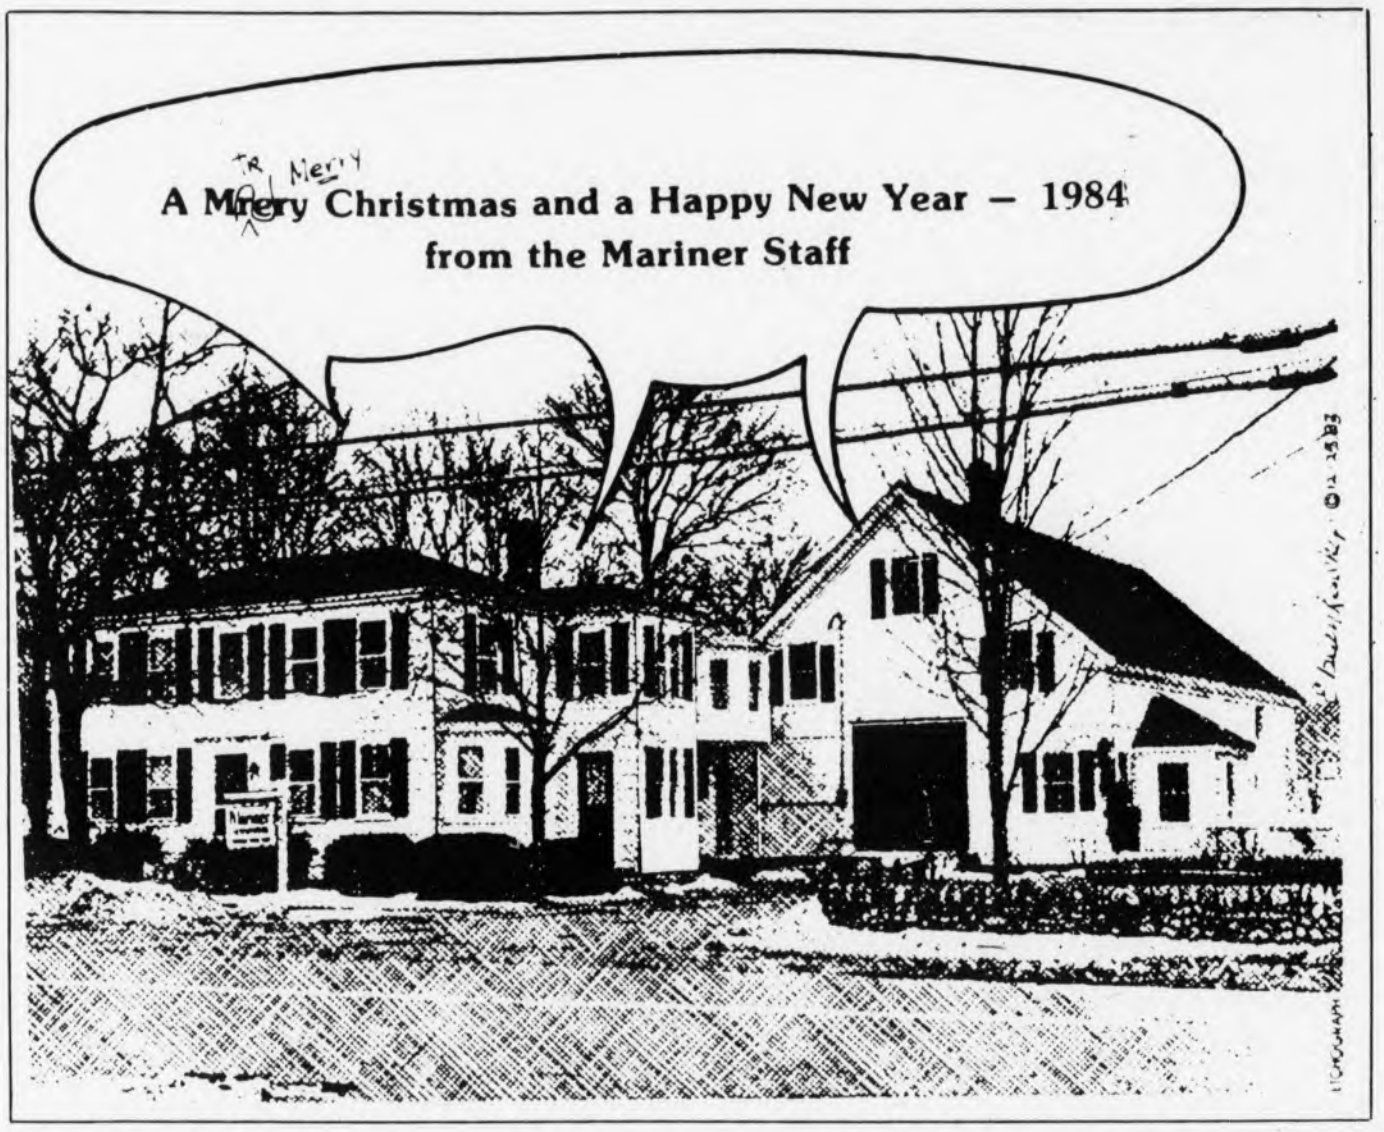
I won't even mention the wooden swing set. That would be unkind.

While he may not be handy, he does have overwhelmingly good common sense about fire safety. Every year, he set up our natural Christmas tree in the living room and then allowed the lights to be lit for maybe a minute during the season. "Those trees are a real fire hazard," he'd say. "Do you know when they were cut?" he'd ask as he poured another pitcher of water into the stand. I've seen too many fires started by Christmas trees. You can't have the lights on for too long."

Last year, I succumbed. I yearned for more than a minute of brightly-colored lights to accompany the carols. He was probably right, anyway. The tree was in the same room with the woodstove and probably did dry out. Very sensible, I thought.

So, we did it. We bought an artificial tree. It was a beauty and could easily have passed for the real thing if you didn't stand too close and had never smelled a true Christmas tree. It cost almost $200 (on sale) but we figured that was still economical what with the price of real trees climbing every year. It would probably pay for itself after a few years. We even bought a smaller (and much cheaper) version for the boys' playroom.

After Christmas last year, he carefully bagged the plastic trunks and branches and put the tree away. His first mistake this year was taking it out.



During the first day of assembly, he was mildly aggravated. The pieces didn't fit together right, he said, and sent me back to the store to see if the branches went up or down. "Do they make service calls?" one of the kids asked, adding nothing to his mood.

I tried to look inconspicuous in the tree store as I parted branches to get a look at the trunk assembly. "May I help you?" a salesman asked. When I blurted out my tale, he tried not to stare and said politely, "the branches are all lettered and correspond to the trunk." "It isn't the branches we're worried about. It's the trunk," I said. "Oh," the salesman said sympathetically and walked away to help another customer.

By the second day, himself was in a state. By then, he had the two plastic trees totally confused and had parts of the smaller tree's trunk forced onto the bigger tree. "I don't think the trunk should bulge out there in the middle," I said, trying to be helpful. "How would you like to put this together?" he asked. A visiting friend asked, "How did you put it together last year?" "If I knew that," he snapped, (saying later he thought I was the one who had asked,) "I'd have it together, wouldn't I?"

This Saturday, we went to buy a real tree. "Hey, what are you doing here?" the proprietor asked. I had been there earlier to buy wreaths and said we wouldn't be buying a real tree this year because we already had our tree. "I thought you said you had an artifical tree," the proprietor said. "Don't ask," was the reply. "You don't want to know. If I was handy, I wouldn't be doing the work I do," himself said.

If there's anyone out there who wants to invest in two trees, and can figure out which is which, I know where they can be had dirt cheap. We'll even throw in the Easy-As-A-B-C directions and perhaps a word of advice on assembly. But if he tells you there's a piece missing, don't take his word for it.

Peace

You've built equity in your home...

The equity in your home (the difference between the amount you owe on your first mortgage and what your home is really worth) is an asset often overlooked.

You worked for your home...now let your home work for you. Our loan officers will be pleased to talk with you about taking advantage of this ideal money source.

A loan on this equity can pay the tuition for your children's education, buy or build a recreational home, allow you to take advantage of investment opportunities and even help you assume an existing mortgage on a new home. We can assist with any worthwhile financial need.

You have built equity in your home... why not use it???

Holiday Happiness

The Champions of Breakfast.

When you wake up tomorrow morning, you have a chance to read one of the best newspapers in the country.

The Boston Globe.

According to a recent, nationwide survey of college and university journalism professors, The Globe is one of America's top five newspapers.*

In the opinion of the judges, what sets the best newspapers apart is "first-rate writing, aggressive and original reporting, strong local coverage and a commitment to excellence on the part of management."

Not surprisingly, one of the best newspapers for readers is also one of the best newspapers for advertisers. At the same time, a survey of advertising professionals rated The Globe one of the top ten most effective advertising newspapers in America.*

All of which means that whether you carry The Globe to breakfast or use it to carry your advertising message, you're making a choice the experts agree on.
